In the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, Dr. Waters will preach at the morning service. The evening service will be a musical one, when the large vested choir, under the direction of Clarence Eddy, organist and choirmaster, will sing the anthems, "By the Waters of Babylon," by S. Coleridge-Taylor, and "The Lost Sheep," by Myles B. Foster. The offertory, "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by S. Liddle, will be sung by Mrs. Nella Brown Kellogg, and George Carrie will sing the aria, "Sound an Alarm," from "Judas Maccabaeus." Mr. Eddy will also have two organ numbers. The morning class for men, which meets at the close of the morning service, will have as its topic "Jesus' Teaching in Regard to Crime and the Punishment of Criminals." The open parliament at 3 o'clock in the afternoon will have as a speaker Luke D. Stapleton, justice of the Supreme Court, who will have as his subject "Good Citizenship and How It May Be Promoted." The week night service on Friday at 8 o'clock will be the preparatory lecture, the following Sunday being communion Sunday.

In the First Presbyterian Church, Henry street, near Clark, the Rev. Dr. L. Mason Clarke, minister, will preach at 11 A.M. and 7 P.M. to-morrow. The theme of the sermon in the afternoon will be "The Consecration of Ability." The services to-morrow, especially in the afternoon, have been arranged in respect of their musical selections, as a commemorative tribute to Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy. His work and character. Under the direction of R. Huntington Woodman, organist and choirmaster, the choir will render, at the morning service: "Hear Ye, Israel," Mendelssohn; "Before the Heavens Were Spread Abroad," Parker; "Lo, There Came a Mighty Sound," Gounod. At the afternoon service: "Hear My Prayer," "He Watching Over Israel," "Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord," all by Mendelssohn. Preparatory service in the lecture room of the church on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, the pastor in charge.

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, will preach to-morrow morning on "A Message of Reassurance." Under the leadership of the musical director, John Hyatt Brewer, the choir will sing: "O Lord, I Beseech Thee," Marks, and "Sing O Heavens," Tours. Mrs. Fitz-Gibbon will sing as the offertory solo, "O Ye That Love the Lord," Barnby. The Rev. Allyn K. Foster will preach in the evening. Miss Tudor and Mrs. Fitz-Gibbon will sing as an offertory duet, "O Love Divine," Brewer. At the morning service the newly elected elders and deacons will be installed and a new deacon ordained.

The Rev. Dr. J. F. Carson will preach in the Central Presbyterian Church, Jefferson and Marcy avenues, to-morrow evening on "Is There an Intermediate State—the Teaching of the Bible as to the Condition of the Departed Immediately After Death." This will be the third sermon that Dr. Carson has preached on the subject of the life beyond. These sermons have attracted general interest and large audiences have been in attendance. Dr. Carson will also preach in the morning on "Religion—A Faith or a Life."

"The Transfiguration," Raphael's famous painting in the Vatican gallery in Rome, will be the subject of the evening sermon to-morrow by the Rev. Dr. T. Calvin McClelland in Memorial Presbyterian Church, Seventh avenue and St. John's place. Copies of the picture will be distributed to the congregation with the weekly Calendar. The subject of the morning sermon will be "The Heroism of Common Living." The music for the morning service includes a solo by Williams St. John, tenor, "Rock of Ages," by F. N. Shepphord. At the evening service the full choir, under direction of S. Lewis Elmer, will render West's "The Lord Is Exalted"; Tosti's "Guide Us With Thy Heavenly Light," and Barnby's "We May Not Climb the Heavenly Steeps."

In the Reformed Church on the Heights, Pierrepont street, the pastor, the Rev. Andrew Magill, will preach to-morrow at both services. His morning subject will be "The Rich Young Ruler;" this sermon is repeated by general request. Afternoon subject, "The Woman Who Failed." Union prayer services in the chapel every day at 4:30 P. M., except Saturday.

In the Second Presbyterian Church, Clinton and Remsen streets, the pastor, the Rev. L. Van den Burg, will preach at both services to-morrow. Anthems by the choir: "In Heavenly Love Abiding," Shelley; "The Lord Is My Light," Buck; "Holy Father, Cheer Our Way," Huber. Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock the service will be preparatory to the "Lord's Supper," to be observed on the following Sabbath. The Rev. and Mrs. Van den Burg will welcome the congregation and friends at their reception Thursday evening in the lecture room of the church.

In St. Ann's Church on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston streets, the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, services to-morrow will be as follows: 8 A. M., Holy Communion; 11, morning prayer and sermon by the Rt. Rev. Dr. H. D. Robinson, missionary bishop of Nevada; 8 P. M., special musical service, when the choir will sing "The Daughter of Jairus," with harp and organ accompaniment and short address by the rector.

In Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Seventh avenue and St. John's place, the Rev. William G. Griffin, pastor of the St. James Church, Bensonhurst, will exchange pulpits with Mr. Shannon will preach at 11 A.M. in ex- on "The Wire- less Ship being suggested by the wrecked Republic, the part wireless waves played in the rescue of its passengers and their suggestiveness regarding the spiritual universe. Missionary Sunday will be observed in the Sunday school. Miss Marion Tong will conduct the Epworth League service at 7 P. M. Wednesday and Friday evening services in the week.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion in Christ Church, Clinton and Harrison streets, to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock. The rector, the Rev. Walter D. Johnson, will preach to-morrow morning on "A New Departure in the Church's Ideals," and in the evening on "The Music of the Reformation as Expressive of Its Religious Ideals." The service will be sung throughout in the music of the period of the Reformation. This service is one of the series of musical services arranged under the direction of Robert A. Gayler, organist and choirmaster of Christ Church, which illustrate the development of ecclesiastical music.

In the New York Avenue Methodist Church, corner Dean street, the district superintendent, the Rev. Dr. Charles S. Wing, will preach to-morrow morning. In the evening Dr. H. H. Meyer of the board of Sunday school publications will preach.

The Rev. Dr. Boynton, who has been in Albany during the week, holding daily conferences and preaching every night at evangelistic services in the First Congregational Church in that city, will speak to-morrow morning in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church on "Five Days at the State Capital; Some Impressions, Religious and Otherwise." The music at the morning service will consist of Spicker's "Fear Not, O Israel," and the duet for contralto and baritone, "Thy Will Be Done," by Mendelssohn. In the evening a musical service will be held, when the selections will be from Mendelssohn's works, in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of his birth. They will be taken from "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Hymn of Praise," the "Forty-second Psalm" and the motet, "Hear My Prayer." The choir consists of a double quartet and chorus, under the direction of Herbert Stavely Sammond. Mr. Sammond will play movements from the first, second and fifth organ sonatas for the preludes and postludes of both services.

In the Church of the Messiah, Greene and Clermont avenues, there will be usual Sunday services to-morrow. A general invitation has been extended to all interested in the subject to attend the meetings of the confirmation class in the church Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock. The musical programme for to-morrow morning announces Somervell's "Te Deum" in F, Gilchrist's "Benedictus" in F, and Tschaikowsky's "A Legend" for the offertory, and the following compositions for the evening: Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, Toger in F; anthem, "The Day Thou Gavest," by Woodward, and Elvey's "Arise" for the offertory.

The special services by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, in Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand avenue and Dean street, will conclude for the present with to-morrow's sermons, but the deep interest shown renders it possible that they will be resumed the week beginning Sunday, February 14. Dr. Young's subjects to-morrow will be: Morning, "What Constitutes a Model Congregation?" Evening, "Anything to Save a Man—a Woman's Influence." D. Stanley Harris, bass, will assist the regular choir at the morning service.

In the South Congregational Church, Court and President streets, the Rev. Boyd Edwards will preach at both services to-morrow. On Monday, at 7:30 P.M. Mr. Edwards will speak to the Boys Club on "Modern Chivalry," and other meetings of that evening will be Junior Lend a Hand Club, at 7:30, and at 8 the South Glee Club and the Lend a Hand Club. McGiffert of the department of church history in Union Theological Seminary, will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning, February 7, in the absence of the senior pastor at Bangor Seminary for the Shepard lectureship, and of the junior pastor, preaching at Williams College.

Greene Avenue Baptist Church, Greene avenue, between Lewis and Stuyvesant avenues, will continue its evangelistic campaign through Sunday. The Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws, the pastor, will preach in the morning on "Thou Art Not Far From the Kingdom." Evangelist James A. Francis will deliver an address at the Bible school, which will meet at 2:30 P.M., and in the evening Mr. Francis will preach. At the evening service the pastor will administer the ordinance of baptism. The Quartet Choir will sing at both services. All are welcome.

In St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Bedford avenue and Wilson street, the pastor, Claude H. Priddy, will preach in the morning upon "The Indispensable Loaves." In the evening the monthly musical service will be given by the quartet and augmented chorus, under the direction of Frank Von Neer. On Wednesday evening, in the Sunday school hall, for the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund, an entertainment will be given by the Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs of Columbia University. Between sixty and seventy children and adults are given a vacation of two weeks each summer at the Henry Vogel Fresh Air Home, at Jamesport, through the generosity of the members and friends of St. John's Church and School.

The old Plymouth-Bethel, henceforth to be known as the "Brooklyn Tabernacle," on Hicks street near Fulton, will be reopened to-morrow. Pastor C. T. Russell, who will preach in the afternoon the first sermon, is well known in religious circles in this country and abroad.

To-morrow afternoon at a special missionary meeting in St. George's Church, Gates and Marcy avenues, the Rev. D. M. Genus of St. Thomas Church will speak, and in the evening Dean Moses of the Garden City Cathedral, and the Rev. Mr. Burlingham.

SEARCHING FOR HEARST.

Sheriff Hobley Has Two Executions He Wants to Collect.

Deputy Sheriff Kendall of Sheriff Hobley's office has been looking for William R. Hearst for several days, and this morning stopped in at the office of the New York American to see if he could levy upon some of Mr. Hearst's property to pay the costs of the action started some time ago by the independent candidate for Mayor against Mayor McClellan. Mr. Hearst was beaten, and Corporation Counsel Pendleton has filed with the sheriff of this county two executions, one for $120.10, with interest from February 1, 1907, and the other for $1,000, with interest from February 1, 1907. Mr. Kendall was unable to find Mr. Hearst.

Y. M. C. A. TO COLLECT $10,000 IN TEN DAYS

Sixty Workers, Divided Into Six Teams, to Comb Brooklyn for Money.

CAMPAIGN IS ON TO-DAY.

Then Ten Thousand Dollar Club, Hopeful of Wiping Out a Fiscal Year Deficit.

Beginning to-day and continuing until February 11, Brooklyn will be the scene of a remarkable canvass for the raising of a certain specified amount to cover the deficit in the current expenses for the fiscal year just closing of the Central Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. A club, composed of many willing workers, has been organized, and the members are pledged to do their level best to raise $10,000 in ten days.

Men of experience in the association have been working on the details. The plan was explained at a dinner given by the committee of management in the lecture room on Thursday evening last, when the "Ten Thousand Dollar Club" was formed. The club consists of an executive committee and sixty workers. These sixty men were organized into six teams, consisting of a captain, three lieutenants and six workers. The executive committee undertakes to raise $4,000 during the ten days, and each of the six teams will endeavor to raise $1,000. This makes it necessary for every man on each team to raise $10 a day for ten days.

The six captains will direct the eighteen lieutenants, who in turn will supervise the thirty-six workers, each group reporting to their superiors at the end of every working day. During the ten days' campaign, from February 1 to 11, an immense bulletin will be displayed in the association building, which will indicate the daily progress of the club. This bulletin will be changed every night at 10 o'clock and will show how much each team has secured up to that hour.

The greatest enthusiasm was manifested at the dinner when the plan was outlined and the system of raising the money explained. Howard McWilliams, the branch chairman, presided. He said that the plans had been carefully arranged and that S. A. Moffat had presented them in detail to the members of the finance committee and the committee of management, and that the entire scheme had been unanimously indorsed.

Mr. Moffat explained the scheme in detail. The captains, he said, are men of experience, being the members of the finance committee; the lieutenants were chosen from the committee of management, and the workers were either department secretaries of the branch or members of the association. The sixth team is composed entirely of men from the rank and file of the membership. Mr. Moffat stated that the task of raising $10,000, which might be almost impossible if undertaken by a few men, even in a long period, would be comparatively easy by the division of labor, among a large force, within ten days. Mr. Moffat, by the way, has made a great reputation in the association as a financial hustler. In Saratoga Springs he had charge of a campaign for the raising of $15,000 in fifteen days, and the total reached $15,325 in the time specified. In New Rochelle he helped to run a forty-eight hour whirlwind canvass for the raising of $9,000, and when the two days were up, the books showed a total of $11,500.

Frank W. Pearsall of the New York State Executive Committee was at the dinner and showed the young men how easy their task was to be, illustrating his remarks by citing striking incidents from his own experience in this kind of work. He laid emphasis on the fact that the men who were giving up their time to the work were not beggars, but were rendering a public service in helping to maintain an institution that has done so much for the public welfare.

E. J. Gantz, instructor in salesmanship in the Central branch, predicted that the efforts to raise $10,000 would be more than successful.

Elmer E. Thompson, captain of the members team, spoke briefly of a plan of that team to give a benefit by which part of their $1,000 will be raised, after which C. W. Dietrich, the branch secretary, gave final instructions to the workers. Mr. Dietrich stated that the budget this year amounted to $57,000, of which $35,000 is derived from class and membership fees; $7,000 from endowment; $2,000 from rentals, and the balance by subscription. The amount to be raised by subscription this year is larger than for many previous years, owing to the loss in rentals, due chiefly to the Brooklyn Institute changing its quarters to the Academy of Music.

NINE HORSES LOST IN FIRE.

Patrolman Discovered Flames, but Could Not Rescue Animals.

In a fierce blaze that broke out at 3 o'clock this morning nine horses were burned to death in a large stable, which was totally destroyed, at 20 Bristol street, Brownsville. Hyman Drachmen is the proprietor. Patrolman Michael Galvin of the Brownsville station discovered the fire and turned in the alarm that brought out the engines. Galvin then made an effort to save the horses, whose screams of terror aroused the neighborhood, but they could not be removed. Galvin and other men were obliged to flee for their lives and leave the animals to their fate.

Two hours previously a fire broke out at 251 Osborn street and spread to 256 Osborn street. The damage was estimated to be $800.

MAN AND WIFE FOUND DEAD.

Deaths of Jersey City Couple May Have Been Accidental.

With the gas radiator turned on full, Frederick Vahey, 40 years old, and his wife, Magie, were found dead from asphyxiation in their apartment in Jersey City to-day. There was no note or message left by either of the couple to indicate that their death was other than accidental.

Vahey, who was a mechanic, had been out of work for some time.

EXCISE ARRESTS.

Activity on the part of the police after the closing hour Sunday morning resulted in two excise arrests yesterday by the police of the Fifth avenue station. Both men are charged with violating the liquor tax law. Adolph Woehlkers, proprietor of the place at 494 Fourth avenue, was arrested and an hour later Charles Albert, bartender at 203 Prospect Park West was taken in custody. Yesterday morning Eugene Cartier, bartender at 5723 Third avenue, and David Harris, barkeeper at 4891 Fourth avenue, were arrested by the detectives attached to the Fourth avenue station. All these cases were adjourned by Magistrate Geismar in the Fifth avenue court for a hearing later in the week.

NASSAU LIGHT-POWER CO.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Albany, February 1.—The Second District Public Service Commission has approved of the franchise given by the Village of Hempstead to the Nassau Light and Power Company, extending the franchise for a period of twenty years.

NEW GRAND JURY.

Edward F. Linton the Foreman of the February Body.

The February Grand Jury was sworn in this morning by Judge Dike, sitting in the criminal term of the County Court. The foreman selected for this month is Edward F. Linton, who is well known in Brooklyn, and the secretary of the Atlantic Improvement Commission. Mr. Linton lives in the Twenty-sixth Ward, and at 494 Jamaica avenue. He is in the real estate business. The other members of the Grand Jury are as follows:

CONFINED IN FOREIGN JAIL

Experience of George Wellington Gibbs of This Borough.

Spent a Month in British Guiana Prison Because He Was Mistaken for Another Man.

George Wellington Gibbs, the young Brooklyn man, who claims to have been locked up in a prison at Georgetown, British Guiana, for nearly a month, on false charges, told his story to an Eagle reporter this morning. He arrived on the steamship Korona, yesterday afternoon, and went at once to his home at 293 Manhattan avenue.

"I was mistaken for some one else, by the authorities at Georgetown," said young Gibbs, "in spite of the fact that I showed them my passport and that all my luggage was marked with my name. They would not permit me to send for friends, and it was the greatest while before I could get word to the American consul, Arthur G. Clare.

"Every week or so I was dragged forth from the jail and arraigned. Ramon Garriga Cuevas was the name of the person I was believed to be, at least that was the name on the warrant on which I was arrested just as I was to leave the place for the Barbadoes. It was December 22 when I started to vacate. My luggage was all packed and I had engaged passage on the Priemia, when word came to my hotel that I was wanted by the colonel of police.

"Of course, I couldn't leave in the face of that, and so reported at police headquarters, where I was placed under arrest. Then they locked me up in the filthiest jail I have ever had the misfortune to lay eyes on.

"I was not given anything to sleep on other than a heap of straw. The place was run over with rats, and several other prisoners complained of having been bitten by the creatures. The man who I was supposed to be was wanted for the theft of $12,000 from the Royal Bank of Canada. I could not convince the authorities that I was not Ramon Garriga Cuevas. Finally, however, a cabled description of Cuevas was received by the police, which differed materially from that of myself and I was released.

"Before that though, I wrote a letter back to the States. The American consul didn't seem to be able to do very much for me, although my condition was somewhat bettered after I complained to him."

LOOKING FOR MC MULLENS.

Macon Street Family Wish to Communicate With Writer of an Eagle "Personal."

Some time within the last five years a "personal" apeared in the Eagle asking for some trace of a family named McMullen, a member of which had once been in the butcher business on Court street, near First place. The business was given up about twenty years ago on account of the illness of Archibald McMullen, the proprietor, and the family moved from South Brooklyn. The remaining members of the family are now living at 191 Macon street, Brooklyn, and are trying to communicate with the writer of the personal. By a perverse fate not one of them saw the notice, although they regularly read the Eagle, but a week or so ago a friend of theirs happened to speak of it to them. Two of the sisters have poured over the files of the paper, but have not been able to find the notice, and do not know where to address an answer.

The McMullens do not know who it is that is looking for them, but think it may be their brother Frank, who went West about twenty years ago and was completely lost to his family. They heard that he was living in Montana and had married shortly after his arrival there. His wife wrote East a few times in the early years, but stopped her letters suddenly, and has never been heard from since. Whether Frank McMullen is living or dead at present, his sisters in Macon street have no knowledge. They are very anxious to find out, and hope that the Montana papers may become interested and start inquiries about him.

Another theory is that the Eagle notice was inserted by someone whose conscience was troubling him on account of his debts. Many customers owed money to Archibald McMullen when he broke up his butcher business, and one of them may have desired to pay up. If that is the case, the surviving relatives will be only too glad to get into communication with him.

ARRESTED AT 3 A.M.

Saloonkeeper Held and Charged, Also, With Assaulting a Policeman.

John Bradley, 35 years old, who lives at 1560 Sixty-eighth street, and who has a saloon at New Utrecht avenue and Sixty-ninth street, was held, yesterday, by Magistrate Voorhees, in the Coney Island court, to await the action of the Court of Special Sessions on two charges of assaulting an officer and violation of the liquor tax law.

The accused was arrested at 3 o'clock yesterday morning by Policeman Welder of the Bath Beach station, who declared he saw four men in the place at the above named hour. Welder said he was assaulted by Bradley when he entered the place. Bradley declared he didn't strike the policeman.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL.

Patrolman James O'Brien of the Stagg street station arrested Charles Syske, 26 years old, of 1251 DeKalb avenue, yesterday, on a charge of felonious assault. O'Brien claims that the prisoner is one of three men who, on November 10, assaulted him, with blackjacks on Ten Eyck street, near Manhattan avenue. At the time of the assault upon the policeman, Jacob Frey was arrested. Frey has since been indicted and tried, and is now awaiting sentence. In the Manhattan avenue court, Magistrate Higginbotham held Syske in $1,000 bail for examination.

DIVORCED PASTOR HERE: OPENS NEW TABERNACLE

Russell Is Head of Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society Which Has Moved.

PREACHED TWO-HOUR SERMON

Has Opened in the Old Bethel on Hicks Street—No Hell in His Creed.

Pastor Charles H. Russell, who declares he does not believe in title of "Reverend" or "Doctor," and who from his own declaration intends to widely circulate his sermons through a syndicate, began his Brooklyn career yesterday by opening the old Plymouth Bethel, on Hicks street, near Fulton, as the Brooklyn Tabernacle, a home with which the late Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage was associated three times in Brooklyn. The Bethel was founded in the days of Henry Ward Beecher.

Pastor Russell's reputation has preceded him out of the West, and the startling news comes that he was divorced from his wife, Mrs. Maria Frances Russell, in 1906. He is quoted as saying, in a letter which he wrote to his wife:

"I do not think it right for persons of strong mind and character to marry. A strong man should never wed a woman intellectually his equal, but one of weaker mind. I am adapted to no one but the Lord Jesus Christ, and I am thankful we understand each other."

This he wrote, it is alleged, when Mrs. Russell accused him of being too fond of his ward, Rosa Hall: "I am like a jellyfish. I float all around and touch this one and that one, and if they respond, I embrace them."

Pastor Russell is the head of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, which has its headquarters in Allegheny City, Pa., but which has now moved to Brooklyn, with rooms in the Bethel, and here can be procured tracts free of charge and Bibles at a small cost. It is claimed that the society has 50,000 persons connected with it.

Yesterday, services in the Tabernacle began with a prayer and praise service in the morning, and in the afternoon Pastor Russell talked for two hours and five minutes, and when he was through he stated to reporters who questioned him that the remark about "jellyfish" was not true. The trouble with his wife was that she was taken up with woman's rights. The young woman named in the divorce proceedings was married and she and her husband represent the Watch Tower Society of Australia. Their official title is "pilgrims," which is equivalent to missionaries in other denominations.

Before the sermon, Pastor Russell explained that he did not intend to preach "a hell-fire religion," for hell was not a place of torment, and declared that the millenium was near at hand. He also said that the "pilgrims" did not recognize as Biblical the terms clergy and laity, nor the titles "reverend" nor "doctor of divinity," and such like, now in vogue. He explained that this did not lead to disfellowship with any body of believers.

Pastor Russell outlined what was to be done at the Tabernacle:

"Preaching services will be held in this auditorium every Sunday afternoon. Special services will be held from time to time in the surrounding cities and neighborhoods, for there are about twenty ministers of ability connected with our society's work here. These all give their services free of charge, either for meetings or funerals, and are at your call. The lower floor of Plymouth Bethel, hereafter the Brooklyn Tabernacle, will serve us as a Bible and tract repository. The tracts you may obtain free, and the Bibles at cost prices. We will conduct there a Bible correspondence school for the answering of theological queries and in general assisting to a clear understanding of the Bible by God's people and those not God's people, but who are 'feeling after him if haply they might find him.' Already this correspondence feature brings us hundreds of letters daily inquiring in various languages for tracts and helps in Bible study.

"It will be seen that ours is not the gospel of the higher critics and evolutionists. This, however, does not mean that we believe the Bible teaches all our well-meaning forefathers of the 'Dark Ages' supposed the Bible to teach. We find that they burned one another at the stake for disbelieving things which the Bible does not teach, and for believing things which the Bible does teach. The growing skepticism regarding God and the Bible, we find, is generally the outgrowth of a misunderstanding of the Bible's teaching respecting 'hell.' No sane man can be blamed for rejecting the old theory that God first made a roasting 'hell' and then made a race, knowing that all would spend an awful eternity there, except the few who would hear of Christ and become saints. This blasphemy against our Creator's Holy Name needs to be rebuked."

ST. FRANCIS STUDENTS' EVENT.

What will perhaps be one of the largest affairs held in the Kings County Democratic Club this season will take place to-morrow evening, when the Students Association of St. Francis' College will hold its first entertainment and reception.

The committee in charge has spared no pains to make the affair a big success. Nearly one thousand tickets have been distributed among the students, and there is every indication of a successful night.

An excellent musical programme has been arranged, which will be followed by a minstrel show.

LOESBERG GRADUATION.

The graduation exercises of the Loesberg Business Institute were held Saturday night at American Star Hall, Pitkin avenue and Christopher street. The programme was opened with an address by Edward [illegible], M.A., principal of the [illegible], followed by the reading of prizes and diplomas by Dr. M. Newstader. Committee [illegible]zenberg and Edgar Dubs [illegible] also addressed the graduates. Rubin delivered

TORRENS LAW IN EFFECT; NO EXAMINERS NAMED

SOME INFORMATION ASKED.

Procedure Relatively Simple, but Slow—No Rush of Business Indicated, It Is Said.

Keen interest was manifested in the workings of the new Torrens land law, which went into effect to-day. There were a score or more inquiries in regard to the steps to be taken to register titles under the new statute made at the office of Register Prendergast in the Hall of Records. Under the law, in a county where there is a register he is made the registrar of titles under the new system. One "caution," a notice by a person interested that information is to be sent to him of any proceedings in relation to certain property, was filed. Another "caution," received by mail but unaccompanied by a fee of $1, as required by law, was returned to the sender, with information on the subject.

To each inquirer in regard to the working of the new law the following printed instructions were given, which had been prepared by Deputy Register Ebstein:

How Shall I Make Application to Register My Title?

Second. File one in the Supreme Court and Third. File one with the registrar.
Fourth. File notice with the county clerk.
Fifth. Employ an official examiner of title.
Sixth. When judgment is granted by the Supreme Court file same with the registrar and apply for owner's duplicate certificate of title.

Seventh. All papers affecting the property (such as, order of service or summons, appointment of guardian ad litem or power of attorney, all liens, incumbrances or charges on the property, etc.) which are issued between the date of filing the application and the date of issuing the certificate must be filed with the registrar.

Eighth. If you desire to be notified of any application to register any property in the title of which you claim an interest, file a caution at once with the registrar, who will notify you of any application to register the title of the property in question.

Fees to Be Charged by the Registrar.

Filing application	$1.50
Filing each order of service or summons	.75
Filing order appointing guardian ad litem	.75
Filing judgment and issuing certificate	5.00
Filing lien, incumbrance or charge	1.00
Filing deed or other paper requiring the cancellation of a certificate and the issuing of another	2.00
Filing any instrument canceling a lien or incumbrance on a certificate	.50
Filing caution	1.00
Making additional certificate	.50

There was one request for an application made at the register's office to-day, but the inquirer was referred to a stationer to get the blank form, the same as a blank for a deed or a mortgage. The application has to be filed with the Supreme Court, as well as with the register. Books for containing the certificates of title issued by the register have been prepared in his office and clerks have been assigned to the new work.

As the law only took effect to-day, nothing has yet been done by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in regard to the appointment of official examiners under the Torrens act, whose work will be inquiry into the validity of titles which it is sought to register. Clarence Barrow, clerk of the Appellate Division, said that nothing could be done in the matter of the appointment of examiners under the rules of the Court of Appeals until the Appellate Division sat again in March, but that a number of inquiries had been made in regard to their appointments.

Meantime, applications can be made in the Supreme Court for the registering of titles, the cases to be referred to the official examiners when they are named.

Procedure Under New Law.

The procedure under the new law is simple. An application for registration is made by filing with the County Register, who by the statute is made the registrar of titles, what is technically called a "complaint," praying that the title to a piece of property may be registered. This "complaint" has to be part of a proceeding begun in the Supreme Court for a judgment of registration. The court refers the examination of the title to an official examiner, who must attach to the complaint a certificate of title, after he has examined it. This must contain what is usually embraced in an abstract of title, setting forth all rights, claims, liens or charges against the property in question. The official examiner must have qualified in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, under the rules of the Court of Appeals, for the performance of his duties and have given bonds.

When the matter comes before the Supreme Court for adjudication all owners, lien holders and claimants to the property who can be found must be named as parties to the action and made defendants, and in order that no one may be omitted, this clause is added to those specifically named: "All other persons, if any, who have any right or interest in or lien upon said property or any part thereof."

Upon the report of the official examiner that the owner has a title which should be registered, the Supreme Court makes an order directing service of the summons and a notice that the action is pending on all defendants so they may make an appearance to defend their rights. The notice of an application for registration has to be advertised for four weeks and a notice be conspicuously posted on the property in question. Any person interested may appear and answer the complaint and may oppose the application or set up a demand to have the property registered for himself.

The court must decree on the evidence in whom the title to the property is vested, whether in the plaintiff, who is the applying owner, or in someone else, and may remove all clouds from the title and direct the registrar to register the title. The registrar makes the proper record and gives the owner a duplicate certificate, setting forth that the person named therein is the owner, subject to such mortgages, liens or incumbrances which the court has found to exist.

Deputy Register's Explanation.

Deputy Register Ebstein said of the working of the new law to-day: "Of course we cannot tell how much business will come up under the Torrens law. We have had a number of inquiries in regard to it and one man two or three weeks ago asked to be the first to make application for registration of his title. We send inquirers for blanks to the stationers, but I don't know that they have yet been supplied with them.

"There really is nothing for this office to do until the Supreme Court has passed on an application, except to supply information. In Massachusetts, where the law is substantially the same as here, I understand that most applicants ignore the registrar and go direct to the court, where the application is passed on. Here the matter can be taken up by any justice of the Supreme Court unless there is a justice set apart for the title term, before whom all Torrens law business must go. We are in readiness to handle all the registrations that the court orders, but I expect that for some time it will be only information in regard to the workings of the new law that will be sought."

MRS. COUTURE STRICKEN.

Wife's Illness Follows Close on Husband's.

Following the serious illness of N. N. Couture, of Whitestone, L. I., from which he is rapidly recovering, comes the announcement that Mrs. N. N. Couture has suffered an apoplectic stroke. Drs. McPherson and Bustard, in attendance, are hopeful of her ultimate recovery. The Coutures are prominent in the social and business life of Long Island and Brooklyn.

SERVANT BURNED TO DEATH.

Lizzie Littler Knocked Over Gas Stove on Awakening From Sleep.

Lizzie Littler, a servant in the employ of Mrs. Aline Tissit, at 214 Guernsey street, was burned to death, yesterday, as the result of kicking over a gas stove.

She had been asleep, and, getting up, accidentally knocked over the stove. Her own clothes caught fire, and the flames spead to the bed. Mrs. Tissit saw the flames and sent in an alarm.

It wasn't until the blaze had been put out that the woman's body was discovered.

SAYS WILLETT ERRED

"Not Drunk," Declares One of Party Who Hissed Him.

Prominent Queens County Men Deny Charge Made by Congressman, Following Banquet.

The following well known Queens County people are particularly interested in the assertion made by Congressman William Willett, jr., that "some of the guests" who hissed him at the Queens County Bar Association banquet at the Hotel Astor, Saturday night, were "on the road to intoxication":

Justice Garret J. Garretson, County Judge Burt J. Humphrey, Municipal Magistrate William Rasquin, jr.; N. W. Giles, ex-deputy surrogate of Queens; Sheriff H. S. Harvey, Henry Walters, former District Attorney Eugene N. L. Young, M. C. Corwin, Cortlandt C. Woodburn, State Senator Denis J. Harte, Elmer G. Story, William H. Seibert, jr., and ex-Corporation Counsel William E. Stewart.

"Congressman Willett was mistaken if he intimated that any of our number was drunk," one of the above named declared to an Eagle reporter this morning. "We were all sober."

Congressman Willett was hissed while he was telling a story about some Greenlanders who had been converted by Moravian missionaries. He said that some months later some more revivalists visited the place and, observing that the converts seemed to be much more interested in hell than heaven, asked the reason why.

"Why do you all want to go to hell?" the conscientious inquirer asked, according to Mr. Willett's story.

"Because it's warm there," answered the Greenland converts.

Congressman Willett was somewhat taken aback when, at the conclusion of this narrative, some of the diners evidenced their disapproval with hisses and cries of "rotten."

"I was urged to speak," Congressman Willett is reported as having explained. "I wanted to talk on serious matters, but since that was not wanted I decided to tell a few stories. The guests, or at least some of them, were in quite a joyous mood by the time it was my turn to say something and they had to be called to order by Justice Maddox. Some of them were on the road to intoxication."

Congressman Willett charges his political opponents with having hissed him. He recently brought suit against Sheriff Harvey to recover on a $2,500 promissory note and, Mr. Willett declares, the hissing was simply an outbreak of the feeling of resentment against him nursed by his enemies.

BUSINESS MEN TO MEET TO DEMAND FERRIES

Legal Action May Be Decided Upon at To-night's Meeting in Williamsburg.

OPPOSED TO ANY NEW SITE.

Marshall Driggs Counsels Continuous Agitation Until They Have Succeeded.

It is expected that some definite plan whereby all the civic organizations in this borough may work in unison to compel, by legal action, either the ferry company or the city to resume the operation of the ferries between the Eastern District and Manhattan, will be adopted at the mass meeting to be held this evening in the Long Island Business College, South Eighth street, near Bedford avenue. Nearly every board of trade will have representatives present to cooperate with the Eastern District Business Men's League, under whose auspices the meeting will be held. There will also be present numerous prominent manufacturers and bankers, who will lend their voices in an effort to secure the return of the ferry service, and to protest against the purchase of a ferry site, such as proposed by the Sinking Fund Commission, at the foot of Metropolitan avenue. Among the speakers will be ex-Mayor Frederick W. Wurster, president of the league; Nels Poulson, president of the Hecla Iron Works; E. D. Seymour, president of the Manufacturers National Bank; Colonel Andrew D. Baird and Thomas P. Peters.

It was expected that Marshall S. Driggs, president of the Williamsburg City Fire Insurance Company, would be present and speak. In a letter sent this morning to John H. McArdle, secretary of the league, he acknowledged the receipt of the invitation to speak, but explained that his health would not permit it. He declared that he was in hearty sympathy with the meeting and, continuing, said:

"I have, as boy and man, been a resident of the Eastern District for more than sixty years. I have seen it grow from country village to a great and populous section of the Borough of Brooklyn, and this has been in a great measure obtained by the ferry service between Manhattan and Brooklyn. It has been a great highway for a mighty multitude of people, millions of capital have been invested in manufacturing establishments, supporting thousands of operatives, all of which is the result of frequent and certain transit across the waters of the East River.

"It is well enough for the city to spend millions in the building of parks and the establishment of libraries, where we may go to spend an idle hour, but it is quite as important that the city should do something to aid the business community in this struggle to obtain bread for the teaming multitude centered in this imperial city.

"To start a ferry at Metropolitan avenue as proposed would be just about as satisfactory to the Eastern District as one at Newtown Creek. What we need and respectfully petition is to have the ancient highway of ferry re-established, and let us give the authorities no peace, day or night, until they grant us relief."

The letter from Mr. Driggs, who has been very active in trying to obtain a return of ferry service, will be read at the meeting this evening.

The Excitement of Personality on Lyman Abbott.

The President of the United States will soon become a contributing editor to the Outlook. A contributing editor is a man who contributes editorials of his own by arrangement with the chief editor, who contracts with him to do so, and the copy of the contributing editor reaches the office through the managing editor or the publisher, either of whom may be the master of details of work.

In shorter English, Mr. Roosevelt will be a contributor to the Outlook. His contributions will be on what subjects he prefers. They will be signed by his name. The Outlook will be glad to have him do so, as it believes that many will be desirous to read his views. As Mr. Roosevelt's contributions will comprise both news and views, he will be graded and paid above the rating of correspondents and reporters.

Of course, his personality and the great office he has held will enhance the incidental value of his contributions. The number of those who will buy the Outlook, because of Mr. Roosevelt's position and personality, will be greater than that of those who will read his writings merely because of what is in them, in distinction from what is in him.

We can with difficulty believe that any one can separate the consideration of what Mr. Roosevelt will say from the consideration of who he is and what he has been and done. There may be such persons, but it would be next to impossible to conceive of them. One may add that such an ability for differentiation would be far from enviable. A Dryasdust might be capable of it, but every other person would be sorry for him.

It is curious, or, at least, significant, to notice how the influence of Mr. Roosevelt's distinction, unique-ness and positional significance affects even the Outlook itself or himself. The Outlook is Dr. Lyman Abbott, the editor-in-chief. Other men of ability aid him in making it, but practically the Outlook is Dr. Abbott, and Dr. Abbott is the Outlook. And Dr. Abbott has been lately moved to make remarks which are unusual concerning a collateral relative of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Douglas Robinson, who is the brother-in-law of the President.

In an address to the Alumni of Amherst in Boston, Dr. Lyman Abbott, last night, compared to assassins men who are accused of libeling Mr. Robinson, and whom Mr. Robinson has been urged to have indicted for libel. The substance of what Dr. Abbott said is given in a dispatch to the New York Tribune from Boston. The dispatch, after mentioning the dinner and that Dr. Abbott was asked to speak, continues as follows:

> Dr. Abbott considered several topics of national interest, but laid special emphasis on what he termed the tendency of the American press to exceed proper "freedom of speech." Quoting Senator Tillman as saying that a suit now pending against a New York paper was the "beginning of the suppression of free speech in this country," Dr. Abbott said:
> "If I walk down the street with my hands in my pockets it is no one's business. If I walk down the street and put my hands in someone else's pockets he has a right to kick. The liberty of the press is no different than any other kind. A man may write what he wishes about himself, but when he pulls down another man's character he is no less than an assassin."

Allowing for the condensation of the report by the Tribune, it is evident that Dr. Abbott likened libel to assassination, and coupled the likening with the injury to Douglas Robinson's character, as an act of assassination by an assassin. The law makes a difference between libel and assassination. Dr. Abbott ignores the difference, when a brother-in-law of the President is concerned, the President who will soon become a contributor to Dr. Abbott's weekly paper. The law makes a difference between the punishment for libel and that for assassination. Dr. Lyman Abbott does not refer to the punitive difference. Dr. Abbott also fails to discriminate between character, what a man is, and reputation, what a man is regarded to be.

We need only incidentally point out the discriminations or differentiations Dr. Abbott omits, forgets or ignores. They suggest themselves. Nor need we specially emphasize the unconscious relation of "real interest Dr. Abbott, who is the Outlook, and the Outlook, which is Dr. Abbott, may be tingly, Dr. Abbott has been moved to his strained and exaggerated statement by considerations that are as manifest to cooler others as they are not to his interested self.

A "character" cannot be "pulled down." A reputation may be. Those whose reputation has been pulled down or injured have recourse in law, and that recourse reveals their character and vindicates or vitiates it. A man, too, may have a character so well known and so well regarded that blows at his reputation can fall harmless at his feet, confounding or confusing only his assailants and really, by recoil, benefiting him. The Eagle has had and still has that view of Douglas Robinson's character. The effect of what the World wrongly published cannot be so bad on Mr. Robinson as it must be on the World.

It is Mr. Robinson's option to sue or to omit to sue the World. We are not commissioned to instruct him on that point. It is inconceivable, however, that Mr. Douglas Robinson's character as it is known to be can be injured by the World, or that the World can assail Mr. Douglas Robinson's reputation without injuring its own character. It is also impossible to separate Mr. Robinson, a man of peace, quiet and privacy, in the general mind, from his illustrious brother-in-law, Mr. Roosevelt, who will soon become an attache of the Outlook and an associate of Dr. Abbott.

Putting together all these things which it is difficult to separate, the excited words of Dr. Abbott about Mr. Robinson reflect back to Mr. Roosevelt and to Dr. Abbott himself, and give to the enemies of both a text or a pretext we are sorry Dr. Abbott has made available. An address on general or other matters had been better from Dr. Abbott than the one he made. It would have impaired the World's supply of sensational and pervertible ammunition. It would have given to the Outlook the benefit of dignified silence toward events which should be ignored precisely because they are teasing, suggestive and tempting. It would have insured to the Outlook the sagacious use of a series of events as to which it could wisely affect to have been oblivious. It has only presented to the World an opportunity to use arts in which neither Dr. Abbott nor the Outlook can compete with it nor should try to compete with it.

The experiment of the Outlook with Mr. Roosevelt must be left to time. The essay of the President through his brother-in-law against the World must be left to the courts. The bad strategy which led Dr. Abbott to intervene in the general matter was an error which the friends and admirers of Dr. Abbott regret he has given to the World an opportunity which is almost a temptation or a challenge to "improve," that is to pervert.

Millions to be Distributed.

From Washington will come a mandate to the United States Circuit Court directing the return to Manhattan consumers of gas of twenty per cent. of the money they have paid to the Consolidated Gas Company since the eighty-cent bill became a law. This order, which will be issued by the United States Supreme Court, will not go into details. Probably, it will not do more than direct the lower court to enforce the decree, subject to whatever conditions it may seem fit to impose. The aggregate is large, and as payments will be made in driblets, the distributors will have no sinecure.

There is a total of about $11,000,000 in escrow, but of this amount the Consolidated Gas Company has deposited but little over $5,000,000. The other contributors were understood to be willing to "abide the issue," and accept judgment without resistance on their own account. For this understanding, however, there was no warrant of which courts can take cognizance, the rights of these companies being held in reserve. Each of them may conclude to pay only upon such compulsion as gives to the Consolidated no alternative.

Presuming all to share the same fate in the end, the net result to Manhattan gas consumers will be a saving of about $7,000,000 a year. While Brooklyn has had an interest in the controversy, it should not be forgotten that its case is far from identical with that of Manhattan. What can be done with profit on one side of the East River, might easily entail a loss on the other. Possibly, it might be demonstrated that two blocks in Manhattan are more serviceable to the gas company or companies than ten blocks in Brooklyn, where the cost of distribution is relatively large. The distinction is almost that between doing business by wholesale and retail.

It does not follow, therefore, that the Brooklyn company will make a losing fight against the eighty-cent law. It may be able to demonstrate that its property would be confiscated by a rate upon which the Manhattan companies can prosper. Courts must take facts into account as well as law. It would, of course, be futile to exact from a carrying corporation whose cars run through farming lands the same concession as to fares and schedules as those who operate the subway make. And it might be equally absurd to force the Brooklyn company to produce and distribute at the price upon which a reasonable profit can be made in Manhattan. Circumstances alter cases.

A Gift to Oxford.

In sending to Oxford University, now in need of financial assistance, a joint "gift of affection" amounting to £205 the Americans who have been honored by that university own the material unimportance of their contribution, saying: "We are many of us men of small means who lead an academic life. Among them are Samuel L. Clemens, Professor Charles A. Briggs, William Dean Howells, Bishop Doane of Albany and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia.

How different it would have been if in distributing honorary degrees Oxford had paid due consideration to the American captains of industry and the American geniuses of exploitation. Thomas W. Lawson would have cut his advertising bills a little to would have chipped in as much more without even asking how the money was to be spent. Edward H. Harriman would have suspended his manifold activities for a month to collect cash. But why prolong the list? The English conservatism that dominates Oxford is very costly, very costly, indeed.

It must be owned, however, that in such conservatism Oxford has shown no discrimination against Americans. We are not aware that the university ever did anything in the degree line for the late Barney Barnato, or any of his ilk. Perhaps nothing explains so well as this conservatism the poverty of Oxford. Chicago University has no trouble with its finances.

Reverse It.

Suppose Mr. John D. Rockefeller should attain the century mark in years, as his optimistic physician predicts! He would be getting hardly his share at that, considering his lateness in life in beginning to live.—Harpers Weekly.

Nonsense. When Mr. Rockefeller was young, very young, he settled down to business. He found plenty to do. And before long, he found that his work produced results. There were times when he was mortified by failure, but he persisted, and, with all due respect to Harper's Weekly, that was life.

Time will come into its own. It has had its way with Mr. Rockefeller. What he has achieved is now far and away beyond his present possibilities, physical and mental—he is surrendering to the inevitable. Many are the high crimes and misdemeanors alleged against him, but never before has it been charged that he was late in life in beginning to live. Reverse the charge and it is a true bill.

The Original Spring Prophet.

This is groundhog day. According to tradition, that prophetic rodent emerges annually from his winter hiding place on February 2, surveys the surrounding landscape, and instinctively determines the character of the weather for the next forty days. If the day is bright and he sees his shadow, he returns to his hole, convinced that spring is a long way off, with plenty of tough climate ahead. If the day be cloudy and no shadow falls athwart his vision, he goes ramping and rooting around the neighborhood afire with what Mr. Kipling's jungle folk call the spring fever.

There are many infallible signs of an early winter, among them the goose-bone, the rabbit's fur and the coal bill, but the groundhog is the original and only spring prophet. The robin, the bluebird and the poet occasionally dispute his pre-eminence, but they are belated harbingers and get around only when the pussy willows begin to fuzz and everybody with half an eye knows what's doing. Why the groundhog should look upon a bright sun as ominous or a beclouded sky as auspicious nobody knows except Ernest Thompson Seton and the Rev. William J. Long, and they will not dare tell until after Mr. Roosevelt goes to Africa and they are safely out of his range.

But, on second thought, would we care to be enlightened as to the groundhog's weather theories? The more inscrutable the prophet, the greater the respect we have for his conclusions. Were we to understand his ways, his wisdom would be ours and his occupation, position and authority in the community would forever disappear. It is better as it is. Yet we confess to a feeling of irritating curiosity as to the precise hour of the groundhog's appearance to-day. Hope of an early spring all depends on the time he got up. To-day we have had hours of sunshine and hours of cloud. It is somewhat exasperating to think that the reckless little beast may have wandered out in an interval of bright skies when a little patience would have presented to him a shadowless front yard, and to us the assurance of an early spring.

Children's Theater.

The Educational Theater for Children and Young People—which is the ponderous name of the society of which Mark Twain has become the ornamental and sympathetic head—is making many friends for itself in high places. It has the indorsement of President Eliot, Dr. G. Stanley Hall and countless other friends of the children and of education.

Whether it is also getting adequate financial support to maintain the good work which has been carried on for five years under the Educational Alliance of the East Side, we are not informed, but it deserves help from every lover of childhood. The purpose is not to train young actors, but to educate in the rank and file of children faculties which the school courses and other agencies leave untouched. The schools teach children to absorb the thoughts—or, at least, the words—of other people. Not a few critics complain that this process is carried so far as to crush out all originality from the childish mind and to turn out, instead of highly developed individual men and women, a lot of human blocks with nicely squared edges, which are as interchangeable as bricks in the process of building up society—and as characterless as bricks also.

No doubt these critics of contemporary education go too far, but no doubt, also, the children would be much better were the acquisition of the schools balanced by an adequate training in action which would develop the latent possibilities of each child. That is the aim of the manual and trade training, now so widely approved by all students of education, and that is the aim and the result of the Children's Theater. It teaches to the children self-expression. It appeals to and develops the strongest childish faculty, the imagination. It turns into regulated and supervised channels much mental and spiritual energy which otherwise would go to waste. It acquaints the children with literature in the most vital and fascinating form of manners and ideas of personal conduct which the public school teacher is not able to impart, be her intentions and efforts the most tactful and unremitting. It raises the standard of living rather than the standard of learning, upon which the whole emphasis of the public school system rests, and it establishes this standard for the audiences no less than for the children who appear in its plays. For that reason there should be twenty children's theaters in New York instead of one. There would be if the organization which conducts this one could get funds enough to establish duplicates. The funds will be forthcoming so soon as the far-reaching influences of the work come to be adequately known by the people who sustain educational movements.

Won't Take the Money.

President Roosevelt has declined to accept a bequest of $10,000, without explaining why. His refusal, however, does not leave much to the imagination. As he did nothing to earn the money, he will not take it.

The legacy should have gone elsewhere to be sure of acceptance. It would have had a cordial reception in Nebraska. Mr. Bryan did nothing to earn the $50,000 Philo S. Bennett wanted him to have, but he fought for it in court, none the less.

Important and Determining.

The decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of the Continental Wall Paper Company against Louis Voight & Sons Company of Ohio is not only sweeping in its terms, but is most important in effect of any under the anti-trust laws of the country. It is also important in that it is final.

The Continental Wall Paper Company is a trust, organized to conduct the business of the various wall paper concerns of the country. Voight & Sons Company is a jobbing dealer in wall papers, and consequently in the products of the Continental. The defendant company alleged that it was compelled to sign a strict agreement on the threat that if it did not no paper would be sold it and that it would be made impossible for it to continue in business. Further, that it had bought over $200,000 worth of paper on which it had paid 50 per cent. more than it would have had to pay if there had been competition. The immediate cause of the suit was the resisting of the payment of a debt of $56,000 by the firm. The company sought to collect it by suit.

The defense alleged that the agreements were part of an illegal scheme; that the agreements forced by the Continental were in restraint of trade, and sought to control the prices of goods offered for sale in the open market, and, therefore, were in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. Justice Harlan, writing the opinion, concurred in by the majority of the court, concludes this to be true. He says, it is adjudged on the admitted facts that the combination (the Continental) composed of some thirty odd factories, "is illegal under the anti-trust act of 1890, and is to be taken as one intended and which has the effect directly to restrain and to monopolize trade among the several states and with foreign states." He consequently concludes that the plaintiff (the Continental) cannot have a judgment for the amount of the account sued on. In other words, the Continental cannot collect the debt of $56,000, because the combination is in illegal existence.

The opinion is not so important in its conclusion that a debt cannot be collected by a corporation operating in violation of the Sherman law as it is in laying down, in unmistakable terms, the principle that a combination which seeks to control the retail prices of its products in the open market by agreements forced upon purchasers is acting in restraint of trade, and is in illegal operation. A dissenting opinion written by Justice Holmes was filed and concurred in by the exact minority of the court. But this dissenting opinion does not conflict with the principles laid down, but with the order. It holds that "a lawful purchase is not made unlawful merely by being the fulfillment of an unlawful contract."

The effect is far-reaching. It is destructive of trade agreements which constitute the real power of the trusts. Either these trusts must abandon the agreements or sell for cash. And the latter, it would seem, in a country whose trade is based on credit would be impossible. The general opinion of interested parties is that the effect of the decision will be to prevent the control by corporations of the retail prices to be charged. And that, therefore, it is a stunning blow at the trusts of the kind the Continental Wall Paper Company is alleged to be.

ANTI-OPIUM BILL PASSED.

Eagle Bureau,
608 Fourteenth street.

Washington, February 2—Without much fuss or feathers the Senate the other day passed a bill to prohibit the importation and use of opium in this country for other than medicinal purposes. The passage of the measure attracted very little attention, but it was full of significance, for it means that in a short time the vicious habit of eating and smoking opium in this country will be stamped out, at least so far as the government can eradicate it.

President Roosevelt is back of this movement. He is also responsible for the international conference which is now assembling at Shanghai for the purpose of making the movement against the opium traffic world wide in its scope. It develops that the federal authorities have been very active in this matter. Government agents have been investigating the evils of the opium traffic in all the large cities of the country. This investigation was conducted in New York Brooklyn, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco. It established the fact that there is to-day an immense quantity of opium smoked by American citizens.

While there has been practically no increase of our Chinese population since the early eighties, except through the annexation of Hawaii, it has been found that a steady increase has occurred in importations of smoking opium. Inquiry among Chinese, moreover, indicates that they smoke less opium to-day than twenty years ago. A similar inquiry among the police, prison physicians and others brings out the alarming discovery that this pernicious habit has spread to our own American population, and to negroes especially, although among the whites it is largely confined to the criminal and other abnormal classes.

A high authority has stated that 60,000 pounds of crude opium and the morphine derived therefrom would satisfy the legitimate annual demand. Notwithstanding this fact over 400,000 pounds were imported into the United States last year, while statistics prove that the use of opium and its deprivatives has increased 100 per cent. in New England during the last ten years and 150 per cent. in the so called, "prohibition" State of Maine.

Under our treaty of 1880 with China, to enforce which the proper legislation was enacted in 1887, no American citizen may import opium into China and no Chinese subject may bring opium into the United States. No attempt has been made heretofore, however, to penalize the importation of opium into the United States by Americans. The transportation of opium from China to the United States by Americans is not forbidden, nor is the sale of opium to Chinese or others in the United States prohibited by treaty or statute.

The Canadian Parliament has passed an act to prohibit the importation, manufacture or sale of opium for other than medicinal purposes. China by a series of Imperial edicts is endeavoring to stop opium smoking and the growth of the poppy, while England has shown her sympathy in the face of heavy financial loss by agreeing within ten years to stop the export of opium from India to China.

Although various bills calculated to deal with this evil were proposed during the past year, notably by Senator Gallinger, Representative Mann, Senator Foraker and Representative Foster, no definite results were secured. It is only now that the Senate's action gives rise to the hope that the House may adopt this measure and enable the United States to prove its sincerity to China and the various other powers which, upon the invitation of this country, have sent their delegates to the International Conference at Shanghai.

The argument is now being used with the leaders that unless the pending bill becomes a law we will continue to hold out the opium temptation to Chinese in this country and tolerate the growing evil among certain of our own people. The fact that the Treasury of the United States derives considerable revenue from the duty on opium imported is regarded as of no consequence when compared with the advantages that will be derived from the suppression of this evil.

CHANGES AT COLUMBIA.

The trustees of Columbia University have appointed Dr. William G. MacCallum, professor of pathological physiology in the Johns Hopkins University, to be professor of pathology at Columbia in succession to Dr. T. Mitchell Prudden, who will retire from active service on July 1 next. Dr. MacCallum is a graduate of the University of Toronto and of the Johns Hopkins Medical School. He is regarded as one of the foremost investigators and teachers in the field of pathology. The list of his original contributions to pathology is not only long but remarkable by reason of the extent of the field covered by Dr. MacCallum's studies during ten years past.

The trustees have also made provision for the development and extension of the departments of bacteriology under Professor Philip H. Hiss, jr., and of clinical pathology under Professor Francis C. Wood. Increased attention will be paid by all of these departments to the needs of advanced students and investigators, as well as to the instruction given to students of medicine.

A thorough course on public health and sanitation has been established at the Medical School of Columbia University, and representative scholars and public health officers from all parts of the country are co-operating in the course. The lecturers include Professor Sedgwick of the Massachusetts Institute; Professor Adami of McGill University, Professors Burr, Holt and Peterson of Columbia, Surgeon General Wyman, Marine Hospital Service; State Commissioner Porter, Dr. Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute, and the experts of the New York City Health Department.

Professor Gies of the department of biological chemistry is conducting a course of public lectures on "The Chemistry of Digestion" on Monday evenings at Cooper Union. The lectures will be illustrated by zoetrope figures and by chemical and digestive demonstrations.

APPEAL TO GOVERNOR HUGHES.

The New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage has sent a letter to Governor Hughes, of which a copy follows:

"To His Excellency, Charles E. Hughes, Governor of the State of New York:

"Dear Sir—Earnestly believing that the serious purpose, ability and experience to be found among women in many walks of life should be used for the benefit of the community, and that the public service can be rendered more effective and economical by the appointment of women of judgment and energy as members of such educational, charitable, sanitary and reformatory boards, commissions and committees as deal directly with the needs of both sexes, we respectfully ask that as soon as may be, you will make such appointments of women as are possible under the laws of the State of New York.

"We are aware that women already hold positions on state boards, but their number, we submit, is too small and, indeed, on many boards none have been appointed.

"We believe this to be the safest method of utilizing at the present time the capacities of women and their interest in the public welfare, without exposing our civic institutions to the risks attendant upon granting to women unrestricted suffrage."

The letter is signed by Mrs. Francis M. Scott, as president; Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, first vice president; Mrs. William A. Putnam, president of the Brooklyn Auxiliary; Mrs. George Douglas Miller, president of the Albany Auxiliary, and Mrs. William N. Northrop, president of

DRY DOCK 3, NAVY YARD, FOR LINER ST. LOUIS

She Was a War Ship, Once and Was Commanded by Caspar F. Goodrich.

The American line steamer St. Louis, which arrived in port yesterday afternoon two days late because of a broken rudder, will be docked in the big wooden dry dock of the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Thursday of this week. This morning Naval Constructor W. J. Baxter was notified from Washington that the St. Louis would be accommodated in the navy yard and advised to have Dry Dock No. 3 available for the big ship's reception.

The big ship will be doubly welcome in the local navy yard, for her captain during the Spanish-American war, when she was in the government service as an auxiliary cruiser, was Caspar F. Goodrich, who is now commandant of the yard. The St. Louis did efficient service off Porto Rico during the war cutting cables. After the battle of Santiago she brought Admiral Cervera and the other captured Spaniards to the United States.

Captain Goodrich, now a rear admiral on the retired list, shortly after his return here aided in founding the Naval Order of St. Louis for the purpose of permanently banding together the officers who served with him on the St. Louis during the exciting times of the war.

The St. Louis re-entered the trans-Atlantic passenger service in the fall of 1898, and continued uninterruptedly until January, 1903, when she was sent abroad to be extensively repaired, after one of the longest trips across the Atlantic she has ever experienced. She was sent to Newport News to have her machinery overhauled and resumed her regular trips in August of the same year. About a year later she again got into trouble and was sent to Ireland for repairs. This caused a great deal of criticism, and upon her return to this country, in December of 1904, an effort was made to make the American Line pay duty for the repairs effected abroad.

The St. Paul, a sister ship of the St. Louis, docked in the local navy yard in the winter of 1900, after she had met with an accident at sea, in which she lost her starboard propeller and portion of the propeller shaft.

Dry Dock No. 3 is the largest dock in New York harbor. There are but two docks on the Atlantic coast that are of greater dimensions. It is 670 feet long. Just at present it is the only dock in the navy available for big ships.

BIG SUBWAY MASS MEETING

Call Issued by Brooklyn League and Allied Boards of Trade for Demonstration Friday Evening.

The mass meeting, under the joint auspices of the Brooklyn League and the Allied Boards of Trade, to urge that immediate action be taken by the Public Service Commission and the city officials to get the sections of the Fourth avenue subway constructed under the Flatbush avenue extension so that this avenue may be used as an approach to the new Manhattan Bridge, will be held Friday night at the County Court House, at 8 o'clock, and all indications are that it will be very largely attended.

Invitations have been sent out to the 1,100 members of the Brooklyn League to attend the meeting and to 22 boards of trade affiliated with the league, most of which are expected to be represented.

Speeches will be made by George W. Brush, president of the Brooklyn League, and by Elwin S. Piper, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, setting forth the urgent need of such an improvement at once. Many other speakers will also be heard.

"Nothing else will be discussed," said Secretary John B. Creighton of the league. "We feel that this is very important and that some concerted action should be taken to show that we are in earnest and want this subway built under the extension now."

The following call has been sent out for the meeting:

"A twenty-million dollar bridge will be completed before the end of the year and owing to the failure of the authorities to agree as to certain details of construction on the Flatbush avenue extension it is liable to hang useless in the air to the great detriment of our borough. Come and protest against further delay and insist that definite plans shall be decided upon at once so that the street may be ready when the bridge is completed. Prominent speakers will address you. There is no adequate reason why all obstacles cannot be removed to complete the subway and the surface o fthe street at least up to Fulton street.

"ELWIN S. PIPER,
"President Allied Board of Trade.
"George W. Brush,
"President the Brooklyn League."

TAFT TO BE A MASON

President-Elect Will Be Made One at Sight.

Unusual Ceremony to Occur at Scottish Rite Cathedral in Cincinnati on February 18.

Cincinnati, February 2—The grand master of Ohio Masons, Charles S. Hoskin, son of Zanesville, has tendered William Howard Taft the rare and high honor of being made a Mason at sight.

Judge Taft has accepted and will return to Cincinnati on Thursday, February 18, when the grand master will convene a distinguished company of Masons in the Scottish Rite Cathedral and exercise the high prerogative which belongs only to a grand master of Masons.

This honor is so rarely conferred that there is but a single instance of it on record in the hundred years of history in Masonry in Ohio, when, in 1892, Asa A. Bushnell of Springfield, was made a Mason at sight. Some months ago, in fact, before Judge Taft's nomination for the Presidency, he expressed a desire to become a Mason to Past Grand Master William B. Melish, and Grand Secretary Jacob H. Bromwell, who, with Past Grand Master Levi C. Goodale, united in a petition to Grand Master Hoskinson to honor Judge Taft by making him a Mason at sight. This petition sets forth the high character of Judge Taft and his distinguished services to the nation and state, and stated that his years of enforced absence from home in the performance of public duties had prevented him from complying with the usual requirements of the grand lodge for the initiation and advancement of candidates. Grand Master Hoskinson has granted the request and has appointed Messrs. Melish, Goodale and Bromwell as a committee of arrangements to carry out his wishes in a manner befitting the dignity of the occasion.

In addition to prominent Ohio Masons, invitations will be sent to the grand mas-

ATE CANDY--DIES

Coroner Ambler Investigates Death of Lydia Salg.

Doctor Finds Poison in Stomach. Confectionery at Manhattan Playhouse Confiscated.

Coroner Ambler of Queens County today began an investigation of the death last Saturday, of Lydia Salg, 16 years old, of 61 Poplar street, Corona. The girl is supposed to have eaten poisoned candy. An autopsy was performed by Dr. Walter G. Frey, coroner's physician, assisted by Dr. Wickham, family physician. A report of the result was made to Coroner Ambler yesterday and he at once ordered a thorough investigation.

According to his report, Dr. Frey found evidences of poison in the girl's stomach and intestines. The exact nature of the poison could not be determined until a chemical analysis is made, the doctor said. When the girl's mother was questioned she said she was called by her daughter, early Saturday morning and found blood marks on the child's pillow, the blood having come from her mouth. Lydia said she was deathly sick and Mrs. Salg and Lydia's sister assisted her into the bath room. They had hardly reached there when she fell over dead.

Mrs. Salg told the coroner's physician, that the evening before she, Lydia and her son had attended a play in a theater in Manhattan. After the performance they bought a package of candy at the theater. The candy was of a standard manufacture. Lydia had eaten more than the others. Soon after Lydia died Mrs. Salg and her son also became ill.

Coroner Ambler has directed that all the candy similar to that eaten by the girl at the Manhattan play house, be confiscated and he has directed that an analysis of the contents of the dead girl's stomach be made. Dr. Frey says the autopsy showed the girl was perfectly healthy and would not have died but for the poison.

FINE FOR SCOOTERISTS.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Patchogue, L. I., February 2—The Great South Bay is frozen over from shore to shore, a distance of five miles across from the mainland to the beach, and several miles in length. The prospects of scootering now appear fine. Maurice Baker of the Blue Point Life Saving crew was the first one to cross the bay on a scooter, coming across to the mainland this morning, reaching here about 10 o'clock. He said the ice is in good condition and that by Wednesday will be in good shape for scooter sailing. It is hoped to have a scooter race off Patchogue by Saturday.

WALLIS WILL BE HEARD IN ANSWER TO CHARGES

Senate Insurance Committee to Listen to His Denial on Tuesday.

WRITES A LETTER TO GRATTAN

"Near Superintendent of Insurance" Says Charges Besmirch His Good Name.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Albany, February 2—Frederick A. Wallis, the "near superintendent of insurance," as he is termed at the capital, has written a letter to Chairman Grattan of the Senate insurance committee, asking an opportunity to appear before the committee to make answer to the charges which caused his failure to take office.

Mr. Wallis in the brief time since Governor Hughes sent his nomination to the Senate has been perhaps the most talked of man in Albany. He arrived here late last night and was at the Ten Eyck Hotel to-day.

He refused flatly to discuss any phase of the controversy regarding him, but admitted that he intended to vindicate his reputation and asserted that he would never be satisfied until he had proved that there was no foundation in fact for any of the stories reflecting on his integrity as an insurance man.

The only part of the Wallis letter which Grattan would give out was a part of a single sentence, which said that Wallis wished to answer and explain "all correspondence alleged to contain reflections on my career as an insurance man."

Senator Grattan told Wallis that the committee would be glad to give him the opportunity he asked, and set next Tuesday afternoon as the time for the hearing.

Long Island State Hospital Likely to Be Built at Creedmoor.

Several prominent Brooklyn men, including J. Edward Swanstrom, Hugo Hirsch and Dr. O. M. Dewing, called on Governor Hughes yesterday to urge the location of the State Hospital for the Insane on the old Creedmoor rifle range grounds. The Brooklyn men told Governor Hughes that the opposition to the plan was confined to a few real estate men who hoped to obtain the property at bargain sale rates from the state for purposes of exploitation. The delegation argued that no suitable and available site for the new hospital within convenient traveling distance from New York City has even been suggested by those who oppose the Creedmoor site. It was said, unofficially, that the Governor was inclined to agree with the views of the Brooklyn men.

At all events, it was said with some degree of conviction to-day that Senator Raines had decided not to urge the passage of the bill he introduced which would authorize the sale of Creedmoor to private individuals and the purchase of a new site. It is now regarded as settled that the insane hospital will be built at Creedmoor.

Queens Men Seek to Amend City Charter.

In the Assembly to-day the Queens County men introduced a batch of bills. Some of them were:

Garbe, amending the Greater New York Charter by requiring the establishment of separate divisions of the Tenement House Department in the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens. It also provides for a third deputy commissioner.

Garbe, making $1 per thousand cubic feet the maximum price to be charged for illuminating gas in the Fifth Ward of the Borough of Queens, New York City. The price of gas in this portion of Queens is not limited in the present law.

Klein, amending the Greater New York charter by making the office of city marshal in the Borough of Queens a salaried office. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment is to fix the annual salary of these officers.

Assemblyman Voss of Brooklyn introduced a bill amending the Greater New York Charter by including engines, irrespective of motive power, in the provisions governing the inspection of steam boilers, and also engines in vessels used on the waters in the city not coming under the jurisdiction of the United States government. It provides for licensing of operators of boilers and engines by a board of practical engineers to be detailed by the Police Department. The licensees must be citizens of the United States, over twenty-one years of age, and possess the other qualifications named in the bill.

Grady Primed for Fight Against Cook.

It was declared by the Republicans of the Finance Committee that the nomination of Herbert E. Cook of St. Lawrence County for Democratic member of the state highways commission would be reported to the senate without recommendation to-morrow. Senator Grady said that the nomination was not satisfactory to the Democrats and that he expected to make a hard fight to defeat it. In this fight he said he expected a considerable amount of Republican support.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD
Bulletin.

THE SHORT LINE OF TRAVEL.

The shortest railroad line from New York to St. Louis is through Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus and Indianapolis.

It is the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, over which runs the fastest train between Manhattan and the Mississippi River, the "St. Louis Limited." It makes the trip of ten hundred and fifty-four miles in twenty-seven hours and thirty-five minutes every day in the year.

This train has all the special features of the highest class of modern "limiteds"—parlor-smoking, sleeping, dining, and compartment-observation cars, stenographers, ladies' maids, stock quotations, barbers, bathrooms, electric lights, daily newspapers, and periodicals—but there is no extra fare to any point west of Pittsburgh.

The "St. Louis Limited" leaves Brooklyn at 1.45 P. M. daily, and arrives St. Louis 4.30 o'clock the next afternoon, and this schedule it maintains with unexampled regularity.

There are other fast through trains to the Southwest over this natural short line, including through service to Cincinnati, Louisville, and Nashville.

Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Offices at 263 Fifth Avenue (open until 10:00 P.M. daily, including Sundays and holidays), 181 Fifth Avenue, 170, 461, 1354 Broadway, 215 Columbus Ave., 111 West 125th St., 2788 Third Ave., 34 Mulberry Street, West Twenty-third St. Station, Stations foot of Desbrosses St. and foot of Cortlandt St., New York; 326 Fulton St., 1 Court St., 479 Nostrand Ave., 390 Broadway, and Annex Station, foot of Fulton St., Brooklyn.

OBITUARY.

Dr. George W. Fraim.

Dr. George W. Fraim, who died at 315 Remsen street, Saturday, was born in Lancaster, Pa., April 14, 1834. He received his education in the public school at that place, and later graduated from the old Franklin Academy at Lancaster. While young he entered as a student in the office of Dr. John Wayland of Lancaster, who at that time was one of the most successful dentists in the United States. He graduated in dentistry in 1857, and started in Pittsburg, Pa., and then in Philadelphia. In 1859 he came to Fulton street, Brooklyn, where the firm still remains. He was a life member of Stella Lodge. The remains will be interred in the family plot at Lancaster, Pa.

Levi Chapman Lathrop.

Levi Chapman Lathrop, senior member of the banking and brokerage firm of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., died to-day at his home, in the Dakota, 7 West Seventy-second street, Manhattan. His death leaves but six surviving charter members of the New York Cotton Exchange. He was born in Syracuse, N. Y., November 22, 1844, coming to this city when a young man. Mr. Lathrop had been a Republican ever since he cast his first vote, in 1866, and had travelled much. He was a member of the New York Stock and Cotton exchanges, president of the Bessie Ferro-Silicon Company, and the Hocking Clay Construction Company, vice-president, and a director of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company, and president of the Ohio Trading Company. His clubs were the New York Yacht, Morristown Field, and the Morristown.

ROCKEFELLER'S GIFT TO Y.M.C.A.

On the return of the United States fleet from its world tour to Hampton Roads, on February 22, the sailors will find in readiness for them a new naval branch Y. M. C. A building at Norfolk, Va. This building has been erected by John D. Rockefeller, and cost $200,000. It will contain more than 200 sleeping rooms for sailors when on shore leave, and a vault for the sailors' money as they deposit it for safe keeping or investment when coming ashore. Last year over $330,000 was intrusted to the care of the Brooklyn Branch of the Y. M. C. A. A party of discharged sailors leaving the battleship at Philadelphia made straight for the naval association with $8,000 to put away for safe keeping in the association's vault. The building at Norfolk will contain, besides a restaurant, where home cooking will be a feature, bowling alleys, billiard tables, music, social rooms, etc.

TO HEAD "SPITE CHURCH"?

Roslyn Hears the Rev. Isaac Peck Is to Have Pulpit.

But as Wealthy Promoters of Proposed Westbury Edifice Are in Europe, It's Not Sure.

Roslyn, L. I., February 2—Some of the residents of this village are smiling over the report that is current that the Rev. Isaac Peck, who was rector of Trinity Church, this village, until the new church was erected by Mrs. Mackay, two years ago, is to be the rector of the now so-called "spite church," which Edwin L. Morgan, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Charles Steele, Mrs. W. P. Thompson and others have been planning for Westbury. The report comes as a sort of a joke on the ones who were responsible for the Rev. Mr. Peck's retirement from Trinity.

Although the main movers in the new church project are out of the county for the winter, the plans have gradually leaked out, and the rumor about Mr. Peck seems to be well founded. He and Mr. Morgan, who was one of his vestrymen, were always very friendly, and since leaving the Roslyn pastorate, Mr. Peck has been without a charge, perhaps waiting until the Westbury plans matured. It is now thought by the wise ones that he has known all along that he was to have a call to Westbury. Mr. Morgan resigned as a vestryman at Trinity soon after Mr. Peck left, and has never been there since, and Mrs. Morgan never continued her extensive work in the parish. The people regretted very much to lose them, but could not help it.

When Mr. Morgan built his beautiful Wheatley Hills mansion and the numerous other buildings within the square there, he erected a chapel, on the English style, for his family's use. But the building was never used much, owing, it is rumored, to the unsafe condition of the walls. Although the structure cost a handsome figure, it is almost useless. It was intended, the story goes, to have services there years ago, but the idea was abandoned and the family affiliated with Trinity, in Roslyn, where for several years the family had a prominent part in the work. The chapel is seldom mentioned nowadays.

The question of who is to attend the new church at Westbury is still a topic of conversation. Many of the wealthy families of that section attend the Roslyn church, and the others, with but few exceptions, are communicants at the Westbury Catholic Church. The Rev. Norman O. Hutton of Trinity Church does not expect to lose any of his people, he has said, and the Catholics of Westbury do not expect to lose any of their flock, either. Perhaps when Mr. Morgan comes back from Europe he will be able to give some light on the question. At present the new-bought property on the Jericho turnpike, next to the Quaker meeting house, has not been touched to build on it, but the Quakers are wondering whether the new parish is going to depend upon their people for patrons. They are the only ones left, after the others are removed from consideration, and the only congregation to be had by the new church would necessarily have to come from them. But they do not think it at all likely, they say, and are wondering just who the Rev. Isaac Peck, late of Trinity Church, Roslyn, is to have in his audience.

BUSINESS NOTICE.

American Real Estate Co. Statement.

The American Real Estate Company, having offices in the Night and Day Bank Building, at 527 Fifth avenue, is issuing its twenty-first annual statement as of January 1 last, shows total assets of $11,851,866, a gain of nearly $1,300,000 over the statement issued January 1, 1908. The large operations of the company in the real estate field are indicated by these details of assets: Developed properties ready for building improvement, $8,565,137; buildings in course of construction and land thereof, $474,021; rental properties, land and buildings, $1,778,766. The companies liabilities total $10,098,755, leaving, to complete the balance sheet, a capital stock of $100,000 and a surplus of $1,653,111, a total of $1,753,111.

DOUGHTY PLACE SOLD.

Lawrence, L. I., February 2—Gilbert E. Horton has purchased the old Pliny Doughty property in Bayview avenue, near the railroad station at this place, the price being reported as $30,000. The property comprises two acres, together with a large house and stable, and is considered among the best properties in that section of the village. Former Assemblyman G. Wilbur Doughty sold the premises to Horton.

LODGE MAY BUILD.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Inwood, L. I., February 2—Seaside Lodge, I. O. O. F., is contemplating the purchase of a plot at McNeil and Morris avenues, on which to erect a lodge room, with hall for entertainment purposes. The matter will be discussed at a meeting this evening. The village has grown considerably during the last few years, and as there is no hall sufficiently large to hold entertainments in, the lodge thinks the proposition to build one will be a wise investment.

JAPAN'S FOREIGN POLICY OUTLINED BY KOMURA

Foreign Minister, in Diet Speech, Declares It Must Be for Peace.

SPEECH HIGHLY OPTIMISTIC.

No Menace Apparent in Anti-Japanese Legislation in California—Restrictions on Emigration Favored.

Tokio, February 2—Speaking before the Lower House of the Diet to-day, Foreign Minister Komura outlined the foreign policies of Japan in a carefully worded speech, delivered before a full and attentive house. The opening sentence gave note of the tone of the entire speech when Count Komura commenced emphatically as follows:

"The foreign policy of this empire should have as an object the maintenance of peace and the development of national resources."

With reference to Great Britain, he said that events of far-reaching importance in the relations of the two countries with other powers happily and uniformly contributed to the consolidation of the general peace of Eastern Asia, which was one of the principal objects of the agreement. The alliance, he continued, had steadily gained strength and solidity and to-day stands as an enduring foundation. He declared, too, that the relations of Japan with Russia were constantly increasing in intimacy. Both nations, he said, were scrupulously observing the spirit and letter of the compact governing their attitude in the Pacific.

The foreign minister dwelt at length upon the relations between Japan and America. He said: "The friendship of Japan and the United States is traditional and it is absolutely essential that both maintain unimpaired those sentiments of amity and extend and strengthen them by every means. Notwithstanding the perfect accord which has always existed regarding the aims of the two countries in the Far East and in the Pacific, it appears that doubts have been entertained in some quarters concerning the sincerity of the intentions.

"In order to remove this misunderstanding," he continued, "the two governments have deemed it advisable to exchange diplomatic notes, officially announcing a common policy, which, I am convinced, will be largely instrumental in preserving the repose of the Orient.

"With regard to the question of legislation unfavorable to the Japanese now pending in the California legislature, the Imperial government, relying on the sense of justice of the American people together with the friendly disposition of the Federal government, is confident that the question will not lead to international complications.

"Japan," he went on, "being therefore on cordial terms with all the Powers, including those which have not been mentioned, it must be admitted that the maintenance of peace, which is the one principal object of our foreign policy, is now practically assured; and we are enabled to devote our endeavors to the development of our national resources. The first point claiming our attention is the problem of emigration.

"In view of the new international condition assigned to Japan it has become necessary that our people, instead of scattering in foreign lands, shall concentrate in the Far East, thus securing a united effort looking to legitimate activities and avoiding everything likely to obstruct the development of international commerce and industry.

"These considerations have led the government to follow an avowed policy with respect to emigrants to Canada and the United States, enforcing in perfect good faith the restrictions placed on emigration."

The foreign minister's speech was received with applause by the government side of the House, but Count Hattori, an Opposition member, immediately began a bitter and sensational attack on the foreign policy of the government. He said that Japan had no determined foreign policies and that this was shown by her present attitude toward America, where Japanese were denied an equal opportunity and were even abused by Americans. The recent events, he said, had proved that the anti-Japanese sentiment in America had not subsided. The speaker attacked particularly the recently concluded agreement between Japan and America, saying that he believed that the Japanese Foreign Office was forced by the American Government to sign the agreement in order to prevent competition by the Japanese on the Pacific coast. He declared that Japan's dignity had been injured thereby and he impassionately urged the government to enforce the principle of equal opportunity which alone could solve the question of the rights of Japanese in foreign countries.

He said that even the President of one country and denied Japanese the right to travel a right which was theirs by treaty.

Count Hattori's speech was greeted by continued cheering by the opposition. Foreign Minister Komura replied with a few words, saying that he had outlined the fixed policy of his government and that he had nothing to add and nothing to retract. The House then adjourned.

FOR ITALIAN RELIEF.

The Italian committee of Brooklyn pro Sicily and Calabria, after all the efforts it has made in gathering money among its countrymen in every possible way, such as collections from house to house, personal appeals to the Italian societies, whether religious, political or of mutual benefit, is making its last appeal to its American brethren and to the Italians of Brooklyn, for their support in the concert which has been organized for that purpose and to be held at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Saturday evening, February 6.

The collections of the committee, which amount to nearly $4,000, have been turned over to the American Red Cross Society.

The committee realizes that the public has been generous with donations, either personally or through their churches or associations, but this being the last public appeal made to the music lovers, earnestly request the support of the public.

The committee is greatly indebted to the directors of the Academy of Music for their generosity, as well as to the Arion Singing Society, also to Carl Fique, to Mr. Shannon of the Twenty-third Regiment Band and to the Italian opera singers.

Tickets will be sold and are now for sale at the box office of the Academy and at Wissner's, 538 Fulton street.

The committee in charge is composed of F. G. Rosalto, chairman; A. Pesce, treasurer, and J. G. Giambalvo, secretary; Dr. P. Virdone, J. P. Tossino, P. Cannello and J. Catanzaro.

The programme to be given follows:

BETTER HIRE A LAWYER TO DRAW UP YOUR WILL

So Surrogate Hints in Throwing Out One A Notary Public Prepared.

CLEAR AS TO ITS INTENTION.

Witnessed by Two Persons, But Wrong as to Place of Signature—Estate $10,000.

In a decision handed down to-day by Surrogate Ketcham a strong warning is given to persons with property against going to someone incompetent to draw a will. In this instance it is a notary public who is declared to be an incompetent and his effort grotesque by the surrogate, who refuses to admit the will of the late William Schlegel to probate and thereby some $10,000 is diverted from the purpose intended by the testator. The notary whose name appears on the document as the one who drew the will is Harry Felber, who is registered in the county clerk's office as from 715 Third avenue.

Schlegel died recently at 141 Twenty-second street, in this borough. For many years he had been in the vinegar and pickle business with his brother, at 128-136 Twenty-second street. The document which was offered for probate as his last will and testament was declared in the office of the surrogate to be the most peculiar instrument of the kind ever seen there. By it there was an evident attempt on the part of the testator to give his entire estate to his nephews and nieces. Joseph A. Kennedy, of 189 Montague street, was appointed the special guardian for several of these children, as they were not of age. But when Surrogate Ketcham looked at the will it was so clearly against the law in its construction that of his own motion he revoked it. The property now goes absolutely to the father of the testator.

"Probate must be denied. The propounded paper consists of two pages. The first contains the form of a will upon a printed blank, in the body of which are written the words 'continued on other side.' The other page is filled with directions for the disposition of property after death.

"At the end of the attempted will on the first page there is no signature by the decedent, in the place in which such signature might be looked for the notary who drew the will has written his own name, with the initials 'N. P.,' indicating his office.

"Subjoined to this signature is a printed attestation clause, signed by two witnesses, who certify that William Schlegel, the supposed testator, has subscribed the foregoing will, and declared it to be his will, and has requested them to sign as witnesses. In the blank space at the opening of the will for the recital of the name of the testator, the decedent has written his name. At the end of the second page the decedent has again written his name, but it is not attended by any signature of witnesses.

"Thus it appears that the notary has permitted the deceased to sign in every place where his signature has no testamentary value or efficacy, and has himself signed in the one place where his misguided employer should have signed.

"The grotesque result is an instrument which, while it plainly tells what the decedent wanted to do and tried to do with a substantial estate, forbids the fulfillment of his affectionate purpose and leaves the disposition of his fortune dependent only upon the blunders of an incompetent, who had no business to attempt a will."

PASTOR RUSSELL RETURNS

At Pittsburg Head of Millennial Dawn Sect Admits Removal.

Says He Will Locate Headquarters of Watch Tower Society in Brooklyn.

Pittsburg, Pa., February 2—Pastor Charles T. Russell, of Watch Tower fame, head of the Millennial Dawn sect, whose troubles with his wife have supplied public gossip for several years, is about to make Brooklyn the center of his activities. The headquarters of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society will be transferred to Brooklyn. At present the headquarters occupy a commodious structure owned by the society in Arch street, North Side, here.

Pastor Russell preaches to a large congregation when he is not preaching to adherents of the sect in other cities.

He occupied the pulpit of the Brooklyn Tabernacle last Sunday. He returned to this city last night and reluctantly confirmed the report of his proposed removal to Brooklyn.

Mrs. Russell recently secured a limited divorce from the head of the Millennial Dawn sect. Russell has made repeated attempts to have this limited decree set aside. His wife charged him with cruel treatment. He was rated a very rich man, but it was charged during the divorce proceedings that in order to escape payment of alimony he transferred practically all his property to the Bible Society.

Mr. Russell denied his wife's allegations of cruelty, and set up the claim that she was an impediment in the way of his spiritual progress. The quarrels of the couple have filled many a column of the local press.

Pastor Russell's friends say the contemplated removal to Brooklyn is to rid him of the "persecution" of the faction which has supported Mrs. Russell in her domestic difficulties.

Russell at first evaded the question with reference to his leaving Pittsburg, but he finally admitted such was his plan. "It was a large gathering I preached to yesterday," said Mr. Russell, "at the opening of the Brooklyn Tabernacle. We are extending the work of the society to all parts of the world, and this is simply an extension of the work in this country."

Mr. Russell has been pastor of the congregation in the North Side for a number of years, and he was re-elected recently.

UNABLE TO PAY TWO BILLS.

Mrs. Louise Schnelle of 66 Covert street filed in the United States Court yesterday a petition setting forth that she is unable to pay two bills aggregating $1,726, outstanding against her. One bill is owing the Frank Ulmer Company, and amounts to $1,193. The other the Tremmer concern is trying to collect. It amounts to $536.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Mrs. Julia Crowley, 44 years old, of 604 Fourth avenue, was found dead in bed yesterday afternoon, by her son, James, 15. An ambulance from the Norwegian Hospital was summoned, in charge of Dr. Gould, who pronounced her dead. For the last ten years Mrs. Crowley had conducted a news stand at the address given. Mrs. Crowley, who married twice, was deserted by her second husband two years ago. She was a brother of her first husband. She is survived by five sons, the oldest 17 years old. She had been suffering from rheumatism for some time.

DEBT LIMIT DECISION SOON

Senator Wagner Files Brief in Behalf of Jefferson M. Levy.

Differs With William M. Ivins and Contends Limit Has Not Been Exceeded.

With the filing of the brief of Corporation Counsel Pendleton a report on the debt limit question from General Benjamin F. Tracy, who was appointed as the referee, may be expected within a few weeks. Not until that report is filed and confirmed by the court will the city officials know the exact borrowing capacity of the municipality. The brief of Jefferson M. Levy, who brought the injunction proceedings, restraining the Board of Estimate from appropriating money for the Fourth avenue subway, has already been filed with General Tracy by Senator Robert Wagner, Mr. Levy's counsel.

In the brief as submitted by Senator Wagner all the questions as to the different classes of city debt are analyzed and discussed and it is argued that, in spite of the statements of Mr. Ivins and others, the City of New York is within its constitutional margin of indebtedness.

Senator Wagner particularly points out that although the question of the borrowing capacity of the city has been a much discussed subject for many years there are no decisions of our higher courts interpreting what is and what is not within the meaning of the constitution.

One important point upon which Mr. Wagner seems to take a stand different from that of other citizens who have had much to say recently with regard to the city debt is to the time when, or the action upon which, contracts of the City of New York become debt. It is contended by some that contracts for public improvements do not become debt until the work has been done under the contracts, and then that the city is indebted only to the extent of the work actually done. He points out that if such were the case, then at any time, with a small borrowing capacity and with a large amount of contracts outstanding, the city's margin of indebtedness might be wiped out, if at any time there were presented for payment a large amount of certificates for work actually done. He contends that if such practice had the approval of law, then the city's limit would be subject to the action and pleasure of the contractors—a very dangerous situation.

As to revenue bonds, he maintains that only revenue bonds issued against arrears of taxes are indebtedness within the Constit

PLYMOUTH CHURCH, Orange st, between Hicks and Henry—The pastor, Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, will preach in the morning at 10:45 on "Abraham Lincoln," a centennial sermon. In the evening at 7:45 there will be a large public meeting, commemorative of Abraham Lincoln, with addresses by General Clarkson, General Curtis, General Daniel E. Sickles and the Hon. F. W. Hinrichs. General Horatio C. King will preside. In the morning the choir will render Sullivan's "Who Is Like Unto Thee," and Stainer's "Grieve Not the Holy Spirit." In the evening they will give Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving," and "Tenting To-night," by Kittredge.

At the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church on Sunday morning there will be the reception of new members and the baptism of children. In the evening, at 7:30, Dr. Waters will preach the fourth sermon of his series on the Old Testament prophets, "The Man Who Solved the Riddle of the Universe." The large vested choir, under the direction of the organist and choirmaster, Clarence Eddy, will sing the anthems, "By the Waters of Babylon," by S. Coleridge-Taylor, and "Hark, Hark, My Soul," by H. R. Shelley. The offertory solo, "Sound an Alarm" ("Judas Maccabaeus"), by Handel, will be sung by George Carrie. At 3 o'clock the home school will hold a Lincoln centennial celebration, and General Horatio C. King will deliver an address and the double quartet of the Boys High School Glee Club will sing. On Friday night Dr. Waters will speak on "The Religious Side of Lincoln."

At Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Bedford avenue, in the morning there will be reception of members, with communion address by the pastor. In the evening Dr. Cadman will give an address in the interests of the McAll Mission in France.

At St. Paul's Chapel, Mr. Everett will preach, morning and evening.

At the Church of the Pilgrims, corner of Henry and Remsen streets, Brooklyn Heights, the pastor, the Rev. Marion LeRoy Burton, Ph.D., will preach at both services to-morrow. In the evening the pastor will deliver the fourth address in the series upon life themes, his subject being "Greatness." The Young Men's Club of the Church of the Pilgrims meets after the morning service and is conducted by the pastor.

In the First Presbyterian Church, Henry street, near Clark, there will be preaching to-morrow morning by the Rev. Dr. L. Mason Clarke, minister. Under the direction of R. Huntington Woodman, organist and choirmaster, the choir will render at the morning service: "Thus Saith the Lord," Gaul; "Still, Still, With Thee," Foote; "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing," Foster.

At the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, the pastor, the Rev. Cleland B. McAfee, D.D., and the Rev. G. T. Berry, D.D., will tell the story of the McAll Mission. Dr. Berry is the American representative and Dr. McAfee has recently visited the work in France. The choir, under the leadership of the musical director, John Hyatt Brewer, will sing Himmel's "Incline Thine Ear" and Buck's "Te Deum." The Rev. Allyn K. Foster will preach in the evening, when the Mendelssohn centenary service will be observed.

The Rev. J. F. Carson, D.D., will preach in the Central Presbyterian Church, Jefferson and Marcy avenues, on Sunday evening at 7:30 the first of two sermons on Abraham Lincoln. In announcing these sermons Dr. Carson said: "Abraham Lincoln was a providential man. He defies explanation. His heredity did not create him, his environment did not account for him, the schools did not fashion him." The topic for next Sunday evening is "Abraham Lincoln the Man—the Qualities That United in Him to Make Him Great." The subject for February 14 will be "Lincoln the Christian—the Religion That Is Rational, Strong and Resultful." On next Sunday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the Central church, and also in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. It has been found necessary to hold this second communion service, in order to accommodate all the members of the Central Church.

The Rev. Dr. Lee Laws, the pastor, will preach at both services at the Greene avenue Baptist Church, Greene avenue, between Lewis and Stuyvesant. His subjects will be as follows: "10:30 A.M., "What Is the Meaning and Value of the Lord's Supper? Can We Be True Christians While Neglecting This Ordinance." 7:45 P.M., "Are Christians Really Better than Other Men? If Not Better, They are Worse. Which Is It?" At the morning service Dr. Laws will welcome thirty new members and at the evening service a number of men and women will be baptised. The quartet choir will sing at both services. The Bible school at 2:30.

At St. Ann's on the Heights, Clinton corner Livingston streets, the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, morning prayer and sermon by the rector; 8 P.M., sermon by the rector. Mendelssohn centenary. Excerpts from "Elijah," "St. Paul" and "Christus" will be sung and a short recital of Mendelssohn's instrumental music.

In the Second Presbyterian Church, Clinton and Remsen streets, services tomorrow morning and evening, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. L. Van den Berg. New members will be received at the close of the morning service.

At Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Clermont and Willoughby avenues, the pastor, the Rev. William J. Thompson, will preach morning and evening. In the evening his subject will be: "Conscious of Being Saved." Monday evening the Epworth League and their friends will be the guests of the Epworth League of the Hanson Place Methodist Church.

Special services will be held this evening at Temple Israel, Bedford and Lafayette avenues, in commemoration of the centennial of the birth of Mendelssohn. The choir will render a programme of his music, consisting of the following numbers: "Hear My Prayer," soprano solo by Miss Talcott; "Autumn Song," duo, Messrs. Riker and Jahn; selections from the "XIII Psalm," alto solo and choir, Miss Marvin and the quartet; "I Praise Thee, O Lord," Mr. Meltzoff and the choir. The new organist, A. Campbell Weston, takes charge this evening. Dr. Meyer will speak on the "Jew in Music." Owing to the extra musical selections, the services will begin promptly at 7:45 o'clock, instead of the usual hour. The public is invited.

At the Bushwick Avenue Reformed Church, the Sunday morning service will be a special baptismal one. The object sermon to the members of the junior congregation will be "Peter's Shadow and Your Shadow."

PROGRESSIVE SHOPS CATER TO BROOKLYN'S NEEDS

Hundreds of Stores, Big and Small, Which Furnish Household Necessities—Specialists in Many Grafts—Trades, Professions, and Business Concerns Which Have Important Bearings on the Comfort and Convenience of the Public.

TO aid the busy housekeeper in the perennial problem of supplying household needs with the least possible trouble and in the shortest space of time, the Eagle has undertaken to present each week a list of several of the neighborhood "Progressive Shops" of Brooklyn.

The Progressive Shop Department is designed also to indicate where to buy unusual and out of the ordinary goods. In the columns are to be found practical lists of tradesmen, artisans and mechanics, located in every section of the borough. By a careful perusal of the Progressive Shop lists as printed in the Sunday Eagle it is possible to learn how to meet any household emergency which may arise by calling upon the proper person to fill the want.

Activity in Brooklyn Crafts.

Carpentry, house altering, installing of mantelpieces and equipping with electrical circuits are but few of the many minor crafts which fill so many wants of the average household. While carpentry is one of the earliest of all the crafts, to-day people are even more dependent upon the members of this trade than they were in the earlier days, when every man was apt to be his own carpenter.

As a result of the separation of the craft into one in which it takes years of training to bring perfection, there have developed all sorts of carpenters, good, bad and indifferent. In the large cities, carpenters of the better class are apt to congregate, where the big work of building is going on. Brooklyn, no less than her sister boroughs, has felt the impetus of modern building, and has within her boundaries numbers of members of the craft who rank with the highest, and there is great activity and competition as a result.

Harry Mark,
Dealer in Antiques, 1049, 1051 Fulton street.

More recent in its inception is the trade of electrical construction; yet now it ranks next to some of the older businesses, and it is safe to say that no trade requires more careful training than, or will so surely betray incompetence as, that of the electrical worker. Brooklyn, through its progressive shops, is well furnished with electrical supply houses.

Filling a branch of activity between necessity and luxury, the firms which install tile floors, mantelpieces and fireplaces are important in the work they perform in this borough. That the business has become separate from that of general household furnishing is an evidence of its importance. Tilings for kitchens, bathrooms, vestibules and hallways are part of the initial equipment of every well-founded house to-day. In addition, stores of this nature usually deal in gas ranges, gas heaters, gas grates, gas logs and andirons. Every department of house furnishing may easily be supplied among Brooklyn's various professions and trades advertised in the Eagle's Progressive Shop pages.

Emergency Electrical Contracting Co.,

235 Duffield Street.

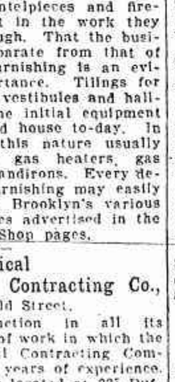

Electrical construction in all its branches is the line of work in which the Emergency Electrical Contracting Company has had fifteen years of experience. The firm's offices are located at 235 Duffield street, near Fulton. The entire period of fifteen years has been spent at the one address and the shop has become an established fixture of the neighborhood. "The hurry-up shop" is an appellation frequently given it.

Credit is given to this firm for the installation of many of the illuminated signs and show windows of Brooklyn's stores. Designing and installing are coordinate departments of the establishment. The firm has recently established a branch office in Newark, N. J., and the branch has met with exceptional success.

Henry Miles & Sons, Tiles,

2073-2075 Fulton Street.

Mantels, tiles and fireplaces constitute a special branch of the house equipment trade. The Henry Miles & Son's Co. has been in this business for 25 years. Before opening at the present address at 2073-2075 Fulton street, the firm was situated on East New York avenue and Amboy street. There the business was carried on for approximately fifteen years.

George Miles.

The firm moved from there about four years ago, and opened at its present address, 2073-2075 Fulton street. The president of the firm is Henry Miles. Charles Miles and George Miles are the other two members of the corporation.

A specialty is made of hard wood mantels, fireplaces, tiling and fixtures of every nature. The firm deals also in marble slabs, and carries a great many novelties in fireplaces adornments and fixtures, among which are effects in colonial, Dutch and mission styles.

Everything made in tiles for halls, ornamental bathrooms and other special work is displayed. The Miles firm also carries a line of odorless gas appliances, which require neither flues nor vents.

W. C. Braden, Electrician,

238 Seventh Avenue.

W. C. Braden, electrician and locksmith has been located at his present place of business for two years. He handles everything in the repairing line, and bicycles, and has, as a side line a complete set of tools for repairing bicycles, phonographs and other mechanical contrivances.

Mr. Braden was formerly a Rochester man. Later he moved to Schenectady, where he became a foreman in the works of the Schenectady Railway Company. Here he obtained much of his practical experience, which has enabled him to equip his present shop in a scientific manner.

Ajax Iron Wire Company,

75-77 York street.

The Ajax Iron Wire Company was incorporated in 1900. At that time Frederick Bricka, former president of the concern, sold his interest to Walter Kleinfelder, who was elected president in his place, and treasurer in 1903. The firm manufactures architectural, ornamental and structural iron and wire work, and has had contracts from some of the most prominent firms in Brooklyn. A specialty is made of such work as ornamental gates and railings.

W. Kleinfelder.

As many as thirty-eight men are employed at the works from time to time. Mr. Kleinfelder came to this city as a bookkeeper in the firm in April, 1902, and later became a principal stockholder. There has been a big addition to the business in later years, and a number of important contracts have been filled, so that the company is constantly growing in importance. Its business averages over $25,000 a year, according to reports of the directors of the corporation.

J. J. Farrell, Carpenter,

499 Eleventh street.

A record of ten steady years work at carpentering is behind J. J. Farrell, who is located at 499 Eleventh street, and the continuous practice has made him one of the leading carpenters in his neighborhood. Before opening his present establishment, Mr. Farrell was located at 397 Eleventh street. He was located at that address for seven years, and moved to No. 499 but a year ago.

Mr. Farrell has had practical experience in everything in the carpentry line. In the course of his experience he has made dumbwaiters a specialty of his trade.

Jacob Hart, Carpenter,

Eagle Building Annex.

One of the old and reliable carpenters and contractors of the downtown section of Brooklyn is Jacob Hart, who is located in the Eagle Building Annex. Mr. Hart has been working at his present trade for many years, nearly all of which time he has been located in his present quarters.

Mr. Hart has become expert in all branches of work in the carpenter's line and he employs only first class men to assist him. He does all kinds of odd jobs and gives them the same attention as he does a large contract job. A special branch of Mr. Hart's business is fine cabinet work and special contracting work.

National Funeral Directing Co.,

15 Greene avenue.

George W. Pease is the head of the National Funeral Directing Company, whose establishment is located at 15 Greene avenue. Mr. Pease has had a long experience as an undertaker.

Geo. W. Pease.

The National Funeral Directing Company makes burials in Greenwood, Holy Cross, Evergreens, Calvary, Cypress Hills, Lutheran, Washington, Mount Olivet and Friends cemeteries.

The company was organized in 1892. A four story building at 15 Greene avenue is entirely devoted to the uses of the firm. The parlor floor consists largely of a chapel, in which 300 persons can be seated easily. The chapel is for the use of patrons for funeral services.

The company has in its employ a number of licensed undertakers and embalmers. Hearses, carriages and equipment are of improved and accepted designs.

SPECIAL SERVICES RESUMED.

Dr. Young and Prominent Laymen to Speak.

The desire of members of Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand avenue and Dean street, and others in the community for the resumption of the special services which have been intermitted for two weeks, has caused the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young to resume these services to-morrow morning and to continue every evening of the week except Saturday. Dr. Young preaching each sermon and being preceded every week evening by a brief address from a prominent layman of the congregation. Andrew Stevenson of Chicago will address the Young People's meeting at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening. Dr. Young's Sunday morning subject will be, "Our Unseen Audience and the Seventh Sense," and his evening subject, "What About Conscience?" D. Stanley Harris, basso soloist.

The week night subjects are as follows: Monday, "Sir George Williams' Career for Young Men," Professor Edwin Fairley; "The Breaking Up the Bedford District Needs," Dr. Young; Tuesday, "The Student Volunteer Movement," John A. Swenson; "The Price of Your Pet Sin," Dr. Young; Wednesday, "Music in the Great Revivals," Roy M. Hart; "That Will of Yours Makes Your World of Woe or Weal," Dr. Young; Thursday, "Conversion of Pastor Hsi and His Marvelous Work," James P. Becker, M. D.; "Do It Now—The Secret of Character," Dr. Young; Friday, "David Brainerd's Zealous Life," H. Percy Andrews; "Confession of Saul of Tarsus," Dr. Young.

"WHAT ARE YOU WORTH?"

The speaker to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the big auditorium meeting for men in the Bedford Y. M. C. A., Bedford avenue and Monroe street, will be Dr. C. H. Mead of Manhattan, who is a favorite speaker at Y. M. C. A. meetings. Dr. Mead has chosen as his subject, "What Are You Worth?" There will be a special musical programme at 3 o'clock by the Kathryn Gunn Instrumental Trio. The singing will be led by David Hughes, the well known Welsh singer, and F. W. Bosworth, cornetist. All men are invited to attend.

LABOR UNION DINNER

Latter Defends the Boycott and Pleads for Free Speech and Free Press.

The Brooklyn Central Labor Union paid its tribute to Abraham Lincoln last night by holding a dinner, which was attended by 200 members, their wives and children, in one of the meeting rooms of the Labor Lyceum, Willoughby and Myrtle avenues. Maurice De Young, president of the Central Labor Union, presided as toastmaster, and eloquent addresses were made by the Rev. J. Howard Melish, rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, who is a member of the council and is very popular in the local union; by Raymond Robbins of Chicago, by Mitchell May and by Borough Secretary Charles Frederick Adams.

A real surprise was given to "Joe" Couch, the proprietor of the Labor Lyceum, before the speaking began. Couch was brought before Toastmaster De Young, who immediately began to berate him, before the large gathering, about the lateness of the dinner. He gave him a severe scoring, which the proprietor bore in good faith. Finally, the chairman said the Labor Union would not stand for his disregard of it, though Couch has done much to help it, and thereupon presented him with a gold watch.

Dr. Melish was then introduced, and he remarked that a clerical union was just in his line and that organization for his profession was a good thing. He told of his dream of united labor, which, like the dream of the architect for a building, is in its construction slow, but inevitable.

"America is a temple of God in the building," he said, "with its foundation in the home of the people, its walls the men, women and children who labor there, and above it all the men who fought for the country and the Light that shines above. America is, indeed, the great spiritual temple of God. Some men have said they cannot do right under present competitive conditions, and that there is no use trying to be good. I think there is no greater obstacle to the working out of this dream of united labor than that attitude. I believe it is a lie, responsible for the evil conditions of man to-day. He is on an inclined plane, but he may climb up as well as slide down. The ethical and moral tendency is upward. Not what I am, but what I try to be, should be the standard. The man we meet here to honor is the one who gave the lie to that condition."

Conditions have much to do in the unmaking of a spiritual and moral America, he said. It is the privilege of the workingmen to make these conditions. Right men in the right environment are needed. "Should we submit to things which make for its downfall, when the country is in danger?" the speaker asked. "To take to the lifeboats when the ship is sinking is treason, and that is what many of my profession have done. If there is an iron law of wages, let organization see to it that it is done away with and that courts do not stand in the way." Dr. Melish repeated the latter portion of Lincoln's Gettysburg speech and was greeted with cheers when he concluded.

Mr. Robbins sought to vindicate President Lincoln's declaration that "labor is superior to capital and deserves much more consideration." He discussed the rights of property and the rights of man. The struggle for civilization has taken a new form and the march of organized labor in industrial democracy is the march of humanity. Mr. Robbins strongly defended the system of boycott and denounced the idea that boycott is un-American and illegal as absolutely false.

"Boycott is the expression of the people in their purchasing power," he said. "If a man express his opinion by buying labor products and refusing to buy those which are not, he has a perfect right to do so. There is no greater power in the industrial conditions of the people than the power of the boycott. It is the most honest American method in the history of the republic." Mr. Robbins said that the first American boycott was that of tea in Revolutionary days, and it caused the war. He denounced the decision of Judge Wright in condemning the labor officials to prison, and said: "If it is necessary for us to go to jail, we want to go to vindicate the principle." He emphasized the power of judges and said fearless, upright judges should be supported, and then made a plea for freedom of speech and the press.

Mitchell May and Borough Secretary Adams also spoke. The dinner committee of the Brooklyn Central Labor Union in charge of the dinner was made up of George Phillips, chairman; Edward Murray, William A. Roberts, Michael Abrams and A. K. Atherton.

MADE GUARDIAN OF HER CHILD

Mother to Be Paid Interest on $2,000 Left Little Daughter by Grandparent.

Mrs. Mamie Hausel of College Point, by order of Surrogate Noble of Queens was given power yesterday as general guardian of her child, Mildred Hausel, 6 years old, to receive and dispose of the income of $2,000 deposited in the College Point Savings Bank for the benefit of the child by the will of Marie Hoelle, deceased, grandmother of the child.

Mrs. Hausel, through her counsel, Edward F. Grote, petitioned for the order, stating that Mrs. Hausel was a widow; that she was compelled to earn her own living and to support her child; that by the will the executors were directed to deposit $2,000 in the savings bank for the child, the interest and income of the money to remain invested until the child reached the age of 21; that the only ones interested in such sum are the executors, Julius Hoelle and Anna Steller, and that these executors have expressed their willingness to pay to the guardian of Mildred Hausel the semi-annual income of such amount, to be applied toward the support and maintenance of the child.

The executors presented affidavits to the effect that the statements made were correct, and the petitioner, who is under bonds as general guardian of the child, was given power to receive the income of the invested bequest.

EXERCISES AT P. S. NO. 87.

Ex-Mayor David A. Boody Made One of the Addresses.

The exercises at P. S. No. 87, Herkimer street and Radde place, in honor of the centenary of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, were a beautiful tribute to his memory and will not soon be forgotten by those who were fortunate enough to witness them. Recitations and songs were splendidly rendered, reflecting great credit upon the principal and her teachers. Very impressively at the stroke of twelve was "The Gettysburg Address," given by John Pope. Not enough admiration and praise can be expressed, however, for the ingenious manner in which one teacher, Miss May Furlong, put into verse the story of "Lincoln in the Toy Shop." This was very cleverly recited by Fred Campbell and was enthusiastically received. "Acrostics," recited by the 6B Grade girls, was the work of another original teacher of the school, Miss Florence Merritt.

Among those of prominence who attended were the Rev. Charles A. Brown, the Rev. Charles J. Allen and ex-Mayor David A. Boody, who spoke appropriately, concerning events in Lincoln's life.

Doings Among Men's Clubs

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, in the upper room of the chapel of the Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Franklin avenue, the Men's Clubs of the Congregational churches of Brooklyn will meet. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, pastor, will give an address on "The Duty of Educated Men in Democracy."

The new Young Men's Class of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Sunday School will be addressed at 2:30 P.M. tomorrow, by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Allan Douglas Carlile.

To-morrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the Men's Class of the Central Presbyterian Church, Marcy and Jefferson avenues, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, leader, will have for the topic of discussion "Persistence." The fifth Scottish concert under the auspices of this class will be given in the church on Tuesday evening, March 9, at 8:15 o'clock. E. Theodore Martin, tenor; Pipe Major D. Scott Chisholm, old favorites, have been re-engaged, and, in addition, Miss Flora Donaldson, Scottish prima donna; Charles MacConnachie, Scottish violinist, and Edward L. Selp, entertainer.

The men of the Bushwick Avenue Congregational Church, of which the Rev. Dr. John Lewis Clark is pastor, will meet on Monday evening in the lecture room for the purpose of electing officers and adopting a constitution and by-laws for the Brotherhood.

At the close of the morning service to-morrow, in the Summerfield M. E. Church, Gates and Washington avenues, the Rev. James E. Holmes, pastor, the Men's Club will hold a meeting.

The members of the Men's Club of the Park Congregational Church, Eighth avenue and Second street, of which the Rev. Dr. Robert W. McLaughlin is pastor, will sit together to-morrow evening. However, reservations will not be held after 8 o'clock, owing to the demand for seats at these services.

The next meeting of the Men's Club connected with the Second Unitarian Church, called the Round Table, will be held on Tuesday evening, at the Hotel Imperial, Red Hook lane. The paper of the evening will be presented by William I. Nichols, general secretary of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities. His topic will be "The Pittsburg Survey."

The Men's Class of the Bushwick Avenue Reformed (White) Church, corner of Himrod street, has been discussing, during February, "The Problem of Decent Living in Congested Cities." On Wednesday evening Dr. Frederick Schneider will deliver a second lecture to the men of the church, on "Micro-organisms."

Sunday after Sunday the Men's Club of the Washington Avenue Baptist Church greets new comers to its morning meeting, which is held between 10 and 11 o'clock. All young men, church members and non-church members, and particularly strangers in Brooklyn, are cordially invited to attend any of the meetings. The club meets in the Sunday school room of the church, Washington and Gates avenues. Each meeting is opened with singing around the pixno, in company with the Young Ladies Club. After the singing the men are given an earnest talk on the Bible lesson of the day, by their leader, Frank Harvey Field. Alpin I. Dunn, chairman of the entertainment committee of the club, has arranged for a musical and literary entertainment on Wednesday evening, in honor of the Young Ladies Club of the church, in the Sunday school rooms. Maxwell Ryder, LL.D., of London; Miss Maude J. Mix, and Roland E. Meyer will entertain. Light refreshments will be served.

THEY DID THEIR WORK WELL.

Men and Women Teachers Who Gave Their Services for Lincoln Celebration.

The success of the exercises last night was due in large measure to the men and women who selected, trained and directed the pupils of the schools in the musical numbers. In each center there were from 200 to 400 children, taken from the schools of each district, by the teachers of music, under Director Albert S. Caswell. The pupils had to learn and be drilled in singing the numbers, "The Red, White and Blue," the "Integer Vitae," the "Uncrowned Kings" and "America." To these men and women is credit due, but not to them alone. The men and women who accompanied the singers on the piano, who attended every rehearsal and who played at last night's exercises also contributed to the success, and they, too, deserve praise. They are grade teachers in the public schools, who receive no pay for their services as pianists. The readers at the several centers, who gave their services freely, and who are teachers or principals in the schools, won high praise. The names of all these are:

District 27, Public School No. 5—Miss Alice M. Judge, director; Joseph W. Waring, P. S. No. 5, reader.

District 28, Public School No. 6—Paul Martin, jr., director; Miss O'Donnell, P. S. No. 6, pianist; Miss Elsie H. Farchman, P. S. No. 142, reader.

District 29, Girls High School—Mrs. Charlotte F. Furey, director; Miss Hutchinson, P. S. No. 41, pianist; Miss Mildred Henry, student in Girls High School, reader.

District 30, Manual Training High School—Edward Everett Hand, director; Mr. Strom, P. S. No. 10, pianist; Miss Bertha E. Smith, P. S. No. 77, reader.

District 34, Public School No. 126—Eugene C. Morris, director; Miss Meyers, P. S. No. 126, pianist; Miss Mary R. Fitzpatrick, P. S. No. 59, reader.

District 35, Public School No. 145—Miss Maria A. Simmons, director; Miss Tuthill, P. S. No. 75, pianist; Miss Mary A. Boran, P. S. No. 123, reader.

District 36, Public School No. 155—Mrs. Esther A. Liscombe, director; John Winters, P. S. No. 85, pianist; Miss Ruth E. Granger, P. S. No. 137, reader.

District 37, Public School No. 118, Frederick M. Davidson, director; Miss McDermott, P. S. No. 136, pianist; Miss Sarah E. Scott, P. S. No. 140, reader.

District 38, Erasmus Hall High School—Frank R. Auerhahn, director; Miss Martha S. Tourte, pianist; Mrs. Grace A. Burt-Homan, reader.

District 39, Public School No. 159—Charles A. Kaiser, director; Miss Carolan, P. S. No. 109, pianist; Miss Mary Finley, P. S. No. 84, Girls, reader.

EVANGELIST BRENNEISEN HERE

Evangelist E. W. Brenneisen has been invited to preach in the Brooklyn Tabernacle to-morrow afternoon in the absence of Pastor Russell, who is to address the Bible Students Convention, in session in Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Brenneisen has during the past few years been doing an extensive evangelistic work, throughout the Western states and Canada, under the auspices of the Bible and Tract Society, of which Pastor Russell is the president. GIRLS PASS EXAMINATIONS

Miss Johnston Made Announcement at the Lincoln Day Celebration of Successful Students.

For more than two hundred of the students of the Brooklyn Training School a pleasant feature of the Lincoln Day celebration was the announcement before the exercises began that the returns from the Board of Examiners had just arrived and that they were the fortunate holders of licenses to do practice teaching in the elementary schools. Letters of assignment were given to those named below who begin their work as teachers next Monday.

DEPUTY WEINDORF RESIGNS

And Makes Charges Against State Superintendent of Elections—Asks Governor to Name Commission.

Robert Weindorf of 78 Third street, Long Island City, has resigned his position as deputy superintendent of elections under State Superintendent William Leary and has preferred charges against his former chief of conduct unbecoming his position. The charges have been forwarded to Governor Hughes by Weindorf, with a request that the governor appoint a commission to hear his story.

Weindorf is a member of the Queens County Republican Committee and one of the most active workers of his party in the First Assembly District. He is an active lieutenant of County Chairman Theron H. Burden. He was made a deputy superintendent on September 22, 1905, by Superintendent Morgan.

Weindorf, when seen, refused to say much about the charges. He said there were five specifications, but the particulars he would not disclose, unless Governor Hughes directs an investigation. In the charges, according to Weindorf, it is complained that Superintendent Leary uses language not suited to his position in addressing his subordinates; that his subordinates are afraid to make complaint against Leary for fear of losing their jobs; that the department is controlled by incompetent men, who are favorites; that dummies are carried on the payroll of the department, and that Leary has mismanaged his office.

Weindorf declares that if he is given an opportunity to make known all the facts in his possession there will be something of a sensation.

FATHER WELSH MAY SUE.

L. I. City Priest Threatens to Mandamus Queens Officials—Parish House Plans Held Up.

The Rev. Father John Walsh, pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, in Astoria, is much annoyed by the authorities of the Queens Borough government in failing to approve of plans for a proposed new parish house in his parish, and he threatens to begin action in court if something is not done at once.

It was at a euchre at the Queens County Athletic Hall last night that Father Walsh declared himself. The euchre had been arranged to raise money for the new building. The hall was crowded and all present were enthusiastic over the project. The plans for the building were exhibited in the hall and unanimously approved. They have been drawn by one of the best known architects in the city.

Father Walsh stated that special precautions had been taken to insure the safety of the building and make it fireproof. He said that a fire could be built on the stage behind the asbestos curtain and yet no fire would be communicated to the other parts of the house. With all these precautions, the city authorities had refused to grant the necessary permits. If they were not granted within a short time, declared Father Walsh, he would apply to the courts for a mandamus.

The many who heard the remarks of Father Walsh applauded him and assured him he would have their support in whatever he did.

NUT AND FRUIT DISHES.

Nuts and fruits are no longer merely accessories to our meals, but are often the principal features of the menu. And because of the important part they play there is now quite a varied and extensive collection of delicious and nourishing dishes which have these materials as foundations.

Chestnut Rolls With Fried Apples.

Shell a quart of large chestnuts and peel off the inner skin by soaking them a few minutes in boiling water and then rubbing them with a coarse cloth. Cover with salted water and boil until soft enough to mash easily. Drain and turn them into a bowl and mash fine, seasoning to taste with salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of butter. Mix thoroughly with a well beaten egg. Shape into small rolls, dip into egg and bread crumbs and fry a delicate brown. Cut tart, unpeeled apples into half inch sections and remove the cores. Sprinkle over them the juice of a lemon mixed with a tablespoontul of sugar. Let them stand in a cool place for an hour, then saute them tender, but not too soft, in a little butter. Arrange as a garnish around the chestnut rolls.

Nut Roll, Baked and Served With Apple Sauce.

Pour boiling water over two quarts and a pint of English walnuts shelled, and as soon as the skin will peel rub it off with a rough cloth. Chop fine and dry a little in the oven, so that they may be crushed with the rolling pin. Have ready a pint of nicely boiled rice. Add half a cup of bread crumbs browned delicately in the oven, a teaspoonful chopped parsley, two hard boiled eggs cut into dice and salt and white pepper to suit the taste. Mix well, add the nut meats, and bind together with two well beaten eggs. Shape into a loaf by packing into a well buttered, small bread tin; cover the top with buttered paper and bake half an hour. Serve with spiced apples or rich tart apple sauce.

Apples to Serve With Roast Pork or Goose.

Pare and core the apples, as many as will be needed; put them in a porcelain lined or earthenware baking dish. Add a pint of chicken broth, or boiling water if you have no broth, and simmer for twenty minutes with a teaspoonful finely minced onion, small bay leaf, and salt and pepper to taste. Strain over the apples, cover closely and cook slowly until soft. Remove from the stock and set in a cool place. Then prepare the stuffing of two cupfuls of blanched and chopped black walnuts stewed ten minutes in the stock in which the apples were cooked. Place the apples in a glass dish, fill the hollows from which cores were removed with the prepared nuts; then stir in the rest of the stock, adding half a cup of currant or quince jelly. Pour over the apples and serve.

Date Omelet.

Beat three egg yolks until lemon colored; add three tablespoonfuls powdered sugar and juice of half a lemon. Fold in carefully the stiffly beaten whites of six eggs and, finally, twelve dates cut in quarters. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a hot oven until golden brown. Serve at once with orange sauce.

Orange Sauce.

Beat yolk of one egg thick and gradually add three-quarters of a cup of powdered sugar and continue to beat. Then add gradually, to prevent curdling, the juice of an orange.

Beef Hash, With Apples.

Take two cups of beef coarsely chopped, one cup chopped tart apples. Mix well and turn into a greased griddle and flatten out into a cake. Brown nicely on under side; then fold like an omlet and turn into a heated dish.

Lemon Butter.

Dissolve in the juice of a large lemon, a large cup of white sugar. Stir constantly over the fire, taking care that it does not burn. Add two eggs beaten separately. As soon as the mixture becomes thick, remove from the fire.

New Apple Salad.

Pare crisp, nicely flavored apples and cut them in slices across, removing the core and seeds with a small cutter. Arrange the apple rings on crisp lettuce leaves. Sprinkle over them a French dressing made with best oil, lemon juice and a delicate flavoring of cinnamon or grated nutmeg and sprinkle with grated cheese.

Fig and Raisin Sandwiches.

These are nice for luncheon of Sunday night tea. Butter smooth slices of fine grained white bread and trim free from crusts. Mince fine, six fresh dried figs and twelve large raisins and spread between the slices of bread. A few drops of lemon juice to moisten the fruit paste is considered an improvement to most tastes.

Prune Loaf.

Stew half a pound of prunes until tender. Add half a box of acidulated gelatin soaked in half a cupful of cold water and dissolved over hot water. Add the juice of one lemon and half a cup of sugar. Strain the juice from the prunes. There should be about one and one-half pints of the juice. Pour over the gelatin and sugar. Add prunes together with the meats from prune pits, chopped fine; then the lemon juice. Pour into a plain mold and set away to harden. Serve with cream.

FLAG AND BUST PRESENTED.

Lincoln's Memory Honored at P. S. No. 88, Ridgewood Heights.

A flag and bust presentation to Public School No. 88, Fresh Pond road and Elm avenue, Ridgewood Heights, by the Ridgewood Heights and St. James Park Improvement Associations, assisted by McPherson-Doane Post, No. 499, G. A. R., Robert N. Prestidge, commander, was the principal feature of the afternoon Lincoln memorial services of the school, held yesterday.

The address of welcome by J. H. Rohrbach, principal of the school, which preceded the entrance of two hundred boys and girls escorting the flag and bust, consisted of a short history of the martyred President's life. He emphasized to those present that no matter how low a boy begins life, by honesty and integrity he can reach the highest rung of the ladder of fame.

The conductor of music, Miss Swift, with Miss Hill as accompanist, presented a fine programme. The opening address was by Albert Firmin, who was followed by Herman Gohlinghorst, president of the Ridgewood Heights Improvement Association. The presentation of the flag was by Virtus L. Haines, with acceptance by James A. Rooney of McPherson-Doane Post, G. A. R. This was in turn followed with a salute by the school and quotations by the children. Addresses, "Civic Duty," by Jared J. Chambers, and the "Humorous Side of Lincoln," by Edwin F. Ferry, closed the speaking, and the singing by the audience of the "Star Spangled Banner" ended the programme.

Victory Over Suffering;

by

The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis.

YESTERDAY morning the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, preached on "Victory Over Suffering." The text was from II Timothy ii.:12. "If we suffer we shall also reign." Dr. Hillis said:

Culture and character are through suffering. Life is God's university, happiness is the graduating point, but trouble and adversity are His chosen teachers. The world is built for joy, but man comes to his full estate only through the tutilage of sorrow. Even Christ who brings glad tidings of great joy, is exhibited as passing through the uttermost of pain upward toward the uttermost of pleasure and the world's throne. If man washes his eyes in tears, and makes his garments white with blood, he, too, is promised the throne and sceptre of the higher manhood. Suffering is an alchemist, refining out coarseness and transmitting bad into good. Steel is iron plus fire.

Tools are trees plus gashing axes. Statues are marble plus the chisel, whose every stroke makes sparks to fly. Manhood is nature plus the temptations that chisel out character. That which let the crystal out of the geode is not the clear shining of the sun. No Phidias ever polished his marble with softness and warmth. Perfection is through sharp blows of the mallet. Whom God loves, He chastens. Whom He receives, He purges. Then brings He forth for His pain-loved children the best robe,its warp and woof woven of threaded pain, and places their feet in the shining way, a way bright with faggot fires, and brings them to the heavenly city by a way that passes by some Gethsemane and Calvary. Bronze doors of old cathedrals are all of beaten handwork, and character is hammered out of the anvil of adversity. Wine is through crushing of the grape, and joy is a spirit distilled from the bruised affections. Sin and selfishness dig great furrows in the face; so suffering is sent in to iron the lines smooth again. From Paul to Livingstone, what heroic leader hath worn soft raiment? What Luther or Lincoln was reared in king's palaces? It is wrestling against opposing winds that works toughness in trees and hardness in men. If the poet's vision is ever fulfilled, and we judge the angels doing easy duty at home, we must first, as veterans of the Old Guard, achieve our scars in fierce battle upon a far-off frontier.

Troubles Are Facts and Realities.

Optimists always, let us not make believe and play there are no troubles. It is a poor triumph over tragedy that is gained by averting the eyes. To deny that some are blind and also brave, to deny that some are cripples and halt, to refuse our tribute of admiration to some who through heredity are doomed to wear a fleshly clog, a kind of ball and chain—this is to speak lies in the hidden parts. To define life's adversities as figments of the brain is to become philosophers of mist and moonshine. To deny trouble is to mutilate facts, mutilate nature, miss the refinement of events, and defeat the whole economy of God. Reverses overtake men, the competency of a lifetime melts in a night. Panic stands in the street, and riches take wings and fly away.

Ill health comes, and the hand forgets its cunning and the brain its skill; the pallid brow, sunken cheeks and the trembling thought proclaim the end. Enemies arise to ruin reputation; while the skies rain slander and cruel lies, until all the springs of peace are poisoned. Only last week a young poet died in England. And all the music in him will now be unsung. An Oxford man tells me that he was as full of genius as an egg of meat. Overwrought, tuberculosis of the spine, with its insidious and stealthy approach, crept upon him. One day he told the woman whom he loved that he was within sight of the end. A brave girl, she took her stand beside him, and drew out love's key and led him into Eden, for a brief respite midst the anguish and agony. And now, the boy is gone. And a hundred people in England are heartbroken. And all the flowers of the tree of life and love and happiness are withered and fallen for the woman. And to-day, seated beside that little mound, her Eden is leafless, and the boughs of the tree of life are now stripped bare, and there seems to be no place where she can keep her tryst.

Shall she deny his agony and death, and dream that she dreamed a dream? Shall this old man who lost the savings of a lifetime, and now with broken health forecasts the end, become a stoic and harden his heart, and let troubles fall upon a calloused soul, like hail upon a slate roof? Let us be brave, dare to front all the facts in the case, see life straight and see it whole. Let us confess that life holds dark as well as day winter as well as summer, snowdrifts as truly as apple blossoms, defeat as well as victory, desert as truly as garden. Man hath sought out many inventions, fashioned conveniences, discovered medicines, but this far it has been given to none to achieve an uninterrupted career of happiness. And an out and out confession of the facts in the case will clear the ground, and prepare us to understand the higher uses of trouble, in the economy of nature and God.

Suffering as a Measure of Manhood.

The frontier lines of ignorance begin to recede when we consider that as men go up toward manhood they go toward the possibility of pain. Suffering is an inflection of a large, sensitive and godlike nature. Coarseness and rudeness suffer little, but refinement much. The iron bars over a jail window answer wind with no vibrating melody, but the silken thread sings for the gentle zephyr. As we move downward and away from God's throne, the capacity for suffering is left behind. When we stand at the very limit of organized life, we stand at the vanishing point of suffering. The jellyfish is so near nothing that it discerns not the knife than divided his parts. The insect of a day is open to the accidents of one day. Birds have few fears—only the snake and the hawk. The lark feels no remorse for yesterday, no fear of food failing for to-morrow, and has no thought of death. When death comes for beasts, it comes quickly and painlessly, but man stands at the summit of all animal creation. He unites within himself the bee's skill in hiding, the beaver's in building, the bird in nest-lining.

He includes in his little body the special gift and grace of every creature in the world below him. Compacting within himself their every source of pleasure. Therefore the accumulated possibilities of pain for all the rest of creation are focalized upon His single person. Thus, as manhood increases, suffering augments. This vast mental mechanism with nerve lines running out to the land of sea and sky, carries with it not only the possibility of infinite range, and variety, and volume of pleasure, but also equal possibilities of pain. Therefore is it that troubles seem centralized upon man. The historian says sorrows sweep over society like sheeted storms, blood flows like rivers, tears are too cheap to count, but man's large endowment prophesied all this. Chiefly is God the great sufferer, having inflections of pity, compassion, love and mercy toward His ignorant and sinful children. As men go up toward the throne of universal sympathy, they go up toward possibilities of suffering and sorrow. The man will descend to the level of the stone and the clod, he can cut the nerve of paths of pain, but susceptibility to suffering argues man's nearness to God.

Paganizing of Men.

Therefore the inevitable paganizing of men through the new philosophy that denies suffering. Some of us have recently been shocked and horrified by the final harvest of the new philosophy of pleasure. As a man thinks in his mind and heart, so he becomes in his life. Deny blindness, and you lose sympathy with some of the greatest and most heroic souls that live. Deny invalidism, of some of these who are held by accident to the chair of pain, and you lose communion and the inspiration that comes from some sick chambers that have been the very gate of heaven. For the sweetest perfume and fragrance that some of us have ever known have come from flowers that have unfolded in rooms where invalids who have not walked for a score of years, have suffered, and finally conquered. This denial of pain accounts for the fact that these scientists drop right out of the list of contributors to the crippled children's homes, the blind asylums, the orphanages, the hospitals, to the 10,000 similar philanthropies. While the rest of us pay the bills and care for the heartbroken and the invalided, these think they have escaped the responsibility and can keep what would otherwise be their gifts, for their own selfish pleasures and luxuries. This new philosophy says, escape from all unpleasant thoughts, with the result that the other day a young woman, revolting from the kitchen and the dining room, and the toil in the bedchamber, and the task of caring for a little boy, deserted the child and the husband, because she saw no reason for believing that his salary would be large enough to give her escape from this drudgery. The next week she reappeared as "a reader." Meanwhile, what about the vows of motherhood and the obligations of the wife?

Here in this city lives an old man with locomotor ataxia. And yonder in New York lives his daughter, on the avenue, and sending a small check to her father in the boarding house; she told him that his helplessness was a delusion, his suffering a figment, and until he gave up his belief in pain he need expect nothing more from her—a philosophy that leaves her more money for the automobile and the country seat in the South. And I will engage to find you twenty homes in this city that have been ruined because either a man or a woman deserted honor, and duty, and truth through this new philosophy of closing your eyes to suffering, pulling down the blinds lest you see earth sorrow, and filling your ears with wax lest you hear the sobs. All this narrows men. It cuts the nerves of relationship. This destroys the universal sympathy that relates us to all mankind. The great authority on this philosophy tells us that heaven is the house and street where a man denies pain, maintains happy thoughts, and thinks about beautiful things, and that hell is the recognition of suffering and sorrow. Well, Nero lived in a silken palace, and Paul was mobbed in the streets. Selfish masters have lived in luxury, and slaves for whom Lincoln toiled, lived in sorrow. From that kind of heaven; good Lord, deliver me! I prefer hell, with Paul and Lincoln.

Be a Universal Man.

I don't want to lose sympathy with crippled children. One of the bravest boys I know is a dwarf and a humpback. I know of no form of culture higher than that that comes from recognizing the sorrows of orphans and invalids, self-sacrificing labor in hospitals. I know men who have become millionaires, and having once had a desk in the center of a store, so that they were democrats, open to any who called, having achieved success they surround themselves with mahogany doors and office clerks, and live at last like a worm in the center of a silken cocoon. Like a man who was waited upon by a public committee the other day, whose secretary on this side of a mahogany door made the committee talk through the telephone to the newly made millionaire at his desk on the other side of a mahogany door, about two feet away. This use of ten miles of wire fed the millionaire's vanity, and gave the proper sense of distance. I told the chairman of the committee that I disliked to think of a wise man talking at one end of a phone to a fool at the other end listening. Now, all this spells separation, destroys democracy, cuts the millionaire off from his fellows, narrows his life, dwarfs his soul. Just as this philosophy of escaping suffering by denying it narrows its followers, shrivels their sympathy, dwarfs the intellect, starves the nerve of fellowship.

I had just as soon be buried in Greenwood dirt as entombed in a golden office—the only difference is that the coffin is larger. Don't deny the facts of daily life. Keep your feet on the solid ground of reality. Reject any philosophy that asks you to tell a lie. Little children may be excused for "making believe." But a child's play is one thing, and a childish philosophy is another. Do you think it did not hurt that old business man to move out of his mansion to a little flat? Do you think that young English poet who died last week suffered no pain? Do you want to go to that young girl, with her broken heart, and tell her that you can give her two or three treatments, so that she can have a good time at her young husband's funeral, and not care at all when she goes to his mound? All this is sheer stupidity, cant, humbug and lying, elevated to the dignity of a philosophy that goes drooling toward an ignoble end.

The Sources of Suffering.

Consider the sources of suffering. Nearest to our thought are those physical in Nature. Through no fault of theirs many are born with perpetual ill health. Heredity dooms them to wear a garment whose warp and woof are fiery pain. If one should stand in an upper story and look down into a crowded street, and cast hot coals on those below, to blister and burn all on whom they fell, that would answer to one generation handing down to another inheritances of pain and anguish. But this is an incidental result of heredity. Primarily heredity is for compounding integrities. Visiting mercy unto thousands of generations but visiting transgressions unto third and fourth generations only. Heredity casts the most grievous nerve and blood diseases out of the system, within the third or fourth generation. Essentially, therefore, it is a form of unspeakable mercy, quickly spewing out sinful taints, but compounding health and virtue for untold generations. Physical suffering in others is through accident or ignorance, or through error in personal carriage. Some by over-zeal in office, street or study stretch the cords so tightly that they give way. Love and self-sacrifice make other martyrs of ill health. What sweetness and patience have come from sick rooms, as spiced shrubs when leaves are crushed exhale perfume!

Some have borne an amount of pain distributed upon them through years, that if brought together and focalized at one time upon one person, would have equaled a thousand deaths on the Inquisitor's wheel. Let the temple, with broken columns and fallen arches, be the type of these wrecked lives. Joy is attended by sorrow. The heart and its affections open up avenues through which sufferings enter. Whoever rears a home altar and surrounds himself with loved ones, opens doorways for pain. Doubling joy involves the possible doubling of sorrow. Rejoicing when the child comes involves weeping when the child goes. The prodigal son's pain began when he came to the husks. The father began to suffer when the boy first began to drift away from him. Affection protracted that agony through all the years until the prodigal came to himself again. Love always suffers in the suffering of its friends. Interest in the welfare of others yields suffering. Men are knitted in with their kind. The very sight of ignorance and wretchedness works sorrow in a sensitive mind. Only those who pull down their blinds and selfishly seclude themselves, becoming turtles that draw their heads into their shells, can be oblivious to the world's woe and want and vice and crime. A wide-browed man cannot go upon the street without constant reminder of the chronic misery of the ignorant and wretched poor. Within a mile from this spot are tenement houses, every brick oozing filth, every floor sweating grime, where felons and parasites and drunkards congregate. Where children open their eyes to filth and squalor, waken to blows and kicks and oaths, are debauched while they are still children, and are early chosen for the hospital and the jail. These facts anguish good men, drive sleep from the eyes and slumber from the couch.

All Progress Is Through Suffering.

Moreover, suffering is educive. Thereby comes all racial progress and culture. One man's pain becomes the next man's pleasure. One man's craft strikes the rock and goes to the bottom. His death lifts a signal over the spot and saves whole fleets. One family, mistaking poison for food, perish; afterward the generations avoid the deadly nightshade. Once liberty of thought was unknown; all lips were padlocked. Now a man has free thought, free speech, free action. But each institution cost a hundred battlefields. The social forces of to-day were not rain-fed, but God-nourished. Free institutions are vines; above their roots our fathers slit their veins and emptied out their blood that reappeared for us in crimson blossoms. Formerly no deed or charter was valid without the king's seal. Now no institution is genuine that is not stamped with the blood of patriot or martyr.

All social advance is a history of suffering and endurance and martyrdom without recognition. Reformers have labored and perished; other generations enter into their labors. Our planet has a soil deep and rich, because of ages, when fire billows dotted the adamant. When huge glaciers ground the rocks to powder. Winds went rioting everywither. Electric storms blazed, but all in vain. Frost wedges split down the cliffs. Heat levers pushed down the precipice; then destruction was universal. Now we perceive that early desolation meant later fruition. The wheels of earthquakes tore the hills apart, that the nations might not be separated. Watery currents scooped out the channels for man's commerce. Frost crumbled the cliffs into food for forests and flowers. Rude forces smote the hillsides, up which the shepherd now leads his happy flock; and enriched the valleys where villages and vineyards now nestle beneath the shadow of high hills. Thus civilization grows rich through age on age of suffering. All our treasure of thought and life is a social harvest, sown in tears, watered with blood and reaped in grief, threshed out in pain, garnered by death into the granary of the ages.

The Transformation of Character.

The law of the conservation of energy is the key that unlocks the problem of suffering. Everywhere in nature and life growth is through the conversion of force. Fire converts things downward, changing forests into ashes and smoke. Life converts things upward. Seeds work their juices and solids into trees. Heat and pressure convert limestone and iron into bloodred marble. In the forest, when the frost falls, the nuts are sweetly plumped, and wild grapes lose their tartness. In Nature's fierce crucible carbon is turned to flashing diamond. In the world of pottery it is fire that burns the artist's delicate tracery into the texture of porcelain. In the animal kingdom, science tells us that the music of the fields began with the fear and pain of birds. The robin's first note was a cry of danger. Slowly the notes of warning and alarm were developed upward, into the liquid music of the lark, and the melting rapture of the hermit thrush. In statecraft, too, the law holds good. Socrates says no man is fitted for ruling that has not known suffering. Concerning the home kingdom Plato says no woman is fitted for training children until she has been mellowed by grief and pain. Fulfilling these exalted duties of nature, suffering is also appointed for the soul. With more than a father's affection, with more than a mother's love, God sends pain to men. Sufferings come under divine permission. Sorrows do not riot through life. Men are not atoms buffeted hither and thither. Troubles are appointed to refine away our grossness, to transmute selfishness into self-sacrifice; to destroy vice, transfigure all our life. Refused, troubles bruise without softening, crush without maturing. Accepted and rightly used, they change the sorrows into welcome joys. Tears are seeds that blossom into joy and gladness.

Great Men as Sufferers.

In vision hours the seer saw the door of maturity standing open. For one brief moment he looked in upon a group of radiant beings. They seemed the favorites of the ages. They live in the very center of joy. No care is upon them, no burden bears them down by ball and chain. No taskmaster drives them to uncongenial tasks. There are no furrows in the cheek, nor pain ridges on the forehead. They are freer than the birds. They exhale joy as tropic winds sweet odors. Happiness is native to these children of song. Surely these have never wrought in earthly sphere, and known trouble through threescore years and ten. Then answered one, "These are they who have come out of great tribulation; they have washed their robes in the bath of suffering." How significant that those who stand in the forefront are not only first in ability, but first in suffering. Blind Homer feels his way; beside him Paul, flogged and stoned out of all semblance of man; Dante is there, the exile; whose Inferno in life interpreted the inferno of death; there, too, is Milton, broken-hearted and blind. Now comes one who leads all that little company. His name is above every name. Perhaps it is because His face is more marred than any man's.

American Via Ellis Island;

by

Robert Watchorn.

ROBERT WATCHORN, commissioner of immigration for the port of New York, made an address yesterday afternoon at the Bedford Branch Young Men's Christian Association, at the men's mass meeting, entitled "The American via Ellis Island." The attendance was large and the interest marked. The address was preceded by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." In the course of his remarks the commissioner said:

Ellis Island is a modern institution, not yet twenty years old, as it is within that time that the Federal Government thought it necessary to bother about the subject of immigration. Those who come to this country from foreign lands are quickly absorbed into the nation; but I want to take a deeper theme than the desirability or the undesirability of the immigrant himself. The thought of those who come in is, generally, that they themselves are at least desirable. It is doubtless a fact that on the landing of the first immigrants in this country the Indians returned to the bush and held council and came to the conclusion that "immigration should be restricted!" A little later on, thirty-five families arrived in this country, and the governor was in a quandary as to what he would do with all these people! Within 100 years, in spite of the absurdity of it, this sentiment spread throughout the land until, at one time, there was some danger of the immigrants being stoned to death. It was a common occurrence that immigrants had to go a round-about way in entering the country, so as to avoid the fury of the mob.

That laws regulating immigration are necessary, no sane man will dispute. Congress has never made laws which would prohibit any whole race from entering the country, but only restricts individuals; for instance, an insane person. The reason is because of the expense which would have to be borne by the government, when such expense properly belongs to the government of his own country. All persons who, by any stretch of the imagination, would be any detriment to the republic should be excluded, a remark which applies not alone to the insane and criminal classes, but also to those likely to become pauper charges here, and, consequently, a burden on the nation. Now, are we, however, taking in too many people who are acceptable in these regards? Is immigration too extensively encouraged? Are they likely to do us a national injury, rather than contribute to the progress of the republic? In my judgment, there is no likelihood of this as regards those who have been declared proper subjects for admission in the past.

In 1861 the foreign born population of this country was 13 per cent.; at the present day it is still 13 per cent.; there has not been an increase of 1 per cent. in their number as compared with the entire population. The percentage of immigrants, therefore, should not be regarded as a source of anxiety. It should be remembered, also, that the 3,500,000 babies annually presented to Uncle Sam by "the stork" immensely outweigh the 500,000 adult immigrants admitted during the same period. Throughout the world the name of George Washington will stand as long as time endures as the man and this republic as the land where every man can work out his own salvation free from oppression and injustice. The doctrines for which Washington stood are indispensible to the propagation and realization of the American idea of liberty and rights. It has been said that Washington had an easy time in his day because he was surrounded by a homogeneous people who spoke his own language, but I am quite sure that he would have given his orders just the same if he had to employ a hundred interpreters to help him, because of his ideals of liberty and right. The brightest chapter of American history has been written in her hour of poverty, as in the case of many an individual life.

Why was the birthday of Abraham Lincoln so universally celebrated a few days ago? Why do you see his picture everywhere? Because he stood for noble ideals, as did his great predecessor, George Washington. He carved out for himself an immortal name and place in the world's history, like those of Moses and Washington. By his faith in the common people, knowing that the voice of the people was next to the voice of God, he strove for his ideals of liberty. The people who come to us from across the seas are the most likely of us all to appropriate the ideals of these great leaders, and to approximate the spirit of their deeds. In many cases the first words of hope and cheer which they have heard in their lives were uttered in their ears on this side of the water. These are the men who will grow up to the full stature of [illegible] citizenship, when due allowance is made for their native environment [illegible] encouragement and respect are afforded them by the people of this land.

It has been said that America is accomplishing the undoing of Italy; Italy is being made over anew in America. Italian subjects, after a residence of some years in this country, find, on their return to their native land, great difficulty in readjusting themselves to the prevailing conditions at home. As one of their number has put it, "It is almost as difficult as to forcibly return a chicken to its shell!"

In the course of a trip to Europe, eighteen months ago, I had occasion to visit a quarry in which five hundred men were employed, at an average wage of less than 23 cents a day of our money. Compare this fact with the vastly increased wages even the most unskilled laborer from abroad can earn in this country, and the secret of the difficulty I have just referred to will be better understood. The general desire of the immigrant for self-advancement is a noticeable characteristic of those who set their faces towards our shores. Our republic will be doubly honored and pleased in taking them into its life. It is the spirit of Christ which is absolutely necessary to keep us in a right relation to this entire problem, and all laws will fail if not so inspired. Confidence and faith in God is the absolute requisite for the welfare of our country and of those who seek the liberty and progress for which this nation stand in its origin and institutions.

Next Sunday, at the same hour, the address will be delivered by Judge W. F. Norris, of Washington, D. C., upon the subject, "Our Mission in the Orient." Judge Norris was for nine years United States consul and judge in the Philippines. During March the meetings will be addressed by the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, the popular pastor of the Central Congregational Church, who gave such a successful course in the fall and who is now speaking each Sunday in the Central Branch, 502 Fulton street.

NO HELL HEREAFTER.

Pastor Russell Says When a Man's Dead He's Dead and Prayers Won't Affect Him.

Pastor Russell—he does not believe in "reverend" or "doctor"—talked in the Academy of Music, yesterday afternoon, on "Where Are the Dead?" This appears to be his pet sermon, for he has given it in Brooklyn before, and thousands have heard it in other cities. There was a large audience, filling every part of the large auditorium, and hundreds were turned away. Pastor Russell has attached two historical names to his regular preaching place, Plymouth Bethel and Brooklyn Tabernacle.

The speaker took up the heathen beliefs, dissected the Catholic faith, spoke of purgatory, and then said:

"I don't know but I'd as soon take the heathen view and be a mouse or an elephant and take my chances dodging around. I believe I'd rather take the agnostic's view and believe I am dead for all time when I die as to be troubled about purgatory. I am ashamed to say that you and I as Protestants have the most absurd theory about 'where are the dead.' When those who founded the Protestant religion were at work on the subject they said, 'We will not have any purgatory.' They threw it away bodily because they could not tell where it was, and their Catholic friends could not tell either.

"The reason persons do not know more about what takes place after death is because they devote too much attention to money, real estate and politics. The theory that 'when a man dies he becomes more alive than before he died' is absurd, and the Bible teaches the reverse. The lie about death came first from the serpent in the Garden of Eden, who told Eve if she ate of the forbidden fruit she should not surely die. The lie was passed to Plato and by him on to Christendom.

"When a man's dead he's dead, and all the prayers on earth won't affect him," declared the clergyman. "It is ridiculous, however, that millions of His people who never heard of Him will be sent to Hell by Him. There is not one word in the Bible about Hell. The words translated 'Hell,' 'Sheol' and 'Hades,' mean the grave, as every well educated clergyman knows. The Apostle Paul never mentioned Hell or Purgatory. He says the incorrigible one shall be punished with everlasting destruction. Death entered the world through one man, Adam. Death is enough punishment for you and your friends, but not for your enemies."

REV. MR. GRAY WOULD TALK,

But Temperance Society of Orient, L. I., Has Secured Services of Another Preacher.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Orient, L. I., February 22—The old Washingtonian Temperance Society of this place is celebrating its sixty-seventh anniversary here to-day. The society had a letter from Dr. John A. Gray, who a year ago was pastor of the Congregational Church of this place, but who is now preaching in Fairmont, Ind., asking that the society allow him to give the address of the day, but he will not deliver it, as the committee had secured the services of the Rev. Dr. Fox of the Greenport Congregational Church. However, both the celebration and Dr. Gray's letter bring back the exciting events of last February 22, when the people were stirred up to the highest pitch of excitement over Black Hand threats against Dr. Gray and the temperance people who were working against the interests of the saloon, and by the setting fire to the Congregational Church. Later the matter was investigated by the Grand Jury. The temperance people accused the saloon element and they in turn accused Dr. Gray of writing his own Black Hand letters and setting fire to his own church. The matter was never cleared up.

REVIVAL STIRS BOSTON.

The Chapman-Alexander Campaign (Special to the Eagle.) Bring About 5,000 Conversions.

Boston, Mass., February 22—The Chapman-Alexander evangelistic campaign in this city closed last night with a wonderful meeting. During the campaign, which was carried on under the auspices of the Evangelistic Commission of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, it is estimated that there have been 5,000 or 6,000 conversions, and the city has been greatly stirred. The Rev. Dr. A. Z. Conrad, formerly of Brooklyn, now pastor of the Park Street Congregational Church, and greatly interested in the revival effort, says:

"The revival has been simply marvelous. Chapman and Alexander have positively captured all hearts, from Harvard University to the humblest cottager. In power it has been like the great Welsh revival."

Imputed Righteousness

The Rev. G. O. Griffith.

IN the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, Sixth Avenue and Lincoln place, yesterday morning, the Rev. Gwilym O. Griffith preached. Mr. Griffith has been absent during the past week in Cambridge, Mass., at the invitation of the ministers of that city preaching at the special meetings being held for the students of Harvard University. During his absence the congregation of the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church extended a unanimous call to the pastorate to Mr. Griffith. At the close of the service yesterday morning he expressed his appreciation of the honor done to him and said that he would accept.

The Rev. Mr. Griffith chose for the subject of his sermon, "Imputed Righteousness," and took as his text, Romans iii:22, "The righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe." He said:

During my visit to Cambridge this week I was led to preach on the subject of imputed righteousness. Many in the church came to me afterward and said, "We had not so much as heard of such a thing before," so completely had the very phrase, the very terminology of this truth dropped out of our religious vocabulary. I desire to speak this morning concerning this fundamental truth of imputed righteousness which comes to the believer through the dispensation of grace. What is imputed righteousness? Imputed righteousness is that which looks to the Christ and appropriates all the matchless splendor and perfection of His person and claims it for the believer. Imputed righteousness is built up and established first of all upon the fact of the perfection of Christ. As I look upon Christ and see Him in the peerless beauty of His holiness, in the amazing and appalling brightness of His virtue, in the wealth and passion of His love, imputed righteousness leads me to claim that for myself and say, "All of the virtues and glory of His character are mine; verily mine own." So that I can wrap myself around with and clothe my soul in His virtue and reckon the virtue of Christ as my virtue, His love as my love, His compassion as my compassion, His purity as my purity; and this was the language of our fathers' song.

> Jesus Thy blood and righteousness,
> My beauty are, my glorious dress;
> 'Mid flaming worlds, in these arrayed.
> Secure shall I lift up my head.

We do not sing that as we used to sing it and as our fathers used to sing it, and yet I am perfectly certain it expresses the fundamental experience of Christian life, and that you and I are poorer if we have allowed it to be excluded from the veritiea upon which we build up our sanctity. It is possible for you and for me, I say, to claim all that there is in Christ for ourselves, and to rejoice in it. Now, the difficulty at once presents itself to us: How can it be possible that I can rejoice in another's virtue? How can it be possible that the character of one person can be transferred to another? How can it be that I can rejoice in and appropriate what Christ or anyone else has in this universe? I must bear my own burden, and I must wear the adornment of my own virtues. If I have not virtues in the wardrobe of my spiritual life I cannot rejoice in virtues. How can it turn out that the virtues of Christ which are His can be worn by me? How can another man's veracity enable me to say, "I am truthful because he speaks truth"? How can the life and philanthropy of one man be claimed by another, so that the miser can say, "I am a philanthropist because I have borrowed my philanthropy from my neighbor next door"? How can righteousness be imputed? The underlying truth is the truth which in the language of to-day is expressed in the word "solidarity." We are coming to believe and recognize more and more that perfectly familiar truth in Paul's writings, the truth of the solidarity of human nature and all things. Formerly, our fathers looked upon natural life in the natural world as unrelated and disjointed and more and more we are coming to see that all things are related and interrelated, dependent and interdependent. It is becoming more and more difficult for us to make any final classification or division, and I take it that the trend of modern scientific thought is to unify all natural life and make it one, one in its dependence, in its relationship and in its union with the great under-soul and over-soul of the universe, so that all in nature is more or less identified with this one supreme life.

Now, this is true when we come to humanity. We are recognizing to-day, and speaking very much to-day, of the solidarity of the human race. There was a time when every man regarded himself as distinct and every race as distinct from every other. To-day we are not speaking in these terms. We are speaking less of nationality and more of humanity, less of the individual in his distinction and separation and more of the individual in his relationship to the race; humanity is one of a piece. There is no difference. We are all iter-related and inter-dependent, and humanity is one. No man liveth to himself or for himself, and every man is to bear, not only his own burdens, but the common burden of the common life. This was all perfectly familiar to Paul, and his inspired thought has leaped the gaps of centuries. This law operates in the sacred relationships of our own life, in the mother's love for her child, in the love of the family within itself. Paul said: "He was made to be sin for us who knew no sin that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him." Was that merely a judicial arrangement? No, indeed, but the expression of the vital and fundamental effect of love in its appropriating instinct. Thus Christ, with all the passion of fatherhood and motherhood centered in His being, stood beside us in our sin and shame. When God gave Jesus Christ to our humanity, He gave Him into our humanity. So that Jesus Christ does not stand apart from the human race as a remote idea, but He stands within the race and gathers into His own personality the totality of our humanity; gathers to Himself the pain and passion and woes of every man. I can understand the doctrine of imputed righteousness of Christ because I understand something of this supreme underlying fact—that Christ and the Redeemer are not two, but one. Christ said: "I am the true vine, ye are the branches." Now, you cannot say where the vine ends and the branch begins, because the branch and the vine are all of a piece and the branches are part of the vine. You cannot tell where Christ ends and the believer begins in the union between us and Himself. The personality of Christ is a compound thing, and so is the personality of the believer. The personality of Christ includes all who believe in Him, and the personality of the believer includes Christ as well as himself. It is literally true that Christ is in every believer, a part of the believer's personality. More than that; you and I do not come into the completeness of our personality until Christ is in us. "Ye are complete in Him," and only then; so that your being is not simple, but complex, and it takes Christ and the believer to make one Christian. I take hold of the uttermost twig of a tree and look at it and impute the vitality and nature of that tree to the twig. Why? Because they are of a piece and share the same life. I feel the heart of a swooning man and I feel the heart beat, and I say he is alive. Why? Because the heart shows life, and I impute its vitality to the whole body, because the heart and body are organically related. Now, when I come to Christ, I come to the great throbbing heart whence streams the life blood of the church, and I find the pulses of eternal life there; and then, when I come to the outermost relation of the mystic body, I find the weakest member, however numb and lifeless, alive by virtue of his union with the central throbbing heart of Christ. When I come into the orchard of God and find the weakest twig of the true Vine, I can impute the vitality of that central Vine to the weakest tendril of the farthermost extremity, because the vine and the branch are all of a piece. By faith I am united with Christ. He takes my shame, I take His glory; He takes my weakness, I take His strength.

Therefore, let us rejoice in this fact this morning—the fact of the imputed righteousness of God. Here is Christ, and He is part of yourself; here is His life, and it is yours. How am I to appropriate that? By appropriating it and by no other way. Simply by faith. Not by struggle. Struggle has its place, but not here. It begins with appropriation. What is faith? The opening of all the avenues of one's being toward God. That is faith, and that is how it comes about that the imputed righteousness of Christ becomes the imparted righteousness of Christ. I impute the righteousness of the vine to the uttermost extent of the vine, but I expect at the uttermost extremity to see the evidence in the lucious fruitage of the vine. I impute to myself the righteousness of Christ; and God expects in me the evidence, the righteousness of Christ manifesting itself in the fruition of saintly character.

Let us go out this morning with this joy in our hearts. Conscious of our imperfections and the vileness of our own nature, let us go out triumphant in the perfection of Christ. Not what I am, but what "Thou art." I am afraid that, while before our conversion the center of our lives was our irreligious selves, after our conversion it becomes our religious selves. Reckon, by the supreme appropriation of faith, that the life which pulses in the heart of Christ in glory and all the virtues of it are yours, and it be your part to communicate that new life, that highest life, to the world.

MR. SPRAGUE'S ADDRESS.

He Points Out the Forces Which He Considers Are Transforming Social Ideals.

Giving the third lecture in a series on "Social Ideals," Leslie Willis Sprague spoke before the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture yesterday morning on "Forces Transforming Social Ideals," analyzing the elements of the social ideal as consisting of such factors as individualism, equality, benevolence, utility and democracy. He spoke of the changes which are being wrought in these particular ideals at the hands of industry, city dwelling, immigration and the gradual closing in of economic opportunity; also by the force of a new culture, as expressed in history, sociology, socialism and ethics.

Speaking of present day industry, with its dominant place in human thought as well as action, and with its increasing complexity and interdependence, Mr. Sprague said that industry fosters the idea of a social organism and reveals the necessity of right human relations. It tends to destroy the nation of individualism. By promoting an understanding of economic interrelation it gives rise to the cry, "not charity, but justice." It also tends to force a new interpretation of democracy, extending that ideal beyond the political arena to the industrial life. Industry also reveals the differences in men, their energy, capacity and skill, and so corrects the idea of equality which interprets it as similarity between men.

"President Jordan says: 'The world gets out of the way of the man who knows where he is going to.' But it requires only a little experience to demonstrate that the wonderful opportunities once afforded to every American are increasingly in the control of those who have the wealth, training and genius to embrace them. Even the rich man's son is dependent upon the favor of someone in power to give him any great opportunity to rise. The poor man's son has little if any opportunity to rise in the way that was open to all a hundred years ago. Independence thus practically denied, the idea of independence cannot but waver, and individualism undergoes a change in the thought of most men.

"Science, under the domination of biology, has enforced the doctrine of heredity, which lends itself to unequality, and even class distinction. History reveals the fact that ideals are always in more or less adaptation to social conditions. Sociology emphasizes the interdependence of men in organic society. Ethics tends to emphasize social duties, and encourages the appeal to social as distinct from mere private action. Socialism holds aloft a growing vision of an ideal state in which equality, fraternity and justice shall rule.

"The result of these various reactions upon the older social ideal is to develop the notion of collective social need, to fasten the consciousness of solidarity, and in all ways to make the social ideal indistinct and uncertain. The need is for a vivid and definite ideal which all shall share, and in which what is true and right in the different elements of the social ideal shall be harmoniously combined."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Brooklyn Christian Endeavor Union was held Saturday night at the Church of the Orthodox Friends, Washington and Lafayette avenues. A special feature of the evening, aside from the regular business, was an illustrated lecture on the "Prevention of Tuberculosis." The lecture was given by Dr. E. T. D. Howell of Brooklyn.

BROADWAY TRADE BOARD OUT FOR IMPROVEMENTS

FOR THE JAMAICA BAY PLAN.

Urges Building of Broadway-Lafayette Subway—President Levi's Report.

The Broadway Board of Trade, at a meeting held last night in Hart's Hall, Broadway and Gates avenue, decided to lend its support to the plan for extending the city's debt limit, appointed a committee to further the proposed Jamaica Bay improvement, named a committee of six to urge the building of the Broadway-Lafayette avenue subway, passed a resolution favoring the investigation of express companies, listened to a report from the ferries committee and another from the nominating committee, the latter naming officers to be voted for at the next meeting. Incidentally, the board passed a resolution congratulating President Nathaniel H. Levi on his appointment to the board of Public Library trustees, and added that the mayor's selection gave "extreme satisfaction" to the members of the body. Then Borough Inspector of Police Miles O'Reilly came in for a lot of praise for the fine work he is doing.

President Levi in his report made some pertinent remarks about legislators at Albany. He hit the mark hard and was warmly applauded when he said:

"There is at this time an extremely important, and to my mind, a far reaching question which should receive much attention from the civic bodies in Brooklyn, in point of fact from all the civic bodies in Greater New York. I refer to the passage of the concurrent resolution of the Legislature supporting the amendment to the constitution exempting interest bearing dock and subway bonds from the debt limit.

"We can readily understand why the traction interests oppose this resolution, but why the people's representatives refuse to permit the people to express at the polls their approval or disapproval of this important matter is difficult for the layman to comprehend, and I would strongly advocate that the civic bodies endeavor through their votes and influence to cast into political oblivion, the same as they did some of those who voted against the bill to reduce the price of gas, any senator or assemblyman who shall vote against the submission to the people of the concurrent resolution exactly as it was passed at the last session of the Legislature. There is to be a hearing before the Senate Committee March 17, and much work should and must be done between now and then if the bill is to come out of the committee's hands promptly.

"Upon the passage of this concurrent resolution it appears to me greatly depends whether the city of New York is to have any more subways of consequence in the next ten years, and whether Manhattan's overflow population is to remain in New York State or is to be transported to the state of New Jersey to populate and enrich her suburbs instead of our own. While this great competition to Brooklyn, Queens and Long Island for Manhattan's overflow population grows keener daily, we are compelled to sit idly by and watch our population drifting elsewhere because our authorities refuse to come to our assistance and grant us an even chance in the race for Manhattan's excess population."

On other matters Mr. Levi said:

The Manhattan Bridge Muddle.

"No new developments have presented themselves since our last meeting with reference to the Manhattan Bridge muddle that point to an early solution of the problem how to keep this twenty million dollar structure from simply being a hanging ornament in the sky instead of a useful interborough roadway.

"The people seem utterly helpless, and face the prospects that the adding of this magnificent bridge as an auxiliary to our transit facilities is more remote than ever. Some compromise should be possible between the various branches in authority, and a common ground should be found where the opposing forces can all find room to stand, each side giving and taking a bit for the general good of all, and I hope our transit committee will unite with other civic bodies of influence in a mighty effort to persuade the conflicting forces to bury their differences.

"Another subject which I would be pleased to have our transit committee consider is the question of having a shelter provided for the thousands of passengers who are compelled to wait for cars at the plaza on the Brooklyn side of the Williamsburg bridge.

"In view of the conditions prevailing with regard to the ferries it might be wise, perhaps, for our board to go on record as favoring the plan of placing the ferries in New York City under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission, and I respectfully commend to our comittee on legislation a careful consideration of the plan.

"I would be glad, also, to have our committee on legislation give some attention to Senator Wagner's bill, which aims to do away with the long delays in settling awards on condemnation proceedings.

"It might be advisable, too, for our committee on legislation to give further attention to Assemblyman Warren I. Lee's bill providing for the construction of a new court house in the County of Kings, and to take such action in the premises as they in their wise judgment may deem expedient.

"It is a source of gratification to all of the organizations that have taken a deep interest in the improvement of Jamaica Bay, (in which the Broadway Board of Trade has stood shoulder to shoulder with the other civic societies) to note the splendid report handed in by Colonel John G. Knight to the War Department, in which he recommends an appropriation of $8,000,000 to dredge a channel 1,000 feet wide connecting, through Rockaway Inlet, Jamaica Bay with the ocean. While it was not to be expected that the present Congress would authorize this expenditure, it will certainly have its influence on the next congress, and will no doubt be very helpful to the Jamaica Bay Improvement Association when it makes its request for a large enough appropriation (through Congressman Law) to get this important and far-reaching improvement well under way.

"It seems a great pity, in a great, rich city like New York, that for the lack of the comparatively paltry sum of $9,000, Commissioner of Health Darlington was compelled, for a time at least, to partly drop measles from the list of contagious diseases. The repetition of such a condition is made all the more serious when we learn that one person caused sixty children to take this disease, eight of whom died, and at this writing it is impossible to state how many out of the sixty will, as an after result of the measles, have some disease or ailment which will be with them as long as they live.

"I would earnestly urge our committee on health to take such action as they deem wise which will be helpful in preventing a repetition of this most lamentable situation in our health affairs, for the good health of its inhabitants should be the first care of any well-governed city.

Shuttle Trains at Bowling Green.

"The Public Service Commission is to be earnestly commended for the installation of shuttle trains at Bowling Green to South Ferry during rush hours. It is a well-known fact that the congestion during the rush hours on the Brooklyn subway trains was almost equal to the former congestion at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge. The shuttle train installation has increased the Brooklyn service about 25 per cent., which helps some.

"But the real lesson to be learned from the growing congestion of the Brooklyn subway trains, if our authorities will only see it from the proper point of view, is the urgent necessity for the immediate building of the Broadway-Lafayette subway and the Pineapple street tube.

"To those who have given to this matter proper thought and consideration these subways are quite as important and necessary as any which have been considered by the Public Service Commission since its inception and infinitely more important than some which have been taken under advisement.

"There are about 700,000 or 800,000 people in Brooklyn who wonder why our authorities are apparently so oblivious of this well-known fact, and these hundreds of thousands of citizens would like to know why nothing is being done to complete the Brooklyn section of the subway loop which was not only promised in good faith, but as a matter of fact was absolutely and positively planned as a complete loop system, as is demonstrated by the beginning of the construction of the loop which was undertaken in Manhattan a few years ago and will in a comparatively short time be ready for occupancy and will remain simply a hole in the ground (as I have stated on former occasions after an expenditure of upward of ten millions of dollars, owing to the fact that those in authority have not seen fit to carry out the original comprehensive plan, namely, to go on with the building of the Brooklyn sections of the loop along Broadway and through Lafayette avenue so that they would have been completed at about the same time as the Manhattan sections. This would have carried with it an appropriation of but three millions of dollars per year for three and one-third years and would have enabled the Manhattan Bridge to be set to work, and would in no wise have interfered with the construction of other subways; but, on the other hand, would have served to relieve the transit conditions in a section which needs relief more than does any other locality in Greater New York."

Debt Limit Bill Favored.

Incorporated in the resolution regarding the bill in the Legislature to increase the city's borrowing capacity, introduced by Otto Kempner, was this: "The Broadway Board of Trade of Brooklyn heartily favors the immediate passage by the Legislature, without any modification, of the Travis-Lee joint resolution for the constitutional amendment providing for the extension of the debt limit of the City of New York, by excluding therefrom self-sustaining dock and subway bonds."

George C. Miller said it was time the citizens of Brooklyn got together and urged the building of the Broadway-Lafayette avenue subway. This could be done, he said, without antagonizing the Fourth avenue subway; in fact, as the board had supported the Fourth avenue project, he thought South Brooklyn residents would likely as not lend a helping hand, as well as organizations on the other side of the river, such as the City Club, which had fought against the "L" loop.

The Broadway-Lafayette avenue subway would prove a paying investment from the start, Mr. Miller said, and would relieve congestion more than any other tube that could be built. It was voted to have a special committee appointed to take up the matter, and President Levi appointed the following: George C. Miller, W. S. Irish, M. L. Miner, Otto Kempner, Philip Herrschaft and Mr. Kruger. This committee will meet soon, and if is probable a committee of 100 will be appointed to work for the subway.

Major Edward Gilman made an interesting plea for the Jamaica Bay improvement, and, on motion of Otto Kempner, was appointed chairman of a committee to further the improvement, his fellow members being Elwin S. Piper and Mr. Kempner. Dr. Brundage stated that the health committee would soon have a very interesting report to make.

The following were nominated for officers of the board, to be voted for at the next meeting: Nathaniel H. Levi, president; Philip Herrschaft, Otto Kempner and Henry J. Kemp, vice presidents; Dr. C. T. Schondelmeier, secretary; M. L. Miner, financial secretary; William S. Irish, treasurer, and George C. Miller, chairman of the executive committee. A number of names were added to the roll, and it was reported that repairs were to be made to the pavement in many streets.

HOUSEWARMING EDITION.

The Topeka Capital Celebrates Moving Into Its Handsome New Building.

One of the largest special editions of any paper in the West was recently published by the Topeka Daily Capital. It consisted of over 136 pages, divided into sections of 16 pages each. The printing of the paper was very artistic, the different sections being printed in two colors, with artistic designs on each front page.

This number was called a "Housewarming Edition" and was designed to celebrate the moving of the Topeka Daily Capital into its handsome new building, which is one of the most modern newspaper plants in the country.

Nearly every subject of local interest pertaining to Topeka was thoroughly written up in a most interesting style. A copy of this paper would certainly surprise a non-resident or one who had never visited the Capitol of Kansas, and would impress him with the energy of this live, bustling city.

It carried also an immense amount of advertising, in fact it is doubtful if any paper in the West has ever carried as much business in any one issue as was carried in the "Housewarming Edition" of the Capital, issued February 28. It carried a financial section, a section on the corporations of Topeka, a historical section, an educational section, a builders' section and an insurance section.

The whole paper is a splendid advertisement for Topeka and the State of Kansas.

DR. HENDERSON TO MEN.

The Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson, the new pastor of Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, an attractive speaker to men, will give an address to the men of Brooklyn at the Central Branch Y. M. C. A., Fulton and Bond streets, to-morrow afternoon at 3:30. The music will be furnished by the choir of the Church of the Reconciliation. For several years prior to his coming to the Hanson Place Church Dr. Henderson gave his entire time to work among students in the larger colleges and universities, and in this field rendered most efficient and acceptable service.

TRADE BOARD AT WORK FOR MANUAL H. S. GIRLS

INJUSTICE TO RESIDENTS.

Atlantic Avenue Subway Station to Be Made More Convenient for Brooklynites.

Resolutions condemning the taking away of over 200 girls from the Manual Training High School and sending them to far-away annexes were passed at last night's meeting of the South Brooklyn Board of Trade, which was held in the library auditorium, Sixth avenue and Ninth street. The members of this board who live in the immediate vicinity of Manual did a great deal towards having the school built on the Park Slope, and they have always been very proud of it. The resolutions were introduced by Frederick Bruckbauer, chairman of the local school board, who said the school was originally intended for both boys and girls, that it was equipped for this purpose at great expense, and that the taking away of the girls to provide for more boys would necessitate the complete rearrangement of the building at enormous expense.

The resolutions state that only four years ago the building was expensively equipped for both boys and girls; that the board objects not only to the inconvenience the change means to girls at a delicate age, but protests strongly "against the waste of public funds involved in changing about a new building to carry out a theory of the superintendents"; that the board calls attention to the fact that the equipment of the Manual Training High School is the most costly in the city, summing up to $258,000, a very considerable part of which, such as tiled kitchens, plumbing, etc., would be valueless if removed from the building, and would have to be newly installed elsewhere; and that in this time of financial stringency the board "urges the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate to withhold consent from an expenditure of $50,000 or any installment of it, for alterations that are not urgent and, in the opinion of many, unwise."

Not one man raised his voice in opposition to the resolution. The single vote against the resolution was that of Augustus C. Fischer. Mr. Fischer acknowledged that he did not know much about the subject, but he said that the school authorities evidently knew what they were about when they made the change and it would be presumptuous for him to sign a petition to have the girls restored to the school. He said the equipment for the boys at the school is very costly, but that the only things the girls learned there, outside of their regular studies, was how to sew and how to cook, and he thought they could do that just as well anywhere as in the main building.

William J. Maxwell informed Mr. Fischer that it was very important for the girls to learn how to cook. He then launched into criticism of the change and said that families had moved into the vicinity of the school under a contract with the Board of Education whereby their children should be educated in the school. He said it was the duty of the board to live up to that contract. He called the driving of the girls out of the school an outrage, unjust to the people all over the city and especially to those who have moved near the school in order to educate their children. He added that no sufficient reason had yet been presented for the change. Several other persons spoke along the same lines and many said the city has no right to go to extra expense in fitting up annexes for the manual work of the girls when the city is in its present financial condition.

It was learned at the meeting last night that steps will soon be taken toward improving the subway station at Atlantic avenue. This will be welcome news to Brooklyn folks who have been compelled to make a long detour around the platform in order to take their trains. John E. Gavin, president of the board, brought the matter before the Public Service Commission and last night he received a reply from Commissioner McCarroll. The letter stated that the Interborough Company is contemplating an extension of the platform, which will do away with this long detour around the trains and consequent loss of time. Whether the company will do this or not is to be decided at a conference with the commissioner on Monday next. Whatever decision is made, it has already been determined, said Mr. McCarroll, to erect additional stairways at Atlantic avenue and to readjust the gates and fences.

The board went on record as approving and recommending the application of the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad to construct tracks on Flatbush avenue extension and Gold street, connecting with the new Manhattan Bridge.

THE MARINE BRAKE.

A Brooklyn Man First Conceived the Idea, an Eagle Contributor Says.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

You comment editorially on Louis Lacoste's marine brake as if this Canadian had discovered something new. Let me have the honor to inform you that at least twenty years ago I saw the whole thing in drawings gotten up by one of your own townsmen, T. Henry Lyons, of 167 Park place, son of a park commissioner at that time and in the marine insurance business at 51 Wall street, Manhattan.

If I recollect aright he called it a "steering gear," by which a steamer could be brought around in her own length. Instead of one, there were three plates pushed out from each side of the ship. Therefore, if there is any honor attached to the idea it seems to me it belongs to Brooklyn and him. I remember about the same time he sent to the New York Herald a simple contrivance for getting a line from a stranded vessel to life savers on shore, and the Herald and Williamsburg Times commented editorially about it. It is also in my memory that he sent to the ordnance department at Washington an idea (which was a good one) of dropping high explosives from above, automatically. Also, when the yellow fever was at its height on the Panama Canal he sent to President Roosevelt a preventive which had acted well with himself and others while traveling in the tropics. And again to President Roosevelt, a very simple method for reducing the noise attending the explosion of firearms. All were given free of charge from pure patriotism and the benefit of humanity at large, if my memory serves me right.

GIRL IS NOW PRESIDENT OF MANUAL HIGH SCHOOL

Mollie Stewart Elected by Over 200 Plurality at Yesterday's Election.

BOYS VOTED FOR THE GIRLS.

It Was a Protest Against the Action of the Board of Superintendents.

For the first time in the history of any school in which boys and girls are about equal in numbers, the Manual Training High School has a girl president of its General Organization—Miss Mollie Stewart. She was elected yesterday afternoon by 660 to 455 for the next highest candidate, a boy. Her election is not so much a victory for woman suffrage as a protest against what is believed to be the determination of the Board of Superintendents, the separation and segregation of the sexes into two schools. Many of the boys stood by the girls in a spirit of chivalry—believing them to have been badly treated.

There never was an election in the school so full of interest as that of yesterday. It was something new to have a girl at the head of a ticket. Had it not been for the first-year boys, who were a unit for Hendrickson, who is an athlete, Miss Stewart's vote would have been much larger. All the upper grades voted for her—boys and girls.

Yesterday morning, at the first-year assembly, for the first time in a G. O. election, the candidates electioneered. With the exception of Hendrickson, all addressed the assembly, urging their respective claims for the suffrages of the voters. Miss Stewart told of the work she had done on the staff of the Prospect. Aldrige spoke of the G. O., and Rooney, the crack baseball man of the school, talked along the lines of athletics. It was just what the boys of the first year needed to let them into the spirit of the contest, and to show them just how a high school was wider than the schools from which they had just come.

The tellers were very late in making up the returns, partly because some classes have late periods and could not vote till 4 o'clock. That made no difference, however, with the boys and girls who had just passed through a hot election; they were willing to wait, and they did wait, filling the corridors and the office and the rooms on the first floor till nearly 6 o'clock, to learn who had been elected. The figures for president came in first, and when Dr. Larkins shouted out the figures that made Mollie Stewart president, the throngs of boys and girls went nearly wild. The girls clapped and called the name of their candidate, and the boys gathered in groups to give the school shout, ending with "Stewart." The new officers will be installed Monday.

Miss Stewart could not be found, but her champion, Miss Gubner, said that it was the speeches made by the candidate and by herself that set the current in Mollie's favor. She thanked the boys for their splendid support, saying that they had done fully as much for the ticket as the girls. To her mind, the victory was the expression of the school in favor of "co-ed" education at Manual.

Dr. Larkins was as much pleased over the result as any one. He spoke of the president-elect as a level-headed girl and as one who deserved the sincere regard in which she is held in the school. He said he had never seen anything like the enthusiasm that marked the election.

Von Weigen, the boy who spoke for the girls' ticket, said it was the best thing that had happened at Manual, and its effects would be lasting. He believed that the boys were fully as pronounced in support of the ticket as the girls. He declared that the election of a girl at the head of the ticket made a precedent that was rational and sane in a co-ed school.

As has been said, Miss Stewart received 660 and Albert Hendrickson 455. The other candidates for president, Aldrige and Rooney, polled 218 and 110 votes, respectively. For vice president, Beatrice Bushong was the favorite, and received 565 votes. Next to her came Helen Hawthorn, who ran on the Hendrickson ticket, with 422 votes. Margaret Wood, who ran with Miss Stewart, got 212 votes, and Helen Fuller, on the Aldrige ticket, received 232.

On the board of trustees for the teachers, John T. Allen received 572 votes and his running mate 334. They were elected in a field of fourteen teacher candidates. Three students were down to win out of fourteen candidates, and they were Edna Thomas, on the Stewart ticket, with 333 votes, and George Norman, who got 903, making the largest run on any ticket, and Ralph Fredsall, who got 601 votes.

Between announcements of the results of the election a telephone call notified Dr. Larkins that the Manual chess team had just beaten Commercial, at the latter school, by a score of 5 to 0. The players were: Manual, Ehrlich 1, Garmes 1, Rudolph 1, Morton 1 and Daisley 1; Commercial, D. Selman 0, J. Selman 0, Allin 0, Rice 0 and Becker 0.

ARRIVED FROM THE PLATE.

Barber & Co.'s steamship St. Quentin arrived yesterday in the Atlantic Dock from Rosario, Buenos Ayres and St. Lucia, via Boston. She brought a cargo of quebracho wood extract, hides, bones, canary bird seed, tankage and 2,729 tons of oats. This latter is equivalent to about 170,560 bushels of the grain, which is consigned to order. This is about the third shipment of oats that has arrived here from Argentina. There is a duty of 25 cents per bushel on these oats. How the grain compares with the American product remains to be seen.

BROOKLYN'S OPERA WAS "TRAVIATA" LAST NIGHT

GOOD WORK, BUT LITTLE THRILL

The eleventh night of the Brooklyn opera season, for which the house was well filled with the usual notable subscription audience, was devoted to Verdi's "Traviata" and was the least satisfactory of the series. That is not to say that the Metropolitan forces did not give an eminently respectable, even creditable, performance of the opera, for they did. But this music has been associated so long with singers like Sembrich and Caruso at one house and Tetrazzini or Melba at the other that it takes something more than a respectable performance of it to rouse enthusiasm. The fact is that this score of Verdi's is neither fish, flesh, fowl nor good red herring. "Camille," from which this libretto is condensed, is one of the most moving dramas ever written, and for that reason has been more widely acted than any play of its period except "Uncle Tom's Cabin." If Verdi had been in his "Aida" period when "Camille" was young, if he had wedded the Dumas text to music as dramatic as that of his Egyptian opera, his "Traviata" might have gone on repeating the triumphs of the play for nobody knows how long. But whatever else "Traviata" is, it is not dramatic. Verdi incrusted the story with sparkling gems of florid music which require the utmost elegance and skill in their singing. As tunes, or as singing exercises for coloratura sopranos of the first rank. "Ah Fors elui." "Semper Libera" and the rest are excellent, and surely no one can object to "Un Di Felice"—especially when sung with the exquisite elegance which Bonci imparted to it last evening—to the gypsy chorus and ballet with its tinkling melody, or to the finale of the third act. But, unfortunately, those flowers of melody, like Gilbert's flowers that bloom in the spring, "have nothing to do with the case." They "tra la" very prettily, to be sure, but they do not help to tell the tragic or sentimental story of "Camille" the least little bit in the world.

When this old score was new the music of an opera was not expected to help tell the story; if it was pretty music and gave fine chances to the singers, that was enough, and "Traviata" made a world-wide success on that basis. But Wagner changed all that—for Verdi himself as well as for us who listen to him—and Puccini, applying the Wagner idea to distinctly modern themes, has made us weep for the poor little Japanese Cio Cio San and has at the same time made scores like "Traviata" and "Lucia" ring hollow and dull.

We forgive that when we get singers of the first rank like Sembrich, Tetrazzini or Melba in the old works, but those women could win encores from most audiences if they sang simply their vocalises in public. We have become so accustomed to "Traviata" as the war horse of world famous sopranos that when we hear it without such an interpreter the old score tends toward boredom even if the performance be highly creditable to the artists engaged.

Therefore, although Bernice Di Pasquali—that is a good deal of a name for a sunny-faced Staten Island girl, by the way—is an excellent young singer with a fresh and well-trained voice and a pleasing personality, she is not yet able to "raise the roof" as Violetta, or some such herculean feat is necessary if this opera is to arouse the sort of enthusiasm which we have had in Brooklyn over "Figaro" or "Meistersinger." Mme. Di Pasquali sang the florid music with much grace and beauty of tone, except that her voice is a little light in its upper notes, and sometimes she skated through these flourishes with the true elegance of the old school. Better than that, she sang with real feeling through the most genuine part of the opera, the scene between Violetta and the father of Alfredo in the second act. For these good qualities the audience liked her, approved of her and were honestly and pleasantly surprised that a singer so little known, could do so much with a part in which every listener thinks of his favorite queen of song in the principal scenes. The work that she did and the impression she made were distinctly to Mme. Di Pasquali's credit, and when she comes to Brooklyn again she will not be allowed to walk upon the stage without a welcoming hand. But neither the personal success of the prima donna nor that of the two chief singers associated with her served to arouse the audience to the point where it was ready to cry out for more opera of the same sort.

Signor Bonci, the Alfredo, is a tenor of the very first rank as an artist. He sings with an elegance and distinction of style which put to shame the work of many tenors endowed with larger voices or of more impressive personality. The tenor solos last night and his duets with Violetta were a source of joy to all lovers of beautiful singing. But the average auditor worships a big voice, and neither knows nor cares much about beauty of style, if only there be sound enough. Bonci's voice is not particularly large, although it carries beautifully, especially in soft passages. For this reason and another, for which the tenor was in no wise responsible, his Alfredo failed to rouse any very great warmth of appreciation. That drawback was the idiotic habit of hybrid costuming this opera which tends to kill any little life or reality which the singers might be able to impart to the work. Obviously, any performance of "Camille" should be dressed either as a contemporary work, that is in the fashion of the year in which it is sung, or it should be dressed for 1850, with the women crinolines and the men with flowing collars and cravats. The operatic mongrel costuming as seen last night, with Violetta in dresses of today, the men and women about her in powdered wigs and the men in small clothes from the seventeenth century, is absolutely ridiculous and ought not to be tolerated at the Metropolitan or anywhere else. That style is particularly trying to Signor Bonci, who is small and makes anything but a heroic figure in the dress imposed upon him. In fact, the man was heard to best advantage in his brief snatches of song behind the scenes in the first act. There his voice rang out gloriously, like that of a tenor six feet high, and the eyes were unable to contradict the illusion of the ear. The Germont was that fine artist, Signor Amato. He seized upon the opportunities for real feeling which the second act gave to him and he played the part with dignity and pathos. His singing of "Di Provenza" was one of the high water marks of enjoyment and his entire performance was a source of great satisfaction. The chorus and orchestra under Spetrino were adequate, the ballet was pretty and except for the foolish costuming and the smile evoked by Germont's reference to the "grandeur" of the wooden chairs and bench which adorned Violetta's second act garden, the stage settings were satisfactory. But it takes something more than a "satisfactory" performance to galvanize into vitality an opera that is so nearly moribund as "Traviata."

The last three performances are announced: "The Bartered Bridge" will be sung on March 15—not 17—as the tickets read; "Aida" on the 24th, and "La Bo[illegible]

N. Y. SYMPHONY CONCERT.

Walter Damrosch Gives the Preliminary Lecture Recital.

In Music Hall, Academy of Music, yesterday afternoon Walter Damrosch gave the lecture recital preliminary to the concert by the New York Symphony Orchestra this afternoon in the Opera House of that building. Both recital and concert come under direction of the Brooklyn Institute. The programme includes Symphony No. 4, in F minor, op. 36, Tschaikowsky; suite for flute with string orchestra, Bach; overture, "Leonore," No. 2, Beethoven; Nocturne and Valse, Chopin, arranged for flute by Taffanel, and the "Festival" overture, Tschaikowsky. George Barrere will be the solo flute. Mr. Damrosch interpreted the Tschaikowsky numbers only. In the first movement of the symphony, an andante sostenuto, bassoons often carry the melody. Attention was called to their peculiar fitness for expression of the spirit of the Russian folk song, which holds in it so much of the long, dark winter, the unrest and suffering of the people. The second movement, andantino, is carried along by a swinging boat song whose rhythm is accentuated by the motion of the oars. The scherzo, in turn, with its opening peasants dance, its march of the soldiers, interrupted by the lurching into the scene of a drunken vagabond, was likened by Mr. Damrosch to one of the old Dutch paintings. The playing of the opening of the fourth movement—allegro confuoco—brought a smile and Mr. Damrosch paused long enough to say, "Now, do not think this is 'Everybody Works but Father.' It leads up to the impressive 'fate movement!'"

The "Festival" overture, also called "1812," is commemorative of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. Mr. Damrosch played excerpts from that as full as from the symphony, and bade his hearers note the grandeur of the opening old Russian liturgical hymn, the coming of the French, evidenced in the thematic arrangement of the "Marseillaise;" the Russian army with fanfare and drums and the liturgical hymn swelling in triumph at the close.

DEMAND 4TH AV. SUBWAY

Allied Civic Bodies Get After Controller Metz.

Ask Him to Apply for Modification of Levy Injunction—Public Service Commission Praised.

At a big meeting of the Allied Civic Bodies of South Brooklyn, held last night at Seventy-ninth street and New Utrecht avenue, resolutions were unanimously adopted favoring the building of the Fourth avenue and Coney Island subway and calling upon Controller Metz to cease opposing the improvement and apply himself to securing a modification of the Levy injunction.

In submitting the resolutions, President Thomas E. Clark of the organization said:

"If it were not for the magnificent, conscientious and comprehensive stand of the Public Service Commission, the Fourth avenue subway and Coney Island subway would be lost beyond all hope of resurrection, and the people of Brooklyn owe that body a debt of gratitude which, in my opinion, will never be wholly liquidated. It is incomprehensible that the citizens of our great borough should be held up to the ridicule of the entire population of the city of New York by the uncalled-for and malicious acts of an official, and it is with the most poignant grief and indignation that I contemplate his efforts to deride us and place a blot upon our borough."

The resolutions set forth the lack of adequate transit facilities in Brooklyn and the efforts made to get relief through the building of the Fourth avenue and Coney Island subway; refer to the statement of Controller Herman A. Metz that the city of New York has a borrowing capacity of $48,000,000, but a small part of which is required for the completion of the first six sections," and call upon Controller Metz "to cease his obstructive tactics and to apply immediately for a modification of the Levy injunction instigated by himself, to the detriment of the borough's best interests."

A resolution was also passed that the Allied Civic Bodies attend in a body the meeting of the Reform Club at Cooper Union on the night of March 18, and that they also attend in a body the hearing at Albany on the extension of the debt limit, which will probably be held on March 15 or 20.

The subway committee of the Allied Civic Bodies is composed of the following: Bird S. Coler, Michael H. Quinlan, Andrew J. M. Murphy, Terrence P. Brennan, David Porter, Edward Stratton, jr., William E. Ronk, Milton S. Kistler, W. W. Carner, John E. Sullivan, Jeremiah J. O'Leary, William E. Cleary, C. W. Cherrington, E. L. Desvernine and E. H. Finley.

"The history of the Bronx would be repeated again if the Fourth avenue and Coney Island subway were completed," said President Clark. "Owing to the failure of the officials to appropriate money for the subway, millions of dollars worth of building contracts have been held up along the proposed route. These sections would be like beehives if the improvement were made."

GIRLS WIN FROM BOYS.

Two boys were defeated by two girls in a debate which was held last night in the auditorium of Public School No. 66, Osborn street, near Sutter avenue, Brownsville. It wasn't the first time that girls had been victorious at this recreation center, over which Miss Minnie R. Root is principal. This is a girls center, and the boys who took part in the debate came from the Hebrew Institute near by. Each of the sides and its supporters—girls of the Center and boys of the Institute. The hall was well filled. When Miss Root rang the bell the hubbub of conversation ceased and all settled down to listen. She stated the subject, which was "Resolved, That newspapers do more to mold public opinion than all other agencies combined." Miss Rose Rabinowitz and Miss Ada Rabinowitz of the Browning Circle of the Center had the affirmative. They are pupils of the Girls High School. Irving Levine and Bernard Greenberg of the Young Americans of the Institute, took the negative side. They are students of St. Lawrence Law School.

Without any preliminaries the debaters took their places at tables on opposite sides of the platform, and received applause. The girls, although having the same name, are not related. Miss Ada was the first speaker. She spoke well and in a tone which everyone could hear. She was confident of herself and stated her premises and her arguments clearly and well. Levine was handicapped by his foreign accent, but he had enthusiasm, and had read up on his subject. Miss Rose Rabinowitz was just as much in earnest and knocked Mr. Levine's arguments into flinders. Bernard Greenberg could not overcome her arguments, although he presented a mass of authorities.

While the debaters were getting ready for the rebuttal Samuel Scholckow recited a scene from "Lorna Doone," in which Carver Doone meets his death. He is a good actor. While the judges were in session, Isadore Biersuck recited the duelling scene from "The Rivals." It was well done.

The judges were J. E. Mayman, a teacher in the district; N. Friedman, a student in N. Y. U., and Miss Estelle Liebmann, librarian. Their verdict was that the girls had won and the Center went into ecstacies.

Miss Root announced that a glee club is to be organized next Wednesday night, and that there will be a speaking contest on [illegible]

THE WATERWAYS LEAGUE IS READY FOR WORK

CONEY ISLAND CREEK PLANS.

To Work for Reopening—Metz Optimistic—To Invite Taft and Hughes to Dinner.

At a meeting held last night at the residence of Fred A. Reid, 581 St. Mark's avenue, the incorporation papers of the Waterways League of Greater New York and Long Island were signed and the League indorsed the reopening of Coney Island Creek from Sheepshead Bay to Gravesend Bay. Controller Metz attended the meeting and spoke in favor of the plan to get waterways for South Bay deep enough for launches to go through.

It was a very enthusiastic meeting, and plans were discussed for giving a big dinner some time in the future at the Academy of Music and inviting President Taft, Governor Hughes and about 500 yachtsmen to be present for the purpose of setting forth the urgent need of having proper waterways.

W. L. D. Prentice of the Atlantic Yacht Club urged the reopening of Coney Island Creek. He said he lived at Seagate and had been accustomed to taking a plunge in the water, but that Sheepshead Bay and Gravesend Bay had become so foul with sewage that it was a menace to any one's health to venture into the water. He said there was an accumulation of sewage on the bottom that kept the water foul and impure. At the conclusion of his remarks he made the following motion, which was unanimously carried:

"That the Waterways League indorse the reopening of Coney Island Creek from Sheepshead Bay to Gravesend Bay as a drainage canal for sanitary reasons. The closing of Coney Island Creek has caused a deposit of from two to three feet of solid sewage sediment in these boys, creating an unhealthy condition, which has become intolerable to the residents of those sections; and be it further resolved, that this league cooperate with the citizens of Nassau and Suffolk counties in their effort to have the bays of those counties connected by inland waterways."

One of the pioneers in this fight to reopen the Coney Island Creek is Edward R. Gilman of the Atlantic Yacht Club, who is president of the Waterways League.

Controller Metz made a little talk in which he mentioned the difficulties that would arise in a fight for waterways such as the league has planned, but he was very optimistic and said that much could be accomplished by united effort. He urged that the organization work as a business organization and not merely as a yachting organization. He thinks it will only be a matter of time when the desired improvements will be made.

It was decided last night to fix the annual dues at $1 per annum, and those who attended the meeting dug down in their trousers and paid their dues at once. The officers of the league are: Edward R. Gilman, president; Commodore Joseph B. Acker of the Canarsie Yacht Club, vice president; P. L. Rollings, secretary, and Fred A. Reid, treasurer.

GREENPOINT Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Mead will be the speaker at the men's meeting tomorrow at 4:15 P.M. His subject will be, "What Are You Worth?" These men's meetings have been regularly well attended, and the music is an inspiring part of the services. A special item at this next meeting will be the presentation of a campaign for the prevention of blindness, which is under the auspices of the New York Association for the Blind. Publications relating to this campaign will be distributed free to those in attendance. This campaign is similar to the one on anti-tuberculosis.

On Thursday afternoon at 2:30 a meeting of the mothers of the members of the boys' department will be held in the boys' rooms, including the swimming pool, and special exercises by the boys in the pool will be some of the attractions.

This evening the boys' department athletic meet will be held in the gymnasium at 7:30. Parents and er." This is the fifth in the series being given by this clergyman each Sunday evening. At 8 A.M. there will also be a celebration of holy communion. During Lent week-day evening prayer services are held on Tuesday at 4, Wednesday at 8, Thursday at 4, and Friday at 8.

In the Flatbush Congregational Church, Dorchester road and East Eighteenth street, the pastor, the Rev. Lewis T. Reed, will preach to-morrow morning on "Nicodemus' Denial by Equivalents." Music by quartet and chorus under the direction of William Edward Taylor, choirmaster. Owing to the crowded condition of the auditorium, the regular members of the congregation are urged to be in their places promptly. In the evening, Mr. Reed will begin a series of addresses on "Rational Living," attempting to show how psychology, by its discoveries of the methods of operation of the mind, has given both encouragements and warnings. The first address will be on "Habit."

In the Hanson Place Baptist Church, corner of South Portland avenue, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. M. Vines, will preach to-morrow morning on "Malachi's Message to the Church of To-day." The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed. In the evening hour, Lieutenant Colonel Alex. M. Damon will deliver his lecture entitled "In Darkest America," illustrated with 125 fine stereopticon views, and rendered the more interesting with new illustrated songs.

The Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton will preach in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church to-morrow morning on "Seeing Jesus," and in the evening, "The Unhasting Believer." The choir, under the direction of Herbert Stavely Sammond, will sing at the morning service Tschaikowsky's "How Blest Are They" (eight parts, unaccompanied), and for the offertory Mr. Weismann will sing "My Soul Is Athirst," from the "Holy City," by Gaul. In the evening the anthem will be "Come, Let Us Worship," by Palestrina, and as offertory the solo quartet will sing "Hear Us, Lord" (Quando Corpus), from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." The midweek service will be a conference upon "The Early Religious Influences of My Life."

To-morrow morning the Rev. L. Ward Brigham will preach at All Souls Church, Ocean and Ditmas avenues, on "Entering the Kingdom." In the afternoon at 4:15 o'clock a musical vesper service will be held. The Klingenfeld String Quartet will play Tschaikowsky's Quartet in D Major. There will also be numbers by the vocal quartet.

In Christ Church, Bedford avenue, the preacher at 11 A.M. will be the Rev. William Sheafe Chase, and in the evening at 7:45 the Rev. Dr. Spencer S. Roche, street. Scott will give the second of the series of sermons on "Evolution and the Bible;" topic, "The Doctrine of Sin." On Tuesday at 5 P.M. the Rev. William Sheafe Chase will give the second of the series of sermons on "Religion and Health;" topic, "How to Overcome the Fear That Brings Disease." On Thursday at 5 P.M. the sermon by Canon Chase will be on "What Do the Various Parts of the Church Building Mean?" On Saturday at 5 P.M. he will give a talk, illustrated by the stereopticon, on "The Prodigal Son." A service at noon every day. The preachers are to be as follows: Monday, the Rev. Floyd Appleton; Tuesday, the Rev. William Sheafe Chase; Wednesday, the Rev. John Williams; Thursday, the Rev. Walter E. Bentley; Friday and Saturday, the Rev. Reginald Heber Scott.

In the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church the pastor, the Rev. G. O. Griffith, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Eternal Evangel." In the evening he will preach from the text, "God so loved the world—" "Love Not the World." On Monday evening a public service of welcome to Mr. Griffith as pastor of this church will be held. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar

"BARTERED BRIDE" AND BOSTON ORCHESTRA

TRONG BILLS AT THE OPERAS

Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius" and Other Notable Concerts in Manhattan.

The eleventh opera of the Brooklyn season on Monday night—your tickets read Wednesday, but don't mind them—will be Smetana's "Bartered Bride." For years the overture to this fresh and sparkling Bohemian work has occupied an honored and popular place on the programme of the larger orchestras. One used to wonder in those days why the work could not be heard in full here, but the official and crushing answer was that no new operas paid in New York. New York has waked up since then, and is now almost as eager to hear new operas as new plays. Among the rush of novelties brought out to meet this awakened taste none has proved more popular than "The Bartered Bride." The sparkling Bohemian rhythms, the quaint folk dances, and, above all, the atmosphere of sunshiny, healthful humor, radiated from both the story and the music, has made it one of the most popular works of the season. It will be sung in Brooklyn with the regular cast, including Emmy Destinn, Carl Joern and Reiss, and under the baton of the great Gustav Mahler, who produced it in this country.

The closing Philharmonic concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Max Fiedler, conductor, will be given on Friday evening next in the Opera House of the Academy of Music. No soloist is to appear on this occasion. The programme, a delightful one, contains more than the usual number of compositions, no less than five being scheduled. It includes:

Symphonic Suite, Scheherazade (after the Thousand Nights and a Night), Op 35. Rimsky-Korsakoff
The Sea and Sinbad's Ship.
The story of the Kalendar-Prince.
The Young Prince and the Young Princess.
Festival at Bagdad. The Sea. The Ship. The Ship Goes to Pieces against a Rock Surmounted by a Bronze Warrior. Conclusion.
Tone Poem (Death and Transfiguration), Op. 24 ..... Strauss
Prelude to The Afternoon of a Faun (after the eclogue of Stephane Mallarme).....Debussy
Waldweben (Life and Stir of the Forest), from Siegfried, Act II..... Wagner
Overture to The Flying Dutchman....Wagner

Thomas Whitney Surette will give the lecture recital preliminary to the Boston Symphony concert of Friday evening. As usual this is set for Thursday afternoon, in Music Hall, Academy of Music, and is under Brooklyn Institute direction.

A Beethoven cycle concert by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, will present the Ninth Symphony, at the Opera House, Academy of Music, on Saturday evening, March 27. Assisting on this occasion will be the New York Oratorio Society, Frank Damrosch, conductor, and Calvary Church choir, Edward M. Bowman, conductor. Assisting artists are to be Miss J. Schaffer and Mrs. Beatrice Fine, soprano; Mrs. B. King Arnold and Mrs. E. B. Nobbes, contraltos; Reed Miller and John Bland, tenors, and Frederick Weld and E. A. Jalin, bassos. The concert is under the auspices of the Brooklyn Institute.

Walter Damrosch's double performance of the Ninth Symphony next Tuesday evening, however novel it may appear in this country, is not the first one on record. A double performance of this work was given in Berlin some twenty years ago. The conductor responsible for that innovation was Hans von Buelow. Mr. Damrosch believes that such an immediate repetition on the same evening will increase the pleasure and understanding of the listeners a thousand-fold. An intermission of fifteen minutes between the two performances will give the performers and the audience sufficient rest. The New York performance will begin promptly at 8:15 P.M., and the doors will be closed during the first movement of the symphony. The orchestra will include one hundred players, but Mr. Damrosch does not believe in doubling the wood-wind choir, as in his opinion, this would only thicken and coarsen the themes brought out by that section. He has adjusted the dynamics in the strings so as to preserve a proper balance of tone between the various orchestral groups. A chorus of three hundred from the Oratorio Society, the Calvary Chorus and the Tarrytown Philharmonic has been rehearsing constantly during the past month. A private general rehearsal will be held Monday afternoon, but the public will not be admitted.

There are but two more weeks of Hammerstein's opera season at the Manhattan. The nineteenth week will open on Monday evening with "Louise," with Miss Garden, Mme. Doria, MM. Dalmores, Gilibert and the regular cast. Mme. Tetrazzini will sing once in New York next week—on Wednesday evening—when she will appear for the second time in "Puritani," with MM. Constantino, Polese and De SeSgurola. "Princesse d'Auberge" will have its third hearing on Friday evening next week with Miles. Labia, Gerville-Reache, Zeppilli, MM. Valles, Dufranne, Crabbe, Gilibert and the usual cast. "La Navarraise" will be heard for the first time this season at the Manhattan on Saturday afternoon next week with Mlle. Gerville-Reache in the title role. The cast will be almost entirely composed of French artists, as M. Valles will be Araquil, M. Dufranne the General, M. Vieuille the Father, M. Crabbe the Ramon, and M. Gianoli-Galletti the Bustamente. Following "La Navarraise" will be given "Pagliacci" with Mlle. Zeppilli and MM. Zenatello, Sammarco, Crabbe and Venturini. "Salome" will be the Saturday night bill with Miss Mary Garden, Mme. Doria, MM. Dalmores, Dufranne, Valles and the usual cast. On the coming Sunday evening Mischal Elman will be a feature. He will play Wieniawski's D minor concerto with orchestra, Tschaikowsky's "Serenade Melancholique" and Ries' "Perpetuo Moto."

The principal feature of the repertory for next week at the Metropolitan Opera House will be the gala performance on Saturday evening. The performance will begin with the prologue and the first act of "Pagliacci," which will be sung by Mme. Fornia and MM. Jorn and Amato. The ballet from "The Bartered Bride" will follow, and it will be danced by Ottokar Bartik, Miss Torriani and the corps of Bohemian dancers. The second act of "Le Nozze di Figaro" will come next, with a cast that will include Mmes. Gadski, Farrar, Di Pasquali, Mattfeld, and MM. Scotti, Didur, and Paterna, under the musical direction of Mr. Mahler. The second scene of the second act of "Aida" will be given, with Mmes. Destinn, Fiahaut and MM. Caruso, Amato and Blass, with Mr. Toscanini as the conductor. The last scene from the third act of "Die Meistersinger," will be heard, with a cast that will include Mmes. Sparkes, Mattfeld, and MM. Jorn, Soomer, Goritz, Hinckley and Reiss, and Mr. Hertz will conduct. The programme will end with the fourth act of "Il Trovatore," which will be sung by Mmes. Kaschowska, Homer, and MM. Martin and Campanari.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" will be given as a double bill on Monday evening. Mascagni's opera will be interpreted by Mmes. Gadski and Gay, and MM. Grassi and Amato, while MMe. Farrar and MM. Caruso, Amato and Campanari will be heard in "Pagliacci." "The Bartered Bride" will be given on Wednesday evening, and on this occasion Mme. Gadski will sing the role of Marie for the first time. The cast will also include MM. Jorn and Didur. "Faust" will be the opera on Thursday evening, with Mmes. Farrar, Fornia and MM. Caruso, Amato and Didur in the leading roles. "Die Walkuere" will be the bill on Friday evening, with Mmes. Morena, Kaschowska and MM. Anthes, Soomer and Hickley; "Falstaff" will be repeated at the Saturday matinee, with the familiar cast consisting of Mmes. Destinn, Alda, Ranzenberg and MM. Scotti, Grassi, and Campanari.

An interesting concert will take place at Mendelssohn Hall, Thursday evening, when Marguerite de Forest Anderson, the well-known flutist, will be assisted by Miss Roa Eaton, soprano; Percy Hemus, baritone; Clarence Eddy, organist, and Miss Ludmila Vojacek and Irwin E. Hassell, pianists. Miss de Forest Anderson's reputation as a virtuoso in the world has already been established, but this concert will serve to introduce this talented young American girl in the double capacity of flute virtuoso and composer.

The fifth chamber music concert of the Philharmonic trio, Alex Rehm, Maurice Kaufman and Gustav Hornberger, will be given at the Berkeley Institute this evening. The programme will be:

Trio for Piano, Violin and Violoncello—
(B flat major, Opus 97) ..... Beethoven
Sonata for Piano and Violin—
(A major) ..... Caesar Franck
Novelletten for Piano, Violin and Violoncello—
(Opus 29) ..... N. W. Gade

The People's Choral Union, Frank Damrosch, director, will sing Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," at the Hippodrome on Sunday evening, the 21st. There will be a chorus of 600 voices, and the New York Symphony Orchestra, with these soloists: Mrs. Edith Chapman Goold, soprano; Miss Janet Spencer, contralto; Mr. Dan Beddoe, tenor, and Mr. Claude Cunningham, baritone.

Germaine Schnitzer will give a piano recital at Mendelssohn Hall on Friday afternoon.

The programme for Herbert Witherspoon's song recital on Thursday, March 25, in Mendelssohn Hall, is divided into four sections. Beethoven, Haydn, Handel and Monsigny are represented in the opening group of old songs and airs.

R. E. Johnston announces that the American debut of the Dresden Philharmonic Orchestra, which he is bringing to this country for a five week's tour, will be made at Carnegie Hall, Saturday evening, April 10. This orchestra is under the leadership of Herr Willy Olsen, who has for his assistant Conductor Victor Ila Clark, an American musician, and pupil of Burmeister. From New York the Dresden orchestra will go on tour, participating in the principal music festivals of the West and South.

The Metropolitan Opera Company announces that it has secured the services of Edmond Clement to strengthen the list of artists engaged for the new French company that will be a feature of the next opera season at the Metropolitan Opera House and of the performances of Opera Comique at the New Theater. Mr. Clement is the first tenor of the Opera Comique in Paris, and is the leading exponent of lyrical art in France.

A. Foxton-Ferguson will give a concert and lecture on English folk songs and folk lore at Mendelssohn Hall on Monday afternoon.

The New York Oratorio Society, Frank Damrosch conductor, will give Edward Elgar's massive "The Dream of Gerontius" next Saturday night at Carnegie Hall. The society will have the assistance of Miss Janet Spencer, contralto; Gervaise Elwes, tenor; Claude Cunningham, baritone, and a semi-chorus from the Musical Art Society.

When "The Dream of Gerontius" was first performed here, some six years ago, the religious and literary fame of Cardinal Newman's poem helped to win attention for the remarkable music to which Sir Edward Elgar had set it. The deathbed of a dear friend is said to have suggested the subject of the poem to its distinguished author. The struggle of a dying man to hold his soul in readiness for translation to the next world, despite the physical dread of dissolution, gave Cardinal Newman's sympathetic insight and literary skill full scope.

Throughout the composer has succeeded in conveying the religious spirit without more than once or twice resorting to church forms in music. His writing for the tenor voice that personates Gerontius is ranked high, as a revelation of character through music, while the description and illustrative parts of the score, corresponding to what in opera is called the "music of the scene," has a remarkable vividness and variety. Most of all, Elgar has been praised for the noble choruses that are found in "Gerontius." His "Praise to the Holiest in the Height" has made a profound impression, and other massive choruses in this score have aroused almost equal enthusiasm.

A "unique song recital" will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Dunham, American interpreters of songs in English at Mendelssohn Hall on Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The programme will be:

Speak music ..... Edward Elgar
Six Songs ..... Edward Grieg
Dawn of Spring. Invocation to Sleep. Oh, My Heart. No, I Have Never Loved.
Piotor Ilyitch Tschaikowski
Nightingale. Oh, Death Is Like the Cooling Night. Love Song .....Johannes Brahms
Five Songs ..... Robert Franz
Eden Rose, Bisesa's Song ..... Arthur Foote

Preparations for the approaching "Deutsche Kuenstlerfest" or German artists festival at the Waldorf-Astoria are already well advanced and subscriptions are beginning to pour into Max R. Hein, the treasurer. It has now been settled that the artists who will take part in the big minstrel show, which is likely to be a sensational feature of the festival, will include Kark Burrian, Karl Joern, Riccardo Martin, Albert Reiss, Otto Goritz, Adolph Muehlmann, Walter Soomer, Robert Blass, Adamo Didur, Allen Hinckley, Paolo Gallico and Leo Schulz, besides Eugen Burg, Carl Sauermann, Heinrich Marlow, Ernest Wurmser, Heinrich Loewenfeld. The profits resulting from the festival will be devoted to the German Actors Fund, and the price of admission has been fixed at $5.

The Philharmonic Orchestra is to be increased to one hundred players for the two special concerts to be given under the direction of Gustav Mahler on the evenings of March 31 and April 6, at Carnegie Hall. The conductor, who is next season to take his place at the head of this orchestral body, has arranged programmes of uncommon interest for both occasions. For the first concert the Schumann "Manfred" overture, Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, the "Siegfried Idyll" and the overture to "Tannhauser" are announced. These works have never before been conducted in New York by Mr. Mahler, who will present a Beethoven programme for the concert to take place on April 6. It will begin with the "Egmont" overture, which is to be followed by the Ninth Symphony. In addition to the augmented orchestra there will be for the final movement of the symphony the famous Bach Choir of Montclair, comprising two hundred and fifty voices under the direction of Frank Taft, and a quartet of soloists to include Mrs. Rider Kelsey, Janet Spencer and Daniel Beddoe.

The organ recital at the Church of the Holy Trinity on Monday evening will be given by J. Trevor Gormey. His programme will be:

Toccata and Fugue, D minor.....Bach
Sonata, No. 5.....Mendelssohn
Choral (varied), Fuga, Andante.

One of the interesting amateur musical events of the week will occur on Thursday evening, when the Emmanuel Baptist Sunday school orchestra will give a promenade musicale in the chapel of the church, St. James place and Lafayette avenue. The young musicians have been rehearsing for some time past under the supervision of Musical Director Verdi E. B. Fuller, and a programme of light ensemble music has been arranged, a number of local soloists assisting. The latter will include Mrs. Bessie Allan-Collier, contralto; Miss Olive Webb, violinist; G. Waring Stebbins, baritone; Charles Rosenbaum, 'cellist; Mrs. G. Waring Stebbins and Miss Elsie Grey, accompanists. The event has enlisted the interest of the church members and a long list of patronesses will serve for the occasion, which is for the purpose of establishing an orchestra fund in connection with the Sunday school. The programme will be:

Mme. Olive Fremstad closes her engagement for the present season with the Metropolitan opera company this week and begins a concert tour, which will keep her busy into the middle of May. Following her appearances with the Pittsburg orchestra next week, she will go on tour the week of March 22, with the New York Symphony Orchestra and Walter Damrosch. Mme. Fremstad will be the principal soloist at most of the important spring festivals including those at Spartansburg, S. C.; Ann Arbor, Mich.; Louisville and Atlanta, where she will join Caruso in his first and only spring festival appearance. Incident to her concert tour she will rejoin the opera company at Chicago to sing in "Parsifal" and "Tannhauser."

CONCERT FOR CHARITY.

Interest in the concert to be given by Miss Elsie Ray Eddy for the Young People's City Mission League at Memorial Hall, Monday evening, at 8:15 o'clock, is increasing. The work among the poor and ill of a consecrated trained nurse, supported by some dozen or so young women, who have to make heroic efforts to raise the money for her salary and expenses, makes a strong appeal to all. Money in large and small amounts has been coming in to the treasurer, Mrs. J. Lynn Eddy. It is thought that the proceeds of the concert will carry the work up to the summer months, when some new means must be devised to raise money. Miss Eddy's musical programme is of a high order, including songs by Schumann and Liszt, and some of the present day composers, sung by Miss Eddy and Armand Heymann; cello solos by William L. Feder, and piano selections by two young girls, the Misses Elsie and Dorothy Cohn, with accompaniments played by Carl Dels.

TO HAVE HIGH MASS.

At St. Joseph's Church, Pacific street, near Vanderbilt avenue, of which the Right Rev. Mgr. P. J. McNamara, V. G., is rector, St. Joseph's Day, Friday, March 19, will be marked by a special solemn high mass at 9 o'clock.

On Wednesday evening, March 17, a lecture on St. Patrick will be delivered in St. Joseph's Church, by the Rev. Charles A. Craig. The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to the nursery.

ST. LUKE'S, WHITESTONE.

The Rev. T. J. O'Brien of St. Luke's Church, Whitestone, will give an illustrated lecture on "A Pilgrimage to Pope Pius X, With a Trip to Lourdes and the Land of St. Patrick," on Wednesday evening, March 17, at St. Luke's Hall, Whitestone. The lecture will be followed by a one-act farce, "An Irish Engagement," by St. Luke's Lyceum.

CATHOLIC SOCIETY TO MEET.

There will be a meeting of the Brooklyn Catholic Historical Society on March 23, at the headquarters of the Catholic Truth Society, 407 Bergen street. This will be a public meeting and admission will be by invitation. Special addresses will be delivered by the Right Rev. Mgr. Edward W. McCarthy, rector of St. Augustine's, and the Rev. William J. White, D.D., rector of the Church of the Visitation.

WILTON LACKAYE TO SPEAK.

Wilton Lackaye, who is appearing in "The Battle," will be the People's Forum lecturer at Hart's Hall, Gates avenue and Broadway, to-morrow at 3 P.M. He will speak on "The Physician" as a pre-

BISHOP TO OFFICIATE AT TWO NEW CHURCHES

Edifice in St. Barbara's Parish Begun—Mineola Church Finished.

NEWS FROM OTHER PARISHES.

Lenten Services Well Attended. Father Burke to Lecture To-morrow.

On Sunday, March 21, the Rt. Rev. Bishop McDonnell will lay the cornerstone of the new church, to be erected for the parish of St. Barbara, at Central avenue and Bleecker street. The church, which is to be of the style of the Italian Renaissance with a slight suggestion of the Spanish, will be one of the handsomest and most elaborate church structures in Brooklyn. The building will be surmounted by two lofty towers rising to a height of 175 feet. The building material will be of cream colored brick and white terra cotta, and the edifice will be fireproof throughout. The roof of the church is to be of red tile, and a large dome in the rear will be composed almost entirely of Spanish red glass, which will light up the interior with a warm radiance. The carvings and relief work are to be a feature of this church.

St. Barbara's parish is one of the most active in the city. Since its establishment only fifteen years ago, its growth has been remarkable. The Rev. James Hanselman, is the rector of the parish. He has two brothers in the priesthood, Very Rev. Joseph Hanselman, S. J., provincial of the Jesuit Order in the Eastern Province, and the Rev. T. Thomas Hanselman, rector of St. Mary's, Jamaica.

The following Sunday, March 28, the bishop will officiate at the ceremonies connected with another new church, that of Corpus Christi at Mineola. This church will be solemnly dedicated at 11 o'clock in the morning.

It is a very handsome brick structure, in the style of the Italian Renaissance, and will seat five hundred people. It was commenced last September while the Rev. James F. Flynn, who is now rector of the Church of the Presentation at Rockaway and St. Mark's avenues, had charge of the Garden City parish in which the Corpus Christi church is included. The Rev. John McEnroe is now rector of the Garden City parish, and serves the church at Mineola.

The growth and importance of Mineola as the county seat of Nassau County, has made this new church building absolutely necessary. Mineola was formerly the seat of the rectory, and it is only a matter of a comparatively short time, it is believed, before Mineola will be made into a separate parish.

The Rev. John F. Nash, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, will lecture on the evening of March 17, at the parish hall, Adelphi street and Park avenue, on "Ireland's Day." There will be a minstrel performance at the close of the lecture.

At the Church of Our Lady of Good Park will preach on next Tuesday evendelivering a course of sermons, on Sun- The Rev. John J. Durick of Lefferts Council, Brooklyn, the Rev. Mark Lappan, C. S. M., the eloquent Paulist Father is day evenings during the Lenten season. ing.

The seventeenth annual concert and lecture in aid of the Monastery of the Precious Blood will take place at the New Montauk Theater to-morrow evening. The preparations for the event have been more complete than usual, and a most attractive programme will be presented. The concert that precedes the lecture will be under the direction of Miss Marie Kieckhoefer, and selections will be rendered by artists of first class standing, viz.: Mrs. Willard Doolittle, soprano; Annie Merritt, child pianist, who has gained considerable celebrity as a player of unusual genius, and Edwin Grasse, who, notwithstanding the fact that he has been blind since early youth, attained the great distinction of graduating from the Leipsic Conservatory with highest honors. He appeared in concerts in all the principal cities of Europe, and has been noted, since his return to his native country, as an artist of most distinguished merit, receiving the highest endorsements from the most exacting musical critics in the many cities where he has appeared; Miss Marie Kieckhoefer, graduate of the Leipsic Conservatory, who is well and favorably known as a 'cellist of the first order, and John Young, tenor, considered one of the best concert singers in this country.

The lecture will be given by the Rev. Thomas F. Burke, C. S. P., on "Social Effects of Christianity." Father Burke is known as a very eloquent, scholarly and effective pulpit orator, and wherever he is announced to speak great audiences flock to hear him. He has selected this subject because of its importance, especially at the present time, when, as he says, public thought outside the Church is groping in the dark for some safe road on which it may confidently rely for spiritual direction and advancement. He has studied the subject very carefully, and will present it in a pleasing, interesting manner, conveying to the minds of his hearers brilliant thoughts, eloquently expressed, and above all, a true Catholic exposition of his subject.

The Right Rev. Bishop Charles E. McDonnell, D.D., has accepted the invitation of the committee, tendered to him last Sunday evening, when the committee, in a body, called on him for the purpose of inviting him and fully expects to be present. The Right Rev. Monsignor P. J. McNamara, vicar general, will also be present, as well as other distinguished priests.

The concert will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, and it is earnestly requested that the audience be seated before the opening number.

The Forty Hours Devotion will be held next week in the following churches, beginning Sunday, March 14: St. Elizabeth's Church, in Woodhaven, St. Patrick's Church in Huntington, Church of the Immaculate Conception, Leonard and Manjer streets; Church of Our Lady of Peace, Carroll street, between Third and Fourth avenues; beginning on Sunday, March 21, the devotion will be held at St. Stanislaus Kostka Church, Driggs avenue and Humboldt street; Our Lady of Mercy, Schermerhorn street, near Bond; Holy Name, Ninth and Prospect avenues, and St. Kilian's Church in Farmingdale, L. I.

The first week of the mission conducted by the Paulist Fathers at the Church of St. Augustine, Sixth avenue and Sterling place, has been very well attended. It is being given by the Rev. B. L. Conway, assisted by Fathers Keefe and Bradley. The mission services next week will be for the unmarried women of the parish.

Two hundred parishioners of St. Augustine's will compose the various committees which will make the coming celebration of "The New Era," which is to be held in the latter part of April, one of the greatest affairs of its kind ever given by a Brooklyn church. All of the details of the plans have not yet been decided upon, but the committees are meeting every week and getting things into shape for the celebration.

Under the auspices of the Holy Name Society of St. Agnes Church, a concert and lecture will be given in the school hall, Degraw street, near Hoyt, on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, March 17. The Rev. John J. Whelan of St. Agnes Church, who has traveled extensively in Ireland, will deliver the lecture. Father Whelan is a very observant traveler and his lec[illegible]s highly entertaining a[illegible] very interesting. Th[illegible] given by a quartet of [illegible]ngers. The concert will [illegible]ul as a pre-and begin to play at 7:30. As a finale, a piper will toot the pipes and a dancer will illustrate some of the very intricate and attractive Irish dances. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church.

At the Church of Our Lady of Angels, Fourth avenue and Seventy-fourth street, of which the Rev. M. J. Flynn is rector, the following Lenten services will be held during the week: Sunday, March 14, high mass at 11 A.M. Third in the course of sermons on the Church. Subject, "The Rock of Peter." by the Rev. John P. M. Doyle. Vespers at 7:30 P.M. Special quartet of eminent artists. Sermon by the Rev. Thomas Gorman, C.M., of St. John's College, Brooklyn.

Wednesday, March 17, devotion for the Way of the Cross at 8 P.M. Thursday, March 18, devotions for Lent; benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and sermon by the Rev. J. P. M. Walsh, S. J., of Brooklyn College.

Friday, March 19, third in course of lectures on "A Great Period of Christian Socialism" by Professor James J. Walsh, M.D., Ph.D., LL.D., at 8 P.M. in the church hall, Seventy-fourth street and Fourth avenue. Subject, "The Greatest Epoch of Popular Education."

After the regular meeting of the Holy Name Society connected with St. Teresa's Church, Classon avenue and Sterling place, to-morrow afternoon, the members will listen to a lecture by Register Prendergast. This will be the second lecture in a course that has been arraigned by the Rev. Walter Kerwin, the spiritual director of the society. At the last meeting of the society the workings of the Children's Courts were explained and members were asked to help in the formation of a movement looking to the care of the waifs of the street. From month to month topics of interest will be discussed and well informed men on interesting subjects will be asked to give their views at the society's meetings.

St. Teresa's Holy Name Society has one of the largest memberships in Brooklyn, and as a result of the mission to be given by the Redemptorists for the men of the parish next week, it is hoped that the society's membership will be greatly increased.

The Rev. Walter Kerwin extends an invitation to all the men of the parish and those living in the vicinity of the church to attend the meeting of the society and the mission which is to follow.

A mission to be conducted by the Lazarist Fathers will open in St. Gabriel's Church, New Lots road and Linwood street, on the fourth Sunday in Lent, March 21. It will extend two weeks, the first for the women of the parish, the second for the men. The pastor, the Rev. Thomas J. Fitzgerald, is expecting much good from the coming mission.

The Rev. Father Chidwick, chaplain of the Manhattan Police Department, will lecture to-morrow night in St. Michael's Church, Fourth avenue and Forty-second street, of which the Rev. William T. McGuirl, the chaplain of the Brooklyn Police Department, is rector. Father Chidwick's subject will be "St. Patrick."

Professor Monaghan of St. John's College traveled to St. Louis and Chicago this week and lectured in each place on "Robert Emmet, His Life and Times." He spoke to large audiences in each city.

The Transfiguration Lyceum, the young men's club attached to the Church of the Transfiguration, will give a musical comedy entitled "On Vacation With the Lyceum Boys," at Arion Hall Friday evening, April 16. It is the custom of these young men to spend their summer vacation together, and during the ensuing year present a play depicting the various incidents which occurred at the hostelry at which they were staying. Last year's performance was a huge success and all indications point to a far greater achievement for the boys. An up-to-date boarding house is the scene of this year's play and all colors to such a scene will be put on, even to the young woman guests, of whom there will be quite a few. Many numbers will be introduced. The play is under the direction of Maurice Hayes, whose ability is known the city over. The committee comprises Messrs. William Daniels, John B. Foley, Francis Dilson, M. B. Ryan and George Burger.

At the Church of St. John the Baptist, Lewis and Willoughby avenues, on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, there will be a solemn high mass at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's altar.

The Vincentian Players of St. John's will present a comedy in the college hall on the afternoon and evening of St. Patrick's day.

A novena of grace in honor of St. Joseph will begin next week at St. John's. It will close on Friday, March 19, St. Joseph's day, with a solemn high mass at 9 o'clock in the morning.

The beautiful devotion of the holy hour will be celebrated at St. John's on Saturday evening, March 20, the third Friday of the month.

The Rev. Dr. Baldwin of St. John's College is coaching the altar boys for their annual dramatic performance which will take place during the Easter holidays.

About one hundred Catholic women have attended the retreat conducted by the Rev. Dr. McGinnis at the Convent of the Nursing Sisters of the Sick Poor on Henry street during the last three days of this week. It will be concluded to-morrow morning.

The committee of the Nursing Sisters will hold a meeting Monday afternoon in the convent.

A euchre and reception for the benefit of St. Paul's Church, Court and Congress streets, of which the Rev. M. L. Flannery is rector, will be held at the Kings County Democratic Club, Schermerhorn street, in the week following Easter. It will be given under the auspices of the Holy Name Society and the Holy Name Sodality.

The nuns of the Order of the Daughters of Wisdom, who conduct the Home for Blind, Crippled and Defective Children at Port Jefferson, Long Island, were complimented last week by several state officials and physicians who visited the home for the purpose of making an inspection of the institution. The nuns have one of the best equipped institutions in the country, and they have recently added greatly to their establishment. Everything that modern science can provide for the amelioration of the condition of the crippled and helpless children is in use at Port Jefferson and the success of the nuns in treating cases is wonderful. Several sisters of the order are collecting money to pay for the recent additions to the plant, and they have had considerable success so far in the churches they have visited in Brooklyn. To-morrow they will visit St. Mary's, Star of the Sea, on Court street; St. Matthew's, Utica avenue and Degraw street, and the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Putnam avenue, near Ralph.

Monday, June 7, will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. M. G. Flannery, rector of St. Paul's Church, at Court and Congress streets, to the priesthood. Father Flannery, who was born in Brooklyn, was ordained at the Grande Seminary in Montreal, in 1884. His first assignment in the Brooklyn diocese was to St. Ambrose Church, Tompkins and DeKalb avenues. In 1893 he was made rector of the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows, at Corona, and later he was appointed rector of St. Mary Star of the Sea, and in 1904 was transferred to St. Paul's, one of the most important charges in the diocese.

A mission under the direction of the Lazarist Fathers will open in St. Gabriel's Church, New Lots road and Linwood street, on March 21. It will last for two weeks.

Register William A. Prendergast will be the speaker at the lecture to be given under the auspices of St. Teresa Holy Name Society, at its rooms in the lower church to-morrow afternoon.

On Tuesday evening, March 16, Professor Turner, the entertaining lecturer on Ireland and its people, will deliver a lecture on "Ireland" in the parish hall of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Broadway and Aberdeen street. The affair will be under the direction of the church choir and there will be a fine musical programme.

On Sunday, March 21, the usual third Sunday devotions in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes will take place in the church. The details of this month's celebration

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN BROOKLYN CHURCHES

The Rev. Marion LeRoy Burton, PhD., in the Church of the Pilgrims, will preach to-morrow morning on "Abiding in Christ," and the quartet will sing as an anthem, "I Am Alpha and Omega," by Stainer, and as an offertory, "O, All Who Pass by the Way," by Dubois. At 8 P.M. the pastor will speak upon "What is the Holy Spirit?" and the quartet will render as an anthem, "Abide With Me," by Dunstan, and as an offertory, "Come Unto Him," by Leslie. Both the sermons to-morrow are the first in the Lenten series. On Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, the usual mid-week service will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis.

The Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton will preach at both services to-morrow in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church. The morning discourse will be an answer to the question: "Will Christianity Last?" In the evening sympathetic attention will be given to "What the Retail Grocery Clerks Say to the Churches." The choir, under the direction of Mr. Sammond, will sing "'Round Jerusalem Stand the Mountain," by Dr. Hiller, at the morning service. The offertory will be a new contralto solo by William P. Halsted, to the words of the hymn, "More Love to Thee, O Christ." In the evening, "Lord, for Thy Tender Mercies Sake," by Farrant, and Parker's "In Heavenly Love Abiding," will be sung. A Lenten class for young people has been organized and meets on Sunday mornings before the church service. The topic for to-morrow is: "What It Means To Be a Christian at Home and In School." The mid-week service is well attended and increases in interest. On Wednesday evening an address will be made on "Growing a Soul," by the Rev. Dr. McLaughlin of the Park Congregational Church.

In the Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Bedford avenue, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman will preach to-morrow morning, and will also hold a brief children's service, with an address to the children. They may be presented for baptism at this time. Bible school, 2:45 P.M. In the evening, the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott will preach, and an offertory will be taken in behalf of the Y. W. C. A. The pastor will conduct the service with a brief vesper service at the close. Thursday, 8 P.M., Dr. Arthur will tell the Boys Club Sherlock Holmes stories. All boys of the Church invited. Friday, 8 P.M., prayer service. The Rev. Howard J. Chidley will give the third of his addresses on the Old Testament, entitled "Amos, the Man, His

ST. FRANCES DE CHANTAL CHURCH GUTTED BY FIRE

$30,000 DAMAGE, OR MORE.

Firemen Were Delayed in Getting Water; Some Hose Broke—New Church to Be Built.

For more than an hour and a half firemen from Engine Companies Nos. 140, 143, 147 and 150 fought a fierce fire, which almost totally destroyed the Church of St. Frances de Chantal, on Fifty-seventh street, near Thirteenth avenue, Borough Park, last night. The exact amount of the damage is not known, but it is estimated to be above $30,000. Although the entire structure is not in ruins, it is in such a wrecked condition that it will never again be used. A new church, for which plans were submitted and which was to be erected in the near future, will be started almost immediately on the church property, at Fifty-seventh street and Thirteenth avenue. A defective flue was the cause of the blaze.

Chris Lorch of Twelfth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, was on his way home last night about 11 o'clock, when, passing the church, he smelled smoke. He then saw that the entire roof of the edifice was ablaze. Mr. Lorch aroused the Rev. Father William J. McAdam, the rector, who lives in the parish house adjoining, and Father McAdam sent in an alarm to Fire Headquarters over the telephone. Upon arriving at the scene of the fire, Chief Maher of Engine Company No. 143 saw that it was a serious affair, and he sent in a second alarm. This time it was responded to by Deputy Chief Lally and Deputy Chief Goodson. The reserves were called out, and Captain Summers and twelve of his men from the One Hundred and Forty-third Precinct appeared on the scene of action and kept the crowd back.

Considerable difficulty was experiences by the firemen in their efforts to secure water. After attaching a hose to the hydrant nearest the church, they found that the next nearest one was at Fifty-eighth street and Twelfth avenue, two blocks away, and they were unable to find any more in the immediate neighborhood. The fire hose broke, and this added to the troubles of the workers. The Rev. Father McAdam and his three assistants stood as close as possible to the burning structure and directed the helpers what to do. When finally the fire was under control, after an hour and a half of hard work, Father McAdam was the first to enter the building and light the gas for the firemen and police to see by. The fire was still burning and the church was filled with water almost a foot deep.

Through this the priests and eager volunteers splashed and soon removed the valuable fixtures which were not already destroyed by fire or water. Among other articles ruined were four memorial windows, valued at $100 each, which were broken. The beautiful organ, which was valued at $2,000, was thoroughly soaked with water, but it is thought that the church will be able to use it again. All the inside fixtures were ruined with few exceptions, and although the church is insured at $20,000, it will not cover the loss.

Men are now at work trying to get the water out of the basement so that services may be held there to-morrow.

The Church of St. Frances de Chantal is one of the largest and most prosperous Catholic churches in the section. It has 1,800 parishioners and is active in every way. The parish is bounded on the north by Forty-seventh street, on the south by Sixty-seventh street, on the east by Twentieth avenue, and on the west by Tenth avenue. The assistant pastors are the Rev. Father M. P. McMahon, the Rev. Father P. J. O'Loughlin and the Rev. Father P. J. O'Connell.

The church which was destroyed last night was erected in the year 1892. Possession was taken in July and the first pastor was the Rev. M. J. Malloy. He was succeeded by the Rev. Father Thomas McTeague on November 1, 1892. When Father McTeague was transferred to another church he was in turn succeeded by the Rev. Father G. Septier, S. P. M., and the Rev. Father William J. McAdam, the present rector, succeded him.

From time to time many improvements were made in the church and it had gradually grown till it was decided that another and larger church was needed for the needs of the ever-increasing membership and plans were drawn for the new church which will be started almost at once at Fifty-seventh street and Thirteenth avenue. A movement will be started by the various societies to give a number of social affairs in order to raise funds for the building expenses.

Mrs Carey Has James J. Gilday Arrested for Larceny.

James J. Gilday, 28 years old, of 42 Herkimer place, who was arrested by Detectives Connolly and Bradley of the Gates avenue station, was arraigned in the Gates avenue court this morning on a charge of breaking into the home of Mrs. Mary Carey, at 1403 Fulton street, on March 16, and stealing a bicycle, a table and a desk. Loretta Mitchell of 1405 Fulton street, made an affidavit that she had seen Gilday with some of the articles in his possession, and a furniture dealer testified to having bought the desk. Gilday pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bail for examination on March 23.

STRIKERS IN UGLY MOOD.

Police Sent to Guard Trucks Hauling Output of L. I. City Refinery.

Anticipating a riot by strikers, a squad of policemen from the Two Hundred and Seventy-fifth Precinct at Hunters Point was sent yesterday afternoon to the refinery of the New York Sugar Refining Company, at Front street and the East River. An effort was to be made to get trucks loaded with sugar for Manhattan, and the police were asked to be on hand to prevent trouble.

It was intended to send out fifteen truck loads, but as only five policemen could be spared from the precinct, that many trucks were sent across the Thirty-fourth street ferry to Manhattan. A policeman rode on each wagon.

The strike is not directed against the company, but against C. M. Palmer, a truck owner of Kent avenue, Brooklyn. The men say that Palmer has a contract to haul most of the output of the refinery. There are several other contractors and these bosses pay their men for overtime. The strikers say Palmer refuses this consideration and for that they are fighting.

The men went on a strike on St. Patrick's Day. The next day several trucks were sent over to Manhattan, but when in that borough the trucks were set upon by strikers, who cut the ropes that held the filled sugar barrels on the truck. The barrels rolled all over the street. No trucks were sent out from that time until yesterday afternoon.

The strikers are in an ugly mood and say that the end is not yet.

FOR ROCKAWAY'S BETTERMENT.

Beach Taxpayers Association Calls Upon All Citizens to Aid It.

On Monday evening a meeting of the Rockaway Beach Taxpayers Association will be held at Pachinger's Hall. The association has invited every citizen of the Beach, whether a property owner or not, to affiliate with it and work for the needed improvements.

At the present time the association is working for the cross-bay parkway, making a short and direct route from Brooklyn and Manhattan, across Jamaica Bay to the ocean front.

It is also urging a system of sewers, street repairs and advocating the removal of jetties and bulkheads from along the ocean front at Rockaway.

PASTOR RUSSELL RETURNS.

Pastor Russell is to be back in Brooklyn to-morrow, and is to preach in the Brooklyn Tabernacle at 3 o'clock. His topic is announced as "The New Song." Seats are always free in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, and every one is welcomed. No collection is taken up.

$17,789 VERDICT HITS ENNIS & STOPPANI FIRM

IT'S ALL A MATTER OF HOURS.

Smelters and American Ice Fell, but Partly Recovered Before Closing. Queer Law Points.

Ennis & Stoppani, stock brokers, with a branch office at 22 Court street, Brooklyn, will have to pay $17,789 to Edward Roche, a wealthy contractor of Far Rockaway, unless Justice Carr sets aside the verdict which a jury in Flushing brought in under very unusual circumstances.

The verdict was decidedly in favor of Mr. Roche, but it was rendered subject to a motion to direct a verdict for Ennis & Stoppani. The case is now in a most peculiar and equivocal position. The verdict is rendered, the jury discharged, and yet the court is to receive and consider briefs on a motion asking that the jury be directed to find for the defendants, Ennis & Stoppani.

The case is an echo of the panic of May, 1901. Edward Roche, one of the customers of Ennis & Stoppani, had bought 1,000 shares of American Smelters common at the price of 60, not long before the panic, and about the same time had bought 100 shares of American Ice common at $7. This stock was being carried on margin by Ennis & Stoppani. Roche had up a margin of approximately 20 per cent. of the purchase price of the stock on the beginning of the panic day of May 9, 1901.

Ennis & Stoppani realized early in the morning that it was to be a panicky day, and they called on their customers for broader margins. Mr. Roche was asked to put up an additional $5,000 and he gave that sum of money to the stock brokers about 10 o'clock in the morning. Evidently he went his way, thinking he was amply protected. According to Ennis & Stoppani, there was an arrangement with Roche by which he could be reached by telephone at a certain place at any time through the business day.

Late that afternoon, after the five hours of panic was over, Mr. Roche was surprised to learn that Ennis & Stoppani had sold out all his stock. He demanded to know why, and the stock brokers told him they had to sell it as the margin had been wiped out in the rapid downward slump about 12 o'clock, and they had been unable to communicate with him. They told him they had sold his 1,000 shares of Smelters at 43 and his 100 shares of Ice at 39, aggregating a loss of more than $17,000. They said they had exhausted every means of reaching him at the place where he had promised to be.

When Mr. Roche demanded to know what authority the brokers had had for selling him out, they told him that his attorney, John J. Roach, had told them to sell. John J. Roach was a salaried employe of Ennis & Stoppani, and, according to Edward Roche, was unknown to the latter. The names were spelled differently, and it had simply happened that Edward Roche had given a written power of attorney to John J. Roach to be used in the matter of the stocks carried by Ennis & Stoppani.

Mr. Roche communicated with John J. Roach and learned that Roach had given an order to sell, but that it was not long before the close of the market at 3 o'clock. The records of the exchanges showed that between 2 and 3 o'clock American Smelters common was selling at prices ranging along from 51¾ and 52 up to 53. Roche couldn't understand why his stock should have been thrown overboard at 43, while other stock exactly like it was commanding a price of 53. It was the same way with the Ice, which had sold from 31⅞ to 33¼ between 2 and 3 o'clock.

The exchange records of morning sales did not show any sales in which Roche could identify his stock. He found that 600 shares of American Ice had been sold as low as 30 just before 1 o'clock, but could not find the record of his stock as having been sold at the time claimed by the stock brokers. One explanation was that sales were so voluminous they could not be recorded, as they were made during the panic.

The dispute as to the time of the sale raised an important question. If the stock was not sold until after 2 o'clock, when Smelters was selling as high as 53 and Ice as high as 33¾, then the margin of approximately 30 per cent., or $17,000, was more than sufficient to protect the stock and there was no valid reason for selling it.

On that theory, Roche brought suit against Ennis & Stoppani to compel them to pay him the difference between the panic price at which they had sold the stock and the price which they could have obtained for the stock within the next thirty days. The suit was tried in Flushing, before a jury and Justice Carr, in the Supreme Court.

The case hinged on the time of sale. Roche's best witness was John J. Roach, who, it was said, was an employe of Ennis & Stoppani, with a salary of $75 a week. Mr. Roach testified that he had acted upon the power of attorney given him by Mr. Roche, and had given Ennis & Stoppani the order to sell the stock. But he said the selling order was not given until between 2:30 and 3 o'clock—possibly after 2:45 in the afternoon.

When the testimony was all in, the attorneys for Ennis & Stoppani moved that the jury be directed to bring in a verdict for the defendants. This motion was denied so far as its immediate effect was concerned, but the questions of law raised by the attorneys were taken under advisement. Justice Carr said he would ask the jury to bring in a verdict subject to the motion of the defendants, and would receive briefs later on.

Two questions were submitted to the jury for decision. The first was as follows:

"Was the order to sell given by John J. Roach between 11 and 12 o'clock?"

To this the jury answered, "No."

The other question was:

"Was the order to sell given by John J. Roach between 2 and 3 o'clock?"

"Yes," was the jury's answer.

Justice Carr had charged the jury that if it should be found that the order was not given until between 2 and 3 o'clock, the verdict should be found for the plaintiff, as Ennis & Stoppani had no right to sell the stock then, because Mr. Roche's margin was more than sufficient to protect the stock at the price then offered.

The jury found that Mr. Roche was entitled to $17,000 on the Smelter stock, as representing the difference between 43, the price at which Ennis & Stoppani sold out Roche, and 60, the price at which Smelter common was selling within the next thirty days. Also, the jury allowed Roche $789 as the difference between the price at which Ennis & Stoppani sold out the Ice stock and 37½, the price at which Ice sold within thirty days after May 9.

SUPERVISORS NEED NOT REFUND SUMS PAID THEM

APPELLATE DIVISION UPHELD.

Charges Technically Illegal, Court Holds, but Were Made in Good Faith—No Collusion.

Jericho, L. I., March 20—The news received here last night, through the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, that the Court of Appeals had affirmed the decision of the lower courts in the case of George Wallace against three supervisors—William H. Jones of this town, Smith Cox of the town of Hempstead and Edwin C. Willets of North Hempstead—caused a general expression of satisfaction with the result.

The action was brought to recover for alleged illegal charges amounting to over $26,000 for mileage in traveling back and forth daily between the county seat and the supervisors' homes during regular sessions of the board, lasting two or three months, and during which sessions, according to the county law, they were entitled to pay for only one round trip; also for per diem charges for meetings when nothing appeared on the records to show that such meetings had been held; also for per diem charges and traveling expenses of committee meetings, of which no authorization is mentioned in the minutes of the board.

Owing to the attacks made in a demurrer to Mr. Wallace's complaint interposed by Henry A. Monfort and Frederick Ingram, counsel for the supervisors, the plaintiffs' claim was cut down to a little over $3,000.

The judgment of the Court of Appeals sustains that of the Appellate Division, which decision confirmed without comment the opinion by Judge Garret J. Garretson, who tried the case in 1907.

The plaintiff, Wallace, alleged in his complaint that the supervisors were aware that they were performing an illegal act and acted collusively in auditing each the other's bills for services which he said had not been rendered, and suit was brought for the recovery of the moneys paid as a result of the audit.

Justice Garretson said in his opinion: "The board did not act collusively. But that they were ignorant of the law and acted upon the faith of misleading and erroneous precedents and were not well advised, and were perhaps negligent, is a more accurate interpretation of their conduct.

"All mileage in excess of once going and returning during regular meetings of the board and per diem for service and expenses for committee work are not sustainable at law.

"Important and valuable services seem to have been rendered by these defendants, respectively, to the people of the county during the period covered by their bills and a large amount of money has been expended by each in actual expenses incurred by them, but the minutes of the board are barren of evidence that a single matter of investigation or other duty was committed to them, lawfully or otherwise.

"It appears by oral testimony in the case that the service of each supervisor in such matters called for by the committee work was done in pursuance of a general understanding that each supervisor would look after the roads or business of his own town and report from time to time to the board, and such course was undoubtedly in good faith pursued.

"But this course was not within the letter or the spirit of the law and their charges for such work were not properly made or allowed."

The court held, however, that all attempt to prove collusion had failed and that there could be no recovery owing to the nature of the action.

The trouble was all caused by the failure of the clerk of the board to keep minutes of the meetings or to enter up the committee assignments and the ignorance of the board as to the necessity of having all meetings and assignments fully recorded. Each supervisor kept a memorandum of the days he was engaged in road work and reported at the meetings that were held, but the clerk even failed to keep a record of these reports, which were oral.

PROVIDENT LOAN REPORT.

New York's Mont de Piete, known as the Provident Loan Society, one of the most useful of its many philanthropic organizations, and in the management of which D. O. Mills, Percy Rockefeller, Mortimer Schiff, Bishop David H. Greer, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Robert W. de Forest and Otto Barnard are associated, has just issued its fourteenth annual report. As pointed out therein by its president, James Speyer, who was one of its principal founders, the financial problems confronting the managers in 1908 were exceptional, owing to the conditions following upon the panic at the close of the previous year. The fact that during the twelve months covered by the report $8,271,000 was loaned on the pledge of personal property, in loans averaging $27.74 apiece, and at the rate of nearly 1,000 loans a day, indicates the extent to which the assistance of the society was invoked by those for whose benefit it was brought into existence in 1894.

They are the people of small incomes, who, momentarily embarrassed for one cause or another, and too proud to accept charity, are glad to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded to raise a loan on some household ornament, some piece of jewelry or some article of clothing, at a low rate of interest. The latter is put at a figure just enough to pay the running expenses of the organization, nearly two-thirds lower than the rate allowed by law to licensed pawnbrokers; and, since no profit is sought, the society is able to loan an amount almost to the full value of the goods pledged.

OBITUARY.

Charles T. Austin.

Charles T. Austin, a life-long resident of Brooklyn, died at his residence, 624 Hancock street, last night. He came from Long Island stock, his father being Theodore Austin, and his mother Nancy Wanser, both of Amityville, and he was long and well known throughout this borough as a public spirited citizen who took an active interest in all matters affecting the city. He was recognized by the leaders of the Republican party in the Seventh and Twenty-third wards, in which he resided at different times, as a man whose judgment was of value, and he was frequently consulted on matters of party policy, and on questions affecting the public welfare. He was for several years librarian of the old Fleet Street M. E. Church, which was razed to provide room for the construction of the approaches to the bridge, and was highly esteemed by his neighbors and large circle of friends. Mr. Austin also gave his attention to the affairs of the Royal Arcanum with characteristic energy, being at the time of his death an active member of Bedford Council, of which he was one of the most popular and useful members. In business Mr. Austin was the manager of the firm of Chisholm & Chapman, bankers and brokers, in Wall street, and had risen to that responsible position from that of errand boy for Hatch & Foote, in which capacity he was employed by the latter firm in his youth. His whole business career was spent in the money market of New York City. He leaves a widow, Mrs. May Austin, and two daughters, Mrs. Raymond J. Allen and Miss Gladys M. Austin.

Jane E. Doughty.

Mrs. Jane E. Doughty, widow of Isaiah Doughty, died on Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Suling, 266 Winthrop street, Brooklyn, in her 66th year. Mrs. Doughty was born in Jamaica and a lifelong resident of that place. She contracted pneumonia about a week ago, when visiting her daughter, and soon succumbed. The funeral services will be held at the home of her son, Charles Doughty, 96 Hardenbrook avenue, Jamaica, the Rev. G. W. Osmun of the Fenimore Street Methodist Church officiating. The interment will be at Cypress Hills.

Jonas Fishel.

Riverhead, L. I., March 20—Jonas Fishel, 76 years old, for half a century one of the leading merchants of this section of Long Island, died last evening at his home in this village, after an illness of two or three weeks. Funeral services will be held on Monday at 1:30 P.M., at his late residence. The Rev. William I. Chalmers will officiate. Mr. Fishel had made his home in this place for fifty-four years, and for fifty of those years had been engaged in the mercantile business. He made the smallest of beginnings, but by industry and fair dealing had built up one of the largest enterprises in Suffolk County. He retired four years ago. He was very public spirited and charitable, and was highly regarded. He was vice president of the Riverhead Savings Bank and a director of the Riverhead Bank. At the time of his death he was president of the Suffolk County Mutual Benefit Association, in which he took an active interest. He was an Odd Fellow and an exempt fireman. Mr. Fishel is survived by three sons, Gilbert and Arthur A. Fishel of Denver, Col., and Edwin D. Fishel of this village. The remains will be taken to Cypress Hills Cemetery, Brooklyn, for interment on Tuesday.

Orpha P. Woodward.

Orpha Prudence Canfield, widow of Sylvester R. Woodward, of the Nineteenth Ward died Wednesday at her residence, 114 Division avenue. She was born in Westchester County, New York, September 10, 1840, and had been for twenty-six years a member of Lady Franklin Council, Daughters of Liberty. Surviving her is a son, Labitt Weir; a daughter, Mrs. Ebenezer Cone; a brother, Isaac Canfield, and two sisters, Mrs. Ruth A. Marshall and Mrs. Clarissa Green. Four weeks ago she lost a daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Husted.

Robert Donald Agnew.

Robert Donald Agnew died Wednesday at Norfolk, Va., where he went six weeks ago because of illness. His home was at 716 Halsey street, and he belonged to Ridgewood Council, R. A., and Emmanuel Congregational Church. He was born at Belfast, Ireland, March 22, 1850, and leaves three sons and three daughters. Dr. James Alexander Jenkins of Cleveland, O., a friend of the deceased, will officiate at the funeral services to-night.

Martha Entwistle Gray.

Martha Entwistle, widow of George Gray, and for over forty years a resident of the Eastern District, died Thursday at her residence, 355 South Fourth street. She was born in London, England, in 1836. She is survived by her son, George Gray. Mrs. Gray's home for many years was in the Fifteenth Ward.

Henry Bessey.

Henry Bessey, for many years a resident of the Nineteenth Ward, died yesterday at his residence, 235 McDonough street. He had been prominent in the printing trade in Manhattan for more than half a century, and annually printed the Chamber of Commerce report. He retired three years ago, when his eyesight failed him. He was born at Norwalk, Conn., September 2, 1828. Fifty-five years ago he married Annie MacGregor, who survives him with three sons and two daughters. The Rev. Dr. L. Mason Clarke of the First Presbyterian Church will officiate at the funeral services, and the interment will be in Norwalk.

CROPSEY AV. M. E. CHURCH BURNS ITS MORTGAGE

THREE SPECIAL SERVICES.

Rev. Ralph Welles Keeler Delivers Special Sermon and Daniel Morris an Historical Address.

Yesterday was a day of jubilee at the Cropsey Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Cropsey avenue and Bay Thirty-fifth street. A debt incurred two years ago by the building of an addition has been wiped out. Services were held throughout the day. The church and altar were decorated with palms and cut flowers by the Girls Intermediate Epworth League, under the direction of their superintendent, Miss Tillie Wolff, and presented a beautiful appearance.

At the morning service, at 10:30, there was an historical address by Daniel Morris, the youngest son of one of the founders of the church. The sermon was by the minister, the Rev. Ralph Welles Keeler, whose topic was "The Church and the Community." The Rev. Mr. Keeler said, in part:

"The church and the community cannot be separate. The church is made up of individuals in the community. The development and growth of community life is fostered by the church, and its ideals raised where the church is faithful to her trust. The finest type of community is, indeed, the church of God in action, bringing the laws of God into everyday business, and manifesting the spirit and love of Jesus Christ in most commonplace ways.

"This church, the old Fishermen's Methodist Episcopal Church, dedicated to God and the Lord Jesus Christ as a place of worship for those who once sought the shelter of the bay—this church is for the community. Here men may seek refuge from the storms of life. Here women may bring the heart burdened with grief. Here children may come to learn of their Father in heaven, and His ways for the people of earth. The babe is here baptized; the grandsire borne from here to his eternal rest."

The historical address of Daniel Morris proved of great interest to the large congregation present, both those now in the community and those whose fathers helped the church in its beginning. While the address dealt with all of the Gravesend section, the following, relating to the church itself, proved of large interest:

"Back in the days when Gravesend Bay was full of fish, in the year 1844, a church under Methodist Episcopal auspices was started on what was then called Gravesend Beach, Unionville. Fishermen from farther east on Long Island came into the bay then, and the people sacrificed and saved to build a church in which these men might worship. Some 130 people subscribed to this early fund, the amounts ranging from $1 to $25. While most of the money was raised locally, several of the wholesale fish dealers in Fulton Market gave, and the old publishing house of Harper & Bro: was a contributor.

"With the money thus raised they built the little church of those early days. And while the fishing fleet swung at anchor in the bay the fishermen met to worship God on shore. The first site built upon was chosen because of its proximity to the beach, thus being found easily by visiting sailors. On the front of the building was a stone tablet, containing the inscription: 'Fishermen's Methodist Episcopal Church. Erected A. D. 1844.' This tablet now holds a place of honor and love at the right of the altar in the new building. It serves to remind all who worship there that their church was founded by fishermen, just as was the first church founded by Jesus Christ.

"The church was organized and a board of trustees elected on the 14th day of August, 1844. The first minister was the Rev. Lorenzo D. Nickerson, then preacher-in-charge of the New Utrecht circuit. The church was dedicated by the Rev. Henry Chase of the New York East Conference, who was for many years pastor of The Mariner's Church, in Roosevelt street, New York City. The first board of trustees was composed of William Morris, Stephen Morris, Stephen Aumack, Robert S. Hulse, William Haviland, Francis Keymer and Nathaniel Curtis, and was organized under the name of The Fishermen's Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1894 the site was moved to Cropsey avenue, where the present building stands. At that time the name was changed to The Cropsey Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church."

Three years ago the church began to feel cramped in its work because of lack of sufficient space in which to carry on its Sunday school and social work. So in November, 1906, a committee, consisting of the official board, began the work of enlargement. The building was extended west toward the shore and south toward Bay Thirty-fifth street. The cost of the extension was $4,300. At the time of making this improvement the Brooklyn Church Society offered to help if the church would raise the balance. The Brooklyn Church Society was called upon to redeem its promise last week.

The business depression of last year and the year before was felt by many who had pledged on the building fund, so very little was done by way of collection until the last of January this year. At that time the minister and the special finance committee decided that the debt must be cleared off before conference. And it has been done. The money has been given by the societies within the church, the members of the church and community, and $1,200 by the Broklyn Church Society. The addition has made The Cropsey Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church one of the finest churches in this section of Brooklyn.

The official board at the present time is composed of the following: Trustees—P. J. Van Note, G. H. Gilmour, H. Marvin, C. Middaugh, W. Van Vleit, C. A. Graves, H. Dingman, H. N. Cropsey, F. Snyder. Stewards—P. J. Van Note, H. Case, J. J. Atkinson, J. Van Gelder, W. Aumack, Tittie Wolff, Irene Bradshaw, Helena Tripp, W. Gilmour, A. W. Guthell, C. A. Graves, W. Wolff, W. W. Quirk, D. Morris; president of Ladies Aid Society, Victornet Voorhees; president of Epworth League, W. Aumack.

The afternoon exercises were held in the Sunday school at 2:30 o'clock. The programme consisted of the singing of several spirited hymns, a duet by Miss Ethel Aldrich and Miss Irma Mitchell, review of the quarter's lessons by the minister, historical address on the Sunday school by former Superintendent G. H. Gilmour, prayer by former superintendent J. J. Ackinson, and reminiscences by Superintendent J. C. Van Gelder.

The burning of the note representing the indebtedness came with the evening service, at which time Rev. Oliver S. Baketel, D.D. of the Sunday school board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and editor of Methodist Men, was the preacher.

MR. FOSTER'S SERMON.

A very large audience greeted the Rev. Allyn K. Foster at the Marty Avenue Baptist Church last evening, and listened to a helpful sermon. The topic was "What Is Enough to Bagin On?" Mr. Foster chose for his text Acts ix:6, taking part of the verse, "Arise, go into the city and it shall be told thee what thou shalt do." The thought of the sermon was that Paul obeyed the voice and received his sight. Obedience is not only essential in the spiritual realm but imperative in all

HOW TO MAKE A LAWN.

Do you want a fine lawn—a little grass-plot, maybe, in front of the house that will grow something besides weeds? "The lawn," says Frank A. Waugh, of Amherst Agricultural College, "is the foundation of all good gardening." So why not have one?

No matter if you have never raised anything but a crop of old tin cans and rubbish heretofore. If you go at it in the right way you may have a little plot of smoothest, most delightful green grass. It all depends on the way you begin it. In the April number of the Woman's Home Companion Mr. Waugh, who is the big authority on all subjects pertaining to gardening, tells how to make a lawn from the very first, how the different soils must be prepared, what seeds to use, and the subsequent care that is required.

The garden is capable of all sorts of good things—sanitary, social and domestic. With the revival of interest in outdoor life, lawns and dooryards should be made attractive—and it is not a difficult thing to do.

LAID THE CORNERSTONE.

Three Thousand Attend Ceremony at New Parochial School of St. Brigid's Church.

The cornerstone of St. Brigid's new parochial school, on St. Nicholas avenue and Grove street, was laid with impressive ceremonies yesterday afternoon. Vicar General McNamara officiated. Over 3,000 people turned out, and the streets were literally blocked, many taking the roofs of adjacent buildings to witness the ceremonies. The boys band from St. John's Orphan Asylum gave a concert of popular and classic music. At 3:30 the procession, composed of the Holy Name Society of the church, altar boys, visiting clergy and representatives from Catholic societies, formed at the church, on Linden street, and marched to the site of the school, one block away. The stone was placed in position and a copper box, containing a history of the church, current newspapers and coins of the realm, was inserted, and the stone was placed in position and blessed by Mgr. McNamara, while the choir sang "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

The Rev. P. J. Farrelly then introduced the Rev. J. T. Woods, who delivered the sermon. Father Woods said that the occasion reminded him of the time when on Mount Olivet the Saviour commissioned His Disciples to go forth and teach. He said that in doing this Christ conveyed to his disciples a commission which no man had ever before attempted. And the teaching which they were to scatter broadcast was to tell the nations of the glory and love of the Father. The church has taught the nations for hundreds of years, and can defy any historian to show where at any time it has contradicted itself in a matter of education. He said that during all time the two greatest enemies of the church have been ignorance and violence.

"Twenty-six years ago, in Baltimore, seventy of the wisest, greatest churchmen of the world, assembled in that city, and this conference gave out that it could not approve of any kind of education which eliminated moral instruction. So that when you consider the present system, founded on false theory, that education will make men moral, events prove that something is radically wrong. The only panacea is the church led by the Holy Ghost, to tell us what true education is, as religion is the safeguard of the nation."

In conclusion, Father Woods gave a resume of the work done by St. Brigid in Ireland, where she established convents and carried on education in the country. He congratulated the pastor on the fine edifice he has built.

Mgr. McNamara then, in a few well chosen remarks, congratulated the pastor on the good work he has accomplished in the parish.

The new school, when finished, will be one of the most beautiful in the city. It will be four stories and will have a basement and roof garden. The material used in construction is Trenton brick, with Indiana limestone trimmings. A feature of the structure will be the uniformity of material on all four sides. There will be twenty-three classrooms, all provided with modern equipment, and the staff of teachers will be the best available. When completed, there will be four playgrounds for children—two in the basement, which is dampproof; one on the roof garden and another on the church property, which runs 120 feet on Linden avenue. There will be an auditorium on the main floor, with a seating capacity of 1,000; also a stage 40x25, on which the school entertainments will be held. The school, when completed, will show an outlay of $125,000, of which nearly $90,000 has been collected already.

The present pastor is the Rev. P. J. Farrelly. He has been ordained over forty years and he has seen service in South Africa, among the missions, Greenport, L. I., and in Holy Cross Church, Flatbush. He is ably assisted in his work by the Rev. P. J. Kelly and the Rev. G. W. Endres. Attached to the church is a Sunday school of over 1,500 children, presided over by the Sisters of Mercy. There are several societies connected with the church.

Among the clergy present at yesterday's ceremonies were the Rev. Fathers Fitzgerald, Woods, Farrelly, O'Hara, Nash, Ludke, Kelly and Endres. Thomas W. Hynes, president of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, Particular Council, represented the society.

LIKED SAVAGE'S TALK.

Head of L. I. R. R.'s Engineering Force Pleased West End Citizens League.

Engineer Savage of the Long Island Railroad addressed the members of the West End Citizens League, Brooklyn Manor, at the regular meeting on Saturday night. He cheerfully answered all questions that were propounded to him, and a vote of thanks was extended him at the end of his talk.

Mr. Savage declared that the Long Island Railroad Company stood ready at any time to build a crossing under the Rockaway Beach division at Ashland avenue. The rails at that place are overhead and a solid embankment prevents the passage of pedestrians or vehicular traffic from east to west and vice versa on Ashland avenue.

One of the members told Engineer Savage that pupils, and even teachers, of Public School No. 66 at Brooklyn Hills, in order to get to the school from the west side of the Rockaway Beach Division, had to climb over the embankment at Ashland avenue or walk a roundabout way to Jamaica avenue and thence up Union place. That the climbing over and crossing of the tracks of the embankment is a dangerous proceeding was admitted by Mr. Savage. Four years ago, two little school girls lost their lives while crossing the tracks near Ashland avenue, a train killing them outright.

Engineer Savage said that in constructing the passageway one-half the expense should be borne by the city and that the local board of improvement should be petitioned to take the necessary action. He said also that Ashland avenue, or at least those portions of it for two blocks on either side of the embankment, should be deeded to the city.

Regarding the establishment of a station on the Rockaway Beach Division at Jamaica Avenue, Brooklyn Hills, the speaker declared that he believes President Peters will have that done and that the present station at Myrtle avenue, Glendale, will be removed. A petition requesting this change, signed by one hundred property owners, will be sent to President Peters.

Engineer Savage said that the abutments at Jamaica avenue will not be removed by the railroad company.

CROWD OF 5,000 PRESENT AT CORNERSTONE LAYING

ASSISTED BY MANY PRIESTS.

New Edifice at Central Avenue and Bleecker Street Will Be Completed by Christmas.

Approximately 5,000 people were present yesterday afternoon, when the Right Rev. Bishop Charles E. McDonnell laid the cornerstone of the new St. Barbara's Church at Central avenue and Bleecker street. The weather was entirely propitious and the roofs of the adjoining houses and their windows were lined with spectators.

Bishop McDonnell had been conveyed to the church in an automobile from Hollis, L. I., where he officiated at the dedication of the St. Gerard Majella Church. He was escorted by ex-Senator Joseph Wagner. The bishop arrived shortly after 4 o'clock and was met by a delegation of priests, who assisted him in the exercises. The occasion was made impressive by the pomp and dignity of the ceremonies and by the large escort of uniformed men, who were present in separate bodies.

Leading the procession came Father Sander's Band, followed by the First New York Regiment of the Knights of Columbus. Then followed the St. Sebastion Guards of St. Leonard's Church, the members of Magnolia Council, No. 572, of Catholic Benevolent Legion, the St. Martin's Verein and the St. Joseph Society. These organizations, with the spectators who crowded about the scene of the ceremonies, made the floor of the foundations impassable. They did not, however, hinder the progress of the bishop and his assistants, from the rear of the building, where a temporary cross had been erected the day before, to the cornerstone itself.

Bishop McDonnell was assisted by the Rt. Rev. Monsignore J. J. Barrett. Among the large corps of priests who attended the ceremonies and escorted the bishop, were the following: Vicar General Kaupert of All Souls' Church, the Rev. James Hanselman, the rector of the parish; Father George Goeller and Father Renner, the assistant rectors of the church, Father John Willman, Fratner Frank Traenkle, Father Shumack of College Point, Father Augustine, Father Lutz, Father Schneider of the Holy Trinity Church on Montrose avenue, Father Thomas Hanselman, brother of the rector; Father Sanders, Father Vindinz, Father Siegelback and several others. Before the temporary cross where the altar will be, the Bishop, in ecclesiastical robes, blessed the building and its walls.

The laying of the cornerstone was then performed by the bishop, who blessed the stone and sealed it in its place with a silver trowel. In the box, were said to be several coins of the realm, a history of the parish, and copies of the newspapers of the day. The sermon of the afternoon was delivered by the Rev. John Hauptmann, the rector of the Church of St. Aloysius in Brooklyn, who selected as his subject, "The Dignity of the Church." Father Hauptmann spoke in German, and his address was a sermon of congratulations with many historical references in it. He said the parishioners had reason to regard the construction of a new church as an epoch in their own lives and in that of the parish. He noted how, in the olden days, in Rome, when the priests called upon the people for support, the contributions came in so fast that they had to be stopped. The rector added that he hoped the parishioners of the new church would emulate the liberality of the people then. He urged them to support the parish without stint. The Brothers of Mary were in charge of the ceremonies.

In the large gathering were a number of well known citizens and public officials of the Bushwick section, in which the church is located, including P. J. Carlin, Mr. Helmle, of Helmle and Huberty, the architects of the new edifice; Alderman Francis Bent, William F. Delaney, Theodore C. Eppig, John Eppig, Magistrate John F. Hylan, ex-Senator Wagner and members of the faculty of the boys school of St. Barbara's. Acting Captain Edward J. Burke was in charge of the police handling the crowd, and there was no confusion or trouble of any kind.

The new church is expected to be one of the finest in the city, and while the cost has not been stated, the plans by the architects designed to carry out the ideas of the rector, Father Hanselman, will probably require $300,000. The new church has been described in the Eagle in every essential detail. Its completion is expected by next Christmas.

REV. DR. JOEL BLAU INSTALLED

As Rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, Borough Park—Installation Ceremonies Are Impressive.

Very impressive ceremonies were held at the Temple Emanu-El, Forty-ninth street and Fourteenth avenue, Borough Park, yesterday afternoon, when the Rev. Dr. Joel Blau was installed as the first rabbi. The congregation organized in 1905 and the synagogue was completed in 1908, but up to the present time there has been no regular rabbi. Dr. Blau has a wide circle of friends in the Borough Park section, and promises to be exceedingly popular. The services yesterday were opened with a prayer by the Rev. Nathan Cantor. A choir of young people then rendered an anthem. Many prominent rabbis were present and delivered suitable addresses. An address was made by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, New York. Scripture was read by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Jasin, secretary of the Federation of American Zionists. The induction sermon was by the Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes, associate rabbi Temple Emanu-El, New York, and the inaugural sermon by the Rev. Dr. Joel Blau, who took for his text, "I dwelt among my own people."

There was also an address by the Rev. Dr. Jacob Goldstein, chaplain of H. S. G. G. Orphan Asylum, and one by the Rev. Dr. M. A. Meyer, rabbi of Temple Israel of Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. Owing to the fact that the Rev. Dr. Leo Mannheimer of Paterson, N. J., did not arrive as was expected, the Rev. Dr. Leo Grossmann of Cincinnati officiated with the closing prayer. Master of Ceremonies Simon Frank, president of the congregation, spared no efforts to make the installation of Dr. Blau successful.

BOROUGH PARK HEBREWS.

The Hebrew Educational Association of Borough Park started about four months ago in the Temple Emanuel, Forty-ninth street and Fourteenth avenue, and will continue to hold its meetings there. The synagogue was crowded with about 1,200 persons last evening, all enthusiastic about the new organization. The officers of the club are: President, Henry Lyons; vice-president, Louis Picker; second vice-president, Joseph Gordon; recording secretary, "Sig" Feinblatt; financial secretary, Dr. Edelmann; treasurer, B. Michking; sergeant-at-arms, B. Altman; chairman house committee, J. J. Lack; literary committee, L. Rayvid; investigating committee, M. Branajoy; entertainment committee, F. Speigel; arrangement committee, Abe Levy, Henry Lyons, Ed Herbert, Jacob Massell, the Rev. Dr. Joel Blau, Alderman "Ike" Marks, Sam-

ST. GERARD'S CHURCH FORMALLY DEDICATED

MANY PRIESTS WERE PRESENT

Church, a Handsome Edifice, the First in America Dedicated to Memory of St. Gerard.

The Church of St. Gerard Majella, at Hollis, Queens, was filled to overflowing yesterday morning at the dedication ceremony, the congregation including many prominent in the religious and political life of Queens and Brooklyn. The church was exquisitely decorated with white lilies and other flowers, and presented a beautiful appearance.

The ceremony, which began at 11 o'clock, was presided over by the Rt. Rev. Charles E. McDonnell, Bishop of Brooklyn, asisted by Monsignor Barrett and Fathers Hanselman, Dotzauer, Lee, Strensky, Sahey, Schmuch, and others. The sermon, preached by the Rev. Michael A. Fitzgerald, of St. Peter's Church, Brooklyn, was a forceful one. Father Fitzgerald spoke of the church as the Gate of Heaven and told of its necessity and value. He described the life of St. Gerard, and told of his trials and sufferings and of his great power in miracle working, and closed by appealing to the congregation to remain loyal to the church and its pastor, the Rev. John S. Gresser. The solos were well rendered by Mr. Duffy and the singing throughout was of a high order.

Among the invited guests were: P. J. McNamara, Father M. A. Fitzgerald, Monsignor John I. Barrett, the Revs. Thomas J. M. Hanselman, M. J. Lee, Emil Strensky, I. Zeller, F. W. Dotzauer, William McGuire, William K. Dwyer, William Donovan, P. Fitzgerald, John Fitzgerald, J. Farley, C. S. S. R.; Father Collins, C. S. S. R.; John Francis Byrne, C. S. S. R.; Luke Fink, O. B.; Frank Siegloch, Dean Donnelly, Herbert F. Farrell, Edward Harley, Philip Brody, William Curran, Henry Zimmer, Charles Lind, Francis X. Bettinger, and many prominent officials of the borough, including Borough President Lawrence Gresser, Patrick Mara, Alfred Denton, John Craigin, Arrow C. Hankins, Joseph Kaiser, Commissioner Leahy, District Attorney DeWitt, Assistant District Attorney Collins, John Adikes, Judges Fleming and McInerney.

The first step toward the establishment of the church was taken some years ago by the Rev. Morris Fitzgerald, of St. Monica's Church, Jamaica. The first mass was held in Hollis at the home of Mrs. Shannon. The services were subsequently held in the parlors of the Hollis Hook and Ladder Company, and on the appointment of Father Gresser, in August, 1906, were held in St. Gerard rectory on Husson avenue, Hollis, Long Island, before the reverend father had purchased for the church ten lots on Hollis avenue and began the erection of the edifice, in which the first mass was held Easter Sunday, 1908. Since the opening of the church the membership has increased very rapidly and now numbers two hundred. This is the first church dedicated to the honor of St. Gerard in this country. Father Gresser was in Rome at the time St. Gerard was canonized in 1904.

Father John Gresser was born April 28, 1870. He was educated in the public schools of the city, and was graduated from St. John's College, Brooklyn, and Niagara College. He was ordained by Bishop McDonnell at St. John's College, on June 21, 1897, was immediately assigned to St. Mary's Church, Long Island City, and after 6 weeks stay was transferred to St. Peter's Church, Hicks and Warren streets, Brooklyn, where he assisted until his appointment to Hollis and Springfield. He has succeeded in building both the Hollis and the Springfield churches during his short pastorate. The latter church has not as yet been dedicated.

RACE, RELIGION, MARRIAGE.

Leslie Willis Sprague's Views on the Union of Different Peoples.

"Race, Religion and Marriage," was the theme of the address at the Aurora Grata Cathedral yesterday morning by Leslie Willis Sprague, before the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture. Mr. Sprague took his illustration from Zangwill's new play, "The Melting Pot," now running in Chicago, and which presents a graphic picture of American life as being significant for the amalgamation of races which is now going on, and which Zangwill is credited with believing is to characterize the future. Mr. Sprague said:

"Marriage, ethically considered, means the obligation of husband and wife to co-operate in the perfecting of the inner life, as well as the protection of the physical life, each of the other.

"The barrier which difference of race and religion interposes to marriage, seen from the ethical standpoint, is simply this: that it is impossible for husband and wife to rightly understand each other, when to the individual differences of men and women there is added the greater difference of race heritage and religious training; and that upon the basis of such non-understanding no rightly, mutually helpful relation can be maintained."

The conclusion reached by Mr. Sprague was that members of widely different races, and of characteristically different religions, so long as they are typical of their heritage, should not undertake the obligations of marriage which they will be unable fully to perform, but that, on the other hand, great forces, which may be regarded as cultural, tend to obliterate the typical characteristics of both race and religion, so that it is possible for Americans, sharing the culture, ideals, tastes and predilections of this country, to marry, regardless of their national or racial, or creedal antecedents.

"Only those who have much in common in culture and life-ideal," said Mr. Sprague, "can adequately understand the needs and qualities of each other, so as to render their union morally and spiritually helpful. In two or three generations, descendants of widely different people become, in America, so similar that the old barriers are difficult to trace. Perhaps with the same social, educational and religious conditions, continued through a few hundred years, even the widest variations of race, such as of the white and black races, may largely vanish. But until there is an approximation of similarity marriage should not be entered upon. The rigorous Catholic and the dogmatic Protestant; the formalistic and orthodox Jew, and even the heterodox Christian, the rationalist, and the rooted sentimentalist, should not marry, but the Americanized, the cultured and emancipated man and woman, who have risen above the limitations of race and creed, may meet upon the basis of that humanity which is common to all, and may co-operate for the ethical ends of the sacred bonds of marriage."

HOWARD ORPHAN ASYLUM IS DOING A FINE WORK

Progress in the Training School at St. James, L. I., Where Boys Are Being Taught.

URGENT NEED OF MORE FUNDS

R. M. Whiting, President of the Board of Managers, Points Out Features of the Work.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

One year ago, as "one of the managers" of the Howard Asylum and its annex, the St. James (L. I.) Negro Training School, I was generously allowed a column of your valuable paper to present the work and the aims of that institution, and now as its president I ask the privilege of addressing your readers in its interest.

In the city we are doing the ordinary work of an orphan asylum, but our inmates are so numerous that we have been compelled to hire a three story and basement dwelling for use as a dormitory for forty of our boys. We had hoped that before this we should have transferred 100 of our children to a new building at St. James, but the money for the erection of the building has not come into our treasury. Our plant is far from being up to date, our facilities are limited, our environment is sordid and repellant; and yet our children are well and happy, well fed and well clothed, and are receiving scholastic instruction suited to their ages; but they have at the asylum no industrial training, except in needle work, as we have not the room nor the appliances; but we are confident that the way will open for us to secure both room and appliances at the farm in buildings there to be erected. Why are we confident? Because this is God's own work, and these are among the Master's "least ones," care for whom he declared meant passports into the heavenly kingdom. For these with no home but the asylum, no horizon of brightness, no inviting future but that which we furnish; surely in some way or other God will provide. The philanthropic holders of God's money will not close their eyes to such conditions, or their ears to such calls. Let me remind such that many doors open to white children in orphan asylums where one opens to a negro child. Many of the more attractive of white orphans of tender age are sought by the heads of childless homes, and hundreds of others are taken in groups to distant places where intelligent agents have secured homes for adoption or service in which they receive training, and opportunity for education is afforded them; but these doors do not open for negro children.

"In assuming the duties of president, I am led to consider the results of the years that have passed since the care of the Howard Asylum was thrust upon the present regime. Only those who have been helpers in the management know what a burden was imposed. Under the inspiring leadership of the late Rev. S. Gifford Nelson, the work was promptly assumed and carried forward with enthusiasm; and in two years much had been accomplished. The buildings had been thoroughly overhauled, painted inside and outside, new floors laid in dormitories, new beds furnished the children, all sanitary requirements attended to, and a fire alarm service installed. Our financial condition was greatly improved; so that while upon taking charge, we found $6,000 of unpaid bills, at the time named all claims had been settled, and all bills were paid with reasonable promptness.

When in 1906, with but $6,000 in our treasury, the managers determined to purchase a farm, where industrial education could be furnished the older children, and they began the business of selecting a suitable place, providential guidance was manifest. The $6,000 in the treasury was the limit of cash payment we could make, and that placed a limit on our choice, and if a farm of 75 acres fairly satisfactory could have been secured for that amount, the purchase would have been made as the best we could do; but before our unwisdom could have such manifestations, $5,000 from Peter Wyckoff came to our treasury, to be supplemented later on by another $5,000, and we were able to buy the beautiful farm of 168 acres at St. James. Nor does that complete the tale of providential guidance. Our idea of purchasing a farm at once was to secure the land before any rise in price. We had no thought to put our children on it until we could erect a suitable building, which we expected would be at once done; but we have not had funds to erect said building up to date; but upon the farm we purchased was a large building, so forlorn and dilapidated in appearance that some thought it must be removed, and others that it could be repaired only at great expense; but which on expert inspection was found to require an outlay of only $1,000 to make it a comfortable home for thirty-five or forty of our larger boys, and those in charge of them, and there they have been domiciled in God's country for two years, having the best instruction in farming in many phases. And so our farm has been a success from the start, a limited success, but a success for which we are profoundly thankful to Almighty God.

There is a tendency to minify the measure of things accomplished in the presence of larger things yet to be done, and I have reviewed the past to guard against that in myself and in my associates in our work.

The training school at St. James is the initial movement for industrial training of the rising generation of the negro race in this state. No where in the North can a negro learn a trade, or secure a business equipment. Some negro mechanics who have come from the South have been admitted into labor unions, but no manual training for negro children has been provided. This the Howard Asylum proposes to furnish, and is already doing it for the forty boys at St. James, where they are having a thorough practice in farm life. The large thought we have for the future well equipped training school at St. James is to furnish the children the chance to find out and reveal their natural bent or faculty for a life calling, and then assist them to its acquirement.

We are doing this now in a small way, for boys at the farm are showing special adaptation to various phases of farming and agriculture, and associated trades, and are being trained accordingly.

The ideal farm worker of many acres of to-day, is one not only versed in soil qualities and crop succession; he is a carpenter, a blacksmith, a mason, a gardener, a fruit grower, understanding the right manipulation of fruit trees, and of trees for shade and ornament. He knows the formula for cement blocks, and the right use of them. If we were limited in our work at St. James to the maintenance of a large training farm, we should still have a great mission, and would need a great deal of money.

The providential guidance has been further illustrated in the bringing to us of our superintendent and his wife, Mr. Gordon's executive powers have been in evidence since he first came to us, but we had no idea that in him we had secured an expert farmer. He instructs the boys in the theory and practice of farming, so that they will go out not only trained farmers, but intelligent farmers; not only to serve, but to manage.

Our prayer to God is that Mrs. Gordon may be made strong enough to do all she undertakes. The influence of her gracious womanliness, and motherly kindness, is felt throughout the institution, and she has the love and loyal co-operation of all who are serving under her, and the trust-board of managers is a guarantee of correct methods and intelligent management. Our new members, George W. Oakley, James R. Howe and Dr. S. W. Timms, give promise of great usefulness.

Our treasurer, the Rev. J. A. Billingsley, 446 Macon street, on whom rests the heaviest burden of our managerial work, renders us invaluable service, receiving and paying out nearly one thousand dollars per week, and yet is always in happy readiness to send receipts for checks sent in.

The activities of our excellent auxiliary board of lady helpers, lead us to look for large results during the coming days.

With so much for which to be thankful, we address ourselves to the work before us in full confidence that the money for the maintenance and development of our work will be forthcoming, and that the hope of our hearts will become the gladness of our eyes. Who will be our helpers?

R. M. WHITING.

Brooklyn, March 21, 1909.

NOW BROOKLYN TABERNACLE.

Pastor Russell Changes Name of His Church—Plymouth Official Tells Why.

Pastor Russell has changed the name of his church at 17 Hicks street from Plymouth Bethel to Brooklyn Tabernacle. Asked for the reason for the change, yesterday afternoon, he said that the latter name was preferable. Tabernacle, according to Pastor Russell, means a temporary place of worship, and, considered in the light of things eternal, this place is but a temporary place of worship, as compared with the everlasting temple which awaits the faithful.

An official of Plymouth Church, who was asked the same question about the change of name of Pastor Russell's Church, hesitated sometime before replying. He was asked if any pressure had been brought to bear on Pastor Russell to make him change the name.

"No, I would not say that," he replied. "But Plymouth Bethel is a well recognized institution. It is an organization with a legal existence, and has a fund of $20,000 for its support. It is one of the four existing missions of Plymouth Church. When Pastor Russell learned this, he changed the name of his institution. He was not aware, probably, when he first took the name Plymouth Bethel that he was using the name of another living institution."

Yesterday afternoon Pastor Russell spoke to an audience of about two hundred and fifty persons, most of them, so far as could be judged, members of the "Millennial Dawn," or "Watch Tower" sect, which has its stronghold in Allegheny, Pa. The organist of the church stated to an Eagle reporter that the church had about 150 members in Greater New York, and that a number of members from out of town had come in to the services.

Pastor Russell took for his topic yesterday "The New Song of Moses and the Lamb" (Revelations xv:3), and talked for more than an hour and a half on a number of subjects, all of which he said were related to the text. So far as could be discovered from his talk, his teaching is that there is no eternal torment for sinners, and that the "Golden Age" is to come upon earth. He says that a time of great trouble is to come upon the earth soon, and that many of the present day institutions are to be swept away. Then will come the dawn of a new age, in which the people will sing the "New Song" with full understanding. He took a fling at the Calvinists and the Methodists, and claimed that their creeds were illogical, and that no one believed nowadays in eternal torment for unfortunate creatures. Pastor Russell is not a "shouter," but he talks and talks and talks, in a conversational monotone, without notes, and in a rambling sort of way. He uses what might be termed the "endless chain" method of talk.

His auditors sat open-mouthed, listening to the words, and the children who had been brought there curled up and went to sleep on their mothers' shoulders. And still Pastor Russell talked and talked. As one of the women in the congregation was heard to remark in the social gathering which followed:

"He is a wonder, I say. He never opens his mouth but what he says something."

WEEK-END CONFERENCES.

National Bible Institute Has Arranged for a Series at Briarcliff Manor.

The National Bible Institute of 156 Fifth avenue will hold a series of week-end Bible conferences at Briarcliff Manor, New York, twenty-seven miles from New York City, during the coming summer. The leading Bible teachers and Christian workers of America and Great Britain will assist. Among the prominent and helpful features of the conferences, in addition to Bible study, will be discussions on the most effective methods of aggressive evangelism in behalf of those outside the Christian churches. The National Bible Institute's continuous and vigorous evangelistic campaigns in New York City afford a basis for the most intelligent discussion of the problems before the Christian church in connection with the reaching with the Gospel of the great masses of people outside the churches.

Briarcliff Manor is one of the most beautiful and attractive of all America's country places. It was founded by Walter W. Law, who, with his sons and other associates, is in most hearty sympathy with the wide plans of the National Bible Institute for the establishing at Briarcliff of a series of Bible conferences of exceptional merit and attractiveness. Mr. Law began to develop the resources of the now famous Briarcliff country nearly twenty years ago. The estates now comprise over 5,000 acres of most beautiful land in Westchester County, 500 feet above the Hudson River, adjoining Mr. Rockefeller's estates at Pocantico Hills. Among the Bible conferences to be held this summer will be those for young people, adult Bible classes, and in the interests of general Bible study and aggressive lay evangelism.

TO IMPROVE A TURNPIKE.

Hempstead Town Voters Asked to Expend $35,000 on Rockaway-Jamaica Road—2 Bridges Needed.

Cedarhurst, L. I., March 22—At the coming spring election a proposition will be submitted to the voters asking for an appropriation of $35,000 for the purpose of grading and improving the Rockaway and Jamaica turnpike, from the north side of the Long Island Railroad at this place, to the center of Hook Creek, including the building of a bridge over Mott Creek and half the cost of another bridge over Hook Creek.

The turnpike was a toll road until a few years ago, when the Long Island Electric Railway Company purchased it and built a trolley line on it, running from Jamaica to Far Rockaway. This is a short and direct road to Jamaica, and it is the plan to widen the turnpike and have the town of Hempstead pay the expense of the improvement of all that section lying within the town, and the rest of the roadway is to be improved at the expense of Queens Borough.

The proposition has been under consideration for several years, and if the voters approve of the plan at the coming election, then the work will be done. The completion of the roadway will mean the opening of a new and short route between the Rockaways and Jamaica and the Boroughs of Queens and Brooklyn, without having automobilists and drivers make a long and circuitous route through Valley Stream. The distance will be cut

GROUND FORMALLY BROKEN FOR $100,000 EDIFICE

Bedford Presbyterian Church to Have What Is Designed to Be a Sound-Proof Building.

DR. S. EDWARD YOUNG'S WORDS

Mr. Wray Turns First Shovelful of Earth—Dr. John F. Carson and Others Take Part.

Ground was formally broken yesterday morning for the new $100,000 edifice which is to be built for the Bedford Presbyterian Church, at the corner of Dean street and Nostrand avenue. This building has been planned by the architect, Mr. Dodge, so that it shall be sound proof against the constant noise of the trolley cars which pass the door. The church has been given in illustration and fully described. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, has made so deep an impression on the community with his aggressiveness toward the work of the parish and his fine preaching, that it is absolutely necessary to have a larger building, as the present one is more than filled at all the services.

The church was again filled in every part yesterday morning, and still more gathered in the lot to witness the ceremonies of breaking ground. "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" was sung, and Llewellyn Wray, chairman of the building committee, turned the first shovelful of dirt. The spade used will be gilded and preserved. The services were conducted from a platform erected on the lot. E. T. Horswill and the other officers, had places upon the platform, as had the architect, Mr. Dodge, and the contractor, Mr. Kennedy. "The Church's One Foundation" was sung and prayer was offered by the pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson. "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," the good old missionary hymn, was also sung, and Dr. Young spoke as follows as the ground was broken:

"This plot, hitherto unbuild upon by man, reserved virgin from the time of the world's creation, is to-day set apart to bear the blessed weight of the sanctuary. Here cumberer of the ground shall this building be, if because of the people assembling within its walls our city shall not become more righteous, our nation more truly a nation whose God is the Lord, our world more surrendered to Him whose right it is to reign. Witness, heaven and earth, unto the Father almighty, unto Jesus Christ our Saviour, unto the gracious spirit, we dedicate this site, for the worship of God, for the preaching and teaching of the Holy Scriptures for humanity's rescue, refuge, regeneration."

For the subject of his sermon preceding the breaking of the ground Dr. Young took "Emotions That Center in the Sanctuary." The text was from Ezra iii:12 and 13:

"Many that had seen the first house, when the foundation of this house was laid before their eyes, wept with a loud voice; and many shouted aloud for joy. So that the people could not discern the noise of the shout of joy from the noise of the weeping." Dr. Young concluded a strong sermon with these words:

"Emotions, centering in the sanctuary. O rapturous moment wherein they blend in blessed obliteration of all differences! Think not the text describes a jargon of voices—nay, rather, an ecstacy of sanctified feeling, the whole assembly borne beyond itself in transport of communion with God and with each other: 'So that the people could not discern the noise of the shout of joy from the noise of the weeping.' Such a moment as arrived at the dedication of the first temple. It came to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were as one, to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the Lord; and when they lifted up their voice with the trumpets and cymbals and instruments of music and praised the Lord, saying 'For He is good; for His mercy endureth forever: that then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of

Friday, at 4, the Junior League meets under the superintendency of Mrs. I. H. Stryker, jr. Friday evening at 8 the five class meetings meet in their respective places, and at 8:30 a class meeting rally is held by all the classes under the leadership of the pastor.

To-morrow morning, the Rev. Dr. John D. Long, pastor of the Parkside Church, Lenox road near Flatbush avenue, will speak to the question, "Was Jesus a Socialist?" This will be an answer to the sermon last Sunday night in the First Baptist Church, Manhattan, where Dr. I. M. Haldeman answered this question in the negative. Opportunity for questions and discussion will be given, as usual, at the close of the sermon.

In St. Bartholomew's Church to-morrow, the bishop of the diocese will administer the order of confirmation to a large number of candidates at the 11 A.M. service. At 4 P.M., the annual service of the Girls Friendly Society in the Diocese of Long Island will take place, the Bishop presiding, and the Rev. Charles C. Edmunds of the General Theological Seminary will preach the sermon. The clergy and all persons interested in the society are invited to be present. Members and associates will assemble at 3:30 P.M. in the parish house. The usual 7:45 P.M. sermon will be omitted.

Mother's Day will be observed in Bushwick Avenue Church the second Sunday in May, by wearing and bringing of white flowers, which will be sent to "shut-ins." Committees in the classes are to pin flowers on mothers who will all be invited to all departments. It will be a great day in the Sunday school. The pastor, the Rev. H. B. Munson, is to preach a fitting sermon in the morning.

In Welcome Primitive Methodist Church, Classon avenue, near Lafayette, the pastor, the Rev. John J. Lockett, will preach at both services. A public meeting will be held at 2:45 P.M., when addresses on "The Meaning of Life," will be made by Thomas A. Silcock, Thomas W. Leonard, Edward Eastham and others. The pastor will answer questions at the close.

The Rev. A. H. C. Morse of the Strong Place Baptist Church will speak at the Central Y. M. C. A., at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. His subject will be "The Derelict." Music will be supplied by Miss Gertrude Finsten, violinist. All men are invited.

Mr. Badger will preach in Unity Church to-morrow morning. Sunday school will meet at the usual hour, 9:45 A.M.

The Rev. Dr. Robert MacDonald, pastor of the Washington Avenue Baptist Church, will preach to-morrow morning, answering two important questions received through the mails from two men who heard the Easter sermon, "Putting on Immortality." The questions are: "Is Immortality Inherent in us all, or Conditioned on Faith and Christ?" "Which is More Reliable, the Work of the Psychical Research Society to Prove Immortality, or the Christian Intuition of It in the Believer's Heart?" He will also take in a large number of new members. Gounod's "Gallia" will be sung in full at the evening musical service. Miss Gouyon, soprano, with enlarged chorus. Robert Wrigester, director. Dr. MacDonald will speak.

In Grace Presbyterian Church, Stuyvesant and Jefferson avenues, the Rev. W. Dempster Chase, general secretary of the New York State Sabbath Association, will preach to-morrow morning on "Sabbath Observance," and in the evening the pastor, the Rev. Robert H. Carson, will preach on "A Cry for Rest."

To-morrow evening, under the direction of G. Waring Stebbins, organist, a praise service will be given in Emmanuel Baptist Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place. Spohr's cantata "God, Thou Art Great," and Calkins' Magnificat are among the selections. Mr. Stebbins will give three organ numbers. In the morning the Rev. Dr. Spenser B. Meeser will preach.

The Rev. Dr. Allan Douglas Carlile, pastor of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, will preach at both services to-morrow. In the morning the choir will sing the anthems "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Schnecker; "O, Jesus, Thou Art Standing," Shepard. The quartet for next year will be: Miss Ethel King, soprano; Mrs. Jessie Lockitt, contralto; W. B. Clark, tenor; John Barrowman, baritone; C. W. Allen, organist and choir director.

The Rev. Dr. John H. Willey has returned from a short stay at Atlantic City and will be in his pulpit at St. Mark's M. E. Church to-morrow. Holy communion will be celebrated in the morning. In the evening the subject of the sermon will be "The Prayer God Invites Us to Make." On Monday evening the official board of the church will meet for reorganization and election of officers.

There will be installation service and Holy Communion administered to the Siloam Presbyterian congregation tomorrow at 3 P.M. in the A. M. E. Zion Memorial Church, on Bridge street, between Myrtle avenue and Willoughby street. The Rev. C. L. Butler of Manhattan will preach the sermon.

The Rev. L. O. Rotenbach, M.A., pastor of Bethany Presbyterian Chrch, McDonough street and Howard avenue, will begin a series of sermon talks for Sunday evenings in May to-morrow. His topic will be "A Certain Maid." The others will be announced in their order. They are planned to be short practical talks. Selections by the new quartet.

In the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, corner of Lincoln place, the pastor, the Rev. Gwilym Oswald Griffith, will preach to-morrow morning, and at the conclusion of the sermon will extend the hand of fellowship to new members and administer the ordinance of the Lord's Supper. In the evening there will be a service of praise, with an address by the pastor. The choir, under the direction of Russell Carter, will sing "The Day Is Past and Over," Marks; "Hark, Hark My Soul," Shelley; "O Sing Unto the Lord," Buck; "List, the Cherubic Host," Gaul; "The Lord Is King," Marston. The organ selections include Gaul's "Adoration" and Calkin's "Festal March."

In Park Slope Church, Eighth avenue and Second street, the pastor, the Rev. Robert W. McLaughlin, will preach at both services. In the morning the subject will be "Roots or Fruit." In the evening the subject will be "A Look Into the Least Interesting Chapter of the New Testament."

In the Prospect Heights Presbyterian Church, corner Eighth avenue and Tenth street, the Rev. Dr. E. D. Bailey will preach to-morrow morning on the general topic: "Is Jesus Making Good His Claims and Promises?" In the evening he will continue the historical addresses on "The Times of Paul and the Cæsars," the special theme being, "Some of the Visions Which Influenced the Life of Paul." The installation of Dr. Bailey will take place Wednesday, May 5, at 8 P.M. The Rev. Dr. Joseph Dunn Burrell will preside, the Rev. Amos Judson Bailey, A.M., will preach the sermon; the Rev. Dr. D. W. Skellenger and the Rev. W. H. Hendrickson will give the charges to the people and pastor. Other parts will be by the Rev. J. G. Snyder, the Rev. William Bishop Gates and the Rev. J. J. McDonald.

The Rev. M. G. Dickinson, pastor of the East End Baptist Church, 267 Van Sicklen avenue, will preach morning and evening to-morrow. His evening subject will be, "An Answer to Lyman Abbott's Personality of God; or, Who and What Is God?"

In the Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Clermont and Willoughby avenues, the Rev. William J. Thompson, pastor, Holy Communion and reception of members to-morrow morning; Epworth League devotional service at 6:45. In the evening the pastor will preach on "Contemplation and Action." Monday evening, Epworth League social and reception to the new assistant pastor, the Rev. George E. Silloway. The new quartet, consisting of Mrs. W. L. Hull, Miss Grace W. Duncan, W. L. Watson and R. B. McElvery, will render the following numbers under the direction of Albert Reeves Norton, organist and director: "Jesu, Word of God Incarnate," Mozart; "God So Loved the World," Stainer; "He Shall Come Down Like Rain," Buck.

In the Nostrand Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Holy Communion will be administered and members received tomorrow morning. At this time the beautiful individual Communion service recently presented to the church by Mrs. Elizabeth K. Lyle, in memory of her husband, Jabez M. Lyle, long a useful and beloved member of that church, will be used. The evening service will be informal. Popular hymns will be sung. The pastor, Dr. McCormick, will preach on "What Are You Thinking About?" Miss Anna L. Case, the new soprano soloist, will sing. Miss Case has recently been the soloist in the First Presbyterian Church in Plainfield, N. J. She has also had experience in concert, where she has been heard with favor. The whole service will be kept within one hour. Strangers, especially those who have no settled church home, will be welcomed.

In St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Claude H. Priddy, pastor, Bedford avenue and Wilson street, Holy Communion will be observed tomorrow morning. In the evening, beginning at 7:30, a 15-minute organ recital will be given by the new organist, C. H. H. Booth. The following compositions by Mr. Booth will be sung by the chorus at the evening service: "Sanctus from Mass Number Three," "Benedictus from Mass Number Four," and "The Lord Is My Shepherd." The pastor's evening subject will be "The Fly of a Summer's Day."

Bishop Burgess will visit Christ Church, Clinton and Harrison streets, for confirmation to-morrow night. Dean Williams will preach at the morning service. Adult baptism will be administered in the church at 7:15 P.M.

In Bethany Reformed Church, Clermont avenue, the Rev. Dr. James Demarest, pastor, the Lord's Supper will be celebrated to-morrow morning, with preaching by the pastor in the evening. All welcome.

In Wells Memorial Presbyterian Church, Foster ave, and East Thirteenth street, the pastor, the Rev. William Bishop Gates, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Voice of Silence." In the evening he will read the third chapter in the serial story, which takes the place of the sermon, entitled, "Trapped by Circumstance," a tale of slum life drawn from the actual experience of the writer, the pastor of the church. The chapter is entitled, "A Hospital Experience." The closing concert in the entertainment course will be given on May 21, and will be "Home Talent" night, those who have assisted the church musically taking part.

In Puritan Congregational Church, Lafayette and Marcy avenues, the pastor, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Strengthening Presence of God," and in the evening on "Theirs Is the K

GOVERNMENT WINS COMMODITIES CASE

U. S. Supreme Court Reverses the Decision of the Circuit Court.

AS TO COAL-CARRYING ROADS.

Makes It Unlawful for Railroad Companies to Transport Articles Mined by It.

608 Fourteenth Street.

Washington, May 3—Some of the biggest railroad systems in the country sustained a severe body blow to-day, when the Supreme Court of the United States reversed the decision of the United States Circuit Court. Many of the big roads will have to divest themselves of their coal properties, provided Congress does not come to their relief.

In the brief time allowed for an analysis of the decision, which was read by Justice White, it appears that as construed by the court, the rate law provides that a road may not haul in interstate traffic an article such as coal when it directly owns and controls the production of such an article. A road, however, is not barred from hauling such commodity merely because it owns the stock of the concern producing the commodity. This interest in the article does not constitute a legal interest in or title to the commodity on the part of the hauling road.

Under this interpretation the Pennsylvania Railroad, which owns the shares of a large number of coal companies, may haul the product of these companies. The Reading Company will not be greatly hurt, as much of its interest in coal properties is in the shape of stock ownership in subsidiary companies. The Delaware and Hudson, the Delaware and Lackawanna, the Lehigh Valley and the Norfolk and Western all stated, in the evidence that they owned and operated coal mines directly. Under the court's decision they will have to get rid of these properties.

Some of them also have stock interest in outside mining properties. The decision to-day overturns in large part the recent decision of the United States Circuit Court of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, which declared the commodities clause to be unconstitutional.

Summary of Supreme Court's Opinion.

"1. The claim of the government that the provision contained in the Hepburn act approved June 29, 1906, commonly called the commodities clause, prohibits a railroad company from moving commodities in interstate commerce because the company has manufactured, mined or produced them, or owned them in whole or in part, or has had an interest direct or indirect in them, wholly irrespective of the relation or connection of the carrier with the commodities at the time of the transportation, is decided to be untenable. It is also decided that the provision of the commodities clause relating to interest, direct or indirect, does not embrace an interest which a carrier may have in a producing corporation as the result of the ownership by the carrier of stock in such corporation irrespective of the amount of stock which the carrier may own in such corporation, provided the corporation has been organized in good faith.

"2. Rejecting the construction placed by the government upon the commodities clause it is decided that that clause when all its provisions are harmoniously construed, has solely for its object to prevent carriers engaged in interstate commerce from being associated in interest at the time of transportation with the commodities transported and therefore the comodities clause only prohibits railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce from transporting in such commerce commodities under the following circumstances and conditions: A—When the commodity has been manufactured, mined or produced by a railway company or under its authority and at the time of transportation the railway company has not in good faith before the act of transportation parted with its interest in such commodity. B—When the railway company owns the commodity to be transported in whole or in part. C—When the railway company at the time of transportation has an interest direct or indirect in a legal sense in the commodity, which last prohibition does not apply to commodities manufactured, mined, produced, owned, etc., by a corporation because a railway company is a stockholder in such corporation. Such ownership of stock in a producing company by a railway company does not cause it as the owner of the stock to have a legal interest in the commodity manufactured, etc., by the producing corporation.

Within the Power of Congress to Enact.

"3. As thus construed the commodities clause is a regulation of commerce within the power of Congress to enact. The contentions elaborately argued for the railroad companies that the clause if applied to pre-existing rights will operate to take property of railroad companies and therefore violate the due process clause of the fifth amendment, were all based upon the asumption that the clause prohibited and restricted in accordance with the construction which the government gave that clause and for the purpose of enforcing which prohibitions these suits were brought.

"As the construction which the government placed upon the act and seeks to enforce is not held to be unsound and as none of the contentions relied upon are applicable to the act as now constructed under such construction the commerce by which carriers are compelled to dissociate themselves from the products which they carry and does not prohibit where the carrier is not associated with the commodity carrier, it follows that the contentions on the subject of the fifth amendment are without merit.

"4. The exemption as to timber, etc., contained in teh clause is not repugnant to the constitution.

"5. The provision as to penalties is separable from the other provisions of the act. As no recovery of penalties was prayed, no issue concerning them is here presented. It will be time enough to consider whether the right to recover penalties exists when an attempt to collect penalties is made.

"6. As the construction now given the act differs so widely from the construction which the government gave to the act and which it was the purpose of these suits to enforce, it is held that it is not necessary, in reversing and reminding, to direct the character of decrees which shall be entered, but simply to reverse and remand the case with instructions to enforce and apply the statute as it is now construed.

"7. As the Delaware and Hudson Company is engaged as a common carrier by rail in the transportation of coal in the channels of interstate commerce it is a railway company within the purview of the commodities clause and is subject to the provisions of that clause as they are now construed."

Former Decision Rendered by U. S. Circuit Court.

The decision on the commodities clause which was reversed by the United States Supreme Court to-day was rendered by the United States Circuit Court, at Philadelphia, on September 10, and at that time upheld the contention of the coal roads. The Circuit Court declared the commodities clause of the Hepburn act unconstitutional.

Decision Affects the Stock Market.

Philadelphia and Reading stock slumped three points in the New York stock market on the announcement of the commodities decision and the rest of the market weakened moderately. Before 1 o'clock Reading recovered its loss and the whole market became intensely dull. Delaware and Hudson lost 1¼ and Pennsylvania 1 on the break, but recovered the losses.

Meaning of the Commodities Ruling.

One of the leading counsel for the coal roads in the commodity clause case, concerning the decision handed down by the United States Supreme Court, said: "While the court declares the law constitutional, it puts a new construction on it which will enable many of the roads to continue operating under the same conditions as now.

"As I construe the decision it means that a railroad which does now own coal lands outright but does own the stock of roads controlling the lands may continue to transport the coal the same as they do now. The courts ruling excepts them from the provisions of the law. This would apply to Reading or Pennsylvania, both of which concerns simply own the stock of coal companies. In part the ruling applies to Lehigh Valley, Jersey Central, Ontario and Western and New York Central. The decision also seems to make it clear that any road owning coal lands outright may comply with the law if it sells the output of its mines within the state.

"This condition applies to the Delaware and Hudson. That company owns its coal lands outright, but has been in the habit of selling its output within the state of Pennsylvania, and it may continue to do so at the present time without violating the Hepburn act. The decision clearly indicates that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad will have to divest itself of its coal properties. That company owns its coal lands direct, and since the Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the law the railroad will have to take steps toward getting rid of its property at once. A plan for this is being worked on now."

MAY BEAT BETTING LAW.

Sheepshead Bay Club to Cater to Bookmakers and Their Clients.

Baltimore, May 3—Letters have been received from the Sheepshead Bay Club of New York by prominent turfmen now attending the Pimlico meeting, in this city, that have caused great rejoicing among the turfites now gathered here, outlining the plans by which a meeting with open betting may be held in New York, in spite of the Hart-Agnew anti-betting law, which went into effect last spring.

These plans were decided on at a meeting of the club held on April 15 last. The entire second floor of the clubhouse has been decorated and elaborately furnished and converted into bachelor apartments for the use of members only. Private rolltop desks have been placed in these rooms and on the first floor, which will be rented out to bookmakers and members at popular prices, and will be for the benefit of members who desire to transact business to and from the clubhouse.

Any person entering into transactions with these bookmakers must be a bona-fide member of the club, and it is thought that, as the club is a private institution, the members will be exempt from any interference under the Hart-Agnew law. In view of this, the limit of membership will be raised and the dues placed at $25 a year.

The club is not the Coney Island Jockey Club, which conducts the race meetings, but a social organization with headquarters opposite the track, on Ocean avenue.

PREACHERS OPPOSE BILL

Permitting Saloons Within 200 Feet of Private Schools.

Vigorous action was taken this morning by the Brooklyn and Long Island Preachers Association in regard to the Conklin-Allds Bill recently passed by the state legislature. This bill, unless it is vetoed by the governor, will permit of the erection of saloons within the present 200-foot limit of private schools in the state. One of the ministers at the meeting this morning characterized the measure as the "entering wedge of Satan into the life of the state." Upon motion it was voted to telegraph Governor Hughes of the unanimous opinion of the association on the question, and ask him to give consideration to the matter of vetoing the measure.

The association of preachers, which includes all the Methodist clergymen of Long Island, was held this morning in the lecture room of the Central branch of the Y. M. C. A., on Fulton street. There was a good attendance at the meeting. The feature of the occasion was a speech by ex-Judge Wallace, of Nassau County, one of the oldest members of the Methodist Church in Freeport. The judge spoke on the topic, "How can Methodism Better Advance the Cause of Christ?"

The speaker decried the present day conditions in allowing Socialism to come so prominently to the fore. Socialism, he said, is headed by a band of agnostics. These men are professing their entire disagreement with the fact that there was a Christ. On the other hand, they have incorporated into their teachings and their propaganda all the Christian teachings—especially that great teaching of the Sermon on the Mount, of the brotherhood of mankind and the fatherhood of God.

Judge Wallace spoke of the Lord's Prayer and the Sermon on the Mount as the greatest sermons that have ever been given to mankind, and said that their influence would never fade. He called upon the Methodist Church to help meet the demands of the present condition and to advance the teachings of Christianity, rather than to leave it to the Socialists, who gave no credit to the Christ for His teachings.

The Rev. Dr. Cunningham read a paper on the life of the late Rev. George Taylor, who died in February. Routine business of the association occupied the remainder of the meeting.

NEW GLEN COVE HOTEL

Glen Cove, L. I., May 3—Work on the big annex to The Hall, at the landing, which J. Harvey Ladew is building, is well advanced. It will be much larger and more imposing than the original building.

The Hall occupies a fine site overlooking the harbor and Sound, and when enlarged will be one of the biggest and finest hotels on Long Island. It will be ready for occupancy in June.

THE TURKISH CABINET RESIGNS FROM OFFICE

Situation Is Bewildering and No One Can Tell What the Outcome Will Be.

THIRTEEN TURKS HANGED.

Sentenced to Death by Military Courts for Murders in the Capital.

Constantinople, May 3—The Turkish Cabinet resigned to-day. The political situation is bewildering, and no one can tell what the outcome will be. This latest ministry was organized April 30, with Tewfik Pasha as grand vizier.

Thirteen civilians and soldiers, sentenced by the military courts to death for murder, were hanged in different parts of Constantinople at 4 o'clock this morning.

Major Yousset, his son, and three other men, who killed the Syrian Deputy Emir Mohammed Arslan in front of the parliament building, were executed on the spot where they committed the crime. Five others were hanged at the entrance of the Ministry of War, and three men at the Stamboul end of the Galata Bridge.

Upon the breast of each criminal had been pinned a large placard in Turkish that can be read at a considerable distance, setting forth the sentence of the court. Around the foot of the gibbets on the bridge the early morning buying of fruits, flowers and vegetables proceeded as usual, while the bodies were in full sight of the great crowds that make their way over the bridge between Stamboul and Galata.

Major Youssef was commandant of the first battalion of the Seventh Regiment. Among the non-commissioned officers executed was Hamdi Bin Yeohar, a sergeant in the fourth battalion of the Saloniki Chausseurs. The men executed on Galata Bridge were guilty of murder of Lieutenant Ellis.

Major Youssef was the man who, after the murder of Deputy Arslan, made his way to the House of Parliament, and in a speech denounced the members for acting against the laws of the Koran. Yechar was the man who planned the details of the revolt of April 13 and who was commander-in-chief and practically dictator of Constantinople for the two days following. The other eleven men worked under Yechar.

Mourad, editor of the newspaper Nizam, is being tried by court martial to-day.

A member of the court martial read the sultan's firman confirming the sentences at each place of execution and priests prayed with the condemned men for two hours before their execution. The bodies were left hanging until 2 o'clock this afternoon, and were seen by at least 100,000 of the population of the city.

Documentary evidence has been discovered among the records of the telegraph office here of the knowledge of the Constantinople authorities, that massacres had been planned for the Adana district, and that they were to coincide with the political events here.

Other papers have been found indicating also that the conspirators at the Palace acted in the Sultan's name in preparing the military mutiny of April 13. Lists of houses, with notes on the kind of loot to be found therein, were discovered on some of the prisoners now in custody. The arrangements included a general massacre of foreigners in Constantinople, including the diplomatic representatives, on April 24.

London, May 3—A special dispatch received here from Constantinople says the Turkish cabinet has resigned and that Hilmi Pasha will be the new grand vizier.

Latakia, Asiatic Turkey, May 3—A number of refugees who sought shelter here are returning to-day to Kessab. They are accompanied by the Rev. J. M. Balph, M.D., a missionary of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in the United States. The government is distributing some food to the refugees.

Aintab, Asiatic Turkey, May 3—The refugees in Aintab were moved to-day to sanitary camps outside the town.

WILD NIGHT ON THE SHIP

Court Martial Follows Incident at New Orleans.

Jackies Tapped Five-Gallon Can of Alcohol, With Dire Results.

Thomas Murray, a water tender on board the U. S. S. Tacoma, now in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, is to be tried by the general court martial of the yard for having converted the boiler-room of the vessel into a Russian bath on the night of February 25, when the cruiser was at New Orleans. Murray was in charge of the fireroom watch at the time. Steam was up in two boilers, and they might have exploded for all he seemed to care. He was found "dead to the world," stretched out on the bed plates of the boilers, while the latter were rumbling above him at a furious rate.

That night of February 25, 1909, was a wild one on board the cruiser, according to a report filed with the Navy Department by Commander Hood, of the ship. Everybody on board ship "up for'ad" seemed to have been under the influence of some intoxicant. The fire and engine-room forces were completely demoralized. Samuel Starr, a coal-passer, is described in Commander Hood's report as having been crazy from drink. He assaulted the warrant machinist in the engine-room, and when the master-at-arms attempted to arrest him he proceeded to lay him out.

Upon investigation it was found that a five-gallon can that had been full of alcohol, but which had been tapped generously, was found in the drum-room of the ship. Murray was in charge of this compartment. How the alcohol got there no one would tell, and the officers are still mystified.

The upshot of the affair will be the trial of Murray and Starr on serious charges. They are to be defended by George Hiram Mann, of 60 Wall street, formerly a lieutenant in the navy.

GAS KILLS TRUANT OFFICER.

From gas poisoning, William J. Philbin, 35 years old, a truant officer in the Department of Education, was found dead, this morning, at 312 West Eighty-seventh street, Manhattan. The police believe the death to be accidental.

SHE WOULD PREFER DEATH,

Said Mrs. Siegel to Court, to Living With Husband.

During the testimony which Mrs. Lizzie Siegel gave against her husband, whom she charged with abandonment, in the Manhattan av. police court, this morning, the woman threatened to commit suicide and end the life of their child, if she had to live with the man any longer.

"You won't have to do that," said Magistrate O'Reilly. "He'll pay you $2 a week, beginning next Saturday, and he's got to keep away from you altogether."

Richard Siegel, once a baker, but now a lumberman, was the defendant. Magistrate O'Reilly told him to look for a "new boarding place," and to go to his wife's home, at 1033 Flushing avenue, to-night, and get his clothes. His wife said the ones he wore in court were the only ones he had, and Siegel admitted that this was so.

MARKER SAVED BY MEDAL

Boatswain Was Accused of Falsehood and Embezzlement.

He Saved Lives of Captain Angel and Companion and Received Medal.

Herbert F. Marker, a boatswain in the United States Navy, attached to the battleship Rhode Island, now in the local navy yard, was saved from a stiff sentence at the hands of the general court martial of the yard, by a medal of honor awarded him in 1906 by Congress upon the decommendation of Beekman Winthrop, now assistant secretary of the navy, then governor of Porto Rico.

Marker saved the lives of Captain Laurance Angel of the Porto Rican infantry, and a companion, in 1906. The captain and his companion were ship wrecked on a dangerous reef under the high cliffs upon which had been built the Spanish stronghold at San Juan, P. R. The tide was rising and the two men were in momentary danger of being swept from their narrow foothold. How to reach them became the question. Such a nea was running that it was said no small boat could live in it, but Marker, seizing upon a gasoline launch moored alongside of a dock, braved the surf and, in constant danger of being swamped, he reached the reef, took off the men and brought them safely to shore. For this he received the medal.

Marked was accused before the court of falsehood and of having fraudulently converted the funds of the mess to his own use. His trial lasted all last week. George H. Man of 60 Wall street, was his attorney, and Mr. Man said this morning that from information he had received from Washington, the court was very lenient with his client. He was absolved of embezzlement, but was found not guilty of falsehood. What his punishment will be is not known. He has a splendid record.

KILLS ANOTHER LION

Roosevelt Shoots One at Wami, Near Kapiti.

Nairobi, British East Africa, May 3—Theodore Roosevelt bagged one more lion yesterday at Wami, near Kapiti. This gives him a total of three lions and one lioness on the present expedition. Kermit Roosevelt succeeded in bringing down a cheetah or leopard. The hunting was exciting and both marksmen did excellent work.

It is rumored in native sources, but the report lacks confirmation, that the Roosevelt party will arrive at Nairobi May 15, before proceeding to Sotik.

The lion killed by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday was brought down at close range. His quick work with the rifle saved the lives of some of his mounted escort, who had narrow escapes from the infuriated beast. The accuracy of Mr. Roosevelt's marksmanship is a matter of astonishment.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S TROUBLES.

A telegram from Pittsburg states that an attachment for the arrest of Pastor Charles T. Russell has been issued in that city for failure to pay alimony to his wife. Pastor Russell recently moved to Brooklyn, taking over the old Plymouth Bethel in Hicks street as a place of worship.

He also moved to this city the headquarters of the Millennial Dawn and Watch Tower Society of which he is the head.

Pastor Russell—he does not want to be called doctor or reverend—was divorced by his wife on a charge of cruelty. She was at first awarded $40 a month alimony, but this was later raised to $100.

The pastor refused to pay more than $40 and proceedings were started to have him arrested for contempt of court. The telegram from Pittsburg indicates that the wife was victorious in this action.

Pastor Russell cannot be arrested here on the Pittsburg court's order, it is said, but will be taken into custody if he returns to Pittsburg.

NEW SAVINGS BANK.

Bay Ridge is soon to have a savings bank. For years the residents of the Eighth Ward have wanted a bank that would be convenient to Bay Ridge, Borough Park and Bath Beach. Their wish will be gratified on or about July 1, when the Bay Ridge Savings Bank is opened for business.

In this section there are about 20,000 residents, and the nearest savings bank now miles away. The new bank is to be located in the southerly end of the Eighth Ward, at either Fifth or Third avenue and Sixtieth street.

Counselor Charles A. Clayton of 11 Court street is looking after the incorporation of the bank, and he stated this morning that its establishment was now a certainty. There are nineteen incorporators, and their combined capital is more than five millions.

KATHAN GUEST OF HONOR; WINE LUNCHEON JOLLY

DEPUTY SHERIFF VERY EASY.

Sheriff Hobley Will Try to Find Out Why Convict Wasn't Taken to Jail at Once.

The light sentence which Justice Kelly in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court imposed upon Rutherford W. Kathan, the lawyer who was convicted of bribery, was made the occasion last Friday of a gay wine luncheon, at which Kathan was the guest of honor. According to report, some guests in the party had to be assisted to their homes after the festivities were over. Kathan was not returned to the Raymond street jail, it is understood, until late that afternoon. Sheriff Hobley is making a thorough investigation.

Kathan, it will be recalled, was the lawyer who represented Louis Wolf, the notorious pickpocket who was accused of stealing $50 from Frank Heibele, a butcher in the Eastern District. Through Engelhardt Heene, a saloonkeeper, Kathan returned the money which Heibele lost. That formed the basis of the bribery charge. He was convicted on Tuesday night, and was remanded by Justice Kelly for sentence last Friday morning.

Following the imposition of the sentence, which was not less than fourteen months or more than fifteen months, Kathan was remanded to the custody of the sheriff. He had been brought from the jail by Deputy Sheriff Baird, and upon him devolved the duty to return Kathan to the jail as soon as the sentence had been imposed, which was completed a few minutes after 10 o'clock in the morning.

But that was not done. The court room was crowded with Kathan's friends at the time he was sentenced. Among them was many of the witnesses who had testified in his behalf. "Charlie" Gall, who is employed by Luke O'Reilly, one of Kathan's lawyers, was in the party. So was a man by the name of Lipsky, another by the name of Hamburger and his partner, a man by the name of Levy. They all crowded around Kathan after sentence had been pronounced and he was taken out of the courtroom. While they were sorry over his predicament, they were gratified that Justice Kelly had seen fit to impose such a light sentence, as they termed it.

It is not known who proposed the idea, but it was decided before Kathan left the court house that the party would indulge in some sort of a celebration. Kathan's friends figured it out that the certificate of reasonable doubt which his attorneys are seeking might be refused and then he would have to begin the serving of his sentence immediately. In that event he would never have the opportunity again of enjoying the good things of life until he had finished his sentence. So they concluded to give him the opportunity before he was taken back to the jail.

The celebration might have been conducted in any of the numerous cafes in the vicinity of the Borough Hall, but Kathan's friends decided that the only proper way was to take him to East New York, where he practiced law prior to his conviction and where he might meet all his other friends who could not come down to court. And to East New York the party went. The Palace Hotel, where all the sporting men and politicians meet, was selected as the place. Kathan was well known there and he got an enthusiastic reception. For more than a half an hour he was busily engaged in shaking hands and receiving the sympathetic assurances of how sorry his friends were to find him in his present plight. After the informal reception was over Kathan was taken to the restaurant of the hotel.

There an elaborate spread had been laid out. At the table, where the party sat down, were wine coolers, in the ice of which rested bottles of sparkling champagne. The past, with its trials and tribulations, was forgotten. The party only talked of the future, amid the cheerful popping of the champagne corks and the draining of the bubbling water in the glasses.

As the hours went by some of the members of the party who had imbibed too freely began to express their feelings in sympathetic tears amid the flow of which they assured Kathan that they believed that his conviction was an unjust one. They pledged him their undying friendship and earnestly hoped that he would soon be set at liberty.

Darkness was beginning to fall when the festivities came to an end. There was a tearful leavetaking between Kathan and his friends. It was only when the men in whose custody Kathan was, intimated that the time had come when he must be taken back to the Raymond Street Jail that his friends consented to let him go. Then there was another round of handshaking and Kathan left on his return journey to the jail.

His departure had a most depressing effect upon the other men who had been in the party and they proceeded to drown their sorrows in more wine. When they had accomplished their purpose some of them were quite unsteady on their legs and had to be escorted home. It was the greatest event from a champagne standpoint that has taken place in East New York in a great many years.

An effort was made to communicate with the Palace Hotel this morning. A man who gave the name of "Dick" and said that he was manager, answered the telephone. When he was asked if it were true that Kathan had been there on Friday he declined to talk.

"I know nothing," he said. "If you want any information you will have to speak to the proprietor."

Further inquiries elicited the information that the proprietor was out of town.

BIG L. I. CITY LEASE.

Steinway & Co. Take McClure Building, Near Queensboro Bridge.

Steinway & Sons, piano manufacturers, have leased, through Harry P. Williams, for a long term of years, the big brick McClure building in the south side of Jackson avenue, near Orchard street, which cost about $350,000.

It is in close proximity to the Queensboro Bridge, and was built by the McClure Publishing Company for its own business and for several other concerns, proposed tenants, but the latter, backing out of their agreements because of hard times coming on, it has remained idle.

The Steinway people say that their business has outgrown their present establishments at Steinway, and Fourteenth and Fifty-third streets, Manhattan, and they propose to bring to the McClure Building 250 skilled mechanics and a force of artists at once.

FOUGHT DUEL WITH KNIVES.

Italians Quarreled During Card Game at Woodhaven—One Slashed on the Cheek.

Stilettos flashed last night at the corner of Rockaway road and Morris avenue, Woodhaven, when two Italians fought a duel after a dispute over a card game. One of the men was stabbed in the right cheek, but the wound was slight.

The combatants were Dominick Deponte, 21 years old, of 40 Morris avenue, Woodhaven, and Frank Asando, 23, of the same address. The men with others had a game of cards, playing for money, and Deponte's luck was marvelous. Asando openly accused Deponte of cheating. Hot words followed and then it was decided to have it out in the street with cold steel.

For several seconds the two men slashed at each other with their knives. Their clothes were rent, but no blood was shed until Asando plunged his blade into Deponte's right cheek. To prevent further bloodshed, the friends of the duelists parted them.

Blood was gushing from Deponte's cheek. The police reserves were summoned from the Ozone Park precinct station house, some exciter person having notified headquarters at Jamaica that a small riot was in progress.

A large crowd which had gathered was quickly dispersed and an ambulance was summoned fgrom Jamaica Hospital. The surgeon dressed Deponte's wound which was slight and he was left at his home.

Asando escaped and the police are now looking for him.

HAS ELUSIVE WIFE

Mrs. Mamie Learey Insists on Running Away.

Skipped on Wedding Day and Several Times Since—Met in Chinatown.

Mrs. Mamie Learey, 18 years old, of 343 Baltic street, who it is said met her husband in Chinatown, Manhattan, where he fell in love with and subsequently married her, was arrested to-day by Court Officer McQuillan, at the Center street police court, Manhattan. Mr. Learey, who is between 50 and 60 years of age and the father of two little girls respectively, aged 11 and 13 years, has had considerable trouble with his young wife since they were married in November last in St. Agnes's R. C. Church, Hoyt and Sackett streets. The wedding was quite an affair, too. The invitations were conspicuous for their size and the jet blackness of the printer's ink used thereon. But Mamie evidently did not believe in settling down to matrimonial cares and responsibilities and she disappeared on the wedding night. She appeared before Magistrate Dooley in the Myrtle avenue court the next day, which was Monday, and Mrs. L. E. Taylor, probationary officer, explained to the judge that the defendant was a bride and after the court had warned her of the folly of her ways, sentence was suspended.

Four weeks later she again appeared in the Myrtle avenue court. Magistrate Steers was presiding there at the time and he promptly gave Mamie ten days in jail. A few minutes after she had gone down in the van the woman's husband came running into court and anxiously inquired after her, saying that he wished to pay her fine. Magistrate Steers would not allow him to do this and said that Learey ought to be ashamed of himself for choosing a woman of that disposition to take charge of his young children. A month after that the young woman was again arrested and she was placed in the care of Mrs. Taylor. At the end of the first month Mrs. Taylor made a good report of her charge, saying that the latter was living with a respectable family.

Judge Naumer extended the period of probation to three months. One week after that she again disappeared and her whereabouts was not ascertained until to-day, when her husband informed Mrs. Taylor that she was over in the Center street police court, Manhattan. The charge against her was intoxication and habitual drunkenness. Her husband told the court that he had given his eighteen-year-old bride $200 on the night of the wedding with which to buy clothing, and he seemed to be smitten with her. Magistrate Naumer adjourned the case and the girl may be sent to the Bedford Reformatory.

WHERE IS SCHROEDER'S WIFE?

Chef of the Elks Club of Sacramento, Cal., Advertised for Her.

An advertisement has been sent to several New York newspapers by Ernest Schroeder of the Elks Club of Sacramento, Cal., asking that any one who knew where his wife Emma is, should send him word. Especial dispatch to the Eagle from Sacramento tells the meaning of his queer advertisement.

Sacramento, Cal., May 3—Ernest Schroeder, chef in the Elks Club came into peculiar prominence recently by advertising in the press for funds to take him to New York where he wanted to meet his wife Emma before she sailed for England. His description of his wife indicated that she is a woman of considerable natural beauty.

According to Schroeder's story, he was proprietor of a small restaurant in Chico, Cal., when he began gambling, and lost his money. At that time, friends in England, where Mrs. Schroeder had formerly been employed as a maid, sent her a return ticket to England, that she might resume her original position in the family. This, Schroeder says, she refused to do, on account of her loyalty to him during his misfortunes.

Two months ago Schroeder came to Sacramento, leaving his wife at Chico to work as a waitress in a hotel. Being in ill health, she grew despondent, and suddenly made use of her ticket to England, taking with her their young son. Her husband, a German, is frantic to locate her, and has repeatedly threatened suicide if no one supplies him with funds to follow her to New York. He was unable to support the woman.

WOMAN WAS HANDCUFFED.

Three women who made so much trouble when one of them was being arrested that several policemen were called in to arrest all three, were arraigned in the Manhattan avenue police court before Magistrate O'Reilly this morning, one charged with violating the Sunday law by selling groceries and the others for interfering with an officer. The testimony brought out by the lawyer for one of the women showed that a policeman, O'Connors, of the Stagg street station, had handcuffed her in making the arrest. She was Mrs. A. Stones of 191 McKibbin street. O'Connors said she was using hands and nails with such good effect that he had to use the "nippers" to pacify her.

Mrs. Gertrude Maconlok, 24 years old, of 191 McKibbin street, was the woman charged with violating the Sunday law at her grocery store at that address. Mrs. Rebecca Ancher, 47 years old, of 189 McKibbin street, was the other woman arraigned, charged with interfering with an officer. The three were paroled for examination on Wednesday.

VICTIM DIES OF WOUND; POLICEMAN DILLON HELD

SHOT AT THE TELEPHONE.

Merchant Kept Store Open on Sunday. Slain Youth's Mother Hysterical in Court.

Louis Prober, aged 19 years, of 217 Myrtle avenue, who was shot through the intestines by Patrolman James F. Dillon of the Adams street police station yesterday morning because, as the family claim, he was defending his father, Isaac, from assault by the officer, died in the Brooklyn Hospital at 5 o'clock this morning, and Dillon was immediately placed under arrest by Captain William F. Fennelly of the precinct. Under orders from Borough Inspector Russell and District Inspector Holahan the man had been under constant surveillance from the time the report of the shooting was received at the station. Dillon was held without bail after arraignment in the Adams street police court on a complaint filed by Gussie Prober, the mother. The woman became hysterical in court when the accused policeman was brought in and was led out weeping bitterly. Her grief enlisted the pity of the spectators. Dillon was represented by Lawyer Edward J. Reilly, who also defended Policeman Dawkins, recently convicted of burglary. Dillon's case was set down for a hearing on May 17.

The fatality was the result of an effort by Dillion to force Isaac Prober to close his grocery, green goods and delicatessen shop on Myrtle avenue, not far from Hudson. The Probers say they had in the past been very good to the patrolman on the post, and had supplied him gratuitously with cake and duck eggs, but that when they told him they could not give him more, his manner changed and there was no more chance for them to keep open on Sunday. The story of the neighborhood is that Dillon was an uncommonly active grafter; that he seized a turkey from another man's stock about Christmas time and was enraged when the merchant told him he would have to pay for it; that he got two pairs of shoes from another storekeeper in his district and that it was his habit to get as much as he could for nothing in the course of his perigrinations around his posts. The Probers say that not later than a week ago he entered their store and asked for some cake. He said that he was going to visit a friend in a hospital and wanted to take some cake, so he got a generous contribution from the storekeeper before he went away. It was after that that he was told he would get no more duck eggs.

There seemed to be, on the part of some of the police, a disposition to have things made as easy as possible for the policeman when in court this morning, and, indeed, ever since the shooting. The story the police accept of the tragedy is that of Dillon himself and one or two witnesses they have found, who say that they did not see Dillon shoot. This morning in the Adams street court Captain Fennelly was proceeding to make a charge of homicide against Dillon, but it was no charge of homicide at all. The complaint clerk, Paul J. Donnelly, to whom the captain was dictating the story, stopped taking the affidavit and went to Magistrate Dooley about it.

"From the captain's story," said Donnelly to the magistrate, "it would appear that this case is not one of homicide at all, but one of accident. I don't think we can hold the man on the captain's statement."

"Better get the district attorney here, and some eye-witnesses," said the magistrate, and Dooley thereupon telephoned to District Attorney Clarke, and that official sent Assistant District Attorney Carrao around to take charge of the proceedings. And the statements, which were formed into affidavits against the officer, came from the members of the dead youth's family.

Accused Policeman Charges Prober Family With "Interfering."

Dillon, who is a man of forbidding aspect, had previous to that been making an affidavit against Isaac Prober, the father of the dead boy, charging him with violating the Sunday law, and with "interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duty." He had intended, too, to make complaint against the dead lad's mother and his twelve-year-old brother, Max, charging each of them with "interfering," and he had all this almost ready when Third Deputy Police Commissioner Hanson entered the complaint room and seemed to realize that there was something improper in thus making complaint against the bereaved. That was, the view Magistrate Dooley also took of it, and besides, Lawyer Lazansky, who was formerly Assistant Corporation Counsel had telephoned that he was appearing for the Probers and asked suspension of action against them until he could appera. So it was finally determined that the minor complaints should not be made, but that the charge against Dillon should be taken.

Dillon Declares Grocer's Wife Attacked Him With Knife.

Dillon's story of the shooting, apparently accepted by the police, was that he was instructed, with the other men, on going on post yesterday morning to see to it that all saloons were properly closed, with the barrooms exposed, and that there should be no Sunday trade in other sorts of stores on his post. He was walking along Myrtle avenue when he saw that Isaac Prober was doing business. He ordered him to close up, and then proceeded around his post. The second time he passed Prober's place his store was still open and there were customers in the place. Dillon says he told Prober he would have to put him under arrest. He says he saw the merchant sell potatoes and cabbage to one woman and some corn meal to a negro. The Probers attacked him, he declares, and the negro ran out of the store without stopping to take his change from the counter. One of the Probers, the policeman says, locked the front door and the wife of the storekeeper seized a cheese knife and made jabs at him. In order to protect himself, he alleges, he took his revolver from his left hip pocket and had it in his hand when the weapon exploded and Young Louis Prober fell. He denies the story that young Prober was some distance in the rear of the store when the revolver was fired, trying to call up police headquarters through the store telephone.

The negro customer when found by the police said that he had been in the store buying corn meal. He paid for it with a dollar bill, and when the policeman appeared he ran out. He had had trouble with a relative last week and thought the policeman was after him. He says he looked through the store door, heard the shot that struck the boy, but did not see the shot fired. His narrative, the police think, is not worth much because it is negative.

CALLED TO JAMAICA.

First Presbyterian Church Asks the Rev. B. E. Dickhaut to Become Its Pastor.

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Jamaica last night extended a unanimous call to the Rev. Benjamin E. Dickhaut, pastor of the Collegiate Reformed Church of Harlem, to the pastorate of the Jamaica church. They agreed to give him a salary of $3,000 a year, free rental of the parsonage and a six weeks vacation annually.

The Rev. Mr. Dickhaut preached at Jamaica two weeks ago, and he was so well liked by the congregation that his name was the only name recommended last night for the pastorate. A committee of three, consisting of Amos Denton, and Professors E. D. Shimer and G. H. McNair, was appointed to take the call to the Brooklyn Presbytery and request that Mr. Dickhaut be accepted in that body. It is understood that the Rev. Mr. Dickhaut had agreed before the meeting to accept the call on condition that the inducements offered at last night's meeting were held out to him.

The new pastor will take the pulpit vacated some months ago by the Rev. J. Howard Hobbs, who was called to a large church in Utica, N. Y. Mr. Hobbs had served as pastor of the Jamaica Church for over eighteen years.

The Rev. Dickhaut has had an exceptionally successful career. He was born in Brooklyn, and attended the Polytechnic Institute. He then entered Rutgers College, from which he was graduated in the class of 1884 receiving his M. A. degree the year later. He entered the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, graduating in 1887. His first charge was missionary pastor for the New York Collegiate Church, where he served from 1886 to 1889. He then took a charge at Fishkill, N. Y., until 1896, and subsequently in the South Reformed Church in Brooklyn, where he remained until 1903, going thence to the Harlem church. He is stated clerk of the Classis of New York, member of the Board of Domestic Missions, president of the Particular Classis of New York, and member of the board of superintendents of the Western Theological Seminary.

GRASPING BUILDER BLOCKED.

Erected Tenements on Line of Proposed Street Widening—Can Remain Now—Plans Changed.

The sudden change in the plans originally laid out by the borough officials to widen Pitkin avenue, from East New York avenue to Barrett street, to 130 feet, and the determination to make the whole street 80 feet wide, has given several property owners along Pitkin avenue a pain in the bank roll.

About a year ago there was brought up before the Board of Estimate, by the borough president, a scheme to make Pitkin avenue 130 feet wide from East New York avenue to Stone avenue. Between the former thoroughfare and Barrett street Pitkin avenue is 80 feet wide. No sooner did the plan become known than a builder rushed up a short row of four story brick tenements on the 80-foot line of Pitkin avenue. The buildings stood directly in the path of the proposed widening, and would have had to be torn down if the original plan had been carried out. This would have meant a large award for the owner of the buildings.

The cost of razing this short row of brick buildings made the borough officials change their minds about making Pitkin avenue 130 feet wide. New plans were ordered for an 80-foot thoroughfare, and the new map was filed to-day by Chief Engineer Ward of the Topographical Bureau, so the four story brick tenements can remain where they are.

MISS MORGAN CONFERS.

Talks Over Navy Yard Restaurant Plans With Workmen.

Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. Pierrepont Morgan, who is directing the project of installing and operating a restaurant in the Brooklyn Navy Yard for the benefit of the workmen employed therein, held a conference last night with John F. Walsh, a machinist and secretary of the Allied Trades of the yard, and Patrick F. Duffy, a molder, who has been delegated with Walsh as a committee to represent the workmen. The conference was held in the Waldorf Hotel apartments of Judge and Mrs. E. H. Gary, and was for the purpose of arranging a date and programme for the formal opening of the eating house.

Miss Morgan is acting for the welfare department of the National Women's Federation and was chiefly instrumental in securing the co-operation of the Navy Department in the establishment of the restaurant. The date set originally was June 2, but this has had to be postponed on account of a delay in preparing Building No. 14 for the restaurant installation.

The opening will be held in the evening and the men and their wives will be invited to attend. John Mitchell, the labor leader, is expected to be present to address the men and there will be music and vaudeville.

CAPT. HAINS "QUEER," WITNESSES AGREE

THORNTON'S STORY IS UPHELD

Evidence Aduced to Show Visit to Bay Side Was Made to Inspect Real Estate.

Much headway was made to-day in taking testimony in the trial of Captain Peter C. Hains and by the time court adjourned for the noon recess seven witnesses had completed their testimony. Three of the witnesses had not been heard before. They were Dr. H. A. Rowen, who talked to the captain at Thornton's house last July; Thomas W. Vest, who told of serious injuries sustained by the captain by a fall on shipboard when but 9 years old, and Lieutenant Commander John H. Rowen, U. S. A., who notice dthe irrational conduct of the defendant in the Philippines in March, 1908.

Mrs. Virginia Jenkins Hains, the defendant's mother, was the principal witness this afternoon. She will itell of members of the family who suffered from nervous disorder and of the captain's delicate condition in his boyhood.

It was not intended to have Mrs. Hains testify until the close of the defense, but her physical health has been such that Mr. McIntyre fears to wait any longer, as she may become incapacitated if he should wait to summon her later in the week.

More interest is being taken in the trial, and the court room was crowded most of the morning. Many women were in attendance.

Third Week of Month May See Trial Ended.

Mr. McIntyre, the defendant's senior counsel, said to the Eagle reporter, this morning, that he expects to complete the examination of his witnesses by to-morrow evening. In that event, District Attorney De Witt will start on Thursday morning with the rebuttal, and it is not expected that it will take him more than five or six days to have his witnesses testify. Then will come the defenses's rebuttal and the lawyers' closing addresses and the court's charge to the jury.

This means that unless the attorneys have to change their schedules, the trial of Captain Hains will be over by the third week of this month.

Refuted Hypnotist in Court.

When the court reopened this afternoon there was a strange man present, who seemed to be determined to try and hypnotize the jury. He took a seat where he could face the jurors and kept his eyes fastened upon them, meanwhile making a series of queer motions with his hands, waving them about his face and acting strangely. No one knew who he was, and as he made no disturbance, except to attract attention to himself, he was not interfered with. He is a man of perhaps 50 years and wears a suit of black clothes and a dark beard. He is very pale and his appearance is striking in the extreme.

The Rev. Charles L. Pardee, an Episcopal clergyman, was a witness for the defense this afternoon. He testified to having visited Hains in the jail in December, 1908, and told a story substantially the same as that of Dr. Platt. He declared that the prisoner is insane.

More Testimony to Show Prisoner Was Irrational in 1908.

Dr. H. A. Roden, a well-known Fort Hamilton physician, was the first witness called this morning. He told of having had some experience with lunatics, and then related his visit to the home of Thornton J. Hains, at Bay Ridge, last July, when he was in attendance upon little Mollie, Thornton's daughter. There he met Captain Hains, and he characterized the latter's conduct as irrational. The captain, he said, told him that he was the father of three children, and he knew more about taking care of children than a doctor; that he declared, "I will cure this child. She should be fed eggs and plenty of water." The witness said the captain walked up and down the room and acted irrationally.

Thomas W. West, a negro, a boat steward, now of Washington, was called to tell about the injuries that Captain Hains sustained in 1880, when he was but 9 years old, by falling down a 12-foot hatchway on his father's lighthouse boat off Florida. The witness said the lad was seriously injured on the head, and was unable to get about for some time. During his testimony, West asked to have Captain Hains pointed out to him, as he had not seen him in many years.

Annapolis Classmate of Prisoner Testifies for Him.

Lieutenant Commander John H. Rowen, U.S.N., who was a classmate of the defendant at the Naval Academy, said he was in the Philippines in March, 1908, and that the captain was at the time quartermaster on the transport Crook, plying between San Francisco and Manila. The witness described the climatic conditions as damp and hot. He said he noticed that the captain was extremely nervous, playing with his fingers, drumming on his hat, etc. On several occasions he met the captain at the Army and Navy Club at Manila. About March 20, 1908, the captain and other officers were at the club, and the captain talked about the fuss that high army officers made when they were not assigned to staterooms on the transports that they thought their ranks merited. He said that the captain said he was making friends among the young lieutenants by showing them special attention on the transport. His conduct was irrational, said the witness.

Emil E. Hess, the proprietor of an automobile garage in Brooklyn, told of Captain Hains coming to his place of business last summer and insisting that he would go out in his automobile, although the car was all apart. He said that he tried to reason with the captain and show him that the auto could not be made to run without its machinery, but the captain did not seem to understand.

"The captain asked me what I knew about Mrs. Hains and Annis," said Hess, "and I told him that one day at 3 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Hains summoned me to Nineteenth street and Fourth avenue, Brooklyn, where she and Annis were stalled by their automobile being out of order. I offered to take Mrs. Hains home, but she answered me, 'Do you think I am fool enough to go to the fort at this time of the morning?'" The witness said the captain's face was drawn, his eyes were watery and he appeared irrational.

Thornton Hains' Testimony Corroborated.

Henry L. Jesperson of 245 East Sixteenth street, Flatbush, a real estate agent and former partner of Lea Buggs, who testified yesterday, followed the garage proprietor. He was called to tell the jury that in the spring of 1908 he had been negotiating with Thornton Hains about the sale of certain real estate at Bay Side and Douglaston, L. I.

Thornton has testified that he went to Mr. Jesperson and Mr. Buggs to look for water front property, and that his object in going to Bay Side on August 15 was to look at the property. The witness substantiated Thornton's testimony, and added that he had told him that if he bought property there he would have the privilege of the Bay Side Yacht Club. On one occasion he visited Thornton's home and there found the captain walking up and down in a bedroom, and his speech and manner was not natural.

James Sley, a carpenter and builder, at Bay Ridge, was called for the purpose of showing that in June last he and Thornton had been figuring the cost of a bungalow to be built on the property at Bay Side, which had been offered to Thornton by Agent Jesperson. At that time he observed that the captain was excited, nervous and kept running in and out of the room and his chin trembled.

Jail Physician Declares Prisoner Is Insane.

Dr. Clarence N. Platt, the physician in attendance at the Queens County Jail for twelve years, was next sworn. He said he first saw the defendant in the warden's office in the jail on August 18. He spoke to him, but received no response. Two or three days later he made an examination of the prisoner and found him poorly nourished, weak, pale and depressed. He questioned him again, and the captain would answer: "I don't remember; I can't think."

"I asked him how he felt," said the physician, and he answered, 'All right; I slept after Annis left.' I argued with him that Annis was dead," said the witness, "but the captain declared that Annis had been in his cell and had kept him awake. He assumed a threatening attitude toward me when I repeated that Annis was dead.

"On another occasion he asked me when I was going to let him out; that he had to report for duty or he would be courtmartialed." The witness said, in his opinion, the captain was insane; that he suffered from maniacal depressive insanity.

The doctor's cross-examination was begun after the noon recess.

Army Men Tell of Prisoner's Irrational Acts.

Minnie Rhoue, one of the captain's former servants, was still on the witness stand when yesterday afternoon's session commenced. Questioned by Mr. McIntyre she further testified that Mrs. Haines had told her that she had not known what love was when she married the captain; that she loved Billy Annis. The witness testified that after Mrs. Hains' alleged confession Mr. Annis appeared at the Hains home, at Fort Hamilton, and that Mrs. Hains said to him:

"Oh, Billy, you are the one person whom I want to see; you can only come in for a minute, though; I have told the captain about the operation." The witness said that he answered:

"'My God, why did you tell him?'"

Mr. De Witt was quite severe in his cross examination of the negress and she had a difficult time holding her own.

Corporal Edward Simpson, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Hamilton, was the first witness to appear at the trial in the army uniform. He was called to tell of several conversations that he had with the captain in June last, and he characterized his speech and actions as irrational.

John MacMullen of 423 Ninety-ninth street, Brooklyn, who was a plumber at Fort Hamilton, last summer, told of the strange conduct of Captain Hains. Frederick W. Piper, an assistant plumber at Fort Hamilton, also testified to the captain's peculiar speech and actions after his separation from his wife.

Corporal Charles A. Bryant and First Sergeant Arthur W. Johnson of Fort Hancock testified that the prisoner acted irrationally during the summer of 1908.

Frederick Linden, a boss carpenter at Atlantic Highlands, said the captain came to him about unpacking his furniture and acted like a crazy man, a "hug." Justice Garretson rebuked the witness and warned him not to characterize what he saw or heard.

Another Former Servant Testifies for Defense.

Lillie Sawyer of 200 Johnson street, Brooklyn, who was in the employ of Mrs. Claudia Hains up to December 31, was another witness. She said that the early part of last summer she met the defendant at the home of Thornton Hains at Bay Ridge, and the captain asked her if she knew Annis and of his relations with Mrs. Hains. The witness testified that she told the captain that she had often seen Mr. Annis and Mrs. Hains under the influence of liquor and that after Mrs. Hains and Mr. Annis had been out in the evenings Mrs. Hains would tell her that she had "a good time" with Mr. Annis. Questioned by Mr. McIntyre, the witness said that the captain got up, as she talked to him, and acted like a crazy man.

Leo Bugg of 47 West Forty-second sreet, Manhattan, was the last witness. He had been a member of the Bayside Yacht Club for seven years and is a real estate broker. Thornton Hains had testified that he and the captain went to Bayside to look over certain real estate that Mr. Bugg and Mr. Jesperson had talked to him about.

The witness said that he was agent for the property adjoining the Bayside Yacht Club and that some weeks previous to the homicide he had shown to Thornton a map of the land and had advised him to buy lots there and build a home for himself.

It was 4:30 when the cross-examination of Mr. Bugg was completed and Mr. McIntyre said to Justice Garretson that such good progress had been made in the testimony that he had exhausted the number of witnesses, and therefore asked for an adjournment of court for the day.

OLD TIMES RECALLED.

Post Office Electric Light and Power Plant Shut Down—Water Mains Closed.

The electric light and power plant in the Federal Building was shut down from 1:10 to 4:20 this morning, owing to a lack of water, the supply being cut off for several hours in order that the mains from which the building gets its supply might be cleaned.

The modern conveniences that seem absolutely necessary for the running of the Post Office, had to be dispensed with. The employes had to work by gaslight, and revert to the primitive method of stamping letters by hand. The whirr of the machine that handles thousands of letters per hour, and stamps them with far greater accuracy than is possible by the hand system, was hushed for the time being, and the clerks got a chance to get some forearm exercise of the kind that used to make the muscles stand out like whipcords in the old days.

Before sunrise the water was turned on, the engines were started, and everything went on as usual. Deputy Commissioner Cozier, in speaking of the matter, said that there had been some complaints about the flow of water, and that he had ordered the mains to be cleaned for that reason.

LAWYER GALL NOT AT PARTY.

Knew Kathan Only as Client, and Was Surprised by Eagle Story.

In an article yesterday describing the jolly luncheon which followed the sentencing of Lawyer R. W. Kathan and preceded his reception at the jail, the Eagle mentioned the name of Charles G. Gall as one of the party of Kathan's friends in the courtroom among whom the luncheon plan was arranged.

Mr. Gall, who is with Luke O'Reilly says he knows Kathan only as a client, and, after the sentence, left the courtroom without any knowledge that the prisoner was not to be taken to the jail at once. He knew nothing about the wine luncheon till he read the story in the Eagle. He was as much surprised as anyone at the facts as brought out in the article of yesterday.

HORSE FELL INTO CELLAR.

After running into a plate glass window in the front of the store of Edward Ryan, a painter and decorator at 325 Flatbush avenue, at noon to-day, a horse attached to a light wagon belonging to D. K. Donovan, a plumber of 135 Fifth avenue, fell into the cellar, and it required the united efforts of a dozen men and an improvised derrick to get it out. The horse took fright at a passing trolley car and ran up Pack place. The driver, Eugene Cobiley saved his life by jumping out of the wagon. The damage to the window amounted to about $85, and the horse was only scratched.

FARMINGDALE WANTS ASYLUM.

No Opposition There to Acquirement by State of Big Tract for Hospital for Insane.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Farmingdale, L. I., May 4—While the residents of the Greenvale section are doing everything in their power to prevent the location there of the new state asylum for the insane, the people of this vicinity are anxious to have the state take over a site that has been offered. The Farmingdale Board of Trade has adopted a resolution inviting the state lunacy commission to take the site that is owned by the Cities Development Company, near this village. It is said that the company, which owns 600 acres of land that is seemingly well suited to the uses of the commission, has secured an option on 180 acres adjoining, and is prepared to turn over the whole tract to the state at a figure more advantageous than any that has yet been offered.

A meeting of the local board of managers of the asylum is to be held to-morrow in Manhattan, and it is possible that the matter of a site will then be definitely settled, and the residents of Farmingdale, almost without exception, are hoping that the tract near here will be selected.

It is reported about here that only about $75,000 has been raised on the $450,000 necessary for taking up the state's options on the Greenvale site for the Long Island State Hospital, and that unless the balance is forthcoming, the state will go ahead and take title to the property.

HAS ANOTHER MAN ARRESTED.

Cisco Girl Gives Police Right Name and Deceno Is Charged With Abduction.

Another arrest was made this morning in connection with the recent disappearance from her home at 503 Humboldt street, of 17-year-old May Cisco, who was located in a house in Tenth street on Saturday by the police of the Herbert street station. On a warrant issued yesterday afternoon by Magistrate O'Reilly, following the girl's story in the Manhattan Avenue Police Court, Acting Captain Conboy to-day placed under arrest a man whom the girl had mentioned in her testimony, calling him "James Murray." The girl latter admitted that this was not his real name, and after she had been sent to the House of Good Shepherd for the rest of her minority, she gave Captain Conboy another name, with the result that the arrest was made this morning, the sixth in connection with the case.

The prisoner to-day was taken before Magistrate O'Reilly, charged with abduction, and was held in $1,000 bail for examination to-morrow. He described himself as James Deceno, 18 years old, of 659 Lorimer street. Among the places in which he is alleged to have detained the Cisco girl, is the house at 19 Jackson street, which Captain Conboy and Detective Dwyer raided yesterday afternoon.

TO SELL PRODUCE EXCHANGE

If Committee's Report Is Approved by Members—New Building to Be Erected.

It is reported on good authority that the committee appointed to consider the question of selling the real estate of the New York Produce Exchange is prepared to recommend the selling of the property, and that it consider $6,000,000 would be a fair valuation of the exchange building and land upon which it stands. Should this be sold the lot owned by the exchange, facing on Broad street, together with that upon which the present annex building stands, would be available for a new building that would provide for all the requirements of the present membership.

The annex property is a large piece of real estate on the easterly side of the exchange property, with a six story building. The Broad street frontal is about eighty feet.

SINGERS ARE MAD.

Festival Director Failed to Show Up to Hear Them in Prize Song.

Five hundred singers were bitterly disappointed last night at Arion Hall when Julius Lorenz, one of the two directors of the National Saengerfest to be held in June in Manhattan, failed to appear to conduct a rehearsal of the prize song which the United Singers are to sing in competition.

Mr. Lorenz wrote that he did not believe the United Singers had had enough rehearsals, and were not ready for his visit. Instead, the singers have worked overtime during the past few weeks and consider that they have reached a high degree of perfection. In this they have the support of Carl Fique, their instructor, who has spent much time with them.

When Mr. Lorenz's letter was read, there was much indignation expressed, and it was decided to call a meeting of the board of directors to take proper action upon the letter.

LIFT BRIDGE FOR QUEENS.

Bridge Commissioner Stevenson has submitted to the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment plans and specifications for a Scherzer type of roller lift bridge to be built over Dutch Kills Creek, at Hunter Point avenue, Long Island City, in pursuance of a resolution passed by the board appropriating $110,000 for the construction of a bridge at that point. The site has been selected.

As the style of structure is patented, the board is called upon to pay $3,000 for plans, specifications and patent, which is probably less than a regular architect's for plans and specifications alone.

MR. MEEKER GOES TO PASADENA

F. M. Meeker, secretary of the Williamsburg Savings Bank, left to-day for Pasadena, Cal., to be gone about two months. His wife and son accompanied him. Mr. Meeker's mother, the wife of the late S. M. Meeker, former president of the Williamsburg Savings Bank is still living in Pasadena. Mr. Meeker was injured a short time ago, but has recovered sufficiently to enable his traveling to the Coast.

EMPLOYED BOY UNDER 15.

Alfred Summerhill, treasurer of the Ideal Market at 586 Fifth avenue, was held for Special Sessions by Magistrate Deigmar in the Fifth avenue court this morning, on a charge of violating the labor law. Deputy Mercantile Inspector Frank L. Fisher alleged that a child under 15 had been employed in the market after 7 P.M. [illegible] the case is Charles Fritz [illegible] Fifth street.

LAFAYETTE DEPOSITORS CHARGE DISCRIMINATION

trust company we would not loan him any money at all.

"Some of these men may have thought that we had a list of depositors because they have been approached by solicitors. We have two solicitors out in Brooklyn all the time, and they work different sections of the city in turn. It is quite probable that these solicitors may have gone to men in the neighborhood of these branches of the Lafayette Trust Company, and assumed that they were depositors in the nearest branch bank. That is a reasonable supposition, which any live solicitor would make. The solicitors have probably explained that this bank would be willing to loan the depositors in the Lafayette Trust Company some money on their deposits as collateral, if they needed any money, as an inducement to secure their accounts with us. But in no case have we bought up any claims."

The same statement, in effect, was made by the cashier of the Broadway Bank, which bought the building of the Lafayette Trust Company in the Ridgewood section. The cashier said that the Broadway Bank carried on an entirely separate business from the old trust company, and had not offered to buy any claims, but had loaned sums up to within 75 per cent. of the amount on deposit with the Lafayette Trust Company, as collateral security for notes of the borrowers.

President D. O. Underhill of the Brooklyn Bank said that his bank had followed the same practice. But, he said, it might be possible that some of the Lafayette depositors believed that the Brooklyn Bank was buying up claims, because Robert T. McGusty, who did frankly buy up claims at 75 cents on the dollar, had a desk in the Brooklyn Bank building at 585 Fulton street. However, Mr. Underhill said, Mr. McGusty had absolutely no connection with the bank at all, except as a depositor. Mr. McGusty had a large deposit with the Brooklyn Bank, he said, and on that account he had been given a desk in the building.

Mr. McGusty, who has advertised in the newspapers, on several occasions, his offer to buy up claims of the depositors, said that he represented certain men of wealth in New York. These men, he said, had authorized him as their agent to buy up claims of depositors with the Lafayette Trust Company, and he had bought in thousands of dollars worth of claims. He showed the Eagle reporter the record of one transaction this morning in which he had paid a depositor of the Lafayette Trust Company over $3,500 cash for a claim of about $5,000. The former Lafayette Trust depositor had assigned his claim in due form to one Thomas Aschenbach, who represented the capitalists behind Mr. McGusty. Mr. McGusty would not give the names of the capitalists, and would only say that they were New York bankers, but did not act for any bank, because they were doing this on their own account.

He said that they did not possess any inside information, but that anyone could get the same information they based their offer on from the bank statement. The bank statement, he said, showed the condition of the bank, and his principals were willing to make the proposition which he had advertised on that showing.

"If a business man, who always has use for his money, wants a quick settlement, we can accommodate him," he said, "that is all there is to it. We have the money, and we are satisfied to wait for our profits. In many instances these men cannot wait two or three years for the trust company to pay, 10 cents on the dollar at a time, and they would rather take 75 cents now than a dollar at 5 or 10 cents at a time, dribbled out over the next few years. We think that we have a moneymaking proposition, as we can afford to wait for the money, and yet at the same time we can help many of these depositors out of a tight hole.

I have sent out circulars generally, and even advertised in the newspapers, in the hope of attracting the attention of the depositors of the trust company. But we have no inside track at all in this, and the Brooklyn Bank is not connected with us, either.

"The Brooklyn Bank officials were willing to give me desk room here because I have a large amount on deposit. I have to keep a large balance, in order to pay cash for these deposits. And then the bank officials thidk that maybe they can get some new accounts from the men who close out their connection with the Lafayette Trust Company on these premises."

It was pointed out that several of the depositors at last night's meeting had not received any circulars. This would seem to prove that no one outside of the Lafayette Trust Company had a list of depositors. If any one had such a list, every one of these men would have received a circular, and no costly newspaper advertising for depositors would have been necessary.

HELD UP BY FOOTPADS.

Paul Lindel Identifies One of Two Men Arrested.

Detectives Law and Berringer of the Ralph avenue police station this morning arrested John Maher, 25 years old, of 2608 Atlantic avenue, and Nicholas Riley, 26, of 3839 Fulton street, Maher is charged with robbery and Riley with being a suspicious person. Paul Lindel, 40 years old, of 1347 Broadway, told the police that he was held up at 1:30 o'clock this morning by two men and robbed of a silver watch valued at $15. The police say that he positively identified Maher as one of the men who robbed him.

THIRD BODY FOUND.

Merrick, L. I., May 4—The body of Willie Kunzer of West Hoboken, N. J., one of the three lads drowned in the bay off this place during a squall on Saturday afternoon, by capsizing of a sharpie, was found between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a searching party.

The body was some distance from those of David Hults and Henry Ludlow, companions of Kunzer, which were found early yesterday morning. Kunzer's body bore no marks and was partly covered by sand. The body was taken charge of by an undertaker. A triple funeral of the boys may be held.

TRAIN HIT FLOUR TRUCK.

While Wolf Knadt, 20 years old, of 478 Grand street, Manhattan, was driving a flour truck across the tracks at Forty-first street and New Utrecht avenue, yesterday afternoon, the vehicle was struck by a north bound car. Both the horses were killed and Knadt was badly hurt. He was removed to the Norwegian Hospital by Dr. Gould, who found him suffering from a lacerated scalp wound and a possible fracture of the skull. It is expected that he will recover.

SUSPICIOUS FIRE AT JAMAICA.

A suspicious fire, causing damage of $5, broke out yesterday morning in the hallway of the three-story frame house at 127 Onderdonk avenue, Jamaica. The building was owned by Charles Merkert of 176 Knickerbocker avenue, Brooklyn. The fire marshal was notified.

LINDAUER CASE GOES OVER.

The case of Dr. Simon Lindauer against the Pinar Del Rio Company, for $500, for alleged misrepresentation of land in Cuba, purchased by the plaintiff, which was set for trial to-day in the Sixth Municipal Court, was adjourned until May 11.

PASTOR RUSSELL SAYS HE'S NOT FRIGHTENED

ATTORNEY COMING HERE.

Pennsylvania Lawyer Says He Will Enforce Court's Order—Preacher Says He Can't Do It.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 4—"I will leave either to-night or to-morrow for Brooklyn to secure the attachment of Pastor Russell's property," said Attorney Stephen G. Porter this morning. "Mr. Russell must pay the alimony awarded his wife or take the consequences. Judge McFarlane has ruled that Russell must pay up, and we are going to see that he does."

At the time she secured her divorce, two years ago, Mrs. Marie Russell, Pastor Russell's wife, was alowed alimony of $40 a month. Russell has removed to Brooklyn and has taken all his assets with him. Judge MacFarlane, in his opinion, says that Russell's answer to his wife's petition is at least in bad taste, after the court had previously noted in the hearing to fix alimony. The sale of the Pitteburg property by the sheriff on a trifling judgment against Russell is referred to to show that it was disposed of in fraud of his wife's rights.

After reviewing the case, the court stated that no question of contempt or punishment is involved, and that the consideration of the court is in the enforcement of the decree. Reference is made to the transfer of all of Russell's property to the Watch Tower Bible Tract Society, and the agreement of that society to pay Mrs. Russell $40 a month.

Judge MacFarlane declared that to refuse an attachment would allow any respondent to place his property in the hands of a friend and then defy the courts power.

When Pastor Russell was interviewed in the House of Bethel at 124 Columbia heights this afternoon in reference to the above dispatch, he had the following to say:

"The attorneys for my wife are bluffing. They cannot levy on any property here in this state, nor can they levy on any property of mine anywhere, for I have no property. All that I had I transferred more than five years ago to the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society. If the attorneys can find any property in my name anywhere, they are welcome to it.

"All of this talk about coming here is bluster. My wife has been making as much trouble for me as she can during the past eleven and a half years since she has separated from me. Her purpose is to worry me or my friends until the latter come forward and declare they will settle and thereby stop the annoyance.

"If I were to die to-morrow, I think my former wife would soon follow me, for she could not live unless she had me to nag. But I harbor no resentment against her. For fifteen years she made the noblest of wives, but about a dozen years ago she became imbued with women's rights ideas, and they ruined all the poetry of our married life.

"I have been paying, or rather the society has been paying, her $40 a month regularly. But she was not satisfied with this, and recently obtained an order of the court raising it to $100. I haven't the money to pay this, and the society is in no way liable. The lady is in comfortable circumstances, and I should not want her to want for anything. She has all she needs now, but her lawyers haven't. I have no fear at this announcement that Attorney Stephen G. Porter is coming here to levy on me."

Just then the telephone bell rang, and after an extended conversation over the wire with the manager of a printing establishment, Pastor Russell nonchalantly ordered a million copies of a tract struck off the presses as quickly as possible.

OYSTER BAY FINANCES.

Oyster Bay, L. I., May 4—Supervisor C. Chester Painter has issued his annual financial statement. It shows that the receipts from all sources have been $126,153.65, of which $21,200.75 was the balance left over on March 31, 1908; $23,317.30, excise receipts; $36,908.36 town taxes; $15,562.65, sale of Glen Cove Court House bonds, and the remainder made up of various small sums, including light and water taxes, fire taxes, oyster ground rents, fines, etc.

The expenditures show a balance on hand of $10,480.58, and the largest expenses were salaries and service bills of town officials, $17,190.40; building Glen Cove Court House, $24,952.30; support of poor, $4,962.91; board of orphans and destitute children, $4,485.17; building Oyster Bay Town Hall, $4,892.57; legal services and expenses, $3,169.04; Glen Cove light bills, $8,483.72; Oyster Bay light bills, $5,681.28; back school tax paid to county treasurer, $4,055.27; and the remainder made up of smaller items.

CALL FOR DR. MEESER.

Word comes from New Brunswick, N. J., that the First Baptist Church of that city has called to the pastorate the Rev. Dr. Spenser B. Meeser, now one of the best known Baptist ministers in Brooklyn. For more than a year Dr. Meeser had been acting pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place. The Rev. Dr. John Humpstone is the pastor of this church, and something over a year ago he was granted a leave of absence which does not expire until July 1. Dr. Humpstone is now on his way home, but will not reach here until about the time of the lapse of his vacation. He has been through the Holy Land, India, Egypt and over the Continent. His vacation was taken as a sort of anniversary celebration, he having been twenty-five years pastor of Emmanuel Church.

Dr. Meeser has had a number of important pastorates and is a fine preacher. His sermons always attract attention. He is about 50 years old and is a native of Pennsylvania. He has had charges in Paterson, N. J., Germantown, Detroit and other places. He has been heard by the committee from New Brunswick, and it is understood he is in that city today looking over the field embraced in the territory covered by the First Baptist Church. If he accepts the call he will succeed the Rev. Linn E. Wheeler.

GOVERNMENT GETS NEW HAND.

Adolph Hoehl of 169 Monitor street today reported to the navy yard as master boiler maker to take the place of John O'Rourke, who recently resigned under pressure. O'Rourke was accused of neglect of duty and breach of discipline. Hoehl was one of several who submitted to a competitive examination for the position. He has never before worked for the government. It is said that he passed an exceptionally good test.

EAST RIVER RUNS FIRST.

St. Ouen, France, May 4—The Prix Odet, which was run here to-day, was won by J. E. Widener's East River. Mr. Widener's Homelander and George Saparta's Braggart ran respectively in the Prix Penmarch and the Prix Blavet, but neither secured a place.

SHE WON A SCHOLARSHIP.

Miss Caroline F. Lexow of Brooklyn Will Continue at Bryn Mawr.

According to an official bulletin issued by president and chancellor of faculty of Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pa., on Saturday, one of the fifteen graduate scholarships, worth $500, being tuition and support as well as all privileges for a year's postgraduate course in philosophy at the college, has been awarded to Caroline Florence Lexow of Brooklyn, bachellor of arts, graduated at Bryn Mawr college in the class of 1908.

WM. A. BRUCE A BANKRUPT.

Members of Marcy Avenue Baptist Church Said to Be His Creditors. Can't Be Found.

The creditors of William Allen Bruce have filed a petition in bankruptcy against him through Walter T. Kohn, a Manhattan attorney. Judge Hough of the United States District Court has appointed Walter B. Allen as receiver. Mr. Kohn is quoted as saying that Mr. Bruce owes between $30,000 and $40,000, and that the only assets known are $6,000, which he has on deposit to his credit with the firm of C. H. Van Buren & Co., with whom he had desk room at 514 Broadway.

Public mention has been made to the effect that Mr. Bruce, who became a member of the Consolidated Exchange in 1906, had a number of the members of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church on his list of creditors, but this could not be substantiated, nor could Mr. Bruce be found, and it was said this morning that his whereabouts are not known to his creditors. Mr. Bruce is said to have been active in Brooklyn politics in the Seventeenth Assembly District until the defeat of Walter B. Atterbury, former leader there, of whom Mr. Bruce was a warm supporter.

CONNELLY GETS HIS BOY.

Actor Arrested at Brooklyn Bridge on Charge of Kidnapping May Have the Child Part of the Time.

William A. Connelly, an actor, living at the Hotel Albany, in Manhattan, and his uncle, two law clerks and a chauffeur, all of whom were arrested as they were about to cross the Brooklyn Bridge last Saturday, and who were on Sunday arraigned in the Tombs Police Court on a charge that they attempted to kidnap Connelly's 2-year-old son and namesake, were to-day discharged by Magistrate O'Connor.

For two hours Connelly and his wife, who had come here from Chicago, had a lively argument in the magistrate's private hearing room, and Mrs. Anna Doherty, Connelly's mother-in-law, from whom the child was taken on Saturday, had a large part in it. Finally the trio went before the magistrate and said they had agreed that Connelly should have the boy some of the time and his wife the remainder. With that all five men were discharged.

The complaint of assault made by Mrs. Doherty, who said that Connelly struck her when he and the three men took the child away from her, was dismissed.

The Controller Speaks Right Out.

Controller Metz has spoken sharply and explicitly. His words the other night left no one in doubt as to what he has done or tried to do or stopped seeking to do, when he found it could not be done, nor was any doubt left in any minds as to whom and what he held responsible for any variation or cessation of his official efforts in the public interest.

The Eagle commends the frankness of the Controller which puts some other men upon the defensive, and advises those other men to be as frank and explicit in their own behalf as the Controller is in his own. We have no doubt that Judge Gaynor must have been misunderstood by Mr. Metz, and will be able to show that he was. But Mr. Metz is entitled to a measure of credit in antagonizing the judge, whom few confront successfully and whom feebler folk refrain from confronting at all through fear of Mr. Gaynor's destructive ability for an aggressive defense or a defensive aggressiveness. That, however, is only incidental.

The significance of Mr. Metz's address on Thursday night is to be found in his upright, downright and straight up and down consideration of the city debt question, of the Fourth Avenue Subway proposition and of the relation of the Public Service Commission to transit development generally. No reader should omit Mr. Metz's very direct allusions to these matters.

He does not hesitate to say: "The Bronx Park extension was a steal, though it was all legal." An "all legal steal" is a phrase that will not be forgotten. The Controller holds the weakness or the wickedness of existing laws to blame for the fact that awards of $3,000,000 were made for park lands worth less than one-third the amount. "The law awards it and the court decrees it," and the Controller has to pay over amounts, under the commission system, which one might say exists for the further enrichment of the already over-enriched. Mr. Metz likewise set forth other facts, under the existing plan of classification imposed on the government, which he is strenuously seeking to simplify. There are 500 petty officials purchasing goods for the city, to be delivered in 1,506 places, and there are just fifteen inspectors to see that the goods are right in quality and quantity and the deliveries are honest. Correctness is impossible under such conditions, and incorrectness is the result, and quite possibly is the design, of just such deliberately created obstacles to accuracy and to honesty.

The Controller sets forth some of the fixed charges which are perennial, unavoidable, and several of which of necessity annually increase. The city has a payroll of about $80,000,000. The schools yearly cost about $23,000,000, the police about $13,000,00 and the Fire Department about $7,000,000. In these things reduction is impossible, and increase comes inevitably from the expansion of the departments to meet augmented population. The interest on the city debt, the gradual extinction of the principal of that debt and the steady demands on the counties of the city, for the expenses of the state, as noted by the Controller, recite facts which none of the critics of the municipality, at least none of the men of the municipality, should be allowed hereafter to misrepresent.

On the much talked about subject of the Fourth Avenue Subway proposition, Mr. Metz spoke with enlightening explicitness. He with others put that proposition through the old Rapid Transit Commission, which, however, piled obstacles in its path. The Legislature then put through the Elsberg law, just recently modified, by which private capital was discouraged from bidding. Then ensued the cross purposes which sought to prefer the Broadway-Lafayette route to the Fourth avenue one, though the latter was put through the Public Service Commission by a lead of one vote. The money was in hand for the Fourth avenue extension, but could not be sequestered for it, under the law, and was of necessity devoted to other purposes as they came up. The Controller was for the Fourth avenue route, and had the money for it, when equal energy on the part of others would have secured it, but that equal energy failing, the project has been displaced by those others, and the plan now has to take its chances under the operation of law, involving the accurate determination, by judicial proceedings of review, of the exact amount of the public resources at the command of the city, after the sum beyond indebtedness shall have been determined judicially by the Court of Appeals. That sum will be secured for railroads and docks in the city, should a constitutional amendment to be voted on this fall be adopted. It is the amendment to exempt railroad and dock building in cities from the debt limitation on the ground that they will pay for themselves from their own profits, principal and interest, and cannot become burden any more than self-extinguishing water bonds are.

What Mr. Metz has said has made an impression upon the press and the public. Between him and the Public Service Commission is a controversy, in which the latter should, if it can, engage on its own account as vigorously as Mr. Metz has on his. Mr. Metz has shown that his obligations to the city as a whole affect and are affected by what would be his special desire for Brooklyn betterments. Them he cannot take into exclusive account. He would like to do so, but he cannot do so. He will be unjustly accused for not doing so, but against such injustice he can set the rectitude of his intentions, the persistence of his desire for the public interest, the requirements of law and the slow but sure reparation in public opinion which time and study hold in reserve for any public officer acting without partiality and without fear.

The Tracy Report Confirmed.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Department, affirmed the report of Referee B. F. Tracy, determining the debt limit of the city to be $106,205,714. No opinion was handed down except the dissenting opinion of Justice Ingraham.

The Justice did not dissent to the whole report, but to certain conclusions therein. He does not believe that the special franchises, amounting to $460,855,000 should be classed as real estate. He objects to excluding the $54,000,000 of contracts from the debt limit, on the ground that whether or not a contract entered into was broken or failed through the contractor's non-performance of obligation, the city would have to pay the sums represented by these contracts and provide for their payment by the issue of bonds or by some form of taxation. Also, he does not think the city is entitled to deduct from indebtedness, under the constitutional provision setting aside water supply bonds from the debt limit, which are held by the sinking fund; he says that such are not obligations against the city, and while they reduce the indebtedness of the city they cannot reduce the other indebtedness upon which the right to borrow is limited.

This case is being treated by the courts as preferred, large public interests being at stake. The significance of the dissenting opinion is less in its assertions and beliefs than it is in the fact that, having been made, the facts in the case can be carried to the Court of Appeals, and consideration of the facts taken by that court. Had the opinion of the Appellate Division been unanimous the Court of Appeals, in its consideration of the question, would have been confined to questions of the law involved. Thus it is that Justice Ingraham's dissenting opinion serves a high purpose, for the facts of General Tracy's report are the substantial questions. It is well to have a governing opinion on them.

"The Old Order Changeth."

Under this title, William Allen White, who has had something to say on public affairs recently, is writing a series of articles for the American Magazine. The installment for May is under the sub-title of "The Leaven in the National Lump." Some question might be made as to the relevancy of the sub-title, but it will not be made here. There is too much interest in Mr. White's predicate to stop to dally with sub-titles. Mr. White says that "theoretically this nation lives under a government of laws sustained by a written Constitution," but that "practically it is a government by public sentiment." It is somewhat breath-taking to be told that our laws and written Constitution are of no consequence and this after hugging the delusion for more than a century that the Constitution was an inspired instrument, which has made us what we are.

Mr. White is quick to say that by "public sentiment" he does not mean "public clamor." He differentiates them in the suggestion that "clamor" is a big, insistent, overweening noise while "sentiment" is a profound belief deep enough to induce a sacrifice of personal comfort and a desire to fight. When he has told us that such kind of sentiment has been too strong for the Constitution to hold it back he plainly makes his distinction which is: "Clamor is the desire to reform someone else and sentiment the desire to reform one's self." It is a pretty distinction, and sounds exceeding well.

Mr. White's point is that in a movement of public sentiment there must be an idea. When that idea is strong and vital an automatic process of organization of the sentiment begins until a sufficient number of the people who are not subject to selfish considerations, but are absorbed in the general good, who make sacrifice of personal gain for the ultimate gain of the whole, are organized through groups into a potent whole, when, whiff! down goes all power and all influence and all obstructing courts with their obstructing constructions of laws and public sentiment is crowned with the bays of victory

It is thus, according to Mr. White, that we obtained pure food, protection against discrimination in freight rates, civil service reform, the right to examine into the books and accounts of every American business concern, the Panama Canal and all the other matters wrested from an unwilling Congress and it is thus that we will secure forest preservation, the utilization of interior waterways and the other measures under agitation. The success crowning the interference of President Roosevelt in the anthracite coal strike situation is attributed to this sort of organized public sentiment operating on Mr. Roosevelt and backing him up.

In making this latter point Mr. White says: "The right of property as against the right of the people was a shell. It was wormeaten by public sentiment, and however the coal operators might chatter about their divine right, the real divine right was that of the people to keep warm at a reasonable price." And there you reach the nub of the whole contention. What was true of the coal incident is true of all. The manufacturers may chatter as they please about their divine right to manufacture food products in their own way, the real divine right is that of the people, insuring them the food as they think they ought to have it. Railroad managers may chatter about their divine right to charge rates to insure profit, but the real divine right is that of people to have lower rates while the railroads go hang. And so on down the whole list. What is this but socialism—socialism triumphant, socialism in the saddle directing the whirlwind and riding the storm?

The most profound system of socialism never demanded more on behalf of society than the power to override law and Constitution in the betterment of the social condition of the people. If Mr. White in his triumphant hailing of a new order of things is right, then socialism has arrived and is intrenched. For "public sentiment" read "socialism," and the argument is complete, the philosophy identical. If Mr. White is right we have already entered into the period of socialistic control, which will increase with its own appreciation of its own power. But is Mr. White right? Is not his triumphant song prematurely sung?

Brooklyn Is With Jamaica in This.

A new tax office building is imperatively demanded by the Borough of Queens. The present office is in an ancient, ramshackle frame building in Long Island City, with the important and valuable grade and topographical maps necessary in its conduct, hidden away in another building nearly half a mile distant. The Tax Department says the conditions are distressingly bad, that for years it has been endeavoring to better them, but that nothing can be done until it has a suitable building for its work and its property. All seem to be agreed as to the necessity, but there is dispute as to the particular part of the borough where the building should be placed. Long Island City clamors for it with traditional spirit, and Jamaica is not a bit behind in insistence on itself. In the nature of things it must go to one place or the other. There are many other delightfully inviting spots in that borough, but for well known reasons these two particular spots have the call as to the public buildings. Why either place should develop any approach to hysteria upon the subject is not apparent. Such a building at Long Island City will neither make nor mar that famous bit of territory. Its material progress as a great manufacturing and industrial center will continue right along, no more affected by a public building than is the revolving wheel by the fly upon the spoke, and Jamaica, though not dependent upon the sludge or slime of product or by-product or upon the fumes of noxious gases, or smoke from roaring furnaces, is sure to keep on advancing with majestic stride, even though the tax office building be established upon the shores of Newtown Creek.

The Eagle with eye upon the interests of the Borough of Brooklyn would suggest to both Jamaica and Long Island City that it might not be amiss to consider the views of the Borough of Brooklyn upon this interesting subject. This borough has large and varied interests in the Borough of Queens and it is very desirable that the comfort and convenience of Brooklyn citizens who have dealings in Queens be taken into account by all concerned, especially by the Sinking Fund Commissioners upon whom the duty is devolved to fix the site. If this is done and Jamaica is selected as a consequence, Long Island City will cherish no resentments. It is already too big to vex itself about trifles.

The People and the Schoolhouses.

The decision of the Board of Education denying the application of the Taxpayers Association of Brownsville to use the public school in that neighborhood for its meetings is in accord with the precedents in this city, and therefore will no doubt be maintained.

But it is proper to point out that the practice in this city in regard to schoolhouses is changing. Time was when they were used only for school sessions, and the great buildings were idle three months out of the twelve and sixteen to eighteen hours out of the twenty-four. A few years ago the folly of restricting the large investment in schoolhouses to such narrow uses began to be understood. Evening schools obviously belonged in the public school buildings. These were supplemented first by the free lectures of the Board of Education, and more recently, and in a smaller number of cases, by various neighborhood clubs, organized with the approval of the school authorities and conducted in school buildings in part for the very purpose of making the people understand that the schools were their property and the buildings were for their good.

This winter the auditorium of Erasmus Hall has been used by the Flatbush Glee Club for its concerts. That was entirely sensible and proper. Erasmus Hall has the largest auditorium in that neighborhood and the people did not want to come downtown to a public hall to hear their own glee club sing. So they used their own schoolhouse, with the consent of Dr. Gunnison and the Board of Education to the convenient arrangement. The use of the Brownsville school by the local taxpayers association would be a further application of the same principle, and General Wingate had the best of the argument in the board meeting when he said that the schoolhouses should be used for purposes which are beneficial to the community.

That principle must, of course, be applied with discretion and common sense. The houses should not be used in ways or for purposes which interfere in any way with the school work. Neither should they be used for any money making enterprise, such affairs being properly relegated to the halls which are for hire. But if the schools are to be the force in the social and political upbuilding of New York which they always have been in lesser American communities, the idea that the schoolhouses belong to the people and may be used by the people in such ways as do not interfere with school work, must be cultivated and extended. As to what uses do interfere with the school work the Board of Education is the best judge, and its decision should be final. But on the face of it, it looks as if the Brownsville application fell directly in line with the permitted and sensible use of Erasmus Hall for the convenience of Flatbush residents.

From the Promontory of Ages.

Clear the way for Marinetti. His address is Via Senato 2, Milano, and he has founded a new school of literature called "Futurism." He says he realizes that the poet must spend himself with warmth and brilliancy and prodigality to augment the fervor of the primordial elements, but none of that sort of thing for him; nothing so insipid. He finds, he says, beauty in nothing but struggle, hence his exploitation of "the destructive gesture of anarchist, the beautiful ideas which kill." And hence his declaration that he will not only destroy museums and feminism and moralism, but that he will sing the multicolored and polyphonic surf of revolutions in modern capitals. Also:

The nocturnal vibration of arsenals and docks beneath their glaring electric moons; greedy stations devouring smoking serpents; factories hanging from the clouds by the threads of their smoke; bridges like giant gymnasts stepping over sunny rivers sparkling like diabolical cutlery; adventurous steamers scenting the horizon; large breasted locomotives bridled with long tubes, and the slippery flight of aeroplanes whose propeller has flag-like flutterings and applauses of enthusiastic crowds.

After this, a little breathing space should be allowed, but Marinetti is in a hurry. Naturally, his first solicitude is for Italy, the land of his birth. It is to be freed at once from the countless museums which cover her with countless cemeteries and against which he revolts because of the "sinister promiscuousness of so many objects unknown to each other." For, of course, to each other many of the mummies and statues have never been introduced and than promiscuousness nothing can be more pernicious. And, what, he wants to know, can one see in an old picture except the artist's laborious contortions to overcome the insuperable barriers ever resisting his desire to express his entire dream? Bah!

The next step is in the line of logic. It welcomes the incendiaries with carbon fingers. Away with the book shelves. Flood the vaults of the museums and turn the pictures adrift. Seize the pickax and the hammer and sap the foundations of the venerable towns. "The oldest among us," says the merry Marinetti, "is thirty and we have ten years to accomplish our task. When we are forty, let others younger and more daring throw us into the waste-paper baskets like useless manuscripts." He sees his finish. They will get him. They will come, "clawing the air with crooked fingers and scenting the good smell of our decaying minds." They will come "panting with anguish and spite, exasperated one and all by our proud, dauntless courage; they will rush and kill us; their hatred so much the stronger as their hearts will be overwhelmed with love and admiration for us." For nothing can be clearer than that the greater the love, the greater the hatred.

There is a future for the school. Its position is already defined. Mr. Marinetti has placed it "erect on the pinnacle of the world and hurled defiance to the stars." Moreover, he says, he quite understands what his "splendid and mendacious intelligence asserts," and he is intolerant of dissent, as witness: "Your objections! Enough! Enough! I know them! Perhaps! Be it so! What of that! Beware of repeating such infamous words! Rather hold your head up!" This is the peroration. The challenge is to the world, to the stars, to everything in and out of sight. It is issued from "the extreme promontory of ages," otherwise called Via Senato 2, and not until Jeffries is his former self will anybody dream of accepting it.

TO STOP CUSTOMS FRAUDS

Treasury Department Will Break Up Tourists Grafting.

608 Fourteenth Street.

Washington, May 15—Orders have been issued by the Treasury Department which will have the effect of breaking up an ingenious grafting device by which the government has been defrauded in the past in the marking of tourist's baggage and regularly invoiced shipments. The change will involve the use of a new kind of ink on the "inspected" tag.

It is now the custom to attach a tag, bearing the label "customs inspected," to all goods that have been passed by the inspectors. These are pasted on boxes, traveling bags, trunks and other receptacles. It has been found that certain unscrupulous persons have washed these tags off and pasted them on trunks and boxes which are then hauled away without having been passed upon by the inspectors. Thus the tag used on a suit case could be quickly transferred to a trunk containing a large amount of dutiable goods.

This fraud will not be possible henceforth. The department has been experimenting with various kinds of ink and has discovered a variety which fades very quickly when subjected to a washing process. This ink will be used on the "customs inspected" labels. When attempts are made to wash off these labels and transfer them to other objects the words "customs inspected" will disappear.

Stories from Africa of Colonel Roosevelt's superior marksmanship do not surprise the intimates of the nearsighted ex-President. He gave an exhibition in New England some years ago which was the talk of his party for half a day. President Roosevelt was swinging about the New England circle in 1902, and had reached Newport, New Hampshire, where he was a guest for a day or two on the celebrated game preserve instituted by Austin Corbin. The place was stocked with various kinds of game, but the sportiest animal on the premises was the wild boar, which is as fleet of foot as his lumbering domestic brother is slow.

One afternoon President Roosevelt set out with Senator Redfield Proctor of Vermont, also a famous huntsman. The usual Roosevelt luck followed. A fine boar was started. The Senator stepped aside and the President fired. The shot apparently took no effect, for the animal continued his lightning retreat and Roosevelt fired again. This time the beast fell and died. An examination afterward resulted in the conclusion of the two huntsmen that the first shot was fatal.

The other day Representative Miller of Minnesota decided he would test the sentiment of his district on the subject of the tariff. He adopted the plan tried two years ago by Representative Calder of Brooklyn. He sent out about 35,000 letters to the voters of his district inviting criticism of the tariff bill. So far he has received about 5,000 answers and they are still coming in.

Some of the letters received go outside the field of the tariff. One man writes to Mr. Miller that he desires to see the extradition treaty with Russia abrogated so that Russian refugees may have similar rights in this country that they now enjoy in France and Germany; and that permission may be had from the Russian government that the body of Mme. Modjeska, the famous actress, may be interred in Warsaw, Poland, the city of her birth.

Another writer suggests that the tariff is all right, but what he wants is a county detective force to engage in uplift work in his neighborhood and clean out a number of objectionable characters that offend his vision as he seeks a place of worship or trots to the post office to mail his complaint to his congressman. The latter is invited to return to his home, investigate conditions, and get busy with the remedy.

There is a letter from a man who says that he does not care about the tariff, but would like to know if the Aldrich tariff "steal" is to pass, and why? He suggests that he would like to see a duty on liquor, "bear" and cigarettes.

A pessimist comes forward with the statement that "we have arrived at such a state of privately owned articles that it does not pay the common people to do anything to help the manufacturer." He seems to think the country is in a bad way generally, and that whatever may be done with the tariff he, and all like him, the common people, will not benefit.

There is a lengthy communication from a Socialist, who complains that international capitalization has killed the need of any tariff at all, and that the support of the government now is the work of the co-operative commonwealth. He invites the study of socialistic doctrine and the reading of socialistic literature, with the calm assurance that if this is done the congressman will become a Socialist. The congressman has not made efforts to gather in any such literature as suggested.

A Minnesota man writes that he is not worrying himself about the tariff so that he loses any rest, but he suggests to his congressman that all criminals should be put to work and that the state should be made to pay the damages. He says there are many other things he wants done and he threatens later suggestions, but he thinks that this is enough for the present. The congressman is awaiting, with some interest, these other communications. He thinks maybe his letter-writing friend may name the criminals he wants put to work at the expense of the state, and whether or not they are now condemned.

In the opinion of another writer, the tariff question does not amount to much in view of the importance of questions like the national waterways and conservation of forests, universal peace and disarmament, and the prohibiting of shipment of liquor into prohibition territory. He thinks, also, that child labor should be stopped, except it be under the most sanitary conditions, and that there be a parcels post and postal savings banks, and an employers liability law that will fasten responsibility on the employer instead of on the employe.

Another writer is most laconic in his comment. "To —— with the tariff. Increase the duty on beer." This letter is placed side by side in a pigeonhole with another of like brevity: "It's all a —— trick to tax the poor man."

Another man is agitated on the subject of the threatened tax on tea. He has evidently heard much on the subject from his folks at home, and his congressman having invited his confidence, he makes his plaint: "Please see to it that no tax is put on tea; it's grandma's only comfort."

A hard-headed farmer comes out with the suggestion that the expenses of the government be cut 75 per cent, and the free list in the tariff bill be made a yard long. He winds up his letter with the request that he be furnished immediately with a copy of the Agricultural Department's Year Book. He got the book by return mail. That's as far as his Congressman can oblige him.

"What about the inheritance tax, the tax on precious stones, on whisky and on beer?" writes an irate man from Minnesota. "The Aldrich bill is not popular in this neck of the woods," he concludes.

Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh has been posing for posterity. In other words, the genial head of the Treasury Department has been having his picture taken, in view of the inevitable oil painting which every secretary must leave behind him. The official space for the latest picture is directly in front of the desk of the private secretary, in the outer room, whence it is shunted to some other room when a successor takes its place.

It is the unwritten law that the portrait of a secretary of the treasury shall not be hung while he holds office, and consequently the beautiful painting of George B. Cortelyou by MacDonald, a Washington artist, has not been long in place in the Treasury Building. Cortelyou was one of the handsomest men that ever held office anywhere, and the artist had reproduced him with perfect fidelity.

A three-quarter length of Leslie M. Shaw hangs in the office of Assistant Secretary James B. Reynolds. It depicts Shaw in characteristic attitude, with his hands in his trousers pockets. Someone once touched up Shaw on the dignity, good taste, etc., of the position he had chosen.

"Well," said Shaw, quickly, "you will notice that my hands are in my own pockets, not somebody else's."

Secretary MacVeagh has so far fallen under the baneful influence of Shaw that he has been photographed with his hands in his pockets, but he has had other pictures taken, including full front view and profile. No selection for the artist has yet been made.

Naval Officer Kracke was here the other day, making the rounds of the departments. Before he left he secured a promise from Assistant Secretary of the Treasury James B. Reynolds to attend the annual dinner of the Midwood Club, in Flatbush, on May 20. Mr. Reynolds will make a speech.

This is a form of entertainment at which he excels. Mr. Reynolds is one of the wittiest officials in the Taft administration. As a newspaper correspondent here for a Boston newspaper years ago, he made many statesmen famous by concocting brilliant sayings and giving them the credit for the witticisms. So numerous and excellent were his stories that he collaborated with former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Coolidge—also a newspaper correspondent — in printing them in book form. Mr. Reynolds is a bachelor.

NINE OUT OF TEN CONVICTED.

Suffolk District Attorney Made a Great Record at County Court Term.

Riverhead, L. I., May 15—District Attorney Furman of Suffolk made a fine record in court this week. Of the ten cases tried, he secured nine convictions. There was not a single acquittal. There was one disagreement, and in this case the jury stood ten to two for conviction.

Aside from the cases tried, a large number of defendants decided not to stand trial, but pleaded guilty, expecting thereby to "get off" easier in the sentence than if they stood trial and were ultimately convicted.

Yesterday morning Zacharius Espinosa, a Mexican, from Amityville, was convicted of highway robbery in holding up an Italian and taking all the money he had—96 cents.

In the afternoon William Wall of Manhattan was convicted of robbing the summer home of John Kirkpatrick, at Quogue, last autumn. A large quantity of silver was stolen, and Wall was arrested. The silver was ultimately found in Sag Harbor. Early in the week Benjamin Camp, a Riverhead negro, was convicted of having received the silver and burying it in his cellar. It had been delivered to Officer Higgins by a man named Reid of Sag Harbor, also a negro. Reid said he found it in a rubbish heap near his house, although he did not know it was there, nor did he know anything about the case.

Yesterday Camp, who had been convicted, confessed on the stand that he took the silver to Reid, in Sag Harbor, to be tested.

Following this testimony, a warrant was immediately issued for Reid by Justice Hildreth, and he was arrested by Officer Higgins and locked up in jail on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

The officers say there are still one or two others implicated in the robbery, and they expect to get them.

AN INNOCENT VICTIM.

[A horse with only one of his four feet shod, was taken for shoeing to a Manhattan blacksmith's shop. As the shoe that was left had no union brand, the smith refused to do the job, and the driver was arrested on his way home to Brooklyn, for cruelty to animals.—News.]

"I never kicked at the Union rules;
I've hid my views about four-foot mules;
And, to what the walking delegates say
I never have interposed a neigh.

"It's not my fault that my one shod hoof
Incurs the Unions' severe reproof;
An injustice, 'tis, as critics will see,
This heaping of penalties on me.

"Their logic's lame, and my feet are, too;
There's no good luck in a single shoe;
As I champ my bit, let farriers heed
The fact that I'm somewhat off my feed.

"A faithful, suffering, trusting horse
Should cause to Unionists some remorse;
Yet I'm quite consoled, by revery, when
I think of the woes of workingmen!"

BROOKLYNITES ENTERED.

Monoplane Sea Gull Will Take Part in Arlington Aero Club Contests.

Two Brooklyn aeronauts have entered the contests which the West Hudson Aero Club has arranged to take place at Arlington, N. J., on May 25 to 31. Fred Schneider will use an aeroplane and O. F. Wierth, the other Brooklyn representative, will be seen in his monoplane, Sea Gull. The latter states that he will make a longer and higher flight than any other competitors in the contests. Already more than $9,000 has been subscribed for prizes.

The contests will be under the auspices of the West Hudson Aero Club and no admission will be charged to see the flights. Twelve airships of various types have already entered the races. The meet will be opened to Governor Fort of New Jersey on May 25. The most important prize will go to the aeronaut who first carries a message from Arlington to the Mayor of New York.

IN THE PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

The people's pulpit at Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, will be filled to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the absence of Pastor Russell, who is making a lecture tour of Europe, by one of his assistants, H. C. Rockwell, V. D. M., who will preach from the text, "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea."

A CALL TO UNITED EFFORT.

'Twas the Religious Editor, invited out to dine,
He had eaten fifty-eight of them, this one made fifty-nine.
The Reformers and the ministers had talked of club activity,
And boasted how the church men showed a virtuous proclivity.

They showed how easily the men of a denominations,
United, soon could rid the State of a abominations;
How mayors and governors and such and e'en police commissioners,
Would trembling ask, "What shall we do," if church clubs were petitioners.

Then they called upon the Editor to give his sage opinion,
Assured that he would soar with them on optimistic pinion;
To their amaze, he only said, square standing on both feet:
"Your church men only talk, talk, talk, and eat, and eat, and eat.

It never lets itself get out and smite the public sinner;
You gather round the festive board, with menu, fine, complete,
And there you talk, and talk, and talk, and eat, and eat, and eat.

"Come, stir yourselves, clasp hand in hand, and face the politician,
Give him to plainly understand good government's your mission;
Shake off your pious lethargy, let loose the gospel terrors,
And show the office holders that you won't condone their errors!

"Convince the cop and magistrate their acts will be indorsed,
And soon you'll have the Sunday laws and other laws enforced;
When thus you act, with conscience clear you may toget..r meet,

Children's Day in the Churches; Great Preparations to Observe It

The services at the Church of the Holy Trinity to-morrow will consist of a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8:30 A.M., morning prayer and sermon at 11 and evening prayer and sermon at 8. The Rev. John H. Melish will preach at 11 and the Rev. Waldo A. Amos at 8. This church will continue these services all summer.

In Plymouth Church, Orange street, between Hicks and Henry streets, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, will preach in the morning on "The Message of Edward Everett Hale." In the afternoon Dr. Hillis will deliver the baccalaureate address at the Lawrenceville Academy, Lawrenceville, N. J. In the morning the choir will sing Beethoven's "The Heavens Are Declaring," and Jacoby's "Behold the Master." In the evening the Rev. J. G. Hallimond of the Bowery Mission will speak.

In the Church of the Pilgrims to-morrow at 11 A. M. the pastor, the Rev. Marion Le Roy Burton, Ph. D., will preach on "Good, the Final Goal." The annual offering for the Congregational Education Society will be received. This concludes the regular worship of the church for this season. There will be no evening service. Union prayer meeting on Friday, June 18, at 8 P. M., in the chapel of the Reformed Church, on Monroe place. Union Sunday services begin on June 20 at the Reformed Church on the Heights.

In the Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Bedford avenue, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, will preach to-morrow morning on "Is Sin Over-emphasized?" In the evening the pastor will preach on "The Strange Case of William Roupell." Friday evening at 8 o'clock, prayer service. This is the last prayer service for the season at which the pastor will be present. He will conduct the service and give an address. On Sunday, June 20, the pastor will preach on "The Meaning of Vacation." In the evening he will give his last address in the church before vacation. The choir will render the usual musical service. In St. Paul's Chapel Mr. Everett will preach morning and evening, 11 and 8 o'clock.

In the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church the Rev. Dr. N. McGee Waters, pastor, will preach to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. The Bible school will hold its last session until October at 3 o'clock. The evening service at 7:30 o'clock will be the last evening service held in the church until October. Dr. Waters will preach the baccalaureate address to the senior class of Adelphi College. The music, under the direction of Clarence Eddy, organist and choirmaster, will be as follows: "As the Heart Panteth," soprano and alto solos and quartet, A. J. Davis; "The Lost Sheep," quartet, Myles B. Foster; tenor solo, "Hosannah," Granier, George C. Carrie, and the organ numbers, "The Angelus," W. W. Starmer, and "Coronation March," J. S. Svendsen.

In the First Presbyterian Church, Henry street, near Clark, the Rev. Dr. L. Mason Clarke, minister, will preach to-morrow at 11 A. M. and 4 P. M. The subject of the afternoon sermon will be "David's Evensong." Under the leadership of R. Huntington Woodman, organist and choirmaster, the choir will render at the morning service "Behold, the Days Come," Woodward; "Lift Thine Eyes," Mendelssohn; "O for a Closer Walk with God," Foster. At the afternoon service: "Thou Will Keep Him in Perfect Peace," Westley; "Saviour, Thy Children Keep," Sullivan; "This Night I Lift My Heart to Thee," Costa. These will be the last services before union services in the Reformed Church on the Heights.

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church Children's Day will be observed to-morrow morning. The pastor, the Rev. Cleland B. McAfee, D.D., will preach on "What Our Thoughts Mean." Under leadership of the musical director, John Hyatt Brewer, the choir will sing "Jesus, Gentlest Saviour," by Ward. Miss Tudor will sing "Suffer Little Children," by Brewer. In the evening Dr. McAfee will preach on "Some School Questions," a sermon pertinent to the closing of the schools, and intended for parents and teachers as well as students. On Tuesday evening there will be an illustrated lecture in the parlors in explanation of the plans for summer conferences of young people. The meeting is under the auspices of the local Christian Endeavor Union, and by invitation of the Young People's Association.

"Ancient Advice for Modern Men" is the subject upon which the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, pastor, will preach to-morrow morning in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church. The choir will sing for the anthem "Give Ear, O Shepherd," by Whiting, and for the offertory "God is a Spirit," by Bennett. There will be no evening service.

In St. Ann's Church on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston streets, the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, services tomorrow will be as follows: 8 A. M., holy communion; 11, morning prayer and sermon; 8, evening prayer and sermon. The rector will preach in the morning and the Rev. L. E. Hess in the evening.

The Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws will preach in the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, between Lewis and Stuyvesant avenues, to-morrow morning on "Do Good Unto All Men." In the evening baptismal service and pastor's question box. Dr. Laws will answer the following questions: (1) "Is it true that the churches are losing ground in New York?" (2) "I am often the slave of evil and impure thought. Is it possible for me to be saved from such thoughts?" (3) "Is not the large amount of money given to foreign missions practically wasted, and could it not be used to better advantage here at home?" (4) "How is it that you allow women to speak in your church when the Bible distinctly prohibits it?" (5) "Will you tell a young man, just starting, how to make a success of the Christian life?" Quartet choir at both services. Bible school at 2:30 o'clock.

In the Church of the Messiah, Greene and Clermont avenues, the rector, the Rev. Dr. St. Clair Hester, will preach at the morning service to-morrow on the theme, "Enemies of the World's Peace." There will be evensong at 4:30. There will be no service in the evening.

The Rev. G. O. Griffith, pastor of the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, corner of Lincoln place, will not be in his own pulpit to-morrow. He is to take the place of the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin at Stamford, Conn. The Rev. M. G. Coker, well known in Brooklyn, will preach at both services in the Sixth Avenue Church.

The Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Seventh avenue and St. John's place, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Transfigured Life," and in the evening on "The Psalm of the Efficient Life." Sunday school at 2:45 and Epworth League at 7, conducted by Miss Ethel Holland. The Erasmus High School Alumnae Glee Club will give a concert under the auspices of the Epworth League, in the church auditorium. Week night services on Wednesday and Friday evenings, the Probationers' class meeting on the last named evening at 7:20 o'clock. The annual children's day exercises of Grace Sunday school will be held in the church auditorium on Sunday morning, June 20.

In St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Bedford avenue and Wilson street, the Rev. Claude H. Priddy, pastor, to-morrow morning the children of the South Third Street Industrial School will be present and sing. Several children will be baptized. In the evening the service will continue but one hour, and the pastor will draw lessons from Hagar's surprise in the wilderness. On Monday evening the last meeting for the season of the Teachers Association will be held. On Thursday the fortieth anniversary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church and quarterly meeting of the New York Branch will be held in this church. The sessions open at 10:30 and 2 o'clock.

Children's day exercises will be held in St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church to-morrow morning. The children will be given reserved seats in the auditorium and Professor W. L. Starkey, superintendent, will make the address. Professor W. J. Morrison, the assistant superintendent, will make the prayer. Children will be baptized at this service. At the special exercises at 2:30 P. M., an address will be given by the Rev. Dr. W. W. W. Wilson, pastor of the DeKalb Avenue Church. In the evening the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John H. Willey, will begin a series of summer evening sermons on "The Religious Atmosphere of the World's Great Centers." These sermons will be as follows: June 13, "Oxford, the City of Religious Contrasts"; June 20, "Edinburgh, the City of Old-Fashioned Sundays"; June 27, "Paris, the City Without the Sabbath"; July 4, "Dresden, the Gospel in Art"; July 13, Florence, the City of Great Reformers"; July 20, "Rome, or the Eternal Conflict."

In the Central Presbyterian Church, Jefferson and Marcy avenues, Children's Day exercises will be observed to-morrow morning. In connection with this service there will be the baptism of children. Dr. J. F. Carson will preach his annual sermon to the children. At 3 P.M. the Men's Class will hold its closing exercises for this season. At 7:45 P.M. Dr. Carson will preach.

In Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, corner of St. Felix street, the Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson, pastor, the kindergarten and primary departments of the Sunday school will be present at the morning service to-morrow and render special exercises, and a short sermon will be preached by the pastor on "True Blue." In the evening the main department of the Sunday school will be present in a body in the gallery of the church in the rendering of a special service prepared by the pastor, entitled a "White Service." Special music will be rendered by the Sunday school and Mrs. Seaver will sing "The Star of the East." On Monday evening the Epworth League of the church will have a surprise social. On Thursday a special fresh air festival will be held, the proceeds of which are to go toward the fresh air fund of the church. Special effort is being made to assist 100 boys and girls into the country for a portion of the summer. The efforts of the entire week will culminate in the special fresh air offering of the Sunday school on Sunday, June 20. Several classes of the church are held on Friday evening.

Children's Day exercises will be held tomorrow morning in James M. E. Church, Reid avenue and Monroe street. In the evening Dean George W. Kirchney of Columbia Law School will give an address on "The Reign of Law Among Nations." Dean Kirchney was one of the most prominent men at the recent peace convention at Lake Mohonk. The Rev. Clarence P. McClelland will give a paper on Robert Burns on Wednesday evening. The Athletic Association will meet that of the Twelfth Street Reformed Church in a dual meet Saturday afternoon, June 26, on James field. A silver loving cup will be given to the side scoring the greater number of points. Dr. Ferdinand C. Iglehart will preach on Sunday morning, June 20, presenting the cause of the Anti-Saloon League.

Summer arrangements go into effect in the Strong Place Baptist Church tomorrow. It has been planned to carry forward an aggressive work during the season, and the Rev. J. J. Parsons has been added to the staff of workers. At present he will assist the pastor, the Rev. A. H. C. Morse, B. L., and during the vacation he will be the pulpit supply. Mr. Parsons will also superintend an industrial work during the week days, and assist generously in the Bible school and young people's work. To-morrow the pastor will preach, and a large benedictory service is planned for the evening. On Tuesday evening the young people go on their annual visit to the Bowery Mission, Manhattan.

In Puritan Congregational Church, Lafayette and Marcy avenues, the pastor, the

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE

NEWS OF CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Church of the Holy Innocents to Hold a Big Lawn Party—St. Francis Commencement.

The next few days will be of special import to the college students at St. John's. The young men will assemble to-morrow morning for the high mass at the church of St. John the Baptist, Lewis and Willoughby avenues. Right Rev. Mgr. Edward W. McCarthy, rector of the Church of St. Augustine, will deliver the baccalaurate sermon. The calendar for the other days of the week, including Wednesday, is as follows:

Sunday, June 20—St. John the Baptist's Church, 11 A.M., Baccalaureate sermon by Right. Rev. Mgr. Edward McCarthy, LL.D., pastor of St. Augustine's Church.

Tuesday, June 22—Memorial requiem mass for the deceased alumni, in St. John the Baptist's Church at 9 A.M. Distribution of field day prizes at 10 A.M. Business meeting of Alumni Association at the college at 8 P.M.

Wednesday, June 23—Commencement exercises at 8 P.M., in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Cardinal Gibbons will preside, and the address to the students will be delivered by Professor Monaghan. The demand for tickets is unprecedented. Cardinal Gibbons will celebrate mass on Thursday morning at the Church of St. John the Baptist.

The newly completed Church of St. Leonard of Port Maurice at Hamburg avenue and Jefferson street, will be dedicated to-morrow morning by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. George Kaupert, V. G. The ceremony will begin at 10:30, and will be very elaborate. The parish of St. Leonard, of which the Rev. George D. Sander is rector, is one of the largest in the country, comprising 15,000 persons, containing many societies which will take part in the ceremonies. The new church was begun about two years ago, and has cost $350,000. Solemn high mass will be offered by the Right Rev. Mgr. George W. Mundelein, chancellor of the diocese.

A convention of the provincials of North America of the Jesuit Order was held this week in New York City. The provincials of the New York-Maryland, the Missouri, Canadian, New Orleans, California-Rocky Mountain Mission, and the New Mexico-Colorado Mission attended the conference which lasted for several days.

The Forty Hours devotion will be held in the following churches of the Brooklyn diocese, commencing to-morrow: St. Lawrence's Church, Sayville; Church of the Holy Redeemer, Freeport; St. Martin's Church, Hancock street and Knickerbocker avenue, and Church of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, Degraw and Hicks streets.

The Rev. Peter Quealey, rector of the Church of St. Agnes, Rockville Centre, sailed for Europe this week to be present at the ordination of his brother in Waterford, Ireland.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Federation of Catholic Societies in the diocese of Brooklyn will take place at St. Patrick's Hall, Taaffe place, near Myrtle avenue, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A tentative report will be made by the committee appointed to draft a letter to the bishops of the state on the question of securing state support for denominational schools. President Feeney will outline the plans for the coming national convention, which is to be held at Pittsburg in the month of August.

The fortieth anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of the Rt. Rev. Mgr. McNamee, rector of St. Teresa's Church, will be marked on Thursday, June 24, with a quiet celebration by the parishioners and friends of the distinguished clergyman. Bishop McDonnell has been mindful of the event and has cabled from Rome the Papal blessing, which he obtained from the Holy Father for this anniversary. Mgr. McNamee is averse to any public ceremonies which concern him personally, and this celebration of his many years of devoted work has been arranged at the urgent request of his parishioners, and without his knowledge. He will celebrate mass in St. Teresa's Church in the morning, very quietly, and in the evening at 8 o'clock he will be tendered an informal reception in the lower church. The Papal blessing obtained by Bishop McDonnell carries with it a plenary indulgence for all who partake of holy communion in honor of the anniversary next Thursday.

The commencement exercises of St. Francis College, on Butler street, will be held on Thursday evening, June 24, at the Majestic Theater. The Rt. Rev. P. J. McNamara, V.G., will preside and many prominent citizens and educators will be seated on the stage. The address to the graduates will be delivered by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. George W. Mundheim, chancellor of the Brooklyn diocese. The graduates of St. Leonard's Academy will hold their commencement at the same time at the Majestic, and it is expected that a large and brilliant audience will attend the affair.

The first lawn party in the new parish of the Holy Innocents, in Flatbush, will be held on the four nights beginning with Wednesday of next week. The lawn party will be held on the grounds surrounding the church at Beverley road and East Seventeenth street. Already, the Rev. William Costello, rector of the parish, has arranged for five hundred electric lights to illuminate the grounds, and this lawn party will be one of the most beautiful ever held in Brooklyn. The grounds of the church are extensive, and they lend themselves readily to decoration. The party is in the hands of a committee of some of the most prominent people in Flatbush, and it will be one of the most brilliant and attractive events of the early summer season. The Boys Band of St. Vincent's Home will render a special musical programme on the opening night, and on Saturday evening an al fresco dinner will be served. Saturday afternoon will be devoted to the children. The residents of Prospect Park South and the adjoining sections of Flatbush are looking forward to this fete as one of the best opportunities they have had to become better acquainted and to have a pleasant time.

The new stations of the Cross in Holy Innocents Church will be erected to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. They have been donated by E. J. Kenny. Father Kennedy, C.M., of St. John's College, will conduct the services, which will be very impressive and interesting.

The scholarship examinations for St. John's College will be held on Saturday morning, June 26, at 9 o'clock, at the college, Lewis and Willoughby avenues. Four scholarships will be awarded. Graduates from the parochial and public schools are eligible for these scholarships, which offer a fine opportunity for boys to earn their education at St. John's without cost.

The examinations of candidates for St. John's Seminary will be held on Friday morning, July 2. Candidates must present themselves at the chancery office at Greene and Vanderbilt avenues two weeks before the examination. They must present letters as to good character and fitness from their own pastors, and from the college at which they studied.

Two recently ordained priests have recently come to Brooklyn from abroad after completing their education. The Rev. Thomas S. Molloy, who studied at Rome, has been assigned to St. John's Chapel and the Rev. A. Bradford has been assigned to St. Francis Xavier's Church.

On Thursday of next week a reception of candidates for the Dominican Order will take place at the Convent in Amityville.

The celebration of the Feast of the Sacred Heart, at the Church of St. John the Baptist, last evening, was most impressive. There had been all-day services at the church, and in the evening the Rev. Luke Grace, C.M., of Germantown, Pa., who had conducted the triduum in preparation for the feast, preached an eloquent sermon on "The Heart of Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament." The church was filled to the doors with a large congregation, and the singing was remarkable for its volume and fervor.

Impressive special services were held by the Promoters League of the Sacred Heart in St. Ignatius Church, attached to Brooklyn College, located at Nostrand avenue and Carroll street, last night. The Rev. F. J. X. O'Conor, rector of the church, preached a very instructive sermon and received the promoters. The Rev. P. Gleason announced benediction. The Rev. Father Coughlan, S.J., was deacon of the services and the Rev. James Fenwick, S.J., was subdeacon. The choir, composed of twenty-five persons, and in charge of Professor L. E. French, sang the hymns in a very solemn and interesting manner, especially "Jesus All Beautiful," the words and music of which were composed by Father O'Conor.

After the services the promoters retired to the auditorium of the college, where a little repast was served. Strawberries, ice cream and cake were the chief refreshments. The following is a list of the promoters: Mrs. Allen, Mrs. French, Katherine Harney, Miss M. Harney, Margaret Leonard, Teresa Leonard, Helen Dooley, Anna Fox, Edna Vella, Lydia Vella, Mary McCulloch, Agnes Leonard, Margaret Finnegan, Anna Carney, Mary Carney, Frances Colgan and May Skelly.

A CEDARHURST SALE.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Mineola, L. I., June 19—There was filed in the county clerk's office yesterday a deed from Talbot J. Taylor and Jessica Keene Taylor to Russell H. Landale, conveying to the latter two lots, 150x100, at Cedarhurst. The consideration named is $4,000.

The deed was executed on July 10, 1908, at Quebec, Can.

FROM TAMPICO AND PROGRESO.

The Ward Line steamship Manzanillo arrived yesterday at Prentice's Stores from Tampico and Progreso. She brought a cargo of silver bars, latle, honey, guayule extract, hides, skins, asphalt, garlic, hemp and sundries.

The same line's steamship Camaguay arrived this morning from Cienfuegos and Guantanamo. She brought a cargo of sugar, cedar, mahogany and miscellaneous products.

FROM GREECE AND SICILIY.

The Austro-American Line steamship Clara arrived yesterday at the Bush Company's Independent Stores from Patras and Palermo. She brought a cargo of olive oil, wine, cheese, preserves, currants and 18,000 bags of lemons.

RUSHING IN CUBAN SUGAR.

Every Effort Being Made to Get Ahead of the Tariff Bill.

Refiners and importers are rushing in Cuban sugar every day, so as to be ahead of the new tariff bill when it comes into operation. Among the latest arrivals are the following cargoes: Cedar grove, 26,171 bags to Arbuckle Bros.; Madrileno, 18,099 bags to the Federal refinery, and 10,500 to order; the Yoruba, 32,079 bags to the American Sugar Refining Company; the Valetta, 29,709 bags to Zaldo & Co.; the Paloma, 10,000 bags to the Federal refinery and 6,594 to order and the Vitalia, 9,391 bags to order.

To illustrate the energy with which merchandise is being rushed in to avoid the duties that may be levied on certain classes of goods, it is reported that the steamship Asia is racing across the Pacific Ocean with 1,000 tons of tea on board from China and Japan. So great is the hurry to get her cargo landed at San Francisco that she has been ordered not to stop at Honolulu, by which she will gain two days in point of time.

OPEN AIR SERVICE.

In the Wells Memorial Presbyterian Church the pastor, the Rev. William Bishop Gates, will preach to-morrow morning on the life of "Edward Everett Hale." In the evening an open air service is held upon the lawn of the church. Gospel hymns, led by a cornetist, are used and the "Parables of the Lord" is the subject of the sermon which will be illustrated by colored stereopticon views. Next Wednesday evening will be held a service preparatory to the communion, which comes on the last Sunday in June, at which time the church is to receive new members both by letter and the confession of their faith. The present membership is 126. The church is about 3 years old. The Sunday school closes on June 27, holding special closing exercises. On the Saturday preceding they are to have a picnic, probably in Bronx Park. The church will hold no evening service during July and August.

DR. MAC ARTHUR'S SERMONS.

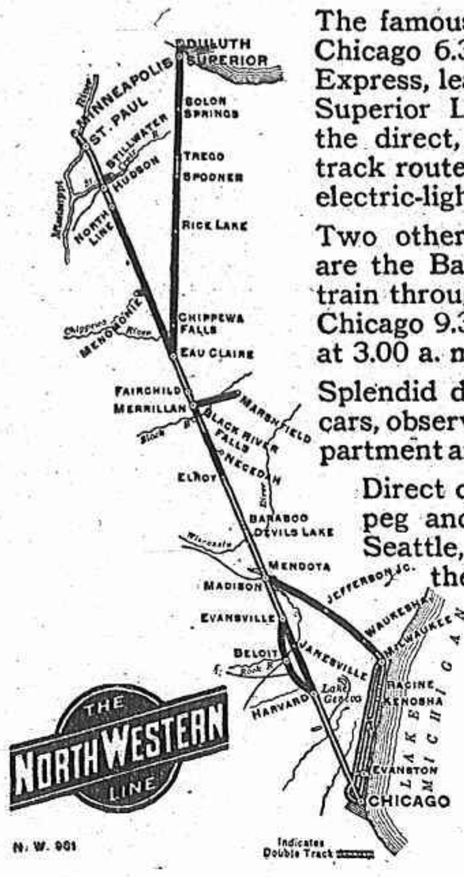

Dr. MacArthur of Calvary Baptist Church, Fifty-seventh street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, Manhattan, rarely sermonizes on "The Second Coming of Christ." That topic, however, is germane to the course, and the last in the course, which he has been preaching during the last few months. It will therefore be his theme in the new type of service. His morning topic will be "Beholding His Hands." Special music by the 100-voiced choir, under the direction of Edward Morris Bowman, will emphasize these discourses. Sunday evening, June 27, will be the last service for Calvary choir prior to the summer vacation, and Mendelssohn's master-work, the oratorio "Elijah," will be given as a musical service. All the principal solos, quartets and choruses will be sung.

LADIES AID LAWN PARTY.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Epiphany, Sterling place and Nostrand avenue, will hold a lawn party, this evening, on the grounds of the church. Entertaining features will be introduced and the grounds will be illuminated and decorated.

TORE HIS SKIN OFF IN SHREDS

Itching was Intense—Humor Spread from Hands to Body—Work Interrupted and Sleep Often Impossible—Disease Resisted Treatment

BUT CUTICURA CURED HIM IN THREE WEEKS

"My trouble commenced about two years ago and consisted, at first, of an eruption of small pustules on my hands. These spread later to other parts of my body, and the itching at times was intense, so much so that I literally tore the skin off in shreds in seeking relief. The awful itching interfered with my work considerably, and also kept me awake nights. I tried several doctors and used a number of different ointments and lotions but received practically no benefit. Finally I settled down to the use of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, with the result that in a few days all itching had ceased and in about three weeks' time all traces of my eruption had disappeared. I have had no trouble of this kind since. H. A. Krutskoff, 5714 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., November 18 and 28, 1907."

SKIN HEALTH

Effected by Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in tetter, or salt rheum — all demand a remedy of extraordinary virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent (liquid or pills) are such stands proven by unquestioned testimonials.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

CITY SUED FOR RENT.

Albany, June 19—The Court of Appeals has heard arguments in the case of James Kennedy, plaintiff-appellant, against the City of New York, defendant-respondent. The appeal is from an order of the Appellate Division, Second Department, reversing a judgment in favor of the plaintiff and dismissing the complaint.

The action was brought to recover rent of the City Hall in Long Island City, upon the claim that the defendant was a holdover tenant for the year. On the trial before Justice Maddox, judgment was given in plaintiff's favor. The Appellate Division reversed the judgment and dismissed the complaint on the ground that the compromise of another action between the same parties was a bar to this.

This left a question, according to the appellant, whether another action brought by the plaintiff for rent of same premises for August, September, October, November and December, 1898—such former action having been begun on October 29, 1904, or after the rent sued for in the present action had fully accrued—was in law a bar to the present action.

The original leases were for five years from December 31, 1891, to Long Island City, and the city held over continuously from January, 1896, to January, 1899. The rental was $5,000 a year. The judgment of the trial term was rendered in an action resulting from the consolidation of two actions, one begun in 1905, and the other in December, 1895. The court directed the verdict for plaintiff for the entire year of 1899. It appeared in the evidence that judgment and a recovery was had for rent accrued in 1898, in an action begun in 1904, and that it was paid.

The Appellate Division decided that as all the rent was due, a single case of action existed, which could not be split into two actions, and the judgment rendered was a bar to the action of 1905. Plaintiff contends that there were two separate and distinct contracts implied in the holding [illegible] beginning of each year, and [illegible] may be maintained.

MR. BARNER'S RESIGNATION

Is It a Question of Orthodoxy That Brings It About?

Young People Want Pastor to Remain, While Others Criticise His Beliefs.

The Rev. A. S. Barner, who has been pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church, Eighth avenue and Sixteenth street, for the past three years, has tendered his resignation. Rumors of friction between the pastor and a few of the church members were circulated as a reason for Mr. Barner's action.

At the conclusion of the prayer meeting last evening in the chapel George Fluhr, church clerk, was asked what action, if any, had been taken on the pastor's resignation, and he said:

"Mr. Barner has gone away for a few weeks. His health has not been good and he has worked very hard. He will not be here on Sunday, but the board has determined not to accept his resignation should he officially tender it."

When asked if the pastor's broadening and more liberal interpretation of the Bible was responsible for his desire to seek other fields of religious endeavor, one of the officials bitterly denounced the new wave of non-orthodoxy which is sweeping away old beliefs, and said: "We want no change; we desire no change in the interpretation of the Bible. This new idea is terrible. Look at that fellow Foster out in Chicago; he should be kicked right out of the church and at once."

A group of young women discussing the pastor's action hoped he would come back and "fight it out." There is evidence that Mr. Barner has worked hard to place the affairs of the church in a prosperous condition, and, while the majority of the congregation is in sympathy with him, his efforts to conciliate the hostile faction were frustrated. Eight pastors have come and gone from the church since 1891.

ORPHANS HAVE A FESTIVAL.

Children in Brooklyn Orphan Asylum Celebrate Sale of Bricks for New Hospital.

The children of the Brooklyn Orphan Asylum had the time of their lives, yesterday, at a festival given in honor of the children who have helped sell and who have purchased bricks for the erection of the new hospital on the asylum grounds. Each person holding a brick was entitled to admission free and refreshments.

From 2 to 5:30 P.M. the children romped and played on the spacious lawns of the asylum grounds.

The band from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum entertained and there were merry games played by both the children of the asylum and the visitors. So far the sale of the bricks has yielded over $1,000, but quite a sum is still needed.

The bricks may still be obtained from Miss C. Bair, chairman, 40 South Oxford street; also at the Orphan Asylum Society, Kingston and Atlantic avenues.

BOY ATHLETES THE GUESTS.

Faculty of B. H. S. Gives Dinner to the Past Year's Champions.

The annual dinner given by the faculty of the Boys High School to those boys who have been prominent in the field of athletic sports during the past year took place last night in the large dining hall of the Assembly, Pierrepont street, near Fulton, and about fifty clear-eyed, clean limbed, active youths sat down to a bountiful repast. The principal of the Boys High School, Dr. James Sullivan, presided, and seated at the hosts' table were Professors A. C. Fontaine, E. D. Daniels, E. E. Smith, A. B. Cohen, F. Z. Lewis, Wood, Hughes, Pollock, Berkowitz, Crooke and W. H. Andrews. The proceedings were jolly and informal, and a spirit of good fellowship was prevalent. The captains of the track, baseball, football and other teams spoke of the work and success of their respective branches of athletic sports, and all deplored the lack of a suitable field in which the boys could practice for their contests with the other high schools of the borough and greater city, and urged that every effort should be made to secure in the near future a fund which could be used either for the purchase of such a field, or invested so that the income would lease a suitable practice ground. Dr. Sullivan, E. D. Daniels, A. C. Fontaine, E. E. Smith and W. H. Andrews spoke for the faculty, congratulating the boys on their success during the year, and commending the manliness of the teams, which had shown their ability both to achieve victory and suffer defeat with true sportsmanlike equanimity. The boys sang their school songs with ringing enthusiasm, especially extolling the "Red and Black," and concluding with the Boys High yell, "Rah, rah, Faculty!" The youthful athletes present were: S. E. Seaman, H. C. Kuhn, H. Hauser, H. G. Van Riper, H. H. Taylor, S. Gardner, T. N. Holden, W. A. Lynch, G. McElvare, J. J. Dwyer, A. G. Leeds, C. F. Nicols, F. A. O'Leary, C. Major, A. B. Goggins, J. W. Smith, H. Swiggett, A. Harvitt, H. C. Fonda, F. H. Alcott, Jr.; B. Taylor, C. M. Ernst, H. A. Taylor, R. Fitzpatrick, E. Swan, P. G. Haviland, F. D. Caruthers, A. F. Van Winkle, J. Bridgetta, J. Wispert, W. V. Egan, D. T. Havens, C. W. Roemmele, E. A. Stevenson, O. A. Olson, L. Kohn, J. J. Golding, R. Austin, N. N. Baer, C. Jacobs, C. P. Collins, D. F. Faber.

Mrs. Fred P. Sulzer and son Philip sailed June 10 on the steamship United States for a visit to her old home in Sweden, after an absence of twenty-three years. They will return September 10.

The first and only instrument of its kind.

A handsome cabinet to outward appearances, graceful in design and beautiful in its simplicity. But what a world of melody it gives forth! And what a wonderfully pure and mellow tone! Never before were the great masterpieces of music—all the splendid Victor music—played so sweetly and perfectly.

"Where does the music come from?" you ask. Beneath the lid of the Victrola is a turntable on which the Victor Record is placed. From there the tone-waves are carried through the tapering arm down to the sounding board surface which amplifies and reflects them. And the melody floats out from behind the small doors which can be regulated to make the music loud or soft at will.

This then is the Victrola—the most wonderful of all musical instruments. But you can't know how wonderful it really is until you hear it, for the Victrola has a tone-quality such as was never known in any musical instrument.

Hear the Victrola today at the nearest Victor dealer's—he will gladly play it for you. Look for the Victor Dog on the inside of the lid.

Write to us for complete catalogues of the Victor—$10, $25, $32.50, $40, $50, $60, $100—and of 3000 Victor Records.

A CHARMING SOCIETY GIRL.

Miss Marie Esther McNamee Engaged to Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan.

One of Brooklyn's most widely known Society girls has become the fiancee of the hour. She is engaged, moreover, to one of the very prominent younger men of the borough. This just announced fiancee is Miss Marie Esther McNamee. Miss McNamee's fiance is Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan.

A luncheon of sixteen covers at the McNamees' country place, Estherleigh, in Bay Shore, on Thursday, formally made this announcement public. Society generally will be greatly interested. This coming bride has been, since her debut a year or so ago, a very active figure of social life. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McNamee of 237 Jefferson avenue, and also of Bay Shore, and was a Packer girl. She has traveled extensively.

Dr. Sullivan, whom Miss McNamee is to marry, is always spoken of as Dr. "Ray" Sullivan. Few men in Brooklyn are better liked and few have made themselves more of a personality. He is a son of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Sullivan of Hancock street, and a brother of Miss Hester Sullivan.

GREENPOINT Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

A social gathering of the members of the Greenpoint Y. M. C. A. will be held on Monday evening, at which the subject of vacations will be thoroughly presented. Stereopticon pictures will be shown of different camps in New Hampshire, which are owned and operated by the Young Men's Christian Association. Plans will be considered for Saturday afternoon and other outings, and excursions during the summer months. A special entertainer will be present to furnish the attraction of the evening. Camera enthusiasts and those who are interested in baseball outings and other summer attractions are expected to participate in the programme. Members and prospective members are invited.

The baseball games this Saturday will be on the home grounds. The first team will play the Bergen Beach team and the second team will play the nine from the Bedford Branch of Young Men's Christian Association.

The subject for the Bible class on Tuesday evening will be "The First Missionary Journey of Paul." A portion of the evening will also be devoted to teacher training. This class is taught by John MacCrate. Any young men interested in Bible teaching are invited to attend.

The swimming pool and shower baths are greatly enjoyed by the members, especially after the baseball games and Saturday outing trips. The bowling alleys and the class drills on the gymnasium floor continue to be attractive and quite a number of new members are joining the association every week. The dormitory and restaurant will have increased patronage during the summer months on account of the fact that men, whose families go to the country, are kept in the city because of business.

MR. MAC MILLAN TO SPEAK.

In the absence of Pastor Russell, who preaches in New Britain, Conn., Sunday, A. H. MacMillan, one of his assistants, will fill the people's pulpit at 3 o'clock in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, using for his topic "The Three Covenants." All are cordially invited to be present. No collection.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN CATHOLIC CIRCLES

BROTHERS OPEN SUMMER HOME

Sacred Heart Academy Commencement—Contest for Gold Medal Decided.

The many friends of the Rev. Dr. William J. White, pastor of the Church of the Visitation and the Rev. E. J. McGoldrick, pastor of St. Cecilia's, have been overwhelming the two well known priests with congratulations on account of the honors that have been bestowed upon them by the Holy Father during the past week. Both clergymen have had the purple stowed upon them the title of monsignor, and both will hereafter wear the purple. Dr. White and Father McGoldrick are indefatigable workers and are very popular. For the past ten years Dr. White has been supervisor of Catholic charities, and he is deeply interested in Catholic settlement work. Father McGoldrick has made a wonderful record for himself by the building up of St. Cecilia's parish, which has had a remarkable growth under his direction.

Mgr. McCarty of St. Augustine's, following a custom established by him many years ago, entertained the numerous workers about the church with an outing on Thursday next, July 8. A big steamer, with a capacity of 1,500, has been engaged, but as only about one-third that number will be on board, there will be plenty of room to promenade and find cool spots, and there will be no crowding whatever. The boat will go up the sound to Valley Grove in Huntington Harbor, where beautiful grounds will be provided. This is an unusual feature of excursions of this kind, and practically does away with the necessity for carrying those tempting lunch boxes and baskets, though many of the guests will probably bring little "extras" along that will come in handy when the afternoon ward off hunger. Mr. McCarty's invitations have the true ring of hospitality, as the cards warn the recipients to bring all their good nature along, as there will be no room on the boat for trouble. The jolly party will include the Sunday school teachers, members of the choir, ushers and altar boys, and all those who assisted at the "New Era" bazaar recently held to swell the fund for the new school building. The boat will leave the foot of Pacific street at 9:30 A.M. and after a long, pleasant day the return will be made in the early evening.

The summer retreat of St. Francis College, at Centerport, L. I., was officially opened on the season on Thursday last. In addition to the brothers, there were about thirty boys, who will enjoy all sorts of recreation under the supervision of their superiors. The lads are allowed to plenty of liberty, with a proper amount of restriction, and under retreat is becoming more and more popular with parents who want their boys to enjoy a healthful outing under good auspices. It is expected that by the middle of next week there will be at least seventy-five boys at the house, and the labor of love of the brothers will be correspondingly increased. The brothers themselves find Centreport a splendid place to recuperate after their hard season's work, and only enough men are left behind at the city house to properly care for things. Brother Thomas, Brother Vincent and Brother Isidore are among those who are already at Centreport, encouraging the youngsters under their care to enjoy their holidays to the fullest extent.

On Wednesday last the members of Rosary Society of St. Augustine's Cathedral enjoyed their annual outing. The place selected was Seeley's hotel at Coney Island, and the fifty boys in the party took possession of it early in the morning. The first thing on the programme was a dip in the surf. After an hour or two of aquatic sports the lads took in the sights of the island and then returned to the hotel for another short bath. By this time they had a wonderful appetite for luncheon, to which they did full justice. Prior to the arrival of the noon was enlivened with songs and cheers by everybody, including the moderator, Brother George. The officers of the society are: Joseph Lang, president; John Crowe, vice president, and Daniel Daly, secretary-treasurer.

The school attached to St. Augustine's Church held its closing exercises on Wednesday, June 30. The classes are primary, kindergarten and grammar, and there are a few pupils in the higher grades. Four of the girls successfully passed the Regents examinations. The closing exercises were held in the gymnasium of the new school building, that being the largest room in the big room was used, except for the bazar, which was in an unfinished condition. Mgr. McCarty expects that the new school, the total cost of which is close to $30,000, will be finished and fully equipped before September 1, when a perfect system, embracing all grades, will be established. The boys will be taught by Christian Brothers and the girls by the Sisters of St. Joseph. It is the intention to have a high school will be one of the features of the new school when the school is in full running order.

At the Church of Our Lady of Mercy in Schermerhorn street on Sunday last a class of 125 children received first communion. In the afternoon 100 more were received into the Junior Holy Name society, and the girls joined the Angela Society.

The gold medal for Christian Doctrine offered annually by Father Woods of Holy Cross Church in Flatbush was won this year by Miss Eileen Cummings of Holy Cross school. The contest for examination was held on June 19, and was open to all pupils attending the schools of the Sisters of St. Joseph in the diocese of Brooklyn. Miss Florence E. M. O'Grady of St. Joseph's, Long Island City, and Miss Anna Doyle of Nativity school were the two runners-up. The gold medal always arouses intense interest in the various schools, and the prize is looked upon as a very lucky individual.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul opened its new rooms at Freeport on Friday, sending down about 500 people who for several days before were in charge of this branch of the work of the church and made ready for the event in unusually low, and those who have the means and are interested in the welfare of poor boys who seldom see much of the brighter side of life are urged to come forward with contributions for the good work along. The society has been overwhelmed with applications, and it will be impossible to accommodate all who desire to send their boys to the camp. All charity unless money is given at once. There are several branches of the society in Brooklyn, who have luxurious summer homes of their own, and to them the committee makes a special appeal for the use of the lads who want a chance to see free life in the country for a few days at least. Those who desire to contribute may send their donations to T. J. Bohlsen, treasurer, 1 and 5 Court square, or to Joseph A. Blanc, president of the society, 1922 Pacific street.

At the Church of the Visitation, Hicks and Verona streets, the feast day of the church will be celebrated on Sunday, July 4. The actual feast day was July 2. A solemn high mass will be celebrated by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. White, and a special sermon will be preached by a member of the church. On Monday the annual picnic of the Young Men's Sodality attached to the church will take place at Hudson Grove. A record crowd is expected and splendid arrangements have been made by the various committees, so that everyone will be sure of a good time.

A large delegation of Knights of Columbus will leave Brooklyn for the Champlain tercentenary celebration to-morrow night. Owing to the Independence Day celebration in this borough at Prospect Park on Monday, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, many will remain over to participate in this event and then leave on Monday night's Albany boat. In the second delegation will be State Deputy Daniel J. Griffin, James A. Nolan, Charles A. Webber, Maurice Breen, James F. Kennedy, Thomas S. Butler, Francis Langan, John Kelly, John Cragen, John Walsh, James J. Hoey, Senator Thomas Cullen, Michael O'Neil, James Foley, Michael Stanton, Patrick F. McGowan, Eugene Philbin, William P. Dyhan and Frank Smith.

The commencement exercises of the Sacred Heart Academy were held on Friday evening. Great credit is due the sisters for the excellent programme which was rendered in a most commendable manner. The Rev. Mother General from France was present and in her honor several French recitations were given. The programme was as follows:

Salutatory, Mary McAuliff; greeting song, choral class; action song, "Topsy Turvy," Bryant, Our Babies; violin solo, "Valse," Ehrhardt, Carl Anderson; operetta, "The Rose Queen," Schnidler; characters, Miss Rose, Rose Converse; Daisy, S. Fing Song in pantomime, Chorus Class. The diplomas were awarded by the Rev. M. P. McMahon.

The Chapel of St. Gertrude, at Oyster Bay, will be dedicated on Sunday by the Rt. Rev Mgr. P. J. McNamara, V.G. The dedication sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Slominic, at Oyster Bay, and will be under the charge of the Rev. Walter Power.

Lawrence J. Mannion of St. John's School and Harold G. Frederickson of the Eighteenth ward were chosen valedictorians of the high school scholarships offered by the Jesuit Fathers of Brooklyn College. The scholarships entitle the lucky boys to pursue the full four years high school course at the college.

Among the summer social events planned are the following: St. Brigid's Colseum, Ridgewood, July 21; societies of Holy Family Church, Canarsie, festival at the White House, Canarsie, July 28; societies of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, open-air euchre, at Dexter Park, July 28; St. Finbarr's Church, Bath Beach, lawn euchre on the church grounds, July 19.

The faculty of St. John's College announces that, beginning with the next term, a fully equipped school of engineering will be established, in which instruction, both theoretical and practical, will be of the most thorough sort.

The annual outing and games of the men of the Church of the Epiphany will take place on July 14, at Glenwood Grove. A number of valuable prizes have been secured, and all will be in readiness at white heat. The steamer will leave from the long dock at Wallabout at 9 o'clock.

The Rev. John Corbett, who was recently ordained, celebrated his first high mass on Sunday last, at the Church of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The Rev. Patrick J. Kane, of the Church of St. Rose of Lima, Parkville, preached the sermon, and there was filled with the relatives and friends of the young priest, and many of them received his blessing.

The 142 boys who competed for the four scholarships offered by the High School Department of St. John's College assembled in the auditorium of the college yesterday, to hear the announcement of the names of the winners of the much-coveted prizes. The announcement was made by Father Carey, prefect of studies, and he was attended by the board of examiners. The winners are William J. Behan of St. Thomas Aquinas parish, Reinhart Hohaus and Thomas Harrison, both of St. Mary's, and James McDermott of St. Francis of Assisi. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the general and hearty congratulations showered upon the winners by the other boys who had competed. The scholarships entitle the holders to four years' tuition in the high school department of the college under the best masters.

The summer schedule of services at the Church of St. John the Baptist will go into effect to-morrow. The high mass will be discontinued, and there will be but two mass. every Sunday at 11 o'clock. Benediction will be given at 8 o'clock on Sunday evening.

WITH THE TOURISTS.

Making all preparations to celebrate the Fourth of July on the high seas, several Eighteenth ward people are now enjoying trips abroad. Among those aboard the big steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. were Miss Alice Ahern and Miss Mary Tighe, both of whom are teachers in the public schools, and Miss Mary Tighe will make a tour of the British Isles.

Others on the same ship were Miss Ettie O'Sullivan of the Kings County Hospital staff, Miss Mary Theobald and William Stephenson of Atlantic avenue; Miss Mary Mayer and Miss Josephine Mayer of Union street, all planning to visit the Continent.

Miss Louise G. Farrant of Montague street and Miss Maude Wilkinson of Joralemon street are among the voyagers and will make a tour of the Continent.

Aboard the S. S. Caronia were Dr. F. P. Hogan and Miss Hogan of Bedford avenue, and many Continental Europe. Attorney David Joyce and Mrs. Joyce, who will spend the summer in Switzerland, Germany and Miss Martha Cann and Miss Alice Cann of Hancock street, who will visit friends in Germany.

On the S. S. Kaiserin Augusta Victoria were Miss Anna Schmidt of Bedford avenue, bound for Germany; Mrs. Rose Schmidt and Miss Rose Schmidt, who will spend the summer with relatives in Germany, and Miss Meta Curtis of Remsen, who will visit friends in Switzerland and Germany.

Miss Anna S. Jenkins of Nostrand avenue was a passenger on the S. S. Philadelphia, bound for Europe, on Saturday. The Misses Siesuh and Vetter of Perry street were aboard the same ship. They are going to France.

NICKELS FOR FRANCS.

Woman Finds Substitution in Her Satchel—Paramour Held for Larceny, She for Vagrancy.

Magistrate Tighe presiding in the Adams street court, yesterday, held Katena Gonzalo, aged 35 years, for hearing on next Wednesday on a charge of vagrancy and Angelo Demakos, aged 35, for examination on the same day, on a charge of larceny. Bail in the case of the latter was fixed at $500 and in that of Demakos at $1,000. The latter was unable to furnish it, each went to prison. Katena admitted that she came to this country from Greece on the same steamship with the man. He abandoned a wife and four children there, according to Detective Kennedy, who arrested and identified him. The woman, who is rather attractive, has dark hair and eyes, dark skin and brilliant eyes, admitted to Magistrate Tighe that she knew that the man was married when she arose to associate with him, and when she left Greece with him she left behind her a magistrate frowned at her and did not hesitate to express his mind to her, for on the complaint that she had been robbed of $500 since coming to this city the money with her, and the police say that Gorgos would have been able to get it away from her. She kept it in a satchel, and it was lumpy, being mostly of five franc pieces. The satchel disappeared, and she was satisfied. Then Demakos was arrested and found into the satchel. There were many nickels there, and the man was charged with larceny. He denied the charge, and a court was made. There were two five franc pieces in the bottom of the satchel, and the rest of the lumpy satchel bundle when they were packed up again.

The woman told the police and a search was made for Gorgos. He had vanished, but the police, by private arrangements to go to Chicago, where, the police say, he intends to join his family. The detectives arrested him Thursday while he was on a train in the Grand Central Station, and he was taken to Brooklyn on an express office. Singularly enough the money was mysteriously returned to the woman before the arrest.

BABY'S ITCHING WAS INTOLERABLE

Girl of Six Months had Fearful Attack of Eczema—Spread All Over Her Face and Eyes Began to Swell—Scratched Till Blood Came—Relieved in a Night

CURED BY CUTICURA AFTER LONG SUFFERING

"When my little girl was six months old I noticed small red spots on her face right cheek. I did not pay any attention to them but finally the spots grew so large that I sent for the doctor who said it was ringworm. He prescribed an ointment which I used for two weeks, but instead of helping the eruption, the ointment spread the sickness around to make it worse. Then I went to a second doctor who after examining the baby said it was eczema. He also gave me an ointment which did not help either. The disease in the meantime spread all over the face and the eyes began to swell. I became very anxious. The itching grew intolerable. I had to tie the baby's hands to the cradle to prevent her scratching. The cheeks were covered with blood and it was a terrible sight to see. I consulted doctors from September to December, but they were unable to cure the baby. I paid out from twenty to thirty dollars without relief.

"One of my friends told me of the Cuticura Remedies and I sent at once for a set which I began to use that evening. The next morning the baby's face was all white instead of red and you can imagine how surprised I was. I cannot find words enough to praise Cuticura and I do not know what would have become of my baby only for it. I used the Cuticura Remedies until the eczema was entirely disappeared. The child is now three years old and quite well. I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and I never use any other soap. I always recommend them whenever there is a chance for others to know." (Signed) Mrs. P. E. Gumbin, Sheldon, La., July 13, 1908.

20th Century Limited

Overnight to Chicago

Operating Record for 123 Consecutive Days

The train made 123 trips, Chicago to New York, aggregating 120,000 miles. It carried an average of nine cars each day, as high as eleven cars in single train and ran in double sections eight different days.

The weight of this train is approximately 1,800,000 lbs., this tremendous weight being drawn by a single engine weighing 266,000 lbs., conceded to be the most efficient and powerful type of passenger locomotive in the world.

The train was operated 2,214 hours, 132,840 minutes, and was late a total of but ten minutes—99 99/100% of a perfect record for 123 days' operation.

"SUI GENERIS"

There is a Latin expression, "sui generis," which, freely translated, means "the only one of its kind"—something which has never been run in so many double sections, and in addition these double sections have pulled into the Grand Central Station side by side along the same platform, both sections exactly on time.

No other train in the world has ever carried two dining cars regularly.

No other similar train in the world has ever carried so many passengers.

The Route Followed by this Train and all others via the New York Central Lines is the Water Level Route from New York to Chicago, with gradeless tracks and the minimum of curves. The terminals at Chicago and New York are the most accessible in either city. The La Salle Street Station in Chicago is the only station on the elevated loop; Grand Central Station the only railroad terminal in New York City.

The "Controlled Manual Block System" used for the operation of this and other trains on New York Central Lines is said by the best railroad men to be the "safest known," and that on account of its "superiority" it "cannot be compared with others on a satisfactory basis."

FIRE FROM CAMPHOR BALL

Chief Kellogg Says It Was Spontaneous Combustion—Has Known Similar Cases.

"Spontaneous combustion of a camphor ball" is given as the cause of a fire which did considerable damage at 5:30 o'clock at the two-story frame cottage at 102 East Eighteenth street, owned and occupied by John Wood. The fire was discovered in the attic, and the electric wires do not touch any of the beams. Chief Kellogg of the Flatbush Fire Department, who has had experience with this kind of a fire before.

The Woodys planned to leave today for the country. Mrs. Woody was busy packing trunks in the attic when she noticed the smoke. When the firemen reached the house upper story was a mass of flames. The blaze was not a particularly hard one to fight, however, and was extinguished after about $1,500 damage had been done.

CONFERENCE AT HUNTINGTON.

L. I. Railroad and Huntington Association to Co-operate in Beautifying New Depot Grounds.

Huntington, L. I., July 3—At a conference on Thursday morning, between E. J. Berwind, president of the L. I. R. R., and Williams and others of the transportation committee of the Huntington Association, and the Long Island Railroad officials, as to the improvement of the grounds surrounding Huntington station of the Long Island Railroad, the company agreed to grade the grounds, construct a retaining wall to roll and all the necessary fertilizer and loam, and the association agrees to plant the grounds.

The Huntington Association is to engage Landscape Artist and Engineer Petitt, a well known expert on depot grounds, to plan a layout which it is expected will be among the finest in the country. The association will head a subscription list with $500, provided that the total amount raised by the association and station shall equal $1,500. It is expected to be completed by September 1.

The handsome grove of big trees at the northern end of the depot grounds will be preserved and a row of evergreens will be planted on the property skirting the northerly side of the grounds.

GOOD TEMPLARS ENTERTAIN.

The regular meeting of Brooklyn Lodge No. 1, I. O. G. T., was held last night at Temperance Temple, corner of State street and Hoyt street, in the form of a patriotic flavor to it. An address of welcome was made by C. C. Wilcox and was followed by several piano and musical selections. Those who took part were Miss Lillian Bloom, piano solo; W. Wise, vocal selections; Mr. and Mrs. Schleicher, duet; Miss Lillian Bloom, recitation; Clara N. Nelce, soprano solo; Miss Lillian Bloom, piano solo; Miss Mrs. Wilcox and daughter, Ella. The programme was ended with a social in the Temperance Temple.

Letters to the Editor.

THE BENEFICENCE OF PAIN.

A Soothing Dissertation Upon an Irritating Theme.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

Pain arises from excessive irritation or stimulation of the nerves. In a moderate degree it may be agreeable, but if long continued becomes painful. It puts us on our guard and tells us that the tissues are in danger of being injured. The warnings of pain should always be heeded. Nature makes no unnecessary complaints.

The capacity for pain increases with the fineness of the organization. It is well known that the low r animals suffer much less than man from a like injury. Savages are less sensitive to pain than civilized man.

Pain is one of the great blessings vouchsafed to man by Nature, and is like the sentinel on a watch tower to warn the people of the approach of an enemy., Pain never comes except through transgression of some law of nature. Its presence is positive proof of that, and should be taken as a friendly warning and an indication that it is time to stop and discover, if may be, the cause of the trouble. If it comes from persons continued wrongdoing or violence to any function, it will necessarily be relieved by moderation, abstinence or change of habits that will at first call for more or less self-denial.

It would be folly for the sentinel to attempt the relief of pain, of neuralgia, for instance, by blinding the lookout, for that can only give temporary relief; it simply deadens the nerves of the patient and would be like shooting a sentinel on the watch tower, instead of warning him of the defensive powers to repel the invader.

The true man or woman who aims to live right and place himself in harmony with nature's laws will be delighted to even bruises and accidents will soon be recovered from without pain, and the only way to serve the world is for man to educate himself and perfect his own body. This, with the aid of a good mind, will help and hasten the period of the coming man with the golden rule.

Magnolia said, "Though it may appear like spitting on the sun to try to dispel the shadow of pleasure, yet it is certain that those who have the most to endure from the sources of pleasure have recourse to the causes of pain and gratify them by their effects. Again, it may be said of the world that men who are debauched and depressed find their chief enjoyment in the efforts find only intolerable pain."

A passing feeling of pain or mild malady should be kept from taking pain, relieving drugs, for such drugs break down instead of building and therefore if drug habit which must be met by giving more drugs, the more drugs the more pain, and the more pain the more drugs, and in many instances the patient is killed by a drug disease which has been developed in a pain endeavor to get relief.

There is something like a charm in the idea of sending down a sick man's throat a dose that silences him and relieves all his distress with magical celerity. But the charm is at once dissipated when we look to the ultimate consequences. The very pain that the dose has subdued is but the warning voice of the organic injustice that something is wrong, or is the effort of nature to rid herself of the foe, the enemy, and its language is pain. It is one thing to relieve the patient for a time for help, but it is quite another thing to relieve it by subduing the enemy. The first may often be done by narcotics, and stimulants, the second can be accomplished by the use of hot water or a combination of these or other simple agencies. In fact, they often stand in need in removing pain when the most powerful narcotics fail to relieve it. Therefore, pray be inflammation, obstruction engorgement, distention or tension, then the pain of which all of the opium that has been taken short of destroying life will not alleviate, and yet heat and moisture will relieve at once. It is useless to think or reiterate that pain is a friend to another. It is a matter of profound regret that too often it is made a friend to some our fool without the least regard of the real needs of the case. It is not to be seat as a relief guard, lest we destroy the whole city.

There is only one disease, impure blood. The blood furnishes the material for repair and building up of every tissue, nerve and brain cell of the body. The different appearances of disease arise from the variable action of the different organs that eliminate waste matter, and of the poisons produced by the different little parasites, microbes, accompanying some of the putrefactive changes. Pain, however, in a beneficial process, cannot be too imperfectly understood and, if it is not, it should never be suppressed, but rather encouraged and heeded, for it is the directively by restoring the harmony of the body. The orthodox treatment is to cure disease, but the use of poisonous drugs called medicines which nature has to get rid of is to add disease to the bodily impurities.

The great trouble is that we live under too much pressure, and life is too artificial. The results are necessarily disease and suffering. By obeying the dictates of pain life becomes glorious and free from pain.

ON "SIGH" AVENUE.

Also a Little Bit About the Banana Line, With Its Red and Yellow Cars.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

Sir—Is the watchful attention which the railroads give to the people of that section of Brooklyn

On Coney Island avenue (called Sigh avenue, because of the yawning intervals between cars) there is a line of yellow and red cars, that run in bunches, known as the banana line. Getting on one of these cars anywhere between Avenue H Midway and the Park Circle, the conductor collects your nickel and hands you a ticket, punches it, and passes on to the motorman, who sets off the dashlight, which is over his head, and you are "fenced in" from the world for the next ten minutes.

Up to a few weeks ago this white ticket was accepted at the Park Circle Franklin avenue line. Now you get a colored transfer ticket with No. 2 on it.

At 3:05 P. M. on Caton avenue, going north, the car makes considerable noise bumping over the rails. At 3:06 it is ahead of the Park Circle where, upon hearing the noise, the car is seen to have had a derailment. Getting on one of these cars, you are told to change at Ocean Parkway and the Park Circle, the conductor collects your nickel and hands you a white ticket punched in the center. The motorman, who sets off the dashlight, which is over his head, and you are "fenced in" from the world for

THE WHOLESALE MARKETS.

Wallabout Market.

A nuisance, and one which has received slight recognition, is the vacant lots on C street, near Freeman street, where peddlers sort their vegetables and leave the bad and decayed portions in the lots. The odor from this is unbearable to the merchants located in the vicinity. John Rayher of Schukal, Miller & Co. of 1026 Wallabout Market, produce and fruit commission merchants, wrote the Board of Aldermen complaining of the nuisance. Alderman Colgan said the matter was referred to the local board.

Louis Stutz & Sons, wholesale provisioners, have just closed a lease for the building now occupied by the Hutwelker Provision Company, the latter firm vacating to take possession of their new building on Hall street.

Mrs. Benny Klein, wife of one of the popular representatives of the market, sails to-day for a European trip, which will cover about three months. She was accompanied by her two children.

10,000 EXPECTED.

College Point Prepares to Welcome a Record Crowd of Firemen Next October.

The committee which is arranging for the Southern New York Volunteer Firemen's Association convention, to be held in College Point, under the auspices of the Exempt Firemen's Association, next October, is fast perfecting plans for the affair. From present indications it promises to be the largest in the history of the organization.

At the meeting of the committee last evening a large number of acceptances were received from fire companies in Queens, Nassau and Suffolk for the parade and tournament. The committee is arranging to entertain over 10,000 visitors on the day of the parade.

It was decided to hold the convention in Donnelly's Boulevard Park, on First avenue, which is the largest in Queens, and the tournament will be run off on First avenue, an asphalted thoroughfare.

GRAND LARCENY IS CHARGED.

Ridgewood Youth Accused of Stealing a Bicycle.

DUST IS BEING LAID.

Richmond Hill Streets Oiled and Relief Is Grateful.

The streets in Richmond Hill are now being liberally oiled to lay the dust, and the citizens are jubilant. Yesterday the first several hundred gallons of the 48,000 gallons to be applied in Richmond Hill and Woodhaven were spread over some of the roadways.

The residents are glad that relief from the clouds of dust that choked wayfarers and covered furniture is in sight. Every passing automobile or wagon threw up the dust and made life unbearable for the citizens.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN BROOKLYN CHURCHES

In Plymouth Church to-morrow morning the preacher will be the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jowett, pastor of Carr's Lane Congregational Church of Birmingham, England. Dr. Jowett is coming to America to make a number of addresses at the conferences in Northfield. He is regarded as being one of the ablest Nonconformist preachers in England.

In the Reformed Church on the Heights, corner Monroe place, where the First and Second Presbyterian churches, Church of the Pilgrims and Sands Street Memorial Church hold summer union services, the Rev. Dr. L. Mason Clarke will preach to-morrow morning.

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, where the Clinton Avenue Congregational and Classon Avenue Presbyterian churches join in services for the summer, the preacher to-morrow morning and evening will be the Rev. Dr. William C. Covert, pastor of the Forty-first Street Presbyterian Church, Chicago, Ill.

For the union services of the First Reformed, Memorial Presbyterian, Grace M. E. and Sixth Avenue Baptist churches held in the First Reformed Church, Seventh avenue and Carroll street, the preacher to-morrow at both services will be the Rev. Gwilym O. Griffith, pastor of the Sixth Avenue Church.

The Rev. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond of Buffalo, N. Y., formerly president of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., will preach to-morrow morning in the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, where the Central Congregational Church joins in the services. In August the services will be held in Central Church.

The Rev. Dr. R. A. Torrey, the noted evangelist, superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will preach to-morrow morning and afternoon in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, corner of Fifty-fifth street, Manhattan.

The Rev. P. H. Milliken of Philadelphia will preach to-morrow morning in Grace Reformed Church, Lincoln road, where the Congregational Church of the Evangel joins in the services.

The union services of the Westminster Presbyterian, South Congregational and First Place M. E. churches will be held again to-morrow in the edifice of the first named, First place and Clinton street. The Rev. Gordon L. Thompson of the First Place M. E. Church will preach. On Sunday, July 25, the services will be transferred to the First Place church and the Rev. Dr. A. J. Lyman will preach.

In the New York Avenue M. E. Church, corner of Dean street, of which the Rev. Dr. F. Watson Hannan is pastor, the preacher to-morrow will be the Rev. H. D. Trinkaus.

The Rev. E. M. Saunier, S.T.D., of Worcester, Mass., will be the preacher morning and evening to-morrow in the Baptist Temple, Third avenue and Schermerhorn street.

The pulpit of the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, between Lewis and Stuyvesant avenues, the Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws pastor, will be occupied to-morrow morning by the Rev. Joseph A. Bennett of Newark, Ohio. The evening service will be under the auspices of the Young People's Baptist Union and will be led by Walter S. Meyer.

The Rev. William Morrison, M. D., will preach again to-morrow in the Park Congregational Church, Eighth avenue and Second street, where that church, the Prospect Heights Presbyterian and Greenwood Baptist churches join in summer union services. On Sunday, July 25, the services will be held in the Prospect Heights Church, Eighth avenue and Tenth street.

In the DeKalb Avenue M. E. Church, near Franklin avenue, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Wilson, pastor, the pulpit will be occupied to-morrow morning by the Rev. John Flint and in the evening by the Rev. F. T. Sherwood.

The services in the Reformed Episcopal Church of the Reconciliation, Nostrand and Jefferson avenues, will be unusually interesting this Sunday. The pastor, the Rev. George L. Ferguson, B. D., will preach in the morning at 10:30. His subject will be, "The Watchman." In the evening at 7:45 he will preach on "Usefulness." Miss Lillian Stahl, soprano, and Joseph Wills, tenor, will sing. The Sunday school meets at 9:45 in the morning.

At the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. William C. Covert, pastor of the Forty-first Street Presbyterian Church, Chicago, will preach at both services. Dr. Covert was the immediate successor of the present pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Church, and has preached in Brooklyn before, to the pleasure of many hearers. Dr. Covert has recently returned from an extended visit to Palestine and Europe. He will also preach the next Sabbath.

"My Father's House," John xiv:2, is to be the subject for to-morrow afternoon's discourse in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, at 3 o'clock, by M. L. Herr. Pastor Russell is absent on an extensive Western lecture tour. No collections are taken.

At Vanderveer Park M. E. Church, Glenwood road and East Thirty-first street, the Rev. G. S. Sherwood of St. Mark's Church, will preach at 10:45 A.M. Rev. H. D. Trinkaus, the pastor, will have as his topic at 8 P.M., "The Message of the Feet." Percival Clow is to lead the Epworth League service preceding the evening sermon.

At the Hanson Place Baptist Church, Hanson place and South Portland avenue, Rev. Spenser B. Meeser, D.D., will preach at both services, taking as his morning topic, "The Overcoming of Insignificance." In the evening his subject will be: "A Fool of a Prophet and the Profit of a Fool." Dr. Meeser is well known in Brooklyn, having been acting pastor at Emmanuel Baptist Church during Dr. Humpstone's trip around the world. He has just accepted the chair of systematic theology at Crozer Theological Seminary. There will be excellent music, and a cordial invitation is extended to visitors and strangers in the city.

At the DeKalb Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. Dr. W. W. W. Wilson, pastor, the Rev. John Flint will preach in the morning and the Rev. F. T. Sherwood will preach at night. The midweek prayer service on Wednesday night will be in charge of the Epworth League. Classes Sunday morning at 9 and 9:30 o'clock and Tuesday and Friday nights at 8 o'clock.

At the Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Clermont and Willoughby avenues, Rev. George E. Silloway, the assistant pastor, will occupy the pulpit during the summer. His theme Sunday morning at 10:30 will be "The More Excellent Way." Sunday school at 11:30. In the evening at 8 Mr. Silloway preaches on "The True Distinction." Wednesday evening the midweek service at 8. The church will be open throughout the summer.

At St. Mary's P. E. Church, Classon and Willoughby avenues, services will be held as usual all summer. Holy communion at 7:30 A.M. Morning prayer and sermon at 10:30 A.M. and evening prayer at 7:30 P.M. The evening services, under the auspices of the local chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, will be one hour in length, with special sermons by prominent out-of-town preachers. The pastor to-morrow evening will be the Rev. George M. Gersel, rector of St. Mary's Church, Jersey City.

At St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Dr. John H. Willey will preach for the last time before the summer vacation. The choir will give the last musical service of the season in the evening. Sanford Ashley Pette, organist and music director, will play Allegro Pompaso by Guilmant, and the Pontificale Marche by Gade. The choir will sing "Abide With Me," by Barnby, and Robert's "Peace I Leave With You." Mrs. Alice Merritt Cochran and Miss Bosse will give the duet, "Quis est homo," from Stabat Mater. In the evening Dr. Willey will give the last of his travel sermons. The subject will be: "Rome, or the Eternal Conflict."

The Rev. Robert F. Y. Pierce, D.D., pastor of the Second Avenue Baptist Church, Second avenue and Tenth street, Manhattan, will preach Sunday morning at 10:45, on "The Call of the World." In the afternoon preaching services for foreign congregations will be held, at 3 o'clock for the Hungarians, at 4 for the Polish people, at 5 for the Slovaks, and at 6 for the Italians.

A special feature of the open air meeting at 7 o'clock, from the "World's Pulpit," in front of the church, will be an illustrated address by the pastor and singing by several hundred children. At 8 o'clock the Midsummer Children's Festival will be held in the Second Avenue Church. There will be a programme of recitations, carols, etc., and an elaborate object lesson; address by the Rev. Dr. Pierce.

Regular services will be held to-morrow at the Lenox Road Baptist Church, Lenox road and Nostrand avenue, the pastor, the Rev. David A. MacMurray, preaching both morning and evening. His morning theme will be "The Hope of Immortality," and in the evening he will preach a short sermon on "Some Incentives for Living."

Dr. W. E. Thompson, the pastor of Embury Memorial Church, Lewis avenue and Decatur street, on Sunday morning, at 10:30, will take for the subject of his sermon, "God, Our Father." Sunday school is now open from 2:30 to 3:30 only. The Epworth League holds an open air meeting at 6:45, and the pastor preaches at 7:45, his topic being "Is Conscience a Safe Guide?"

The Bible school of this church will remain open throughout the summer, meeting every Sunday morning at 9:45. The pastor will begin his vacation after the last Sunday of this month, but the church will remain open and the following preachers will occupy the pulpit in his absence: On August 1 and 8, the Rev. Antonio Mangano; August 15, the Rev. W. R. Maul; August 22, the Rev. William Gullan; August 29 and September 5, the Rev. C. S. Daniels. Prayer meetings every Friday evening.

In the Nostrand Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. John Henry Bell, Ph.D., will preach in the morning, in exchange with Dr. McCormick, who will occupy Dr. Bell's pulpit at New Britain, Conn. The Rev. Howard Arnold Walter, who will supply Dr. McCormick's pulpit during the summer, will begin his ministry at the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, July 21. Mr. Walter will occupy the parsonage, 479 Greene avenue, where he may be found daily before 10 o'clock in the morning.

The Unitarian Churches of New York are holding union services at All Souls Church, Fourth avenue and Twentieth street, with the Rev. Leon A. Harvey of Brooklyn in charge. Mr. Harvey's subject Sunday morning at 11 o'clock will be: "The Supreme Business of Life."

Canon Chase will preach at Christ Church, Bedford avenue, to-morrow, at both the 11 A.M. and the 7:45 P.M. services. The evening service will be illustrated with stereopticon views. John E. Gerstenberg will show some pictures of travels in Darkest Africa, and illustrate the story of Christopher Columbus to the summer Sunday school at 3 P.M.

None of the services of Christ Church will be omitted during the summer. There is a service of holy communion at 8 A.M. every Sunday. During the summer Canon Chase will give a course of Sunday evening sermons on the Christian volumes in Dr. Elliott's "Five Feet of Books." The first of these will be next Sunday evening, when the book to be considered will be William Penn's "Fruits of Solitude."

The services at the Moravian Church, Jay street, near Myrtle avenue, the Rev. Paul M. Greider, pastor, will be as follows to-morrow: 10 A.M., men's Bible class; 11 A.M., Sunday school; 8 P.M., gospel service, at which Joseph MacFarlane will speak. Wednesday, 8 P.M., men's meeting; Friday, 8 P.M., Christian Endeavor.

In the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Hanson place and St. Felix street, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson, preaches in the morning at 11 o'clock on "A Gospel for the Thirsty," and at 8 o'clock in the evening on "The Man That Did Stand By." Midweek service on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Henderson begins his vacation this week, and the Rev. M. L. Robinson, the associate minister of the church, will preach for the remainder of the summer and conduct all the work of the church, including such pastoral assistance as he may be called upon to render in the parish and community. The church is open from 11 A.M. to 1 P.M. and from 4 to 6 P.M. for private prayer and devotion for all passersby, as well as those in the community.

To-morrow in Plymouth Church, Dr. J. H. Jowett of Birmingham, England, will preach. Dr. Jowett comes to America to take part in the Northfield conference. He is known to Congregationalists through his many articles in the "Congregationalist." He is one of the leading preachers of England.

In the Strong Place Baptist Church the pastor, the Rev. A. H. C. Morse, B.D., will preach at the morning service. At the Bible school, which meets at noon, there will be given a chalk talk, and in the evening the service will be held on the church lawn, with an address by the Rev. J. J. Parsons, and this will be followed by an after-meeting in the lower chapel of the church. After to-morrow the services will be in the care of Mr. Parsons, and the pastor will be away upon his vacation, which he will spend in Nova Scotia and at Thousand Island Park.

The Rev. Dr. A. V. V. Raymond of Buffalo, N. Y., will occupy the pulpit at the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church to-morrow and on Sunday, July 25.

In Emmanuel Baptist Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Humpstone, will preach in the morning upon the subject, "Why Christ Came," and in the evening upon the subject, "His Prayer Is All the World's and Mine."

The Rev. Robert J. Kent, pastor of the Lewis Avenue Congregational Church, will preach at the Sunday morning service at 11 A.M. There will be no evening service.

In Grace Presbyterian Church, Stuyvesant and Jefferson avenues, the pastor, the Rev. Robert H. Carson, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Critical Spirit of the Age." In the evening there will be a song service with short address. The Rev. George F. Pentecost, D.D., LL.D., will preach in Grace Church the first three Sundays in August.

The Baptist Temple will continue services morning and evening through the summer. There will be no Bible school until September 12. To-morrow the Rev. E. Sammis, S. T. D., will preach; Sunday, July 25, the Rev. Allyn K. Foster; August 1, 8, 15, the Rev. F. H. Divine; August 22, 29, the Rev. John Q. Henry of Los Angeles, Cal.; September 5, 12, 19, the Rev. Dr. George B. Vosburgh of Denver, Col. The prayer meetings will be continued weekly on Wednesday evenings.

At St. Ann's on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston streets, the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, the services tomorrow will be as follows: 8 A.M., holy communion; 11 A.M., service and sermon; 8 P.M., evening prayer and sermon. The Rev. Louis E. Hess will preach morning and evening.

Dr. Madison C. Peters will preach tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the Church of the Open Door, Halsey street, corner Saratoga avenue, on "Our Friends in Heaven—Shall We Know Them Again?" In the evening his subject will be "Popular Misconceptions of God."

At the Church [illegible] rinity to-morrow there [illegible] ration of the holy communion at 8:30 A.M. and morning prayer and sermon at 11, when the Rev. Charles E. Perkins of Salt Lake City, Utah, will preach. Mr. Perkins will preach at the 11 o'clock service for the remainder of the summer. He comes highly recommended by Bishop Spalding from the far West and a hearty welcome is extended to all who wish to hear him.

GREENPOINT Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Members of Boys Department Leave on Trip to Camp Brooklyn—Baseball Teams Do Well.

Seventeen members of the boys department of the Greenpoint Y. M. C. A. left at 7:30 Thursday morning, in charge of G. K. Young, secretary of the boys department, for Camp Brooklyn. They went on the train to Gumbles station, and from there to the lake. They expect to spend three weeks in their tented city, spending their days in such pastimes as baseball, boating, swimming, canoeing, etc. This outing is costing the boys the very small sum of $6 per week for board and $6 for the round trip.

About twenty of the boys left for Pelham Bay, Friday morning, July 16, in charge of E. M. Cundiff, physical director, to spend the day on an outing. These little trips away from the noise and grime of the city are growing in popularity.

M. J. Stickel, the new secretary, expects to arrive at the association to take charge, about August 1. Mr. Stickel has had a number of years experience in the work in the Panama Zone and is at present teaching at the Y. M. C. A. Summer School at Lake Geneva.

The swimming lessons, in charge of Professor Carson, are continuing with increasing popularity, each Wednesday, at 10 A.M. and 2 P.M., and each Friday at 7:30 P.M. Any Sunday school boy in Greenpoint or member of the boys department of the Y. M. C. A. can receive lessons in swimming free of charge in the Wednesday classes, and any member of the men's department of the Y. M. C. A. is entitled to the swimming class on Friday evening.

Tickets are now on sale for the half holiday excursion, July 31, on the steamer Commander, to Alpine Grove on the Hudson. The boat will leave from the foot of Noble street at 2 o'clock. Tickets are limited to 400. These boat excursions have always been very popular and the size of the crowd has always been subject to the capacity of the boat.

The First baseball team was defeated, last Saturday, by the Eastern District Y. M. C. A., in a very hotly contested game at the end of the tenth inning, by the score of 10 to 9. They play the Marines at the Navy Yard to-day. The Second team journeyed to Mount Vernon and defeated their opponents by the score of 10 to 9. They play the Eastern District Second team on the Commercial Field to-day. The Second team deserves a great deal of credit for the many hours they are putting in practice each evening. As a result of their hard work they have won every game but two this season and are now showing very excellent work.

LAWS OF NEW YORK.

By Authority.

CHAPTER 328.

AN ACT to amend the Greater New York charter, in relation to the purchase by the city of New York of awards in condemnation proceedings. Became a law May 10, 1909, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present. Accepted by the City.

Section 1. Chapter twenty-one of the Greater New York charter, as re-enacted by chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, is hereby amended by inserting therein a new section, to be known as section fourteen hundred and thirty-six-d, to read as follows:

Sec. 1436-d. In any proceeding heretofore or hereafter instituted pursuant to any of the provisions of this statute, to wit, the Greater New York charter, or pursuant to the provisions of any other statute providing for the acquisition of title to real estate, or any tenements, hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal rights or interests in the same by the city of New York, in which title thereto shall have become vested in the said city of New York prior to the confirmation of the report of the commissioners in such proceeding, the board of estimate and apportionment shall have power, and is hereby authorized, to purchase or to approve the purchase on behalf of said City of New York, from the individuals or corporations who were the owners of said property at the date of the vesting of title thereto in said city, or from their successors in interest or legal representatives, their right and title to the award or awards or any part thereof to be made in said proceeding and to take an assignment thereof to said city of New York. If such owner or owners or their successors in interest or legal representatives shall have transferred or assigned such claim, such transfer or assignment made by the said owner or owners or by their successors in interest or legal representatives shall not become binding upon the city of New York unless the instruments evidencing such transfer or assignment shall have been filed in the finance department of the city of New York prior to the completion of such purchase by said city of New York. Upon the completion of said purchase, the corporation counsel of the city of New York shall give notice thereof to the commissioners appointed in the proceeding, and upon the filing or service of such notice all the jurisdiction of the said commissioners over the parcel or parcels to which said purchase relates shall forthwith cease.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

SAMUEL S. KOENIG, Secretary of State.

CHAPTER 331.

AN ACT to amend the Greater New York charter, relative to the operation of ferries and the acquirement of property therefor. Became a law May 11, 1909, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present. Accepted by the City.

Section 1. Section eight hundred and twenty-four-a of the Greater New York charter, as re-enacted by chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, as added by chapter four hundred and fifty of the laws of nineteen hundred and seven, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 824-a. The commissioner of docks, with the approval of the commissioners of the sinking fund, is authorized in his discretion to acquire by purchase or condemnation, in the name and for the benefit of the corporation of the City of New York, any property now or formerly used in connection with any ferry or ferries (except such ferry or ferries as may be the property of a railroad corporation), situated in the borough of Brooklyn in said city, between the northerly line of South Sixth street extended westerly and the southerly line of South Ninth street extended westerly, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches, and to equip, maintain and operate any such ferry or ferries. The comptroller shall from time to time when authorized by the board of estimate and apportionment on the recommendation of the commissioners of the sinking fund, issue corporate stock of the City of New York, in such amounts as they may deem the public interests to demand for the purpose of raising the money necessary to carry out the provisions of this section; except that no corporate stock shall be issued to maintain and operate such ferries to be acquired by this act. Whatever moneys may be required to provide for any deficiency caused by the operation or maintenance of ferries to be acquired by this act shall be provided in the manner now prescribed by law for raising moneys to maintain and operate city properties. If the said commissioner of docks shall deem it proper and expedient that the said corporation should acquire right and title to and possession of any property, now or formerly used in connection with any ferry or ferries, and situated in the borough of Brooklyn between the northerly line of South Sixth street extended westerly and the southerly line of South Ninth street extended westerly, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches, by condemnation instead of by purchase, the said commissioner of docks may, with the approval of the commissioners of the sinking fund, direct the corporation counsel of said city to take legal proceedings to acquire the same for the city, and the said corporation counsel shall take the same proceedings to acquire the same as are by law provided for the taking of private property in said city for public streets or places, and the provisions of law relating to the taking of private property for public streets or places in said city are hereby made applicable, as far as may be necessary to the acquiring of said ferry or ferries, together with all the property belonging thereto, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches. In a proceeding brought for the acquirement of any property used in connection with any such ferry or ferries, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches, if the commissioners of the sinking fund by resolution shall so direct, title to the said ferry or ferries and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches shall vest in the City of New York at such time as said resolution of the commissioners of the sinking fund shall direct after the filing in the office of the clerk of the county where the proceedings are pending of the oaths of the commissioners of estimate in said proceedings appointed, and all of the rights, title and interest of any and all of the owners or persons interested in such property used in connection with said ferry or ferries, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches, shall cease and determine and be extinguished at such time. All the awards made in such proceedings for the value of property acquired or interest extinguished, shall draw interest at the legal rate from the time of the vesting of title in the City of New York.

Each and every captain, pilot, quartermaster, engineer, assistant engineer, ticket agent, ticket chopper, fireman, deck hand, oiler, gateman, bridgeman, and matron, who, on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and eight, was employed as such on any ferry, the operation of which shall, hereafter, be assumed by the City of New York, and who shall prior thereto have successfully passed a non-competitive civil service examination under the civil service law in accordance with rules and regulations prepared by the municipal civil service commission, may be retained and assigned to perform service on any ferry, the operation of which shall be assumed by the City of New York, for which he heretofore been assumed by the City of New York. Except that in the case of captains, pilots, quartermasters, engineers and assistant engineers who have served in such capacity on said ferries for a period of not less than ten years, the production of a license or certificate of fitness granted by the United States government shall be deemed equivalent to a civil service examination.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

SAMUEL S. KOENIG, Secretary of State.

CHAPTER 342.

AN ACT to amend the Greater New York charter, relating to hospitals for the treatment of contagious, pestilential or infectious diseases. Became a law May 13, 1909, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present. Accepted by the City.

Section 1. Section eleven hundred and seventy of the Greater New York charter, as re-enacted by chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 1170. Said board may remove or cause to be removed to a proper place designated by it, any person sick with a contagious, pestilential or infectious disease and designate, provide and pay for the use of places for such persons. The board may erect, establish, maintain and furnish in such places within the city as are now used or may hereafter be designated by the board of estimate and apportionment for such purposes, buildings and hospitals for the care and treatment of persons sick with contagious diseases, and shall have exclusive charge and control of all municipal hospitals for the treatment of Asiatic cholera, plague, typhus fever, scarlet fever, yellow fever, measles, diphtheria and smallpox, but this shall not be construed to require the board of health to remove any person suffering from any of these diseases to the hospital therefor, unless in its judgment such removal is necessary for the protection of the public health. With the concurrence in writing of the department or departments thereby affected, the board of health shall, from time to time, subject to the approval of the board of estimate and apportionment, designate such hospitals established for or actually caring for persons suffering from a pestilential, contagious or infectious disease, as in its judgment should in the public interest and for the protection of the public health, be under the exclusive charge and control of the said board of health, and all hospitals so designated maintained by any municipal department or departments together with the employes of such hospitals, shall upon such designation by the board of health and approval of the board of estimate and apportionment, granted after a public hearing, be transferred to the board of health and the control and maintenance thereof shall thereafter be vested in the board of health; provided, however, that the said board of health, with the concurrence in writing of the department or departments thereby affected may from time to time designate a hospital for the treatment of an infectious disease, other than Asiatic cholera, plague, typhus fever, scarlet fever, yellow fever, measles, diphtheria and smallpox, under the jurisdiction of the board of health, as one which may, without danger to the public health, be transferred to the jurisdiction of other municipal authorities authorized by law to establish or maintain public hospitals and such designation, if approved the hospital so designated, together with the employes of such hospital, shall thereupon be transferred to such other municipal authorities as are designated, and the duty of maintaining such hospitals shall thereupon vest in such other municipal authorities.—Any municipal authority or hospital corporation maintaining a hospital or ward for the treatment of persons having a contagious or infectious disease may admit to such hospital or ward any person applying for admission thereto, and certified by the physician of the said hospital to have the disease for which the said hospital or ward is maintained, and each such admission shall be reported immediately by such municipal authorities or hospital corporation to the board of health. The discharge of such person shall also be reported forthwith to the board of health. For the purposes of this section, a pestilential, contagious or infectious disease shall be one declared to be such by the board of health. The board of health shall have power to take possession of, and occupy for temporary hospitals, any building or buildings in the said city, during the prevalence of an epidemic, if in the judgment of the board the same may be required, and shall pay for private property so taken a just compensation for the same. Said board may cause proper care and attendance to be given to persons sick or removed, when it shall be made to appear to the said board that any such person is so poor as to be unable to procure for himself such care and attendance, or that the public health requires special medical care and attendance. The board of health may send to such place as it may direct, all aliens and other persons in the city, not residents thereof, who shall be sick of any infectious, pestilential or contagious disease. The expense of the support of such aliens or other persons shall be defrayed by the corporation of the city of New York, unless such aliens or other persons shall be entitled to support from the commissioners of emigration. No person shall remove any person sick with infectious, contagious or pestilential disease from any vessel or other place in said city without a written permit from the board of health.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby, certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

SAMUEL S. KOENIG, Secretary of State.

CHAPTER 344.

AN ACT to amend chapter three hundred and sixty-five of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-four entitled "An act to provide for indexing and reindexing conveyances, mortgages and other instruments relating to lands and liens thereon in the county of Kings," in relation to the land map of the county of Kings in the register's office in said county. Became a law May 13, 1909, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

Section 1. Section fifteen of chapter three hundred and sixty-five of the laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled "An act to provide for indexing and reindexing conveyances, mortgages and other instruments relating to lands and liens thereon in the county of Kings," is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 15. Whenever, after the making of said land map, any new or additional blocks of land shall be formed in said county by the opening or closing of any street, avenue, road, boulevard or parkway, or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the said register of the county of Kings to cause new maps of such new or additional blocks to be made, and such new or additional blocks to be numbered on said map, with block numbers following in consecutive order the highest block number on the map or index hereto immediately previous thereto or by some other proper designation and to certify such new maps and file them in the same offices as the previous land maps, on and after the first day of January next succeeding the making and filing of any such new maps, the indexes of all blocks theretofore existing, comprising the land in the said block so formed, or affected, shall, except for the purpose of completing the indexing belonging to the preceding year, be closed and discontinued, and a new index shall be opened for every such new block in the form herein prescribed, which new index shall thenceforth be used for all entries relating to land in such block. The date of closing shall be entered on the map previously in use and at the end of every index on the block indexes so discontinued with references to the number of every new block to be used in place thereof, and the date of opening shall be entered on the new map so made and filed, and at the beginning of every such index with references to the number of every block before in use for the land contained in such new block; and on and after the said first day of January, said maps, so filed as aforesaid, shall constitute a part of the land map of said county, and become public records, and the recording and indexing of instruments relating to land shown thereon shall be subject to the provisions of this act, as to the manner of indexing as hereinbefore provided, and the legal effect of such recording and indexing. The numbers and boundaries of blocks and sections shall not be changed except as in this section provided. During the year nineteen hundred and ten and during each tenth year thereafter, it shall be the duty of the register of the county of Kings to cause to be made a new land map of the county of Kings, which said map shall be filed in the office of the register of said county and shall be effect on the first day of January of the year next succeeding the year in which it is prepared. Said map shall be a copy of the land map of the county of Kings then on file, including all additions to and changes in said land map, which have been previously filed, together with the additions or changes intended to be filed on the date of the filing of said map so prepared, and ever provision of this chapter so far as the same may be applicable thereto shall apply to said new map with the same force and effect as though said map were prepared under the provisions of section two hereof. The land map previously in use shall remain on file for the purpose of reference. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of records of the county of Kings, to cause to be prepared and delivered to said register such drawing or drawings as said register may require, for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this section.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

SAMUEL S. KOENIG, Secretary of State.

CHAPTER 348.

AN ACT to amend the Greater New York charter, in relation to the term of commitment of children to charitable corporations, one of whose objects is the care of children or the placing of children in families. Became a law May 19, 1909, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present. Accepted by the City.

Section 1. Section six hundred and sixty-seven of the Greater New York charter, as re-enacted by chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 667. The term of commitment of each child committed in the city of New York as constituted by this act, under any of the provisions of sections six hundred and sixty-four, six hundred and sixty-five, and six hundred and sixty-six of this act shall be until such child shall attain the age of sixteen years or until it shall be duly indentured or placed out as an apprentice by the institution to which it shall have been committed or until it shall be given over in adoption by said institution to a suitable person, or until returned to its parents, relatives, or guardians, or otherwise discharged, except that such child manual or industrial training until it shall attain the age of eighteen years, provided the state board of charities shall certify that the equipment and training at such institution are sufficient and satisfactory. Each institution mentioned in section six hundred and sixty-one of this act, shall file with the commissioner at the end of every three months a list of all the children referred to in sections six hundred and sixty-one, six hundred and sixty-four, six hundred and sixty-five and six hundred and sixty-six of this act, received by or discharged from said institution during the month, which list shall contain the names and residences of the parents and guardians of the children as far as known. Every such institution shall keep a book in which it shall cause to be entered the name and address of each parent, relative or other person visiting an inmate of such institution who is in whole or in part a charge upon the city of New York, and, such name and address shall be entered upon the occasion of each visit by any such person.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

SAMUEL S. KOENIG, Secretary of State.

CHAPTER 373.

AN ACT to allow the city of New York to deed certain land and acquire the title to certain other land in Dellevoise avenue, in the borough of Queens. Became a law May 11, 1909, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present. Accepted by the City.

Section 1. The city of New York by and through the sinking fund commission, or other proper authorities of said city of New York, is hereby authorized in its discretion to execute and deliver, or cause to be executed and delivered, a proper deed or deeds of that strip of land situate in the first ward, borough of Queens, city of New York, twenty-five feet wide, and lying easterly of and abutting on the easterly side of Dellevoise avenue, as same is laid down upon the map or plan of the city of New York and now actually open and in use to the persons from whom it acquired title thereto, or their successors in interest, by virtue of proceedings heretofore instituted in the supreme court and a resolution of the board of estimate and apportionment vesting title thereto in said city, upon obtaining from such persons a good and sufficient deed of conveyance to the said city of New York of an equal area of the land on that other strip twenty-five feet wide which constitutes the westerly twenty-five feet strip of the land in said Dellevoise avenue, as so laid out on said city map, and now opened and in use and also designated on the map as parcel "B" and "C" in the proceeding aforesaid. The conveyance above authorized shall not be given or accepted by said city of New York unless said city agrees to pay the awards heretofore made to the said persons from whom it acquired title to said strip of land or their successors in interest to be conveyed by it in the proceeding aforesaid, nor unless the said persons to whom conveyance is to be made delivers to the said city a valid binding agreement satisfying and confirming the assessments heretofore imposed in said proceedings upon the premises of said grantees, his or her successor in title.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss.: I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

Items of Special Interest In the Religious World

The first annual conference of the Long Island Assembly under the auspices of the Stony Brook Association will be held at Stony Brook, L. I., August 15 to 22. The opening session will be held on Sunday morning, August 15, and the closing one on Sunday evening, August 22. The opening sermon will be preached by the president, the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson. The Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar of Brooklyn will lecture on work for children and conduct children's services. The Rev. Louis Myer, Ph.D., of Cincinnati will speak on work with the foreign population, particularly with reference to the Jewish problem. The Rev. Thomas Douglas of New York will lecture on life in Palestine. Dr. Carson will each day conduct a class for Bible study. The Rev. Dr. D. C. Stewart of Hackensack, N. J., will preach and conduct a conference on personal work. The Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, stated clerk of the general assembly, will preach on Sunday morning, August 22. The Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie of New York will preach and conduct a conference for Christian workers. The Rev. Newell Woolsey Wells of Brooklyn will preach and conduct a conference on Sunday school work. The Rev. Thomas W. Campbell of Brooklyn will preach and conduct a conference on Bible study. Other speakers announced are the Rev. Dr. George F. Pentecost, the Rev. George S. Pratt, John Callahan of the McAuley Mission, and the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Young. There will be afternoon sessions on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, August 17, 19 and 21. The music will be under the direction of the well-known Gospel singer, I. H. Meredith. There will be ample accommodation for all visitors. The conference will be held in a large tent, the Auditorium not being yet ready.

The services at the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church last Sunday were well attended. The Rev. W. C. P. Rhoades is away on his vacation at the Thousand Islands, and will not return until about September 10. In his absence, the associate pastor, the Rev. Allyn K. Foster, will be in charge of all of the services. Just now he is preaching a special series of sermons ten minutes long to young people at the morning service. The subject of these sermons in general is "Character Studies of Well-Known People." Among the people to be discussed are Mlle. Moodee, Miss Con Strue and Madame Fussee. To-morrow morning the character considered will be Miss Anne Thrope. At the close of this young people's talk all who wish may retire. Mr. Foster is giving these talks in the hope of reaching the young people of the Sunday school particularly. There will also be at the morning service the regular sermon, and the design is that the whole service shall last about one hour. Walter Decker is presiding at the organ most acceptably in the absence of George C. Stout, and R. M. Skinner is acting as precentor. Mr. Foster is undertaking systematic calling during the month of August, and hopes to reach a great many people of the church. He is in the study at the church every morning from 11 to 12 o'clock to respond to any calls of need. The weekly prayer meeting occurs on Friday evening at 8 o'clock and will be led by Mr. Foster.

The services at the Church of the Holy Trinity to-morrow will consist of a celebration of the holy communion at 8:30 A.M. Morning prayer and sermon at 11, when the Rev. Charles E. Perkins of Salt Lake City, Utah, will preach, and evening prayer and sermon by Rev. Waldo Adai... Amos at 8. These services will continue throughout the summer and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

The Rev. Marion LeRoy Burton, Ph.D., pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, and president-elect of Smith College, will preach the next three Sundays at the union services of the First and Second Presbyterian Churches, the Reformed Church on the Heights, the Church of the Pilgrims and the Sands Street Memorial M. E. Church. These services are being held in the latter church, at the corner of Henry and Clark streets. In view of recent discussions centering about Professor Foster's book and President Eliot's description of the "New Religion," Dr. Burton will deliver three sermons upon the subject, "The Belief of a Modern Christian." To-morrow the subject will be "His Point of View," on August 15, "What He Believes," and on August 22, "Why He Believes." The aim of this series of sermons is to set forth in a constructive and helpful way the belief which a modern Christian may hold with confidence.

In the Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Bedford avenue, where the Tompkins avenue Congregational Church joins in the services, the preacher to-morrow will be the Rev. R. Harris Lord of London, England, who made such a deep impression last Sunday.

For the union services of the First Reformed Church, Seventh avenue and Carroll street, where the Memorial Presbyterian, Grace M. E. and Sixth Avenue Baptist Church join in the services, the preacher again to-morrow will be the Rev. Dr. Andrew Gillies, formerly of Manhattan, now of the Hennepin M. E. Church, Minneapolis, Minn.

The Rev. George N. Spencer, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will be the preacher to-morrow for the seven churches of the Eastern District now holding union services, which are held in St. John's M. E. Church, Bedford avenue and Wilson street. The churches joining are St. John's, First Baptist, First Free Baptist, Ross street Presbyterian, United Congregational, South Third Street Presbyterian and Central Baptist.

In the First Place M. E. Church, where union services of the Westminster Presbyterian and South Congregational Churches are held, the preacher to-morrow will be the Rev. Franklin Boyd Edwards, junior pastor of the South Congregational Church.

In the Prospect Heights Presbyterian Church, Eighth avenue and Tenth street, where the Park Congregational and Greenwood Baptist Churches join in summer services, the pulpit will be occupied again to-morrow by the Rev. Henry Lewis, Ph.D., editor of the American Messenger. The services will, on Sunday, August 15, be transferred to the Greenwood Baptist Church, and the Rev. Dr. E. D. Bailey will preach for three Sundays.

In Grace Reformed Church, Lincoln road, Flatbush, where the Congregational Church of the Evangel joins in the services, mornings only, the preacher again to-morrow will be the Rev. Dr. P. A. Milliken of Philadelphia.

The Rev. W. Russell Owen of Baltimore, Md., will preach to-morrow morning in the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, between Lewis and Stuyvesant avenue. In the evening service will be held in the lecture room of the church, under the auspices of the Young People's Baptist Union. James A. Bovey will have charge.

In the Nostrand Avenue M. E. Church, corner of Quincy street, the Rev. Howard Arnold Walter, who has charge of the work during the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles W. McCormick, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Kingdom of Childhood and the Kingdom of Heaven."

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. G. A. Johnston Ross will preach again morning and evening to-morrow. The Clinton Avenue Congregational and Classon Avenue Presbyterian churches join in these summer services.

east from Kingston on the coast to East Norton on the west. It is said that these forces which will be known as the Blue army during the maneuver, have intrenched themselves in a strong position in a line perpendicular to the principal railway and turnpike lines leading to the City of Boston, which is the objective of the invading host. The scene of the first encounter between the opposing forces presents a varied topographical aspect. There is much open country interspersed with low lying marsh lands and wooded hillocks.

The general situation to-day is as follows: On August 10, immediately following an unexpected severance of diplomatic relations, war was declared between a strong European power (Red) and the United States (Blue). On August 11 the (Blue) North Atlantic battleship fleet, after a severe engagement with a superior (Red) fleet off the Maine coast was defeated and scattered. The remnants of the crippled Blue fleet took refuge in Portland and Portsmouth harbors and are now blockaded by the victorious Red fleet. The command of the North Atlantic Ocean has been secured by the Red.

The main Blue army is mobilizing as rapidly as possible and Albany, N. Y., has been designated as its point of concentration and General William A. Pew of the Massachusetts militia was assigned to the command of the First Division, First Corps, Blue army constituting the coast guard for the district of Boston. Pursuant to orders General Pew has drawn his army up to a line that extends from Kingston through Silver Lake, Bridgewater, North Raynham, East Norton, Attleboro to Adamdale. His strength is estimated at 9,000 men.

Actual War Conditions Now Prevail.

Actual war conditions now obtain throughout the entire Boston-Narragansett district so far as possible. Of course the actual number of troops engaged is nowhere near the number that would be mobilized for a real war, all of the actions in the forthcoming maneuvers having been designed simply for two opposing divisions of armies constructively considered to number each some 25,000 men.

In a real war the scope of the present campaign would necessitate the mobilization of 25,000 men on each side, for no battle of modern warfare has been fought over such a wide area as comprised within the theater of the present operations with less than that number on a side. At the battle of Gettysburg, where the opposing lines stretched away for twenty miles, General Lee had 76,000 soldiers and General Meade had 94,000. These were marshaled in nine parallel lines on a side. These lines were arranged in groups of three, a firing line, a support and a reserve. During the present maneuvers only the firing line on either side will be actual; the others will be simulated.

The New York state troops comprise the Second Brigade of the invading army under the command of Colonel Daniel Appleton of the Seventh Regiment. The District of Columbia troops and one separate company from Connecticut comprise the First Brigade under the command of General George H. Harries of Washington, and the Third Brigade consists of the First and Second Connecticut Regiments under the command of Colonel James Geddes. The First Connecticut is well known in Brooklyn, having been the guest of the Thirteenth provisional regiment of artillery two years ago on Memorial Day.

Regiment of Cavalry Under Major Bridgman.

In addition to the three brigades, the invading host comprises a regiment of cavalry under the command of Major Oliver B. Bridgman of Squadron A, Manhattan; one battalion of field artillery under the command of Major David Wilson of New York, a battalion of engineers from the Twenty-second Engineers under Major D. J. Murphy; a signal detachment under the command of Colonel F. T. Ligh, chief signal officer of New York state, and two companies of coast artillery.

The cavalry arm is composed of four troops of Squadron A which are serving without any compensation whatever, they having volunteered for the experience; one troop from Connecticut, the Essex troop of Newark, N. J., and one squadron from the Fighting Tenth (colored) of the regular army. The field artillery consists of the Third Battery of Brooklyn and the First and Second Batteries of Manhattan and the Bronx, respectively. With the exception of one battalion, the Twenty-second Engineers will act as infantry during the maneuvers.

Among the New York State officers who have secured special details during the maneuvers are: Major F. H. Wells of the Twenty-third Regiment, who is a member of the board that will adjust and award claims for damages presented by farmers and other residents of the district through which the troops will move; Lieutenant-Colonel Guilford Hurry, chief commissary of the state, who will serve in that capacity during the entire week of warfare; Major Rene de Russy of the Twelfth Regiment, who is chief ordnance officer, and Captain H. T. Ashmore, also of the Twelfth, who will assist Major de Russy. Captain Eliot Bishop, assistant surgeon of the Thirteenth Coast Artillery District, who was cheated out of his regular tour of field service because he chose to marry and enjoy his honeymoon during the week his organization was at Fort Hamilton in June, has been detailed as surgeon of the Third Battery for these maneuvers. Another Thirteenth District officer who accompanies the battery is Captain Orr of the Twelfth Company, who will act as an observer.

Major Herman G. Schumm, commandant of Fort Hamilton, his adjutant, Lieutenant Boatwright, and Captain Mould and Lieutenant Walker, also of Fort Hamilton, have secured details as observers.

Every branch of the United States and National Guard service is represented in the contending forces either as actual combatants or as observers. Even the United States Marine Corps, which is properly under the jurisdiction of the Navy Department, is represented. Lieutenant Colonel T. P. Kane and Major S. D. Butler, both of the Marine Corps, will be attached to the headquarters of Major General Leonard Wood, who will oversee the field exercises. General Wood's headquarters have been established for the time being at North Rochester, a small town eleven miles to the north of New Bedford and Fairhaven.

Two foreign military attaches arrived here on board the Kilpatrick. They are Major Fortino M. Davila of the general staff of the Mexican Army, and Colonel de Bode of the general staff of the Imperial Army of Russia. Major Davila is not very distinguishable from the United States officers, as his uniform is olive drab; but the Russian is conspicuous in light blue broadcloth riding breeches and a dove colored coat. His cap is similar to that worn by taxicab drivers.

SLASHED; MADE NO COMPLAINT.

August Goguen, who resides at Bath avenue and Bay Eleventh street, Bath Beach, was stabbed in the shoulder yesterday afternoon in a fight on Bath avenue. Sergeant Fred Kavanagh of the One Hundred and Seventieth precinct arrested James Connery, 28 years old, who resides at the foot of Sixteenth avenue, and he was arraigned to-day before Magistrate Voorhees in the Coney Island court on a charge of felonious assault. The injured man, whose wound was dressed by an ambulance surgeon, refused to make any complaint against CANNOT CLOSE ATLANTIC AV.

P. S. Commission Refuses L. I. R. R. a Permit.

The Public Service Commission has declined to authorize the Long Island Railroad Company to build a footbridge over its tracks at the intersection of Atlantic avenue with Grant avenue and Napier place in the Woodhaven section of Queens. In a letter written to-day by Travis H. Whitney, secretary of the commission, to Borough President Gresser of Queens, Mr. Whitney points out that the commission fears that, were it to grant the permission sought, it would tend to strengthen the claim of the railroad company to the right to fence in its road at cross streets.

The tracks at the point referred to are now fenced in, but there are gateways on either side of the road which enable pedestrians to cross the Atlantic avenue tracks at grade. School children, it appears, have been accustomed to make use of this crossing as a short-cut, and the Board of Education, fearing accidents, submitted the case to the authorities. In a letter which President Gresser recently sent to the commission, he stated that the Board of Estimate had denied a petition to institute street opening proceedings at Atlantic avenue and Grant avenue and Napier place, and said that he thought the best course to pursue was to close the fence openings and allow the railroad company to construct a footbridge as proposed.

The commission, according to Secretary Whitney, takes the view that the courts may hold Atlantic avenue to be an open street at that point, in which event for the railroad company to refuse the public the right to cross its tracks there would be unlawful. In case of such a decision, the letter declares, the Public Service Commission will see to it that the crossing is properly protected.

GIRL'S MIDNIGHT VISIT TO PASTOR C. T. RUSSELL

Sophie Hosan's Infatuation Takes Her to Vestibule of 124 Columbia Heights.

POLICE COME AND ARREST HER

Former Pittsburg Minister, Whose Alimony Was Paid by Friends, Met Girl on Ship.

The fondness of Sophie Hosan for Pastor C. T. Russell of the People's Pulpit, or Brooklyn Tabernacle, led her to his home at 124 Columbia Heights at midnight last night, and later led to her arrest by Officer John T. Regan, and her incarceration at the Adams street station.

It appears that Sophie's attachment for the distinguished preacher began on a steamer bound for Europe, upon which both were passengers. Sophie, her mother and two sisters had been visiting in Europe and were on their way home. Pastor Russell, unwilling to rest from his labors even on the ocean voyage, went around among the passengers, spreading the gospel and making converts. Sophie was so impressed with his eloquence that she became infatuated with him, and made frequent trips to Brooklyn from her home in New Jersey to hear him preach.

Shortly after midnight, last night, Officer Regan was informed that a woman acting queerly was seen to enter the vestibule of Pastor Russell's home, and he proceeded to investigate. He found the girl crouching in a corner. She had removed her shoes and seemed loth to leave the place. She made no disturbance, however, and went quietly with the officer to the station.

In a rambling way this morning she said that she had simply gone into the vestibule to rest, and to be "near her bridegroom." She had taken off her shoes, she said, so as not to scratch the tiling of the vestibule. She was arraigned before Magistrate Dooley in the Adams street court this morning, and will have a hearing on Monday.

This is not the first time that Sophie has annoyed Pastor Russell. Some weeks ago she was taken up because she persisted in ringing his door bell, much to the distress of the housekeeper, who was tired of telling her that the pastor could not be seen.

Charles T. Russell, who does not believe in the title of "Reverend" or "Doctor," began his Brooklyn career in February last. He has had domestic troubles which have kept him in the public eye more or less.

His wife, whom he married thirty years ago, when she was Marie F. Ackley, obtained a limited divorce from him in Pittsburg on the ground of cruelty. The judge who decided for Mrs. Russell granted her $100 a month alimony. Pastor Russell was slow in coming to the front with payments and finally stopped paying alimony altogether.

An order for the pastor's arrest was issued in Pittsburg, but Brooklyn is a comfortable enough place and Pastor Russell didn't like going back to Pittsburg, where a yawning prison awaited him. He said that his friends had paid the alimony, anyhow, and that he was purged of contempt of court thereby.

FRANCHISE WORTH LITTLE

But Stock Is to Be Bought for $300 a Share.

President Winter Explains the Situation—Deficit, Not a Profit, on Business.

The notion that the franchise of the Bridge Operating Company, which runs the 3-cent car service over the Williamsburg Bridge, is solid gold and studded with diamonds, was dampened a bit today by Edwin W. Winter, the president of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, which, together with the New York City Railway Company, which is in the hands of a receiver, owns the stock of the bridge line.

The ambition of the receiver of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company to get possession of some of that Bridge Operating stock, and the permission granted by the Federal court to pay as high as $300 a share, although the nominal value of the stock is $100, has created the general belief that the Bridge Operating proposition is solid gold, lined with silver and studded with diamonds.

Mr. Winter declared that it is no such thing.

"The Bridge Operating Company," he said, "was organized in 1904, when the Williamsburg Bridge was opened to trolley cars, for the exclusive handling of local bridge traffic. This is the only traffic which pays revenue on the bridge. Ordinarily this would go in and not be distinguished from the other bridge operation. Owing to the two companies entering on the bridge with equal rights, and the confusion which would arise from separate arrangements for the handling of the business, it was thought best by all concerned, including the Department of Bridges, to put it in this shape, and contracts between the companies and also with the city were drawn accordingly and so executed.

"Taken by itself, the business has the appearance of being very profitable, but it does not go to any appreciable length in reducing the deficit incurred by the bridge service generally.

"No, the Public Service Commission has not yet requested information about the company, and such a request is never refused. Our records, as the commissioners well understand, are always open for their inspection, and there would be no cause for concealment in this case if this were not the rule."

The hearing on the application will be on Monday.

AUTO KILLED BROOKLYN BOY.

Albert Barnes, 20 years old, of North Percy street, Philadelphia, chauffeur of an automobile that struck and fatally injured 17-year old Joseph Glazer of 238 Metropolitan avenue, Brooklyn, in front of 727 Broadway, Manhattan, last night, was to-day held in $5,000 bail by Coroner Harburger to await an inquest.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

John F. Solminfianto, 8 years old, of 895 Kent avenue, was bitten last night by a dog belonging to John Ferraro of 876 Kent avenue. The wound in the right leg was cauterized by Ambulance Surgeon De Nyse of the Cumberland Street Hospital. The dog was held for examination.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin.

NEW TICKET OFFICE IN HUDSON TERMINAL STATION.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is maintaining a ticket office in the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad's Hudson Terminal Building.

The office is most conveniently located on the floor of the Concourse, about the center of the Cortlandt Street side, and opposite the railroad entrances to the train floor.

It is completely equipped with tickets to all points on the Pennsylvania Railroad System and its connections, so that passengers may secure their tickets and make their Pullman reservations on the way to the trains. This is a great convenience to those who, from lack of time or other reason, may not be able to reach other ticket offices.

All trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad starting from Jersey City Station have connections from New York by the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad tunnels from the Hudson Terminal Station, Church and Cortlandt streets, one block from Broadway, and the connecting trains leave at five minutes after the advertised leaving time of the boats from Cortlandt Street Ferry.

OBITUARY.

John E. Luckey.

For more than fifty years John E. Luckey has been singing God's praises in the sanctuary. He was born March 17, 1837, and died suddenly Sunday, July 25, 1909. For the greater part of the seventy-two years he has contributed most liberally of his time, talent, heart and praise to the advancement of God's kingdom.

For a number of years he was trustee, superintendent, secretary, and also played the organ and led the singing of the Merrick Campmeeting Association. His labors in behalf of it was indefatigable. His chief joy was to sing and play the organ. To see him at the instrument surrounded by singers, and to observe the intensity of his devotion to this portion of divine service, was to know a man whose heart was aglow, not merely with the spirit of sacred song, but with the love of God as well.

His services in song at Fleet Street, Tompkins Avenue, DeKalb Avenue and Jamaica M. E. churches will not be forgotten by a host of loving friends. Even up to the last week of his life, he presided at the organ at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting of the Jamaica church. He was always at his post. To hear him start a familiar hymn between testimonies was to enjoy a real blessing.

The young people loved him and were always loyal to him. A short time ago he drilled a chorus of Epworth Leaguers in the rendition of an old-time cantata.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Carrie C. Luckey, and one son, Charles C. Luckey, who, because of protracted illness, was unable to attend the funeral services, and two sisters, Mrs. James Ryder and Miss Amelia Luckey. The funeral services were held in the Jamaica M. E. Church Tuesday afternoon, July 27, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. W. L. Davison, and the Rev. W. E. Estes. The interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Alfred J. Cammeyer.

Alfred J. Cammeyer, for fifty years a shoe dealer in Manhattan, first at Bleecker and Carmine streets, then at Twelfth street and Sixth avenue, and lastly at Twentieth street and Sixth avenue, died yesterday at his summer home, Sea Gate, of apoplexy after twenty-four hours illness. He was at his business last Wednesday, apparently well. He was born in Brooklyn, 69 years ago, and was the son of John Cammeyer, a famous tanner and leather merchant of several generations ago. He was educated in the public schools and went in the shoe jobbing business with the firm of French & Brothers when fifteen years of age, afterward forming the shoe jobbing firm of Cammeyer & Mason, with Henry Mason, on Duane street. He started the retail business about forty years ago. Mr. Cammeyer was married ten years ago to Miss Mattie Hay, daughter of George Hay of Manhattan. His widow alone survives him. His town home was in the Dakota Apartments, Seventy-second street and Central Park West. The funeral services will take place at the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth avenue and Twentieth street, Manhattan, Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Lavinia Stillwell Struse.

Lavinia Stillwell, widow of John Struse, died yesterday at her home, 139 Weirfield street. She was born on Staten Island and had lived in Brooklyn for twenty-six years. She was a member of the Bushwick Avenue Congregational Church and active in its Ladies Aid Society. She leaves two sons, John Frederick and Edwin Raymond. The Rev. William C. Stiles will officiate at the funeral services to be held at her late home, to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The interment will be in the Moravian Cemetery on Staten Island.

John H. Wetterin.

John H. Wetterin, a member of Tyrian Lodge, F. and A. M., died yesterday. His home was at Greenwood avenue and Broadway, Richmond Hill. He was born in Germany, 60 years ago and had lived in Brooklyn since he was 10 years old. He is survived by his widow, Mary.

William Bishop.

William Bishop of the printing firm of William Bishop & Sons, Manhattan, and for twenty-five years a Stuyvesant Heights resident, died Wednesday at his home, 682 Hancock street. He was born in London, England, July 12, 1848. He leaves a widow, Helen Amelia, five sons, Walter, Albert, Edwin, James and Charles, and a daughter, Mrs. Edward W. Latham.

Katharine Gehler.

Katharine Kettny, widow of William Gehler died Thursday of old age at her home, 905½ Gates avenue. She was born in Germany 75 years ago, had lived in Brooklyn forty years and leaves a niece, Mrs. Louise Windel, with whom she lived.

Ida K. Ryerson.

Ida Kouwenhoven Van Sielen, wife of William F. Ryerson, died yesterday after an illness of seven weeks at her residence, New Lots Road and Church avenue, East New York. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon and the interment will be in the New Lots churchyard. Mrs. Ryerson, whose husband is a retired farmer of the old town of New Lots, was born in Flushing, L. I., 52 years ago and was the daughter of Garret and Matilda Van Sielen. Her family is one of the oldest on Long Island. She had lived in the Twenty-sixth Ward thirty years and was, during that time, an active member of the Ladies Aid Society of the East New York Reformed Church. Besides her husband she leaves three sons, Jacob, Garret and Frederick.

Alice Katherine Schieffelin.

Alice Katherine Crysler, widow of DeWitt Clinton Schieffelin, died on Tuesday, from a fracture of the left hip, in St. John's Hospital. She will be buried from her late home, 43 Ralph street, to-morrow afternoon. She was born in the town of Crysler, named for her grandfather, in Ontario, Canada, July 5, 1843. She had lived in the Eastern District forty-seven years and was one of the oldest members of Calvary P. E. Church. She leaves a son, George Clinton, two daughters, Mrs. Eliza Hart and Mrs. A. W. Fiero and five grandchildren.

GIRLS GOT DRUNK.

Bay Ridge Young Women Danced on Tables in Boathouse—Magistrate Suspended Sentence.

"Oh, please let me go this time, Judge, I'll never do it again," sobbed Margaret Heinze, 21 years of age, of 261 Forty-third street, this mornig when she was arraigned with two other young women before Magistrate Voorhees in the Fifth ave. court on a charge of being intoxicated and acting in a disorderly manner. Margaret is the girl who was recently arrested on a charge of smoking cigarettes and when questioned in court by Magistrate Geismar, who was then sitting there, admitted her guilt and made the assertion that "all Bay Ridge girls smoke."

Yesterday afternoon Margaret and two friends, Anna Sprawer, 21 years of age, and Augusta Hubbard, 22 years of age, both of 685 Fifth avenue, went down to a boathouse at the foot of Thirty-fifth street. There they held, it is said, a little party in which three men, beer and cigarettes figured prominently. They made quite a little noise and, when Detective Coffey of the Fourth avenue station arrived upon the scene he found the girls doing a skirt dance on the table. Detective Coffey arrested them all and took them to the station. The three men were not arrested.

All the girls pleaded guilty to the charges of being drunk and disorderly and were allowed to go home after promising not to get into trouble again and to keep away from bad places. Magistrate Voorhees suspended sentence and warned them to be careful in the future or he would send them away to the House of the Good Shepherd.

JOHNSON WINS THE FINAL

Defeats Larned by 3 Sets to 1 in Southampton Tennis Tourney.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Southampton, L. I., August 14—Young Larned began the service in the finals for the tennis cup here to-day. His stroke was severe and his hitting for placement so true and sure to deep court that he captured the initial game, Johnson only getting a point on a double fault. The young Pennsylvanian then scored on service. His crossing shots were good, but as he kept the ball too high the wind carried it out of court, so that Larned led at 3—1. Then Johnson made a superb brace and by a series of low-chopped drives to Larned's feet he scored a love game by sharp attack. He pulled up to 3 all. Larned won the next game, as Johnson played too closely for the lines. It was Larned's last game, however, as Johnson cleanly outplayed him and won the first set, 6—4. The points, first set:

Johnson	1	4	1	2	4	5	2	4	1	4	4—31	6

Umpire—Adrian H. Larkin.

Showing the family trait of nervousness, Larned insisted upon moving the spectators back and away from the court. He kept up a long range, fast driving game and by the excellence of his service held the narrowest sort of lead to 4—3, as Johnson every time up made his service good. At 4—all Johnson began to chop again and he had Larned whipping the ball into the net or sailing it out of court. Johnson's service was far superior to Larned's, as the latter constantly foot-faulted in running into court before he put his racquet to the ball. Johnson forged ahead at 5—4, but Larned steadied himself as Johnson began driving wild, so that Larned balanced the set by winning at 7—5. The points, second set:

Johnson	1	4	3	4	1	4	3	4	4	1	4	6—33—5

Umpire—C. Frederick Watson.

Johnson settled into wearing down his opponent's backhand stroke in the third set. Larned lost all control, and despite his sensational gets and brilliant fast work, Johnson led at 4—love before Larned scored. The sixth game brought some wonderful rallies, but Johnson showed his superiority by keeping the lead at 5—1. By the boldest sort of playing, Larned tried to make up his losses, but Johnson smothered him at the net and from the base line, winning his set at 6—2. The points, third set:

Johnson	4	4	4	4	2	5	2	10—35—6
Larned	2	2	1	2	4	3	4	8—25—4

Umpire—C. Frederick Watson.

The rest following the third set seemed to inspire Johnson, while Larned appeared to have all of the steam taken out of his gale. Larned essayed to meet the returns of his opponent at the net. Johnson smothered him with passes. At 5—love Larned managed to almost work out a gale as Johnson let up from sheer exhaustion. It was his only flash, for Johnson in the next game won the set and match at 6—0. The points, fourth set:

Johnson	4	4	5	4	4	4—23—6

Umpire—C. Frederick Watson.

WOMAN DODGED COURT OFFICER

He Spotted Her To-day, However, and She's Now in Jail.

Mrs. Frances Williams, a housewife, who lives at 60 Fifth avenue, and who failed to appear before Magistrate O'Reilly in the Myrtle avenue court, on August 12, as she had been requested, was rearrested by Court Ojcer Foley to-day and held in bail of $300 for examination at a future date.

Mrs. Williams was brought to court at the instance of Josephine Gorman on August 9. Both women lived at the time in the same house, 699 Degraw street. Mrs. Gorman said that Mrs. Williams threw a pail of water over her and also threatened to shoot her. Failing to appear in court as she was instructed to do, Magistrate O'Reilly issued an order for her re-arrest and Officer Foley called at the woman's house, but failed to find her. To-day Officer Foley looked out of one of the courtroom windows and saw Mrs. Williams going down the street in company with another woman. Mrs. Williams was soon behind the bars, and

FIVE KEROSENE FIRES WITHIN FOUR DAYS

POLICE ARE ALSO EXCITED.

One Theory Is That a Small Boy Inside Building Is a Pyromaniac.

The fifth fire in less than four days broke out in the Redmond, the four-story apartment house at Madison street and Broadway at 5:30 yesterday afternoon and it, like the other four, was of incendiary origin, firemen finding the woodwork saturated with kerosene. The blaze was extinguished with small damage, but the tenants of the flat building and those in the immediate vicinity are in a state of the greatest excitement, and if the firebug could be discovered things would go hard with him.

The police have taken extraordinary precaution to protect the apartment house and it is being guarded as carefully as if it contained a king's ransom. The tenants have also organized a watching party in an effort to nab the person or persons who have been causing such alarm.

That the different blazes were the work of incendiaries there can be no doubt. The first fire broke out at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and the next one at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Kerosene had been sprinkled around in both instances. At 2:15 Thursday, just three hours after the other fire, another blaze was discovered at the foot of the dumbwaiter shaft. A quantity of old rags had been saturated with kerosene and ignited.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a fourth fire was discovered in the building. Kerosene had been poured along the staircase and when the firemen arrived they had a hard time extinguishing the blaze which was the most serious of all. At 5:30 yesterday afternoon, just as was the case on Thursday, another fire broke out and it was also caused by kerosene having been poured along the staircase.

When the fifth fire broke out yesterday there was the wildest excitement in the Redmond and the tenants gathered in groups and discussed the situation. They are convinced that the person who is doing the work is an inmate of the flat building and the police believe that it is some small boy who takes a fiendish delight in starting a blaze and seeing the fire department arrive.

So far there has not been the slightest clue for the police to work on. Despite the extraordinary precautions that have been taken, fresh fires are always being discovered until the inmates are now in a state of perpetual terror and few of them are able to sleep at night.

The police say that it would be impossible for any outsider to cause the blazes because too close a lookout is being kept. The theory is that some small boy in the flat building sneaks out and does the work when no one is around.

HELD FOR ABDUCTION

Mrs. Caroline Kaul Causes Arrest of Nieces.

Rose and Theresa Wagner Were Living in House Where Resided Men They Intended to Marry.

Theresa Wagner, 17 years old, who came with an older sister from Germany three years ago, has had her wedding all planned out for a long time now—almost two years. Anthony Scravilla, 20 years old, is the young man of her choice, and just as soon as the two became of age they decided they would get the pastor to tie the nuptial knot for them, and they have been vowing to one another that the knot would never untied. It appears probable now, however—though it all depends on how Magistrate Hylan will look at the case—that the parson will never be able to get the strings for the knot into his hands. Caroline Kaul, a woman of 60 years, who is the aunt of Theresa and who lives at 121 Rockaway avenue, took hold of the strings to-day, with the result that, instead of a wedding knot being tied, a net was laid laid by the aunt, and Theresa and Anthony were enmeshed therein in the New Jersey police court, Anthony because he was charged with abduction, and Theresa because she was loyal to Anthony.

Anthony had two co-defendants in the abduction charge. They were Theresa's older sister, Rose, who is 23 years old, and Anthony's older brother, Salvatore, who is 24 years old. These two persons themselves propose to wed some day. They would have done so long ago, they told Magistrate Hylan, but they thought it would be nice to have a double wedding, so they have been holding off until some time next year, when Theresa will be 18 and Anthony will be 21. Then all would get married and live together in a little East New York cottage.

It was because the Wagner girl's aunt, Mrs. Kaul, objected to the plans of the nieces that she had had the two brothers arrested on an abduction charge. She doesn't want the two from Germany to marry the two from Italy. She was able to get the warrants for the two men for the reason that Salvatore and Anthony and Rose and Theresa are all living in the same house at 347 East New York avenue, almost as they have been planning to do at some future time. And Mrs. Kaul, careful and unromantic, charged one niece, Rose, with abduction for the reason that Rose aparently has willingly permitted her younger sister, Theresa, not yet of age, to live at the East New York avenue address.

The case deeply interested Magistrate Hylan. He thought he ought to take time before deciding what should be done in the matter, to go into the case fully, so he adjourned proceedings until Monday morning, meanwhile holding Salvatore and Anthony and Rose in $1,000 bail each. Theresa, during the interim, will be kept at the House of Good Shepherd, and will appear probably as an unwilling witness when the case comes up again.

BARREL EXPLODED; MAN HURT.

Joseph Sheridan, a foreman for the Pioneer Iron Works, at Pioneer and Van Brunt streets, put a lighted match to the bunghole of a paint barrel in the company's yards yesterday afternoon, to learn if there was much paint in it. Then there was an explosion. Sheridan's arm and face were severely burned, and required the services of an ambulance surgeon. Sheridan is about 30 years old, and lives in Henry street.

FRIDAY, THE 13TH, UNLUCKY.

Friday, the 13th, was an unlucky day for Mrs. Margaret Harman, 77 years of age, of 121 Thirty-third street, who, while walking along in front of 128 Twenty-third street, slipped on a banana peel and sustained a fracture of her right leg. Ambulance Surgeon Carr removed her to the Norwegian Hospital.

GEORGE NORTH'S RELIGION WORRIES HIS FAMILY

Mrs. North, Fearing Physical Violence, Seeks a Legal Separation.

MEMBER OF A STRANGE SECT.

North Sings Hymns and Will Allow No Other Music at Home, Wife Declares.

Alleging that she is afraid that her husband is going insane on the subject of religion and that she is in daily fear of his doing her physical violence, Mrs. Lillian M. North of 1353 Fifty-first street, Bay Ridge, is suing for a separation from George North. On her application for alimony and counsel fee pending the action, she was awarded $75 counsel fee and $20 a week alimony by Justice Crane to-day. Mr. North is a private secretary, employed by a man in the office of the National Bank of Cuba in Manhattan and receives a salary of $35 a week. The couple have one child, Lillian, aged 16 years.

Mrs. North's affidavit is a very interesting document, several pages in length. She alleges that the cruel and inhuman treatment to which she objects commenced in 1893, one year after she was married to her husband. She alleges that because the child was red haired the father intimated that it was not his daughter and that he has ab

FRENCH ARE EXERCISED AT PAUL MORTON'S TALK

He Scored American Women for Marrying Foreigners With Titles.

FRENCH WRITER ANSWERS.

Attacks Rich American Girls and Says They Are Dull and Stupid.

Eagle Bureau,
53 Rue Cambon.

Paris, August 8—The French are much exercised over what Paul Morton said, on his return to America, in regard to American women marrying titled foreigners, and his opinion of Americans while in Europe, doing all they can to have titled people at their table and spending money on people whom they do not even know by name. Mr. Morton's picture is seen in many of the Parisian papers, and what he said is much commented upon, and most of the sensible newspaper men think he is right. The French language does not easily lend itself to humor, but its irony has a special spice. One of the newspaper men on the Matin writes his article as if he were talking to a dowager duchess, and giving her a piece of his mind. Listen, it is a lesson for the girls who are crazy to marry noblemen.

"Dear Duchess, you have a son who is over 20 years old; he has not gone through school; he does not care to study or work; he is not clever; he has no money. But he is a duke, and when you think of his future, you exclaim: 'Oh, well, he will marry an American girl who has millions.' Now, I am sorry to tell you that that career henceforth will be rather a hard one; it is not I, a newspaper man, who declare it, it is Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, one of the big potentates of the United States. On his return to America, he frankly told his compatriots that they were fools, that he had been to a dinner given by an American millionaire of Paris, at which almost all the guests were titled men. Now the host did not know one of these guests; at his request, a friend of his had invited them, because they had titles. When the cigars, costing fifty cents apiece, were handed around, these descendants of the crusaders filled their pockets with them, saying to themselves that they might as well do so as not, for money and cigars did not count with American millionaires. Paul Morton thinks that a tax ought also to be imposed on the money which American girls bring to Europe as their dower.

"I have told you what a newspaper man thinks about the men whom the American girls marry and the whole ...ch nation thinks the same. Titled ...do not count now, except in Amer- They are no longer considered a ...ary part of the nation. The last ... be first and the first shall be ...t. It is now the working people and the middle classes who are thought to be of importance. The American girls can run away with any penniless titled man, and sensible people here will only laugh at her, and think she is a fool for marrying the man, and that her father is one, for giving the money. Ten to one the poor girl is made miserable after marriage, by being obliged to pay bills for her husband's misdoings and to do as the Countess de Castellane did: pay the florist's bills for the flowers sent by her lord and master to his many lady loves. And what compensation has she for all these sacrifices, which must be most repulsive to herself? If her husband has a father and mother, and she must see them, she cannot help yawning in their faces, for they are a dull set, who only see their own kind, who are as dull as they; and they hate the republic and republican institutions. The mother-in-law sits at some embroidery by the hour, and the father sits behind some dull papers, devoted to royalty. The only conversation consists in cursing the republic and wishing there were a king on the throne.

"Such a young American girl, duchess or countess, may parade her title at home to her American friends when she entertains them, or show off her grand toilets at public teas to which she goes every day. She soon tires of this, however, and then she yawns her life away; for most of the time her husband is absent, having pressing engagements with other women. It must be confessed that if they like American money, they prefer French vivacity and wit, and make no bones about choosing the company of women with whom they will have the best time. American girls who have plenty of money seem to have the dullest time imaginable after they are married, for, marry whom they will, they do not seem to be satisfied. I have heard American girls say that as soon as an American man is married he becomes dull, and the foreigners seek the society of women of their own nation. What is to be done? I think the trouble lies in the American girl's training; she is allowed to ignore all the sacred duties of life. Her chief aim in life is to have a good time; she has it when she is a girl, and then, after marriage, she naturally expects the good time to continue; she ignores housekeeping, does not love her home, finds no fun in attending to the duties of married life, refuses to have a family, and life soon palls upon her. There is no work left for the rich American girl or woman, and work is the only thing in the world which saves anybody from having a dull time."

YALE STADIUM PLANS.

Report That Site Has Been Secured Is Denied, Though Structure Seems Assured.

New Haven, Conn., August 16—A denial is given to the report that the athletic authorities at Yale have secured a site for a stadium for use in football games and that plans for a structure are being made. There have been negotiations in various directions for a site for the stadium, and the most likely place seems to be a tract of land near the present athletic field in Orange. The athletic authorities hesitate about placing the stadium outside the city limits, owing to friction which has arisen in the past over the policing of the field and the control of the highways leading to the scene of the contest.

One plan under consideration has been to ask the General Assembly to annex the part of Orange, adjacent to Yale Field, to the city of New Haven. St. Lawrence Cemetery, which is just west of the football field and the highway leading to it from the city line have been annexed to New Haven, but the field and the approaches to the gates outside the highway bounds are in Orange. If the Legislature should annex the land between the cemetery and the city line, it is quite certain that the stadium will be located there.

Aside from the vicinity of Yale Field there has been no good sites offered for the stadium. Last spring tenative plans for a structure to seat fifty thousand people were drawn, and perspective views made of the drawings, but it is understood that these were not presented to the athletic authorities officially, hence the denial of the preparation of plans. It is understood that a New York alumnus has offered to contribute a very large sum of money to help along the undertaking. Probably the stadium will be built eventually under a bond arrangement. Its completion will be in time for the Yale-Harvard game in the fall of next year.

SAW THE START OF RIOTS ON DOCKS AT BARCELONA

S. S. Buenos Aires Brings Passengers from Scenes of Mob Violence in Spain.

GOVERNMENT SEIZED VESSEL.

Soldiers Who Threw Their Guns and Equipment Overboard Were Court-martialed and Shot.

The first vessel to arrive from Barcelona since the rioting and shooting of the rioters there was the Buenos Aires of the Spanish Line, which reached her pier at the foot of Old Slip, Manhattan, this afternoon. The Buenos Aires had for a week been requisitioned by the Spanish government as a transport, while her passengers were left at Cadiz.

Among the passengers were O. B. Stuart of Chicago, a post office inspector in Manila, P. I. Mr. Stuart was in Barcelona the day the rioting really started. Speaking of the scene, Mr. Stuart said:

"I had arrived in Barcelona on July 19 and found the people very much dissatisfied with the war. There were rumors of complaint and the situation was very threatening. During the following few days taree of the Guarde Civile were killed at various times by small mobs that congregated. It was unsafe to go about after dark and the tension became very severe.

"During this week there were frequent collisions between the Guarde Civile and the lower classes of the people and a number of rioters were killed. Much attention was paid to the Buenos Aires, as she was loading on ammunition for Manila. Threats were made that the loading must stop. Finally, on the 26th, in the morning, the crowd became so threatening near the vessel that the loading ceased and the vessel prepared to sail at noon. At noon firing was heard some distance from the dock, and at 1 o'clock a messenger appeared at the side of the Buenos Aires and stated that the trolley cars had stopped running and that no more passengers would be allowed to get aboard and that none of those on board would be allowed to disembark. The noise of the firing continued and explosions were quite frequent.

'Finally, about 5:30 o'clock, after some hours of anxiety, the lines were cast off and we proceeded to Malaga. There we were told we would have to go to Cadiz on another vessel. We were transferred to the Catalona, of the same line, and taken to Cadiz. The loading of ammunition and troops was then proceeded with, the Buenos Aires having been seized by the government. On board at the time were one hundred infantry taken on at Barcelona. These were added to by 600 artillery and 1,500 cavalry. A considerable quantity of ammunition was also taken aboard from lighters and the Buenos Aires proceeded to Melilla. The Barcelona troops were almost in a state of muntiny and when a short distance from shore eleven of them threw overboard their guns and equipments. They were tried by drum-head court-martial, after landing, and were shot.

"After landing the troops the Buenos Aires returned to Cadiz and brought us to New York. While in Barcelona the press was very closely censored and the day we left the city it was announced that the papers would be suspended and no other Spanish papers would be allowed to be sold in Barcelona. The French papers were also debarred because of their criticism of the war.

It would be unfair to Spain to say that the whole people are in a state of uprising. The southern portion of the country is patriotic and supporting the government. It is to the vicinity of Barcelona that the whole trouble is confined. The next Spanish vessel will bring over a large number of Americans who were to have come on the Buenos Aires. Among them will be Chief of the Filipino Constabulary Kennedy. Those people saw all the most vigorous part of the fighting, as they could not leave the city and were right in the midst of it. All we saw of the actual fighting was the shooting of a couple of people as the vessel pulled away from her dock."

SURROGATE FILES DECISION.

Mineola, L. I., August 16—Surrogate Jackson to-day rendered his decision in regard to the distribution of the residuary estate of Dr. John Ordronaux, physician and scientist, who died on January 20, 1908, at Glen Head, leaving a large property.

Surrogate Jackson decided that of the residuary, valued at $100,000, one-sixth should go to Mrs. Mary M. Marcel, daughter of a deceased sister of testator, Mrs. Clara Molau. One-forty-second of the residuary is given to each of the following children of Clara Molau Kingman, a daughter of Mrs. Molau: William, Charles, Roy, Henry E., Oliver, Wyatt and Miriam Kingman.

It is the contention of the surrogate that the residue should be divided among the Kingman children per stirpes and not per capita.

Dr. Ordronaux in his will made large bequests to charities and educational institutions. There was no question raised in regard to the latter, but a dispute arose over the residuary, and that is now settled by Surrogate Jackson.

SEA CLIFF CRAP GAME RAIDED.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Sea Cliff, L. I., August 16—The pool room of the Sea Cliff Hotel, rented to Alex Laboishier, was raided at midnight last night, by Special Officer Brundage, and the proprietor put under arrest.

When the raid was made, about fifteen well-known young men of the place were in the room, and nearly all were engaged in shooting craps. There was a hurried exit on the part of the players, all of whom escaped arrest.

This morning Laboishier was arraigned before Justice Schultz. He pleaded guilty and was held to await the action of the grand jury.

The raid was made on information furnished by Mrs. Catherine Lyons, who complained that her son visited the place at frequent intervals, shot craps and lost his money. She said she had visited the pool room and saw a group of young men there playing craps. Her complaint was made to Officer Cottrell, but the raid was made by Special Officer Brundage.

VILLAGE BURNED UP.

Buffalo, N. Y., August 16—Word was brought here to-day of the practical wiping out by fire of the village of Pike, Wyoming County, on Sunday. All the stores on the main street and many houses were burned. The loss is placed at $75,000.

MEN FOUGHT OVER GIRL; ONE STABBED, MAY DIE

Harry O'Brien, Dangerously Injured, in a Hospital—Arthur Kirp, Girl's Escort, Under Arrest.

There was a pitched battle between half a dozen men in the darkness at Van Cortlandt avenue and Broadway, the Bronx, shortly before dawn this morning, during which Harry O'Brien, 23 years old, of Two Hundred and Fifty-seventh street and Riverdale avenue, was stabbed several times in the abdomen, and Gordon A. Neary of 231 West Sixteenth street, Manhattan, was cut on the right hand. Arthur Kirp, 25 years old, of 135 Stanton street, Yonkers, is being held on charges of assault.

Kirp claims that O'Brien, jealous over a girl who accompanied Kirp to a dance at the Grove Hotel, attacked him as he and the girl were walking along Van Cortlandt avenue, and knocked him down. Then friends of O'Brien attacked him, he declared, and somebody used a knife. He maintained that it was not his knife and that he had nothing to do with the cutting.

Kirp said he met the girl at a restaurant at Broadway and Two Hundred and Forty-second street and went from there with her to the dance hall. There he met several friends with whom was O'Brien. Kirp introduced his friends to the girl, but announced that she was dancing with no one but himself.

This angered O'Brien, it is said, who was an acquaintance of the girl, and when he asked her for a dance and Kirp answered for her, saying simply "Nothing doing," O'Brien is declared to have meditated deep revenge. His words were overheard by a bartender, as he discussed his plans with friends, and the bartender warned Kirp as he was about to leave the dance hall.

"There is a gang planning to do you up," said the bartender.

So he and the girl walked toward Broadway along Van Cortlandt avenue, in a dark place near Broadway a man suddenly jumped from behind a tree and dealt Kirp a blow in the face that knocked him down. When Kirp got to his feet he tried to retaliate in kind, but was knocked down again.

Friends came to his rescue, and other men went to the help of his opponent, who was O'Brien. The latter suddenly shrieked and fell on the ground. His shriek brought a momentary lull to the fighting, and they all heard him cry:

"I've been stabbed."

Then Gordon A. Neary, friend of O'Brien, leaped forward, and he declares that Kirp had the knife in his hand. He tried to take the weapon from him, he says, but the Yonkers man swung the knife toward Neary's body. The latter warded off the blow, but was cut in the hand in doing so. He seized the other's wrist and finally managed to secure the knife.

Someone blew a police whistle, and Mounted Policeman Dugan of the Kingsbridge station rode up in time to see Kirp start running. The policeman hurled his club through the semi-darkness, striking Kirp on the head, and the fugitive was "winged." He dropped with a moan, and the policeman corralled Neary and a man named Stanley.

O'Brien was rushed to the Fordham Hospital, where it was said this afternoon that he was suffering from the effects of three stab wounds in the abdomen, and probably would not recover.

Kirp was arraigned to-day in the Morrisania court and held without bail until Wednesday on the charge of stabbing O'Brien. On the charge of cutting Neary he was held in $2,000 bail for trial. The others were not really prisoners, but had been held as witnesses. They were discharged.

The girl with Kirp made off in the darkness while the fight was at its hottest, and the police did not learn her name.

MRS. LUDEMAN MAY SEE CHILD

Mother's Writ of Habeas Corpus for Possession Is Denied by Justice Brady.

An order was handed down by Justice Brady in the Supreme Court in Manhattan to-day in the writ of habeas corpus sued out by Mrs. Clara Eugenia Ludéman, who sought through the courts to obtain possession of her infant child, the father of which carried it to his parents at the time that he, a son of August A. Ludeman, president of the Consumers Park Brewing Company of Brooklyn, separated from his wife. The court dismissed the mother's writ, but granted her permission to visit her child at the home of its grandparents three hous in one day of each week, until further notice.

Arthur A. Ludeman, after a somewhat tempestuous married life, recently sued his wife for an absolute divorce. To this complaint the wife made answer in the shape of a suit for a separation. This was followed with the securing by counsel representing her of a writ of habeas corpus, that she might get back into her possession their child, which the father had carried away.

Justice Brady, after hearing extended arguments, decided to-day that, considering the best interests of the child, it should remain with its grandparents, but granted the mother the right to see and visit it, as stated.

SOPHIE CAME BACK.

Escaped From Kings Park Asylum and Made Way to Brooklyn.

Sophie Hassan, who was arrested a few days ago in the vestibule of the residence of Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, and who protested that she had only gone in there to rest and be near her bridegroom, was arraigned before Magistrate Tighe in the Adams street court this morning. It developed that Sophie had been sent to the asylum at King's Park after her arrest for annoying Pastor Russell, and that she escaped from that institution on Wednesday last. How she managed to reach Brooklyn is a mystery, as she had no money. Superintendent W. B. Macey telephoned the police to be on the lookout for her, as it was thought she would probably make an attempt to see Pastor Russell. She was taken back to the asylum by two husky female attendants.

DIVED IN SHALLOW WATER.

BANKERS HERE TALK OF BIG CENTRAL BANK

To Issue All National Currency and to Be Owned by Existing Banks.

COMMISSION IS SECRETIVE.

Meets This Morning at Plaza Hotel and Hides Even Names of Those Present at Session.

Bankers in Brooklyn, as well as throughout the entire country, are very much interested in the announced programme of the Monetary Commission, which, with United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island at the head, convened at the Plaza Hotel in Manhattan this morning.

The reported purpose of the conference is to lay the plans for a revision of the monetary system of the United States, with the probable establishment of a central bank of the United States in Washington.

One of the early arrivals at the meeting place this morning was Senator Daniel, one of the other conferees being Representative John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, the latter having left Boston yesterday to attend the meeting.

Secretary J. Sheldon, who is in the service of Senator Aldrich, refused to tell who and how many of the commission were in attendance, declaring that no information whatever would be given out at the present time. Senator Daniel was equally uncommunitative, and Senator Aldrich could not be seen. The senator's son, Nelson W., was also present.

Although none of the members of the commission would talk, the general purpose of the conference is said to be to gather material upon which will be based the recommendations to Congress looking to a revision of the monetary system. Those who profess to understand the general scope of the plans deem the meeting of even more importance than was the tariff question, which kept Congress busy for so many weeks until recently. There is an idea that if the central bank is established, stock in it will be held by all the national banks of the country, that it will issue all currency secured by the paper of the branches, and that it will be limited strictly to a banking business.

There is contemplated a board of directors to include the secretary of the treasury, the controller of the currency, the treasurer, with possible other appointees suggested by the President of the United States. The ideal capitalization, it is suggested, would be from between $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

The monetary commission was appointed from the two houses of Congress at the close of the last regular session. The meeting which was opened to-day is not expected to close until to-morrow. It is hardly thought likely that any report will be made to the public, however.

WOMEN THROWN OUT OF BUGGY

Vehicle Was Hit by a Car at Ocean Avenue and Eastern Parkway.

Two women were painfully injured when an open car of the Ocean avenue line crashed into a horse and buggy at Rogers avenue and the Eastern parkway last night. The buggy was overturned and damaged, the occupants being spilled to the street. The women are Mrs. Lena Newman, aged 52, of 21 Willet street, Manhattan, and Mrs. Sarah Finger, aged 32, of 111 Bristol street, Brooklyn.

The women were returning from a ride to Coney Island, in Mrs. Finger's buggy, and were driving across Ocean avenue when a car bowled along. It was almost in front of the buggy before the women saw it, and they did not have time to pull aside. The motorman of the car tried to, but could not, stop the car and the impact, while not severe, was sufficient to overturn the light buggy.

Dr. McGuire from the Swedish Hospital responded to a call and took the women to the hospital suffering from cuts and bruises. They were later conveyed to their homes.

REILLY ASSOCIATION OUTING.

It Was a Manhattan Affair With a Brooklyn End—Many Brooklynites There.

Under the auspices of the Joseph F. Reilly Association an afternoon and evening picnic was held yesterday at Olympic Park, Astoria, which was one of the largest affairs of the season. The clubhouse of this association is in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, Manhattan, but Mr. Reilly, the standard bearer, was formerly one of the most active residents of the First and Fifth wards of Brooklyn, and many of his old friends visited him at the outing. The Brooklyn men and women outnumbered the Manhattan contingent and that made it pretty much of a Brooklyn affair.

Two large delegations of Brooklynites went to the picnic in big automobile buses. The F. Shannon Association of the Sixth Ward sent a delegation of about 150, and the Riverside Association from the First Ward sent another delegation of 200.

Dancing was enjoyed during the afternoon and evening. For the men there was a baseball game between the Reillys of Harlem and the Riversides of Brooklyn. The Brooklyn team won the event by a score of 17 to 10.

BUSY DAYS AT MASSAPEQUA.

Week-End Visitors Many—Mrs. Banta Won Golf Game.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Massapequa, L. I., August 16—Saturday and yesterday were busy days at the Massapequa. Week-end visitors were here in large numbers, with the result that Managers Fraser and Seaman were pressed in finding accommodations for everybody.

The second golf tourney of the season was begun on the local links Saturday and was continued yesterday morning and afternoon. The play was close and some good scores were made.

A few afternoons ago, Mrs. Frank Shevlin and Mrs. William Banta, Brooklyn women staying at the Massapequa, played their first game of golf, and by the time they had covered the course they both were tired. It required Mrs. Banta, who won the game, to make 122 strokes in going over the course, while Mrs. Shevlin hit the ball 118 times. It is said that Mrs. Banta and Mrs. Shevlin are enthusiastic over the game and are determined to considerably lower their scores before the season is over.

At the Massape... arrivals: J. C. Zachry, S... Lehman, J. S. Thebault, ... and Mrs. Edwin Flower, ... R. Raeder, Herman G. Trei... rman, Miss Lillian J. Longy ... ook, L. I.; Hughes and W...

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

The Value of Telephone Service to the small Shop Keeper

ONE AND ONE-HALF million telephone calls are made in New York and vicinity each day. A very large proportion of these messages are purchasing orders, or relate to buying or selling. This fact is of vital interest to shopkeepers. It indicates that the telephone system is the great channel through which flows a large part of the City's trade.

Large shopkeepers are well aware of this fact, and have installed many telephones to serve as inlets for telephone orders. In many cases, telephone trade constitutes a large proportion of their business.

Small shopkeepers, too, can get telephone trade—providing they have telephones, and give prompt attention to telephone orders. Telephone buying is on the increase, and the shopkeeper without a telephone is left at the post in the race for business.

OBITUARY.

Allene T. Ogren.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon over the remains of Allene Theressa, daughter of Charles A. and Alma Theressa Ogren, at their home, 387 Herkimer street. The services were largely attended, for Allene was a much loved member of the Swedish Bethany M. E. Church Sunday school. The Rev. C. A. Cederberg, pastor of Bethany Church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. A. J. Lofgren, pastor of the Swedish Immanuel M. E. Church. Miss Annie Carlson and Miss Cora Olsen sang a duet, there was a solo by Miss Florence Cederberg and little Miss Edith Nelson sang "Oh, How Happy Are the Days of Childhood," a favorite with the deceased. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, among them being offerings from the Sunday school, the Junior League of the Church and the children of the neighborhood. Deceased was born at Jamestown, N. Y., and came to Brooklyn with her parents, when an infant. She had lived here about seven years. Her death occurred Wednesday at Lakewood, Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., where she was visiting with her parents. Services were held at the home of Charles Carlson, 16 Foote avenue, Jamestown, N. Y., Friday, the Rev. Mr. Seeberg of the Swedish M. E. Church, officiating. Mr. Ogren, the father of the deceased, is well known among the Scandinavians of Brooklyn, being a director of the Scandinavian Home for Emigrants, president of the Kalmar Scandinavian Orphanage and president of the Swedish Republican Club and the Invincible Club. She leaves her parents, a brother, Francis, and a sister, Cecile.

Margaret Snedden.

Miss Margaret Snedden, who died Saturday at her residence, 527 Lafayette avenue, had for forty-five years been a resident of the Bedford district. She was born at Montreal, Canada, eighty-two years ago. She leaves a niece, Margaret Snedden, and three nephews, James, William and George Snedden.

Michael McKenna.

Michael McKenna, a retired engineer and a member of the Church of the Nativity, on Classon avenue, died Saturday at his residence, 219 Madison street. He was born in the town of Louth, Ireland, April 12, 1837, and leaves two sons, John and Michael, and four daughters, Mary, Nellie, Annie and Katherine.

John Askin.

John Askin died Friday at his residence, 647 Central avenue. He was formerly for years engaged in business at Amsterdam avenue and One Hundred and Eighth street, Manhattan, and was born in Manhattan. He was a member of Monitor Lodge, F. and A. M., and leaves a widow, Mary, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Askin, two sons, James D., jr., and Joseph Arthur, and a brother, Thomas.

Mary Reynolds.

Mary, widow of Michael J. Reynolds, died Saturday at the residence of her son, J. M. A. Reynolds, 694 Franklin avenue. Mrs. Reynolds had resided in Brooklyn for more than fifty years, nearly all of which were spent on the old homesite, corner of Clinton avenue and Fulton street. Five children and seven grandchildren survive the deceased. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated to-morrow morning at St. Teresa's Church, Classon avenue and Sterling place. Interment at Holy Cross Cemetery.

James L. Smedley.

James L. Smedley, for many years prominently connected with A. D. Mathews' Sons, died Saturday night at his home, 703 Vanderbilt avenue. Mr. Smedley was a native of Massachusetts, and was descended from Revolutionary stock. His great-grandfather, Colonel Benjamin Simonds, was carried a captive into Canada while in charge of Fort Massachusetts, in Berkshire County, during the French and Indian War. Mr. Smedley was universally popular. He was a brother-in-law of the late Dr. A. L. Perry of Williams College, and Bliss Perry, editor of the Atlantic Monthly and professor of English literature in Harvard University, is his nephew. Mr. Smedley was first lieutenant of Company D, Seventy-first Regiment, Illinois, during the Civil War. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Perry, 703 Vanderbilt avenue.

Miss Mattie Sprower.

Miss Mattie Sprower of 668 DeKalb avenue died yesterday after a long illness, aged 21 years. She was a well-known musician, having appeared for several years past in concerts, where her piano playing proved a feature of the programme. She was a pupil of Carl Pique. A mother survives her.

Mrs. Philena McConnell.

Mrs. Philena McConnell, wife of William McConnell, died early yesterday morning at her home, 500 Chestnut street, Richmond Hill, after an illness of eight months caused by general debility and the infirmities of old age. She was 86 years of age, and is survived by her husband, three sons, Frank McConnell of Richmond Hill, William McConnell of Toronto, Canada, and T. H. McConnell of New Jersey, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Smith of Richmond Hill. Mrs. McConnell was born in Canada. She had lived in Richmond Hill for the past seventeen years. The funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the late home of the deceased, the Rev. Dr. Arthur Smith of Richmond Hill officiating. The remains will be taken to Canada for interment.

William Schultz.

Roosevelt, L. I., August 16—The funeral of William Schultz, a member of Freeport Council No. 57, Jr. O. U. A. M., and a carpenter by occupation, who died last Thursday, aged 45 years, was held here yesterday. Services were conducted at the family residence in St. Paul's Episcopal Church and at Greenfield Cemetery by the Rev. Pelham St. George Bissell, vice councilor of the Mechanics and receor of the Church of the Transfiguration, Freeport. Members of the council attended the funeral and six of them acted as bearers and escort to the body. At Greenfield Cemetery, where the body was placed in a vault, funeral rites of the Mechanics were performed by Past Councilor Stephen W. Hunt.

CHURCH SIXTY YEARS OLD.

St. Patrick's R. C. Parish, at Huntington, Was Organized in 1849.

Huntington, L. I., August 16—St. Patrick's R. C. Church at this place celebrated its sixtieth anniversary and diamond jubilee with special services yesterday. At the first morning mass at 8:30 the Rev. John O. York, pastor of the church, officiated and gave an interesting review of the church's history. A special choir from Manhattan rendered the music. At the 10:30 service, Vicar General McNamara sang solemn high mass and a number of visiting clergy participated in the service.

The interior of the edifice was appropriately decorated and Father York was warmly congratulated upon his work in the parish.

The first service was held in St. Patrick's Church on August 15, 1849, and at that time it was the only Catholic church on Long Island east of Jamaica. Its growth was not very rapid until the late Rev. J. J. Crowley assumed charge of the parish. He did much for his people, and it was through his efforts that the fine church edifice was built.

Father York, the present pastor, is a hardworking parish priest and a successful one, too. He conducts services in the parish church and in the chapels at Fair Grounds, Lloyds Neck, Woodbury and West Neck, together with regular and special services, confessions, Sunday schools, church society work and visitations of the sick, and has but one assistant.

BOY THROWN FROM CAR.

It Was at First Thought Young Frustruck Was Fatally Hurt, but He May Recover.

What was thought at first to be a fatal accident occurred yesterday afternoon at Springfield road and the Long Island Railroad tracks, Jamaica, when Hermann Frustruck, 13 years old, of 104 Ames street, Brooklyn, fell from a trolley car of the Long Island Traction Company and struck the back of his head a severe blow.

The boy was about to step into the car, when it started up and threw him to the ground. The blood ran profusely from the boy's scalp, and the passengers in the car became terror-stricken. The ambulance surgeon from the Jamaica Hospital, on his arrival, stated that the boy was suffering from a fracture of the skull and internal injuries, and notified the coroner. After a more thorough diagnosis at the hospital, however, the injuries were found to be less serious than were first anticipated, and the boy, it is now believed, will recover.

At 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, Aaron Bryant, 22 years old, of Prospect street, Jamaica, while riding on top of a freight car of the Long Island Railroad at Hillside station, was struck by the roof of the station, and was thrown to the ground, sustaining contusions of the right hip was removed St. Mary's

THE REALTY MARKET

To Build Twenty-five Houses in Flatbush.

Fifteen two-story brick dwellings, each for two families, and on sites 20 by 51 feet, are to be erected by Gilbert Elliott on the north side of Midwood street, 300 feet east of Nostrand avenue, Flatbush, at a cost of $52,500. The same builder will erect two blocks away, on the south side of Lincoln road, 320 feet east of Nostrand avenue, ten two-story two-family houses, to cost $35,000.

To Convert Apartments Into Lofts.

The two three-story and cellar brick buildings on the east side of Lorimer street, 75 feet north of Montrose avenue, are to be remodeled for the Citizens Trust Company, owner. The buildings are at present occupied as apartments. The alteration will consist of converting them into a loft, connecting the two buildings into one, making each loft 25x50. The building is on a plot 29.6x75, allowing plenty of space for light and ventilation. It is proposed to construct a rear extension for the entire height of the building for a stairway, which will be entirely fireproof. The interior construction will be reinforced to meet the required weight for mercantile business, with new columns and girders from cellar to roof. A new plumbing system is also to be installed. The building will be equipped with electric and gas light combinations.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN BROOKLYN CHURCHES

The congregations at the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, last Sunday, were the biggest of this summer. The morning congregation was excellent and the evening congregation quite filled the body of the house. The Rev. Allyn K. Foster spoke in the evening on "What Shall We Think of the Various Forms of Mental Science?" The wide public interest in this subject undoubtedly explains the large congregation, and Mr. Foster's address was much appreciated. To-morrow morning the subject of the Young People's sermon will be "Mme. Fussy." This will be the fourth in a series of character sketches. The regular sermon follows this address, and the whole service is designed to last a little over an hour. Mr. Foster has continued his summer campaign of pastoral work and is demonstrating the fact that all religious activities need not be suspended even during the heated term.

In the Sands Street Memorial M. E. Church, corner of Clark and Henry streets, where that congregation and the First and Second Presbyterian Churches, the Church of the Pilgrims and the Reformed Church of the Heights hold union services, the pulpit will be occupied to-morrow by the Rev. Andrew Magill, pastor of the Reformed Church on the Heights. His subject will be "Tried Foundations." Subject for prayer service Friday evening, led by Mr. Magill, "Prayer." Subject for Sunday morning, September 5, "The Good Shepherd."

For the union services of the First Reformed Church, Seventh avenue and Carroll street, where the Grace M. E., Memorial Presbyterian and Sixth Avenue Baptist Churches join in the services, the preacher again to-morrow will be the Rev. J. Frederic Berg, pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church, Port Richmond, N. Y.

In the South Congregational Church, corner of Court street, where the First Place M. E. and Westminster Presbyterian churches join in the services, the preacher to-morrow morning will be the Rev. Frank E. Simmons of the Westminster Church.

The closing union service of the Central and Tompkins Avenue Congregational churches, in the Central Church, will be held to-morrow morning. The Rev. George H. Driver of Exeter, N. H., will preach. Next Sunday each of the churches will hold its own services.

In the Greenwood Baptist Church, Seventh avenue and Sixth street, where the Park Congregational and Prospect Heights Presbyterian churches join in the services, the preacher to-morrow will be the Rev. Dr. E. D. Bailey, of the Prospect Heights Church.

The preacher to-morrow in the Baptist Temple, Third avenue and Schermerhorn street, will again be the Rev. Dr. John Quincy Adams Henry of Los Angeles, Cal. On the following Sunday the pulpit will be filled by the Rev. Dr. George B. Vosburg of Denver, Col.

The pulpit of the Hanson Place Baptist Church will be filled to-morrow by the Rev. C. J. D. Parker, paster of the Fourth Street Baptist Church of Portsmouth, Va.

In the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place, the Rev. Dr. John Humpstone, pastor, the Rev. Dr. Spenser B. Meeser of Crozer Theological Seminary will preach to-morrow morning, his subject being "The Way Through Faith to Hope." There will be no evening service. Dr. Meeser will also supply the pulpit on the following Sunday morning.

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church the Rev. Dr. W. Beatty Jennings, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Germantown, Pa., will preach morning and evening to-morrow. The Clinton Avenue Congregational and Classon Avenue Presbyterian churches join in the services.

In St. Ann's Church on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston sts., the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, services to-morrow will be as follows: 8 A.M., holy communion; 11, morning prayer and sermon; 8, evening prayer and sermon. The sacrament of holy baptism will be celebrated at the close of the morning service. The Rev. Louis E. Hess will preach morning and evening.

The Rev. Horace Porter, formerly assistant to the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott in Plymouth Church and later to the Rev. Dr. Amory H. Bradford and pastor of the Watchung Avenue Congregational Church, where he resigned in the spring, has accepted the pastorate of the Congregational Church at Riverside, Cal.

In the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street, Manhattan, services will be held at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. to-morrow. The preacher will be the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, D.D., of Chicago, Ill.

In St. John's M. E. Church, Bedford avenue and Wilson street, where seven churches unite in summer services to-morrow, the preacher to-morrow morning and evening will be the Rev. Newell Woolsey Wells, pastor of the South Third Street Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. John J. Parsons will preach to-morrow morning in the Strong Place Baptist Church, corner of Degraw street. In the evening he will conduct an open air service on the lawn in front of the church.

The Rev. Dr. George Adams, pastor of the Olin M. E. Church, Williamsbridge, formerly of Grace M. E. Church, Bay Ridge, sailed for England on Saturday last. He will visit sisters, brothers and friends at Oxford. He will be the guest of the Rev. Dr. W. L. Watkinson while abroad, and will return from Southampton on September 15.

In the Sumner Avenue Baptist Church, corner of Decatur street, the Rev. Dr. Robert Bruce Hull, formerly of Greenwood Baptist Church, and a fine preacher, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Face of Christ," and in the evening on "The Bible—How I Know It Is True." W. T. Wetmore will sing at both services.

To-morrow, in the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, corner of Willoughby avenue, the Rev. Dr. Allan Douglas Carlile, pastor, the Rev. John Newell of Springfield, O., will preach in the morning on "The Masteries of Manhood."

The Rev. B. F. Gilman of Torrington, Conn., will preach to-morrow in the New York Avenue M. E. Church, corner of Dean street. The Bedford Presbyterian Church joins in the services.

To-morrow morning, the Rev. Joel B. Slocum, pastor of Greenwood Baptist Church, will preach in the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, between Lewis and Stuyvesant avenues. Harry A. Shipley will conduct the young people's service in the evening.

In the Nostrand Avenue M. E. Church, corner of Quincy street, the Rev. Howard Arnold Walter, acting pastor, will preach to-morrow morning on "Pilate's Fatal Weakness."

In Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Clermont and Willoughby avenues, the Rev. George E. Silloway will preach to-morrow morning on "The Mote and the Rafter." Mid-week prayer service on Wednesday evening at 8. Sunday, September 5, will be observed as Labor Sunday.

The subject of the Rev. Sydney Herbert Cox in the Lewis Avenue Congregational Church to-morrow has been changed to "The Forgiveness of Love" in the morning. At night, at the Church of the Evangel he will give the closing sermon of a series of three on "The Religion of the Future," according to Dr. Eliot. His theme will be "What Is Religious Authority for Christians?" Dr. John A. Higgons of Philadelphia will preach at night on September 5, the last of the union services.

Bishop Paul Miraglia of the Independent Catholic Church of Italy will preach to-morrow morning and evening in the Franklin Avenue Italian Presbyterian [illegible] Franklin avenue. In the evening he will speak on "Girolamo Savanarola." Bishop Miraglia is an eloquent and forceful preacher and has done much good in his brief mission in Brooklyn. He has been called to hold missions in many Italian churches in this country.

In the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Hanson place and St. Felix street, the associate pastor, the Rev. M. L. Robinson, will occupy the pulpit morning and evening to-morrow. In the morning his theme will be "The Exceeding Sinfulness of Sin," and in the evening "Giving God What is Due Him." Main department of the Sunday school meets at 10 o'clock in the morning, primary and kindergarten in the afternoon at 2:30, and Epworth League devotional service at 7. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson, will return from his vacation next week and conduct the prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Fellowship Band Friday evening at 6:30, and general class meeting at 8. Dr. Henderson will occupy the pulpit morning and evening, Sunday, September 5.

The Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, Seventh avenue and Fourteenth street, Manhattan, formerly of Brooklyn, is making a success of his ministry at the Marylebone Presbyterian Church in London, where he began preaching on Sunday, August 8. He and his daughter, Ruth, were given a reception by Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid. Dr. Hill will return to America by September 20.

In All Souls Church, Fourth avenue and Twentieth street, union services of the New York Unitarian churches will be held at 11 A.M. to-morrow, conducted by the Rev. George H. Badger. This will be the last of the union services. Dr. Slicer returns to his pulpit on September 26.

The regular services at the Reformed Episcopal Church of the Reconciliation, Nostrand and Jefferson avenues, will be continued to-morrow. The pastor, the Rev. George L. Ferguson, B.D., will preach in the morning on "Essentials to Discipleship" and in the evening on "Ingratitude." On Sunday, September 5, the Sunday school will resume its afternoon sessions.

In Christ Church, Bedford avenue, near Division, Canon Chase will be the preacher at both the 11 A.M. and 7:45 P.M. services to-morrow. At the evening service he will give the sixth sermon in the course upon the Christian volume in Dr. Eliot's five-foot shelf of books, the subject being "Dante's Divine Comedy." At the summer Sunday school at 3 P.M. the story of Daniel will be told by Clarence School and will be illustrated by stereopticon views.

Owing to the absence of the Rev. Dr. W. E. Thompson the pulpit of Embury Memorial Church, Lewis avenue and Decatur street, will be filled by the Rev. J. C. Johnson to-morrow morning. Sunday school from 2:30 until 3:30. The Epworth League will hold an interesting meeting in the open air every Sunday night at 6:45.

In the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church to-morrow the Rev. Dr. Len G. Broughton, the noted Southern evangelist and pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church of Atlanta, Ga., will preach morning and afternoon, at 11 and 4 o'clock. Dr. Broughton preached last Sunday to very large congregations morning and afternoon and to people from all over the world, who are attracted to this church because of the distinguished ministers who preach here every Sunday during the summer. Dr. Broughton's morning subject will be "The Blessing of Unrealized Ideals," and in the afternoon the subject will be "What We Have That We Do Not Use." During Dr. Broughton's absence from Atlanta ground has been broken for his new Tabernacle Church, which will be the largest in the world. Dr. Broughton returns home on Monday.

In the Knickerbocker Avenue M. E. Church, Knickerbocker avenue and Ralph street, the pastor, the Rev. H. E. Luccock, will preach at both services to-morrow. His theme in the morning will be "Utterance and Faith." At the evening service he will preach on "An Invested Life."

The Rev. John E. Zeiter, who has been on vacation during the month of August, has returned to his duties as pastor of the Warren Street M. E. Church. He will preach morning and evening to-morrow. Fall activities of this church will begin at once.

The services at the Moravian Church, Jay street, near Myrtle avenue, the Rev. Paul M. Greider, pastor, will be as follows to-morrow: 10 A.M., men's Bible class; 11, A.M., Sunday school; 8 P.M., Gospel services; Friday; 8 P.M., Christian Endeavor prayer meeting.

In the Prospect Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church to-morrow morning the pastor, the Rev. William S. Jackson, will take as his subject "The Shining Face." At the evening service will be given the last of the stereopticon services, the subject being "Quo Vadis." The fruit festival given by the women of the church on Thursday evening, on the lawn and in the basement, was unusual in many ways and was enjoyed by all. Many plans of activity are being made.

In the East End Baptist Church, Van Sicien avenue, near Glenmore, the Rev. M. G. Dickinson, pastor, will preach to-morrow morning on "Satan and a Woman that Talked Like a Fool Against; One Sinless Man," and in the evening on "The Great White Christ; the Power of His Whiteness." Baptism after services.

The Church-in-the-House, in the upper room at the Rusurban, 105 Lefferts place, "has for its object," says the pastor, the Rev. C. L. Clist, "the bringing of the church to the people by means of house-to-house visitation and social meetings of families and neighbors in their homes, as may be desired, and without respect to creed, so that Jew or Unitarian, Romanist or Protestant, may meet without offense or fear of proselyting. Those desiring such meetings in their homes or wishing to aid in such by visitation or in music may address as above or call. As an adjunct youth and adults with good voices may receive choral instruction free under one of the foremost voice-training specialists in Brooklyn."

In the Parkside Church, Lenox road, near Flatbush avenue, to-morrow morning the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Dietrich Long, will speak on "Mutualism." In the evening there will be a lantern lecture on "Co-operation at Guise."

Pastor Russell will be absent to-morrow at 3 P.M., but the pulpit will be filled by F. H. Robison, V. D. M. The subject will be "The Uniqueness of God's Ways." No collection is taken, and the seats are free.

MAN 107 WOULD WED GIRL 18.

Nathan Epstein of Brownsville Proposes, but, Strange to Say, Is Spurned.

It isn't often that Brownsville is enabled to give way to a good hearty laugh, but since that section of Brooklyn has heard that Nathan Epstein, its famous 107-year-old man has proposed to a maiden of eighteen years, apparently perfectly in earnest, it has done nothing but give way to unalloyed mirth.

Miss Jennie Gewitz is the girl of Nathan's heart. She lives at 2 Bristol street. Miss Gewitz is Jewish, as is Nathan Epstein, and it was in Yiddish that Nathan popped the question. Miss Gewitz declares that she only laughed, but the youthful old man was so serious that he hung about the fair maiden's home until Miss Gewitz found it necessary to summon a male relative and have Nathan politely requested to vacate the premises.

Nathan Epstein, it will be remembered, is the old man who recently startled Captain Isaac Frank of the Brownsville official upon the floor of the station house. Besides being attracted by the fair sex and being something of a lady killer, Nathan Epstein, who figures out that he is only 37 years old, is quite a

In the Church of the Holy Trinity to-morrow the services will include a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8:30 A.M.; second celebration and sermon at 11 and evening prayer and sermon at 8. The Rev. John Howard Melish will preach at both services and the full choir will render the musical programme at both services.

Plymouth Church will reopen to-morrow at 10:45 A.M. Dr. Rossiter W. Raymond will give an address on "The Communism of the Early Church." There will be no evening service. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, will be in the pulpit on September 12. The prayer meeting on Friday night will be led by the Rev. H. G. Crocker, assistant minister.

Union services of the First and Second Presbyterian churches, Church of the Pilgrims and Reformed Church on the Heights, to-morrow, will be held in the Sands Street Memorial M. E. Church, Henry and Clark streets. The preacher will be the Rev. Andrew Magill, pastor of the Reformed Church on the Heights. Service is held at 11 o'clock, the subject will be "The Good Shepherd." On September 12, the Rev. Dr. Francis B. Upham will preach.

In the Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Bedford avenue, the opening fall service will be held to-morrow morning, when the Rev. Howard J. Chidley will preach; morning service only, 10:45. Mr. Chidley will conduct the prayer service on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, and will occupy the pulpit on Sundays until the return of Dr. Cadman. In St. Paul's Chapel, Mr. Everett will preach in the morning and evening, 11 and 8 o'clock. Prayer services Wednesday, 8 P.M.

The Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church will resume its regular worship to-morrow morning. The assistant pastor, the Rev. John Marsland, will preach. There will be no evening service. On Sunday, September 12, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. N. McGee Waters, is expected to be in his pulpit and also be present at the Friday evening service, September 10.

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. John Balcom Shaw, D.D., LL.D., of Chicago, will preach at both services. Dr. Shaw was the founder and for many years the pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, Manhattan, from which he went to the Second Presbyterian Church in Chicago, which is operating a large institutional work under his leadership. The Clinton Avenue Congregational and Classon Avenue Presbyterian Churches join in the services. Each of these congregations will resume its own services on Sunday, September 12.

In the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, Marcy and Putnam avenues, the Rev. Allyn K. Foster, associate pastor, will preach morning and evening to-morrow. The series of 10-minute sermons to young people in the mornings will be continued. The topic for to-morrow will be, "Miss Con Strue." These talks are proving of much interest and will be continued during the fall and winter. The second series of talks will begin on September 19, the general topic of which will be "Modern Demoniacal Possessions." To-morrow morning communion service will be held. Dr. Rhoades will occupy the pulpit in the morning of September 12, Mr. Foster continuing to preach in the evening.

The Rev. Dr. John McDowell of Newark, N. J., will preach at both services to-morrow in the Central Presbyterian Church, Jefferson and Marcy avenues. The Rev. Dr. J. F. Carson, pastor, who is at his country home at Stony Brook, L. I., is expected to return to his pulpit on Sunday, September 12.

At the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place, the Rev. Dr. John Humpstone, pastor, the Rev. Dr. Spenser B. Meeser of Crozier Theological Seminary, will preach to-morrow morning, his subject being "Getting Hold of God's Ideal for Our Life." There will be no evening services. The communion for this month will be observed on Sunday, September 12, at the close of the morning services. Sunday school will resume its sessions on September 12.

The Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson, pastor of the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, corner of St. Felix street, has returned and will conduct the services of the church to-morrow, Sunday school at 10 in the morning, holy communion at 11. Kindergarten and primary departments at 2:30. Epworth League devotional service at 7. In the evening at 8 Dr. Henderson's theme will be, "In His Stead." The quartet and choir, under the direction of H. J. Braham, have also returned, and will render the music.

The last of the union services of the Church of the Evangel, Congregational, and the Grace Reformed Church in Flatbush will be held in the chapel of the former, Bedford avenue and Hawthorne street, to-morrow night, when the Rev. Dr. John A. Higgons of Philadelphia, one of the prominent preachers of the Congregational denomination, will preach. Dr. Higgons will preach in the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, corner of Willoughby avenue, in the morning.

In St. Ann's Church on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston streets, the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, services to-morrow will be as follows: 8 o'clock, holy communion; 11, morning prayer and sermon; 8 o'clock, evening prayer and sermon. The Rev. Louis E. Hess will preach morning and evening.

The Rev. Dr. George B. Vosburg of Denver, Col., will preach in the Baptist Temple, Third avenue and Schermerhorn street, at both services to-morrow. Prayer meting will be held on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Regular services will begin in St. John's P. E. Church, St. John's place, near Seventh avenue, to-morrow. The Rev. Dr. Frank Page, rector, who is back from his vacation, will preach.

The Rev. Charles W. Naumann, rector of St. James Episcopal Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place, has returned from a vacation spent in Switzerland, France and Germany, and will occupy his pulpit to-morrow morning at the 11 o'clock service.

To-morrow the closing union services of the seven Eastern District churches which have been meeting in St. John's M. E. Church, Bedford avenue and Wilson street, will be held. The preacher will be the Rev. Dr. Rivington D. Lord, pastor of the First Free Baptist Church.

In the New York Avenue M. E. Church, corner of Dean street, the preacher again to-morrow morning will be the Rev. B. F. Gilman of Torrington, Conn. The Bedford Presbyterian Church will join in the services.

The Rev. Howard Wayne Smith of Philadelphia will preach in the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, near Lewis avenue, to-morrow morning. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws, will be home in time to be in his pulpit on Sunday, September 12.

In the South Congregational Church, Court and President streets, where the First Place M. E. and Westminster Presbyterian churches join in the services, the pulpit will be occupied to-morrow morning by the Rev. Frank E. Simmons, pastor of the Westminster Church. This will be the closing union service.

The Rev. Howard Arnold Walter, who has been acting pastor of the Nostrand Avenue M. E. Church, will preach for the last time to-morrow morning. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles W. McCormick, will resume his duties on Sunday, September 12.

The Rev. Walter D. Johnson, rector of Christ Church, Clinton street, will preach to-morrow morning and evening. Mr. Johnson has been preaching at various places during his vacation, including Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Spring Lake, N. J., and Hadley, Mass. The Sunday school will picnic at Sleepyhollow Park on Friday, September 10, and the regular sessions of the Sunday school will begin on Sunday, September 12. A new worker has been added to the staff in the person of Deaconess Howell, a recent graduate of the New York Training School for Deaconesses.

In the Church of the Messiah to-morrow there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 and even song at 4:30 o'clock. There will be a full choral service to-morrow, the choir resuming its work for the winter after its summer vacation.

The prosperous Sumner Avenue Baptist Church has been making improvements in the meeting house, during the summer, notwithstanding services have been held continuously. In making the additional entrance to the Sunday school room, on the Sumner avenue side of the house, a small percentage of the flowering shrubs and plants which surround the building were, of necessity, disturbed by the workmen. The Rev. Dr. Bruce Hull will preach to-morrow morning on "Man's Final Destiny," and in the evening on "The Astonished World."

The Rev. G. O. Griffith, pastor of the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, corner of Lincoln place, has written that he is coming home by the White Star steamer Adriatic, sailing from Southampton on September 1. This will bring him home next week in time to preach in his pulpit on Sunday, September 12. The regular sessions of the Bible school will be resumed on that day. The regular mid-week meetings will be held on Friday evenings.

The holy communion will be celebrated in Embury Memorial M. E. Church, corner of Lewis avenue and Decatur street, to-morrow morning, the Rev. Dr. Thompson officiating. Sunday school at 2:30 o'clock. The Epworth League will hold its regular meeting at 6:45 and will be addressed by Howard E. Merlin. The pastor, who has returned from his vacation, will preach in the evening.

In Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church to-morrow morning the programme will have to be changed from that previously announced. The Rev. Harrison S. Elliott will preach in the morning, on "Witnessing for Christ." The services in observance of Labor Sunday will have to be omitted on account of the fact that the Rev. George E. Silloway will be out of the city. Midweek worship on Wednesday evening.

Regular services of the Flatbush Presbyterian Church will be resumed to-morrow with preaching by the pastor, the Rev. Dwight E. Marvin, morning and evening.

In the Lenox Road Baptist Church, corner Nostrand avenue, the Rev. C. S. Daniels of Vermont will preach to-morrow morning and evening. The evening meeting will be held under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. The Sunday School will hold its last morning session to-morrow at 9:45. The week of September 12 is to be a rally week. The pastor, the Rev. D. A. MacMurray, will again be in the pulpit on Sunday, September 12, on which day it is expected that the cornerstone of the new Sunday School building will be laid. Friday night prayer meetings in charge of the deacons at 7:45. The Y. P. S. of C. E. will hold its first mid-week prayer meeting Tuesday, September 7, when the Visitation Committee of the B. Y. P. U. will have charge of the meeting.

In the Flatbush Congregational Church, Dorchester road and East Eighteenth street, services will be held to-morrow at 10:45 A.M., with preaching by the pastor, the Rev. Lewis T. Reed. The sermon subject will be "Concerning Trees in the Garden of the Lord." There will be no evening service. The union services with All Souls' Universalist Church closed last Sunday. They were very successful and were notable from the fact that it was the first time two denominations of the kind had worshipped together. Many friendships were made.

In Christ Church, Bedford avenue, the preacher at both services to-morrow will be the Rev. C. Stanley Mook, rector of the Church of the Holy Communion at Redwood Falls, Minn. The Rev. Reginald Heber Scott will officiate at the holy communion service at 8 A.M., and will tell the story of the religion and patriotism of Oliver Cromwell at the summer Sunday school at 3 P.M. The rally day of the Sunday school, when the regular sessions will be resumed and the teachers once more take their classes, will be on September 19.

In the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth avenue and Forty-eighth street, Manhattan, services will be held to-morrow at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. The preacher will again be the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, president of Armour Institute, Chicago, Ill.

Evening services will be resumed in Memorial Baptist Church, Sixteenth street and Eighth avenue, to-morrow. The Rev. N. George Coker will preach at both services. Communion will follow the morning service. The board of deacons will furnish pulpit supplies during the absence of the pastor, the Rev. A. Sterling Barner, who is on an extended vacation in Seattle, Wash. The services will hereafter be held in the main auditorium of the church.

The services at the Moravian Church, Jay street, near Myrtle avenue, the Rev. Paul M. Greider, pastor, will be as follows to-morrow: 10 A.M., men's Bible class; 8 P. M., gospel services. Friday, 8 P.M., Christian Endeavor prayer meeting. Next Sunday the regular work for the fall will be resumed, with preaching by the pastor at 11 A.M. and Sunday school at 2:30 P.M.

In the Church of the Nativity, Kenilworth place, near Avenue F and Flatbush avenue, the Rev. Andrew Fleming, rector, will preach to-morrow at 11 A.M., and the holy communion will be celebrated at this service. Evening service begins with the first Sunday in September, and will be held regularly at 8 o'clock.

The Summer stereopticon services at the Prospect Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church have been a decided success. The church has been well filled each Sunday evening, there has been a free but decidedly spiritual tone to the meetings, and both lectures and pictures have been much appreciated. To-morrow the pastor, the Rev. W. S. Jackson, will preach morning and evening. In the morning will be held the first communion service of the fall, the subject of the pastor's sermon being "Christian Mathematics." In the evening there will be a Labor Day message entitled "Master Workman and Apprentice." The rally in the Sunday School and Epworth League will be held on September 19. The school will celebrate the opening of the fall with a very carefully prepared programme and an invitation to the parents to be present. The Epworth League is to hold an unusual service in the evening.

In Welcome Primitive Methodist Church, Classon Avenue, near Lafayette, the pastor, the Rev. John J. Lockett, will preach to-morrow evening on "Christ's Solution of the Labor Problem." The church will resume its regular services on Sunday, September 12.

The services of the Siloam Presbyterian Church will be resumed on September 12 at 3 p. m., at which time the Lord's Supper will be administered in the auditorium of the A. M. E. Zion Memorial Church, Bridge street, between Willoughby street and Myrtle avenue.

In the Knickerbocker Avenue M. E. Church, Knickerbocker avenue and Ralph street, the Rev. Halford E. Luccock will preach to-morrow morning on "The Endless March," and in the evening on "The Gates of a New Life."

Edward F. Cassidy, Socialist candidate for Mayor of New York, will speak in the Parkside Church, Lenox road, near Flatbush avenue, to-morrow night on "The Issues of the Present Municipal Campaign." Question and discussion will be permitted. In the morning the Rev. Dr. John Dietrich Long will preach on "Incentive." Beginning Tuesday evening, September 6, and on successive evenings through the week, the Rev. Harry S. Baker, evangelist of applied Christianity, will speak as follows: Tuesday, "Socialism and Other Isms"; Wednesday, "Socialism and the Land"; Thursday, "Socialism and Labor"; Friday, "Socialism and Capital"; Saturday, "Socialism and the Kingdom of God."

In Vanderveer Park Methodist Episcopal Church there will be communion service at 11:45 A.M. to-morrow. The topic of the evening sermon will be "Investments," the Rev. H. D. Trinkhaus, pastor. George Keevil will lead the Epworth League Rally Day meeting at 7 P.M.; subject, "Multiplication by Division."

A special sermon to men will be preached to-morrow evening at 7:45 in the Orchard Primitive Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. William T. Blackeby. The subject will be "The Wage-earner and the Church." Mr. Blackeby was employed for over sixteen years in a machine shop in New York City.

In the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church to-morrow, the Rev. Dr. W. J. Dawson, the noted evangelist, will preach in the morning and afternoon. Dr. Dawson recently returned to America from a three months evangelistic tour in Great Britain. His work was markedly successful, and he preached to large audiences wherever he went.

To-morrow in St. Bartholomew's Church, Pacific street, near Bedford avenue, there will be litany, Holy Communion and sermon to-morrow morning. The rector, the Rev. Frank M. Townley, will preach. The Sunday school and evening service will be resumed on Sunday, September 19.

Holy Communion will be administered after the morning sermon to-morrow in the Reformed Episcopal Church of the Reconciliation, Nostrand and Jefferson avenues. The pastor, the Rev. George L. Ferguson, B.D., will preach on "Doubting Thomas." In the evening his subject will be "Foolhardiness."

The Rev. George W. Huntington, formerly pastor of the Church of the Reconciliation, will preach in the Reformed Episcopal Church, Madison avenue and Fifty-fifth street, Manhattan, to-morrow and the following Sunday morning and evening. To-morrow his morning subject will be "Man's Ability to Reach God," and in the evening "Stepping Heavenward."

The First Reformed Church, Seventh avenue and Carroll street, will resume its regular services on Sunday, September 12, at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar, will preach. His morning subject will be, "Dominion," and in the evening, "The Church Lawn." Sunday school, 3 P.M. Young people's meeting, 7 P.M. Prayer meeting on Friday, September 17, 8 P.M.

"The Woman Wage-earner: Her Rights and Her Future," will be the question for consideration in to-morrow's meeting, 4 to 5 P.M., by the Church-in-the-House in the upper room, at the Rusurban, 105 Lefferts place, between Grand and Classon avenues.

AUTO HITS CARRIAGE.

An automobile owned by John Carlson of 4419 Fifteenth avenue collided with a runabout owned and driven by William Reardon of 262 Forty-fourth street, at Fort Hamilton avenue and Ocean Parkway this morning. No one was injured and the carriage was but slightly damaged.

REPUBLICANS HOLD MEETING.

Alderman Downing's Home Scene of an Enthusiastic Gathering.

Last night the annual meeting of the enrolled Republicans of the Thirteenth Election District of the First Assembly District, was held at 201 Dean street, the home of Alderman Robert F. Downing, president of the election district. There was a full and enthusiastic attendance. Alderman Downing thanked the members for their support of the party in the past and urged them to renewed effort in the coming campaign, in behalf of the regular organization, whose leader was being assailed. He thought there was no reasonable demand for a change of leaders, and he thought Mr. Ralston should be sustained unanimously at the primaries on September 21.

Resolutions were offered by William R. A. Kohl, urging support of the candidacy of Alderman Downing for reelection to the board, where he had done efficient work for five consecutive terms, and had secured the erection of two large public schools, an addition to a public school accommodating several thousand pupils, and had urged the establishment of a city bathing pavilion at Coney Island, besides consistently opposing the extravagance and waste of public moneys by Tammany Hall. The delegates from the Thirteenth Election District were urged to vote and work for his nomination. Mr. Kohl made an earnest speech in favor of the resolutions, and they were seconded by Dr. Byron A. Mead, who pledged his hearty support of the candidacy of Alderman Downing. The resolutions were [illegible] opted, as was a motion [illegible] the president appoint [illegible] five to be voted for at [illegible]

GAS RUINS FLOWERS.

Plants in Greenhouses Destroyed by Leaks From Pipes.

Chicago, September 4—That thousands of dollars worth of plants in greenhouses are being ruined each month from gas leaking under ground is the conclusion of Professor William Crocker of the University of Chicago and Professor Lee I. Knight of Clemson College, South Carolina, after years of experimenting at the Midway University. It long has been believed, according to Professor Crocker, that illuminating gas has a poisonous effect upon flowers, but he and Professor Knight are the first to demonstrate the fact scientifically. As yet they have been unable to secure an antidote for the destructive work.

"The only remedy we have been able to suggest is for the gas company to be careful to repair its mains," said Professor Crocker. "Our experiments were carried on with the carnation, and we found that the petals of this flower go to sleep, while those not yet in bloom never open. We learned further that one part of illuminating gas in 80,000 causes injury to the flower.

MISS ERBE, QUEEN.

Amid the tooting of horns and the blowing of whistles Miss Gertrude Erbe, daughter of Fred Erbe, of North Beach, was Thursday night declared the winner in the contest for Queen of the North Beach Carnival. At the same time Joseph Geiser, one of the most popular men in Queens, was declared the winner of the contest for King of the Carnival.

Over 35,000 votes were cast in the contest for Queen. Voting booths were erected at each end of the Beach and it cost one cent to vote. The principal contestant against Miss Erbe for the honor of Queen was Miss Mabel Harvey, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Sheriff Herbert S. Harvey of Queens. She proved almost as popular and as great a vote getter as her father. Her campaign was managed by Fred Frankel and he proved a good manager. The campaign of Miss Erbe was directed by her father, Mr. Erbe has been in North Beach politics and the way he hustled voters of all kinds was the winning streak in the contest. The carnival will open next Tuesday night, when the King and Queen will be crowned.

A few hours' sleep and we were on the trail again. As the going was now practically horizontal, we were unhampered and could travel as long as we pleased and sleep as little as we wished. The weather was fine and the going like that of the previous day, except at the beginning, when pickaxes were required. This and a brief stop at another lead cut down our distance. But we had made twenty miles in ten hours and were half way to the 89th parallel.

Great Progress Over the Grinding Ice

The ice was grinding audibly in every direction, but no motion was visible. Evidently it was settling back into equilibrium, and probably sagging due northward with its release from the wind pressure.

Again there was a few hours stop, and we hit the trail before midnight. The weather and going were even better. The surface, except as interrupted by infrequent ridges, was as level as the glacial fringe from Hecla to Columbia, and harder.

We marched something over ten hours, the dogs being often on the trot, and made twenty miles. Near the end of the march we rushed across a lead 100 yards wide, which buckled under our sledges and finally broke as the last sledge left it.

We stopped in sight of the 89th parallel, in a temperature of 40 degrees below. Again a scant sleep, and we were on our way once more and across the 89th parallel.

This march duplicated the previous one as to weather and going. The last few hours it was on young ice, and occasionally the dogs were galloping.

We made twenty-five miles or more, the air, the sky and the bitter wind burning the face till it crackled. It was like the great interior ice cap of Greenland. Even the natives complained of the bitter air. It was as keen as frozen steel.

A little longer sleep than the previous ones had to be taken here, as we were all in need of it. Then on again.

Up to this time, with each successive march, our fear of an impossible lead had increased. At every inequality of the ice I found myself hurrying breathlessly forward, fearing that it marked a lead, and when I arrived at the summit would catch my breath with relief—only to find myself hurrying on in the same way at the next one.

But on this march, by some strange shift of feeling, this fear fell from me completely. The weather was thick, but it gave me no uneasiness.

Before I turned in I took an observation, which indicated our position as 89.25. A dense, lifeless pall hung overhead. The horizon was black and the ice beneath was a ghastly, chalky white with no relief—a striking contrast to the glimmering, sunlit fields of it over which we had been traveling for the previous four days.

The going was even better and there was scarcely any snow on the hard, granular, last summer's surface of the old floes, dotted with the sapphire ice of the previous summer's lakes.

A rise in temperature to 15 below reduced the friction of the sledges and gave the dogs the appearance of having caught the spirits of the party. The more sprightly ones, as they went along with tightly curled tails, frequently tossed their heads, with short, sharp barks and yelps.

In twelve hours we made forty miles. There was no sign of a lead in the march.

"The Pole at Last."

I had now made my five marches, and was in time for a hasty noon observation through a temporary break in the clouds, which indicated our position as 89.57. I quote an entry from my journal some hours later:

"The pole at last! The prize of three centuries, my dream and goal for twenty years, mine at last! I cannot bring myself to realise it.

"It all seems so simple and commonplace. As Bartlett said when turning back, when speaking of his being in these exclusive regions, which no mortal has ever penetrated before:

"'It is just like every day!'"

Of course I had many sensations that made sleep impossible for hours, despite my utter fatigue—the sensations of a lifetime; but I have no room for them here.

The first thirty hours at the Pole were spent in taking observations; in going some ten miles beyond our camp and some eight miles to the right of it; in taking photographs, planting my flags, depositing my records, studying the horizon with my telescope for possible land, and searching for a practicable place to make a sounding.

Ten hours after our arrival the clouds cleared before a light breeze from our left and from that time until our departure in the afternoon of April 7 the weather was cloudless and flawless. The minimum temperature during the thirty hours was 33 below, the maximum 12.

We had reached the goal, but the return was still before us. It was essential that we reach the land before the next spring tide and we must strain every nerve to do this.

I had a brief talk with my men. From now on it was to be a big travel, little sleep, and a hustle every minute. We would try, I told them, to double march on the return—that is, to start and cover one of our northward marches, make tea and eat our luncheon in the igloos, then cover another march, eat and sleep a few hours, and repeat this daily.

As a matter of fact we nearly did this, covering regularly on our homeward journey five outward marches in three return marches. Just as long as we could hold the trail we could double our speed, and we need waste no time in building new igloos.

Every day that we gained on the return lessened the chances of a gale destroying the track. Just above the eighty-seventh parallel was a region some fifty miles wide which caused me considerable uneasiness. Twelve hours of strong easterly, westerly or northerly wind would make this region an open sea.

In the afternoon of the seventh we started on our return, having double fed the dogs [illegible] the sledges for the last time, and discarded all our spare clothing to lighten the loads.

Five miles from the pole a narrow crack filled with recent ice, through which we were able to work a hole with a pickaxe, enabled me to make a sounding. All my wire, 1,500 fathoms, was sent down, but there was no bottom. In pulling up the wire parted a few fathoms from the surface, and lead and wire went to the bottom. Off went reel and handle, lightening the sledges still further. We had no more use for them now.

Three marches brought us back to the igloos where the captain turned back. The last march was in the wild sweep of a northerly gale, with drifting snow and the ice rocking under us as we dashed over it.

South of where Marvin had turned back we came to where his party had built several igloos while delayed by open leads. Still farther south we found where the captain had been held up by an open lead and obliged to camp. Fortunately the movement of these leads was simply open and shut, and it took considerable water motion to fault the trail seriously.

A Potent Charm to Smooth the Way Home.

While the captain, Marvin, and, as I found out later, Borup, had been delayed by open leads, we seemed to bear a patent charm, and at no single lead were we delayed more than a couple of hours. Sometimes the ice was fast and firm enough to carry us across; sometimes a short detour, sometimes a brief halt for the lead to close, sometimes an improvised ferry on an ice cake, kept the trail without difficulty down to the tenth outward march.

Igloos there disappeared completely, and the entire region was unrecognizable. Where on the outward journey had been narrow cracks, there were now broad leads, one of them over five miles in width, caught over with young ice.

Here again fortune favored us, and no pronounced movement of the ice having taken place since the Captain passed, we had his trail to follow. We picked up the old trail again north of the seventh igloos, followed it beyond the fifth, and at the big lead lost it finally.

From here we followed the Captain's trail, and on April 23 our sledges passed up the vertical edge of the glacier fringe, a little west of Cape Columbia. When the last sledge came up I though my Eskimos had gone crazy. They yelled and called and danced themselves helpless. As Ootah sat down on his sledge he remarked in Eskimo:

"The devil is asleep or having trouble with his wife, or we never should have come back so easily."

A few hours later we arrived at Crane City under the bluffs of Cape Columbia, and, after putting four pounds of pemmican into each of the faithful dogs to keep them quiet, we had at last our chance to sleep.

Never shall I forget that sleep at Cape Columbia. It was sleep, sleep, then turn over and sleep again. We slept gloriously, with never a thought of the morrow or of having to walk, and, too, with no thought that there was to be never a night more of blinding headache. Cold water to a parched throat is nothing compared with sleep to a numbed, fatigued brain and body.

Two days we spent here in sleeping and drying our clothes. Then for the ship. Our dogs, like ourselves, had not been hungry when we arrived, but simply lifeless with fatigue. They were different animals now, and the better ones among them kept on with tightly curled tails and uplifted heads and their hind legs treading the snow with pistonlike regularity.

Gets News of Marvin's Death.

We reached Hecla in one march and the Roosevelt in another. When we got to the Roosevelt I was staggered by the news of the fatal mishap to Marvin. He had been either less cautious or less fortunate than the rest of us, and his death emphasized the risk to which we had all been subjected, for there was not one of us but had been in the sledge at some time during the journey.

The big lead, cheated of its prey three years before, had at last gained its human victim.

The rest can be quickly told. McMillan and Borup had started for the Greenland coast to deposit caches for me. Before I arrived a flying Eskimo courier from me overtook them with instructions that the caches were no longer needed and that they were to concentrate their energies on tidal observations, etc., at Cape Morris K. Jesup and north from there.

These instructions were carried out, and after their return in the latter part of May McMillan made some further tidal observations at other points. The supplies remaining at the various caches were brought in, and on July 18 the Roosevelt left her winter quarters and was driven out into the channel pack of Cape Union.

She fought her way south in the center of the channel and passed Cape Sabine on August 8, or thirty-nine days earlier than in 1908 and 32 days earlier than the British expedition in 1876.

We picked up Whitney and his party and the stores at Etah. We killed seventy-odd walrus for my Eskimos, whom I landed at their homes. We met the Jeanie off Saunders Island and took over her coal, and cleared from Cape York on August 26, one month earlier than in 1906.

On September 5 we arrived at Indian Harbor, whence the message, "Stars and Stripes nailed to North Pole," was sent vibrating southward through the crisp Labrador air.

The culmination of long experience; a thorough knowledge of the conditions of the problem gained in the last expedition—these, together with a new type of sledge which reduced the work of both dogs and driver, and a new type of camp cooler which added to the comfort and increased the hours of sleep of the members of the party, combined to make the present expedition an agreeable improvement upon the last in respect to the rapidity and effectiveness of its work and the lessened discomfort and strain upon the members of the party.

As to the personnel, I have again been particularly fortunate. Captain Bartlett is just Bartlett—tireless, sleepless, enthusiastic, whether on the bridge or in the crow's nest or at the head of a sledge division in the field.

Dr. Goodsell, the surgeon of the expedition, not only looked after its health and his own specialty of microscopes, but took his full share of the field work of the expedition as well, and was always ready for any work.

Secured a Mass of Scientific Data.

Professor Marvin and McMillan have secured a mass of scientific data, having made all the tidal observations and done most of the field work, and their services were invaluable in every way.

Borup not only made the record as to the distance traveled during the journey, but to his assistance and his expert knowledge of photography is due what I believe to be the unequaled series of photographs taken by the expedition.

Hansen in the field and Percy as steward were the same as ever, invaluable in their respective lines. Chief Engineer Wardwell, also of the last expedition, aided by his assistant, Scott, kept the machinery up to a high state of efficiency and has given the Roosevelt the force and power which enabled her to negotiate apparently impracticable ice.

Mr. Gushue, the mate, who was in charge of the Roosevelt during the absence of Captain Bartlett and myself, and Bo's'n Murphy, who was put in charge of the station at Etah for the relief of Cook, were both trustworthy and reliable men, and I count myself fortunate in having had them in my service.

The members of the crew and the firemen were a distinct improvement over those of the last expedition. Every one of them was willing and anxious to be of service in every possible way. Connors, who was promoted to be bo's'n in the absence of Murphy, proved to be particularly effective. Barnes, seaman, and Wiseman and Joyce, firemen, not only assisted Marvin and McMillan in their tidal and meteorological observations on the Roosevelt, but Wiseman and Barnes went into the field with them on their trips to Cape Columbia, and Condon and Cody covered 1,000 miles hunting and sledging supplies.

Rewards for His Faithful Eskimos.

As for my faithful Eskimos, I have left them with ample supplies of dark, rich walrus meat and blubber for their winter, with currants, sugar biscuits, guns, rifles, ammunition, knives, hatchets, traps, etc., and for the splendid four who stood beside me at the pole a boat and a tent each to requite them for their energy and the hardship and toil they underwent to help their friend Peary to the North Pole.

But all of this—the dearly bought years of experience, the magnificent strength of the Roosevelt, the splendid energy and enthusiasm of my party, the loyal faithfulness of my Eskimos—could have gone for naught but for the faithful necessaries of war furnished so loyally by the members and friends of the Peary Arctic Club. And it is no detraction from the living to say that to no single individual has the fine result been more signally due than to my friend, the late Morris K. Jesup, the first president of the club.

Their assistance has enabled me to tell the last of the great earth stories, the story the world has been waiting to hear for 300 years—the story of the discovery of the North Pole.

ROBERT E. PEARY.

THE ROOSEVELT IN PAGEANT.

Will Take Part in Naval Parade With Clermont and the Half Moon.

Commander Peary's Arctic steamer, the Roosevelt, is to have a place in the Hudson-Fulton naval parade. The famous vessel will contend with the Clermont and Half Moon for the honor of being the chief feature of the pageant.

The Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission received the following telegram from Commander Herbert L. Bridgman, secretary of the Peary Arctic Club and a member of the commission:

"Sydney, Nova Scotia,
"September 10, 1909.

"Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, No. 154 Nassau street, New York:

"Peary Arctic Club applies for position for its steamer Roosevelt, with the North Pole, in tercentennial parades.

"H. L. BRIDGMAN."

A reply was promptly sent granting the application. Commander Bridgman's telegram was received while the subject of securing the Roosevelt was under consideration by the executive officers of the commission, and is a happy anticipation of their wishes. Captain Miller, chairman of the Naval Parade Committee, will probably assign the Roosevelt to the escort squadron which is to accompany the Half Moon and Clermont. In view of the fact that the Hudson features of the great celebration commemorate prowess in exploration the presence of the Roosevelt is regarded as particularly appropriate.

ALPHA CLUB PARTY.

Brownsville Organization Gives an Entertainment and Dance.

Metropolitan Saenger Hall, Pitkin avenue and Watkins street, was crowded last evening with members and friends of the Alpha Club of that place, under whose auspices an entertainment and dance were given. The Alpha Club is a new organization composed of young men and women of the Brownsville district.

Those who entertained last night were: Wesley Young, Jules Johnson, Harry Schultz, Miss Sadie Gottlieb and Bert Kirby. The entertainment was managed by Mr. Kirby.

The officers of the club are: Frank Cohen, president; Fred Leventhal, vice president; Joseph Cohen, secretary; Thomas Robin, treasurer; Robert C. Lesser, sergeant-at-arms; Isadore Schlenoff, editor, and Mark Grossman.

NEED BETTER SEWERS.

Rockaway Beach Taxpayers Plan Crusade.

The Rockaway Beach Taxpayers Association will resume its regular meetings on Monday evening, September 27, and one of the first things it will take up is the question of a proper system of sewers for the territory between Edgemere and Belle Harbor. The sewer question has been agitated for some time past, nothing ever being accomplished, but matters have grown from bad to worse and some steps must now be taken to remedy conditions or else an epidemic of sickness will result. It is proposed to build a trunk sewer either in the boulevard or along the Jamaica Bay front, with a disposal plant out on the meadows at some central point.

POULTRY SHOW.

Mineola, L. I., September 11—A summer meeting of the New York State Branch of the American Poultry Association, in co-operation with the Empire Poultry Association, Inc., under the auspices of the New York Department of Agriculture, will be held on the Mineola Fair Grounds, near the Poultry Building, Mineola, Thursday, September 23, at 10 A.M. and 2 P.M.

PEARY SENDS MESSAGE TO NAVY DEPARTMENT

ALSO WIRES STATE DEP'T.

Says He Took Formal Possession of Region in Name of the United States.

Washington, September 11—Commander Peary's first official notification to the Navy Department direct of his return and his discovery of the North Pole came to the department this morning in the following dispatch sent by him from Battle Harbor yesterday. It read as follows:

"Respectfully report my return; hoisted navy ensign on North Pole April 6.

"PEARY."

"To Commander Peary, Battle Harbor, Labrador:

"Your telegraphic report received. Navy Department extends hearty congratulations on your successful attempt to reach the North Pole.

"WINTHROP."

Peary Also Wires to State Department.

"Battle Harbor, September 10—Hon. Secretary of State, Washington, D. C.:

"Respectfully report hoisted Stars and Stripes on North Pole April 6, and formally took possession that entire region and adjacent, for, and in name of President United States America. Record and United States flag left in possession.

PEARY."

Acting Secretary Adee of the State Department in answer to inquiries said the State Department had no comment whatever to make, as there was no question before him.

May Not Reach Sydney Until Wednesday.

Boston, September 11—Commander Robert E. Peary in a special dispatch to the Post from Battle Harbor, Labrador, dated September 10, says:

"The Roosevelt will remain here three or four days coaling and overhauling ship. I expect to arrive at Sydney about September 15.

"Do not trouble about Cook's story or attempt to explain any discrepancies in his statements. The affair will settle itself.

"He has not been at the Pole on April 21, 1908, or at any other time. He has simply handed the public a gold brick.

"These statements are made advisedly and I have proof of them. When he makes a full statement of his journey over his signature to some geographical society or other reputable body, if that statement contains the claim that he has reached the Pole, I shall be in a position to furnish material that may prove distinctly interesting reading for the public.

"ROBERT E. PEARY."

"Battle Harbor, via Cape Ray, September 9—H. L. Bridgman, Brooklyn: Roosevelt will remain here three or four days coaling. Expect to reach Sydney about the 15th. Have 100 walrus skins on board for the club. Your letters per whaler and the Jeanie received. You are the logical candidate for the Polar Commission.

"PEARY."

Mr. Bridgman is now at Sydney with Mrs. Peary waiting to meet Commander Peary. The significance of the last sentence is not known at the Peary Arctic Club.

National Geographic Society Watching the Row.

Washington, September 11—The members of the National Geographic Society are watching with intense interest the progress of the stories of the Peary and Cook expeditions to the North Pole. Both Commander Peary and Dr. Cook are members of the society. It has been suggested, though not by officials of the society, that arbitration of the matter of the claims of the two men might well be left to the National Geographic Society, as well as to the Coast and Geodetic Survey, in view of the inclusion of both men in the society's membership and the generally representative nature of those who make up its rank and file. The society, however, has taken action attesting its concurrence in the acceptability of the arbitration by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, which is represented on the board of managers of the Geographic Society.

The managing board of the National Geographic Society has made no formal request of any character in connection with the Cook-Peary dispute.

Peary Still at Battle Harbor.

Battle Harbor, Labrador, September 11—The steamer Roosevelt, with Commander Peary on board, is still at Battle Harbor to-day. The commander and all the members of the crew are in excellent health, and the steamer is in good condition. Preparations are being made for the departure for North Sydney, C. B.

Members of the expedition say that the Pole is in appearance like other parts of the Arctic Sea, and that an attempt to get a sounding was without success.

POLAR WAR STILL RAGES.

Great Public Receptions Planned for Both Peary and Cook on Their Arrivals.

The Cook-Peary controversy over the discovery of the North Pole continues to rage with unabated fury. For the time being the great achievement itself is somewhat obscured if not lost in the intensity of feeling which has been aroused over the personal aspect of the two conflicting claims. Commander Peary's latest dispatch challenging Cook's claim and characterizing it as "a gold brick," has added fuel to the already fierce fire of charge and countercharge. Each explorer has his camp of loyal champions and defenders, centering in the various polar organizations with which they have been identified, but ramifying throughout scientific and public circles generally. In these divided camps plans are being hastily formed on a prodigious scale for the [illegible] recorded to the two claimants [illegible] more, and as present pl[illegible] at both explorers will ar[illegible] me time, the demonstrat[illegible] them promise to bring to a climax the present intense feeling of approval and disapproval.

Peary's latest challenge to Cook's claim is viewed with varying shades of feeling by the supporters of the two men. It is accepted by both sides as a direct charge of the untruthfulness of Cook's narrative. It is noted also that Peary now adds the statement that he has proofs of his statement contradicting Cook. To give added emphasis to this, he twice recites his possession of proof. It is also noted that his intention to present this proof is "when he (Cook) makes a full statement of his journey over his signature." Peary also requires that this written statement from Cook shall be made "to some geographical society or other reputable body." In this connection Copenhagen dispatches have already stated that Cook was ready to submit his claim to the Coast and Geodetic Survey at Washington or other scientific body if Peary would do the same thing.

The use of the contemptuous phrase "a gold brick" in referring to Cook's claim is looked upon by the champions of Dr. Cook as particularly offensive. They regard it as not only a challenge of his veracity, but as one of such serious import in reflecting upon Cook's methods that it calls for immediate substantiation from Peary. Whether he will give this substantiation at once is open to doubt, in view of his statement that the proof would be presented when Cook makes a full statement over his signature to some geographical society or other reputable body.

Commander Peary has now taken action as a naval officer as well as an explorer, by reporting officially to the President, to the Navy Department and to the Coast and Geodetic Survey at Washington that he reached the North Pole April 6, 1909. These official reports are in line with arguments presented at the hearing of injunction proceedings yesterday over the question of publishing Peary's personal narrative, when it was maintained by James M. Beck, former assistant attorney general of the United States, that Peary's achievement constituted a historical fact accomplished by a United States Navy officer on a public mission.

The Arctic Club of America further perfected its plans to-day for meeting Cook on his arrival. A large steamer having a capacity for carrying 2,000 people has been chartered to go down the bay to meet the explorer on his arrival on the Oscar II, which sailed from Christiansand at noon to-day. Many distinguished persons, including the chief officials of Brooklyn and representatives of scientific and geographical bodies, will be invited. Mrs. Cook will also be a guest on board the steamer which goes to greet Dr. Cook. A flotilla of steam craft, yachts, tugs, etc., is also preparing to move seaward and greet the Oscar II on its approach. The plan is to bring Dr. Cook to the landing at Manhattan whence he will proceed across the city to Brooklyn, where a rapturous reception is awaiting him. The city will be decorated and a huge floral arch will span the street approaching his modest home on Bushwick avenue.

The plans for Peary's reception when he arrives is also being elaborated by his adherents, but details are in abeyance owing to the uncertainty of the time at which he will reach New York. He was to have reached Sydney to-day, but delay at Battle Harbor will put off the arrival at Sydney until early and perhaps the middle of next week. His dispatch to his close friend, Mr. Bridgman, fixes Wednesday as the time of his arrival at Sydney. There a great reception is awaiting him by the people of Nova Scotia, and there also Mrs. Peary and Mr. Bridgman, with scores of newspaper correspondents, are anxiously awaiting him. Two seagoing steamers have been chartered to go out from Sydney to meet him, one of them being a Government steamer offered by the Ottawa authorities. The reception at Sydney may delay Peary's departure by rail from that point until next Thursday or Friday, when he will probably be en route to Portland, Me. At that point he will again receive a reception from the municipality and citizens. Continuing this way by rail, his arrival in New York will be about September 20 or 21, which is the time also that the steamer Oscar II, bringing rD. Cook, is due to arrive.

COOK LEAVES DENMARK.

Christiansand, Norway, September 11—The steamer Oscar II, with Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the American Arctic explorer on board, left here at noon to-day for New York. She is due to arrive on September 21.

Dr. Cook arrived here from Copenhagen on board the steamer Melchior. The municipal authorities boarded the vessel in the harbor and the burgomaster of Christiansand delivered a speech of welcome, in which he congratulated the explorer on his achievement.

Dr. Cook was then transferred to the Oscar II.

PROF. BAILEY'S APPOINTMENT.

His Selection as Census Supervisor Causes Surprise in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., September 11—The appointment of Professor William B. Bailey of Yale University, who once a year takes his class in sociology to New York on a "slumming tour" as the census supervisor for Connecticut, is received with manifest surprise. There were several candidates, one having the indorsement of all the Congressmen, all the state officers and most of the party leaders, while another candidate was indorsed by the two United States Senators. It is believed here that President Taft thought it best to make a non-political appointment.

Professor Bailey is widely known as a writer and teacher of economics. He is an expert on statistics, an editor of the Economic Bulletin, and a member of many societies. His appointment may offer an opportunity for many Yale undergraduates, through the Bureau of Self-help in the University, to earn a part of their tuition fees as enumerators.

MAN STABBED IN THE EAR.

Joseph Fuski, Charged With the Act, Is Held for Hearing.

Joseph Fuski of 204 Hamilton avenue was paroled this morning by Magistrate Tighe after being arraigned for stabbing Lawrence Gistoli of 448 Smith street in the ear with a knife. The hearing was set down for next week and no bail was asked of Fuski.

DR. PETERS IN MASONIC TEMPLE

The Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters has secured the new Masonic Temple, Lafayette and Clermont avenues, for his people's meetings, beginning Sunday, October 3. The morning service will be distinctly religious, emphasizing the fundamentals. The avowed purpose of the movement, Dr. Peters says, is to reach the unchurched. The afternoon meeting will be a people's forum. In the evening Dr. Peters will lecture on moral and social problems.

THE PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

Peoples Pulpit of Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, will be occupied to-morrow afternoon, 3 o'clock, by J. F. Rutherford, V.D.M., in the absence of Pastor Russell. The topic for the discourse is "Kingdom Preparations." All are cordially invited to be present, and as usual no collection will be taken.

FIRE IN PAINT WORKS.

There was an unexplained fire shortly after 9 o'clock this morning in the building at 135 Marshall street, occupied by the National White Lead Company. The firemen got to work on the flames speedily and the damage did not exceed $200 of which $200 was to the building.

CRACKS BENDETTO'S SKULL.

Caffero Took an Iron Bar to Do It, and Is Arrested.

There has been a bad feeling of long standing between Gatano Caffero of 268 Union avenue, and Angelo Bendetto of 34 Skillman avenue. Last night each started out to look for the other, and the two met at South Third and Berry streets. After an exchange of words Caffero, it is claimed, used an iron bar on the skull of Bendetto, stretching him out on the sidewalk. Policeman Olvaney of the Bedford avenue station placed Caffero under arrest. An ambulance was called and Dr. Zahler of the Eastern District Hospital, besides a bad gash, discovered evidence of a fracture of the skull and removed the injured man. Magistrate O'Reilly held Caffero on a charge of felonious assault.

ARRESTED ON PIPE CHARGE.

Watchman and Police Accuse Two Boys of Cutting Plumbing.

Daniel Fitzgibbons, a watchman, 80 years old, appeared this morning in the Butler street court as complainant against two boys, 19 and 17 years old, whom he charged with cutting $50 worth of lead pipe out of a cellar at 1 Willow place, two days ago. Patrolman Patterson found the two boys on the premises and caught them. The stolen pipe was traced to a junk shop on Columbia street and the junkman identified the boys, who said they were Felix Kenny of 56 Pacific street and James Duddy of 328 Sackman street. They were admitted to bail yesterday by Judge McInerney of the Court of Special Sessions, and this morning they pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglary.

OAKDALE ACRE PLOTS SALE.

The development of the Peperidge Hall estate, situated directly at the Oakdale station, presents a strong point in favor of acreage plots there. The value of such plots is at once apparent to an investor who has studied the situation and knows the difficulty in obtaining land situated at or close to the railroad station on rapid transit lines, within an hour's ride of New York.

The property to be sold at the Oakdale station will be offered in one and two-acre plots on Thursday, September 23, in the Vesey street salesroom by Bryan L. Kennelly. They front on the Montauk boulevard, Bayview road, Waterford road and Oakdale avenue. An important feature in connection with plots fronting on Oakdale avenue is the fact that this thoroughfare connects with the Long Island Motor Parkway at Lake Ronkonkoma a few miles north of the Oakdale station. Permanent shore rights on Great South Bay will be included in the sale.

WEATHER FORECAST

Persons desiring information concerning the weather, temperature or other information can secure it by using telephone No. 571 Main, from 8 A.M. to 6 P.M. week days. Nights and Sundays, 6200 Main.

Indications Until 8 P.M. To-morrow.

Washington, September 11—For Eastern New York: Fair to-night and Sunday; cooler to-night; probably light frost in lowlands of north portion; moderate northeast winds.

Local Probabilities.

Fair, with moderate temperature to-night and Sunday; moderate north to northeast winds.

General Weather Conditions.

The unsettled weather conditions that yesterday caused rain in the Atlantic states and interior of New England are moving eastward over the maritime provinces and withdrawing from the middle and south Atlantic coasts. In Oregon, Washington and Montana there have been local rains and light showers in sections of Nebraska and South Dakota. An area of high pressure and cooler weather covers the Lake district and another the North Pacific states. Between the two is one of low pressure with higher temperatures, warmer weather extending southward over Nebraska and northern Kansas. Slightly warmer weather prevails in the eastern portion of New England.

DROWNED IN THE HARBOR.

Unidentified Man Found Floating Near Pier 1, Brooklyn.

The body of an unidentified man was found floating in the harbor near Pier 1, Brooklyn, this morning by Policeman Hanley of the Harbor Squad. The man is about 30 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighs about 150 pounds. He had a dark mustache and wore a dark suit of clothes. The body was taken to the Morgue.

PEARY IN HIS STORY CORROBORATES COOK

Both Explorers Report Practically Identical Conditions in the Polar Regions.

USE SIMILAR LANGUAGE.

No Land at Northern Extreme of the Earth, They Each Declare—Peary Confirms Other Details.

Peary's story of his dash to the North Pole corroborates Cook's in almost every detail! This is the exclamation heard on every hand to-day. Peary's complete story of his final dash for the much-coveted Pole is now before the public, and because of the unfortunate controversy that has been precipitated between Cook and Peary by the latter's flat denial that the former had preceded him to the top of the earth, everyone who has read Peary's account has taken pains to compare it with Cook's.

Both agree that no land exists at the North Pole. This is corroborative also of the theory entertained by most scientific men that the North Pole is surrounded by an open, frozen sea. Cook records that from the eighty-seventh to the eighty-eighth parallel there was an indication of land ice; but he hastened to add that there was no perceptible elevation and no positive sign of land, or of sea for that matter. But when he arrived at the Pole he writes that nothing but an endless field of purple snows met his gaze. "No life!" he exclaims. "No land. No spot to relieve the monotony of frost. We were the only pulsating creatures in a dead world of ice."

No Land at the Pole, Both Explorers Agree.

"Five miles from the Pole," Peary writes to-day, "a narrow crack filled with recent ice, through which we were able to work with a pickaxe, enabled me to make a sounding. All my wire, 1,500 fathoms, was sent down but there was no bottom." This but corroborates the impression of Cook that there was no land in the vicinity. "Signs of land were still seen everyday," wrote Cook as he neared the ninetieth parallel, "but they were deceptive illusions or a mere flight of fancy."

Peary's testimony, too, that the ice conditions became better as he made his way toward the Pole, tends to strengthen Cook's to the same effect. "The ice steadily improved," wrote Cook, "but still there was a depressing monotony of scene." At the eighty-eighth parallel, Peary says that he encountered the best going of the northward journey. "The ice was most equable of any I had had yet," he says. "The floes were large and old, hard and clear and were surrounded by pressure ridges, some of which were stupendous. The biggest of them, however, were easily negotiable, either through some crevice or up some huge brink.

Cook with his lighter equipment, however, had difficulty with these pressure ridges. "Much of our hard work," he wrote, "was lost in circuitous twists around troublesome pressure lines and high, irregular fields of very old ice."

A little beyond the eighty-fourth parallel Cook wrote that the last signs of solid earth were seen. Beyond that point he said there was nothing stable, and even on scaling nothing was noted to mark terrestial polar solidity.

"We advanced steadily over the monotony of a moving sea of ice," he wrote. "We now found ourselves beyond the range of all life. Neither the footprints of bears nor the blow-holes of seals were detected."

Ice Conditions Improved as Pole Drew Near.

"The maddening influence of the shifting desert of frost became almost unendurable in the daily routine. The surface of the pack offered less and less trouble. The weather improved, but still there remained a light life-sapping wind, which drove despair to its lowest recess.

Peary's account says: "The weather and going were even better. The surface, except as interrupted by infrequent ridges was as level as the glacial fringe from Hecla to Columbia and harder. We made twenty-five miles or more, the air, the sky and the bitter wind burning the face till it crackled."

Cook also spoke specifically of this smooth expanse of ice in this parallel when he recorded that "for two days we traveled over ice which resembled a glacial surface. The usual sea ice lines of demarcation were absent and there were no hummocks or deep crevices."

Cook and Peary agree in many instances as to the atmospheric conditions encountered. Both complained often of the smoky haze and the thick mists that veiled their vision. Each agrees with the other also in describing the color and character of the ice near the pole. Peary describes the ice as "ghastly, a chalky white with no relief—a striking contrast to the glimmering sunlit fields of it over which we had been traveling for the previous four days." Cook described the ice

MARDI GRAS' END WILL COME TO-NIGHT

LAST NIGHT'S GREAT THRONG.

They were filling pockets for a nickel at 2 o'clock this morning at Coney, and were doing well too. The crowd, last night, according to several members of the executive committee, who rode in automobiles at the head of the parade, was the largest of the week and numbered close to three hundred thousand people. There were no special features in the parade, but the crowd went to Coney to see the fun and there was plenty to be had. A good idea as to the size of the crowd could be had from the balconies along Surf avenue. It was a solid mass along both sides of the avenue, and when the big parade had passed on to the end of the line at West Twenty-second street, the crowd rushed into the middle of the avenue and mixed with thousands of automobiles. There were more automobiles at Coney Island last night than ever before. There were six abreast for two hours, between Ocean Parkway at Neptune avenue and Sea Gate. So said Joseph H. Vendig, chairman of the automobile committee of the Mardi Gras Association. Business men along the boulevard declared they never saw so many machines on the driveway before.

The battle of confetti began early in the evening and the old as well as the young folks participated. The venders were selling it at the rate of two bags for a nickel around midnight and did a land office business too. There was one young fellow, however, who didn't sell a nickel's worth from a huge bag he attempted to carry from Henderson's to Tompson's walk. He had the bulky thing on his back and was pushing his way through the mass of people, when some one stuck a knife in the bag. There was a scramble and a merry war was on. The owner of the bag was pushed and hauled about and when the crowd finally let go of him, he was a block away from the remains of the bag. The latter was entirely empty. The police along the walk cleared the crowd away as best they could and traffic was once more resumed. Two young women engaged in a quarrel near the corner of Stratton's walk and one of them attempted to pull a veil from her companion's head. She grabbed another instead, and then there was some more fight. Seven policemen quieted things after a time and all three women forgave and forgot.

A big Newfoundland dog was stretched out on the walk in front of Perry's enjoying a snooze, when a crowd of men and women spied him. One of the men purchased a large quantity of confetti and completely covered the animal with it. The dog never moved an inch and slept on and his prolonged nap was responsible in a way for a most exciting time for a few moments. Several women approached the dog from Surf avenue, and one of them, thinking perhaps it was a pile of confetti that lay in front of her, stepped on the pile. The pile moved and the young woman was so badly frightened she fell against a pane of glass in one of the places and smashed it. On the other side of the pane was a beer bar, and when the young woman's elbow went through the glass it struck the bartender. The latter bumped into a waiter who was about to lift up a tray of drinks from the bar, and the drinks were spilled to the floor. The bartender made a swing at the waiter and the latter, in ducking the swing, banged his head against another waiter who was carrying nine beers to a party. The beers never reached the party. After peace had been restored they blamed it all on the dog. The latter was far away when the waiters went in search of him. The young woman tore her sleeve, but she, too, was soon lost in the crowd, and the proprietor of the place is out 60 cents, which sum represents the cost of a pane of glass.

From a number of the members of the executive committee, the opinion was gathered that the Mardi Gras celebration, which comes to an end with a parade this afternoon and a battle of confetti to-night, will be recorded as the best since its first year. Nearly every place on Coney Island was jammed every night and there were more people there during the week than has ever been known. It was estimated there were at least a million and a half of people on Coney Island during the week, and every night but Monday, the committee said, was a record breaker.

More than one hundred business men subscribed to the expense fund this year who had never given a penny toward it before. There were some men who contributed nothing and the committee announced that the proprietors of nearly all the concert halls contributed $50 each when they should be the heaviest contributors. One of them didn't give anything. Nearly every man in business along the Bowery and Surf avenue had a big week's business.

Stephen E. Jackman, who owns several roller coaster rides on Surf avenue and the Bowery, said last night the receipts during the week were greater than ever before. The big celebration will conclude this afternoon with the usual parade, and the king and queen will go to Steeplechase Park, where a reception will be held. A farewell dinner will take place at Stubenbord's at 7 o'clock and then the crowds can have the island until Sunday morning.

CHURCH NOTES.

In the Lenox Road Baptist Church, corner of Nostrand avenue, the Rev. D. A. MacMurray will preach to-morrow morning on "Life's Great Aims," and in the evening on "The Church as an Instrument of Power." The young people will hold their weekly prayer meeting on Tuesday night, and on Friday night will occur the regular church prayer meeting, led by the pastor.

In the Flatbush Unitarian Church, Beverley road and East Nineteenth street, the Rev. Leon A. Harvey will speak to-morrow morning on "Dr. Eliot's New Religion: A Gospel for To-day."

In the Church of the Nativity, Kenilworth place, near Avenue F and Flatbush avenue, the holy communion will be celebrated at 8 A.M. to-morrow. The Rev. Andrew Fleming, rector, will preach at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. Sunday school at 2 P.M. Sunday, September 26, will be observed as Hudson-Fulton Memorial Day, and the special service authorized by the bishop will be used.

In the Congregational Church of the Evangel, Bedford avenue and Hawthorne street, the Rev. Sydney Herbert Cox, pastor, will preach to-morrow morning on "Christ and Nicodemus; or, Man's Need of God," and in the evening on "Christ and the Samaritan Woman; or, God's Need of Man." The hours of service have been changed to 10:30 A.M. and 8 P.M.

In Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Clermont and Willoughby avenues, the pastor, the Rev. William J. Thompson, will preach to-morrow morning on "Life in Christ's Words," and in the evening on "How to Trust God."

In the First United Presbyterian Church, South First and Rodney streets, the pastor, the Rev. G. Hamilton McClelland, will preach the first of a series of sermons on "Sin," the theme to-morrow being "God's Relation to Sin." In the evening a special missionary service will be conducted, sermon, "The Kingdom

In the Church of the Holy Trinity to-morrow there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8:30 A.M., morning prayer and sermon by the Rev. John Howard Melish at 11 and evening prayer and sermon by the Rev. Waldo A. Amos at 8.

In Plymouth Church, Orange street, between Hicks and Henry streets, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, will preach to-morrow morning on "City Life—Its Advantages, Inspirations and Its Perils and Temptations Also." The choir will sing "Blessed Are the Merciful," by Hiles, and "Just for To-day," by Abbot. There will be no evening service.

In the Central Congregational Church, Hancock street, near Bedford avenue, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, will to-morrow evening preach for the first time in the fall season. The choir will give special music. The Friday evening prayer service will be conducted by the pastor, who will give an address. All intending members are to be present at this service and meet the deacons at the close. There will be administration of holy communion and reception of members on Sunday, October 3, at the morning service, and a praise service in the evening. In St. Paul's Chapel Mr. Everett will preach morning and evening, 11 and 8 o'clock. Prayer service Wednesday 8 P.M.

In the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church there will be the usual morning service to-morrow, when the Rev. Dr. N. McGee Waters, pastor, will preach. The evening services will be resumed the first Sunday of October. The music is under the direction of Clarence Eddy, organist and choirmaster. The Bible school will hold its opening session Rally Sunday, September 26. The superintendent, Dr. John Mickleborough, and his assistants have arranged an interesting programme, to which everyone is invited.

In the First Presbyterian Church, Henry street, near Clark, the Rev. Dr. L. Mason Clarke, minister, will preach to-morrow at 11 A.M. and 4 P.M. The subject of the afternoon will be "A New Text: The Secret of Going On." Under the leadership of R. Huntington Woodman, organist and choirmaster, the choir will render at the morning service, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings!" Spohr; "I Will Give Thanks," Barnby; "I Am Alpha and Omega," Stainer. At the afternoon service there will also be special selections. Mid-week service in the lecture room of the church on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock. The pastor will be in charge.

In the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, to-morrow, the Rev. Dr. W. C. P. Rhoades, will preach in the morning and the Rev. A. K. Foster in the evening. Owing to the facts which have developed since the announcement was made, Mr. Foster will not preach the contemplated ten-minute sermons at the morning service. Perhaps they will follow later in the fall or winter. George C. Stout, will preside at the organ and the quartet, assisted by a chorus choir, will give several special selections.

In the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, will preach briefly, and will conduct the communion service to-morrow morning. New members are to be received. The quartet will sing "O Holy Saviour!" by Berwald. In the evening, the Rev. James G. Bailey, the new assistant, will preach for the first time after his coming to the church. The cantata, "The Conversion of St. Paul," will be given by the choir.

"The Individuality of the Christian Life" is the subject on which the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton will preach to-morrow morning in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church. The regular sessions of the Bible school will begin at noon. The evening service will be resumed on the first Sunday of October. At the mid-week service on Wednesday night the subject will be "The Inspiration of God's Comfort." Dr. Boynton is to make the address before the Brooklyn Institute at the Hudson-Fulton celebration in the Academy of Music next Friday evening.

The Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws, pastor, will preach in the Greene Avenue Baptist Church, above Lewis avenue, to-morrow morning on "Life a Battle, a Race, a Trust," and in the evening on "What Are the Churches Doing for New York? Is the Wail of Pessimism Which We Hear Upon Every Hand Justified by the Facts? Is Roy Stannard Baker Right or Wrong—a Dispassionate and Optimistic View of the Religious Conditions Prevailing in Greater New York." The quartet choir will sing at both services. The Bible school at 2:30 o'clock has resumed its regular sessions. The communion service of last Sunday was the largest September communion in the long history of the church. Visitors are more than welcome to all the services, including the Bible study and prayer hour on Friday evenings.

The Reformed Church on the Heights will reopen to-morrow for services. The pastor, the Rev. Andrew Magill, will preach at 11 A.M. The evening service will be resumed October 3, at 8 o'clock. Prayer service on Wednesday evenings, conducted by the pastor.

In Emmanuel Baptist Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Humpstone, will preach to-morrow morning on "On the Damascus Plain." At night his topic will be "What is the Matter with the Churches?" a review of the symposium on this subject in a current magazine. On Sunday, September 26, this church will observe the Hudson-Fulton Centenary with appropriate decorations and special music, the pastor preaching on "The Mission of the Explorer" and "The Steamship and the Gospel." It is intended, beginning with October 17, to devote the third Sunday night of each month to a lecture. The general subject of the series will be "World Outlooks."

The preacher at the Baptist Temple to-morrow will be the Rev. Dr. George B. Vosburgh of Denver, Col. The morning subject will be "Sizing up the Situation"; and in the evening, "The Transient and the Permanent in Life." All the departments of work in this church have begun the fall campaign with renewed vigor. The congregations are large. The choir will return, with Tali Esen Morgan as director, and sing at both services to-morrow. Mr. Morgan has had an unusually successful season at Ocean Grove and returns to his work in the Temple after a little rest at the Thousand Islands. Plans for the music are on an enlarged scale. Singers will be cordially welcomed to this successful organization. The Bible School opened last Sunday with a large attendance and enthusiasm. The Rev. W. J. Southerton is looking after the interests of the church since the closing of the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers.

Unity Church will hold its first service since closing for the summer, to-morrow morning. Dr. W. H. Brundage will be on hand to greet his congregation, and his opening sermon is entitled "Ideals and Ideals." The Sunday School also reopens to-morrow and at the usual hour, 10 A.M.

Services will be resumed to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock in the Second Presbyterian Church, Clinton and Remsen streets. The pastor, the Rev. L. Van den Berg, will preach. No evening service. Prayer meeting on Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the lecture room.

The services at Christ Church, Clinton street, will begin with holy communion at 8 A.M. to-morrow. The sessions of the Sunday school will be under the direction of Maxwell Canter, at 9:45. The rector will preach morning and evening.

In St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop William Burt, D.D., LL.D., will preach to-morrow morning. In the evening, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. J. H. Willey, will preach on "Our Place in God's Plan." Mr. Morrisey will sing, "How Long, O Lord;" by Mietzke, and Janaska's "Hear My Prayer." There will be several quartet numbers. The business meeting of the Epworth League will be held on Monday evening. Monthly meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, on Tuesday afternoon.

In St. Ann's Church on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston streets, the Rev. C. STARVED TO SAVE MONEY.

Larsen Wanted to Return to Home in Norway.

Harry Larsen, 18 years old, whose only home in this country is a mudscow now lying at the foot of Thirty-first street, told the police to-day that he had to starve himself because he needed all the money he could earn to pay his expenses back to his home in Norway. Dr. Gould of the Norwegian Hospital gave Larsen stimulants and advised him to take a little more nourishment daily or he would [illegible]

TAX NOTICES.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, BUREAU FOR THE COLLECTION OF TAXES, NO. 57 CHAMBERS STREET, BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 25, 1909.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE assessment rolls of real estate and personal property in The City of New York for the year 1909, and the warrants for the collection of taxes, have been delivered to the undersigned, and that all the taxes on said assessment rolls are due and payable on

Borough of Manhattan, No. 57 Chambers street, Manhattan, N. Y.

Borough of Richmond, Borough Hall, St. George, Staten Island, N. Y.

TO AVOID PENALTY TAXES MUST BE PAID IN OCTOBER. NO REBATES ARE ALLOWED.

Under the provisions of Section 916 of the Charter, as amended by chapter 447, Laws of 1903, it is provided, "If any tax shall remain unpaid on the first day of November it shall be the duty of the Receiver of Taxes to charge, receive and collect upon such tax interest upon the amount thereof at the rate of seven per centum per annum to be calculated from the day on which the taxes become due and payable (October 4), as provided in section 914."

When checks are mailed to the Receiver of Taxes they must be accompanied by addressed envelopes WITH POSTAGE PREPAID, in order to insure return of receipted bills by mail.

Checks dated October 4 should be mailed to the Receiver as soon as possible after bills have been received by the taxpayer.

DRAW CHECKS ONLY TO THE ORDER OF THE RECEIVER OF TAXES.

DAVID E. AUSTEN,

QUEENS DEMOCRACY SPLIT.

Big Row at Stifling of a Resolution Favoring Gresser at Second Ward Meeting—Police Called In.

At a meeting of the Second Ward Democratic Club, held last night at Maspeth, there was the liveliest kind of rebellion started against a ruling of Chairman Henry Walters, who declared out of order a motion put by a member of the club named Gray indorsing the candidacy of Lawrence Gresser for Borough President for another term.

A shout arose from all parts of the house declaring the chairman unfair. Two policemen were called in. Finally an amendment was proposed to table the Gray motion, and it was put by the chairman, who declared it carried. The Gresser supporters declare that there were ten noes to one aye on the amendment, but that the chairman completely ignored them. Secretary Carl Berger, who with the chairman is a Cassidy supporter, said the vote was about half and half; that the club was evenly divided.

The affair has created intense excitement and is likely to rend the club. It is said by the administration adherents that the vote last night was but another indication of the overwhelming popularity of President Gresser with the mass of Democratic voters.

ANOTHER WOODMERE ROBBERY

Three Occur in as Many Successive Nights—Residents Are Alarmed.

Mineola, October 2—The Sheriff's office here was informed this morning of a robbery in the store of Morris Milk in Woodmere. He has a stock of dry goods, notions and jewelry, and several hundred dollars' worth was taken. Entrance was effected by breaking a window pane. No clew to the persons engaged in the robbery has been secured.

This is the third successive robbery in the Woodmere section on as many nights. On Wednesday night the new house of Carlton Macy, president of the Queens Gas and Electric Company, in the Hewlett's Bay section, was stripped of lead pipe and other things which could be carried off from an uncompleted structure. Thursday night the notion and jewelry store of Lewis Spitz was entered and considerable of the stock carried off. About $20 worth of rings and pins was found in the street in front of the place yesterday morning. The residents of Woodmere are considerably alarmed over these frequent depredations.

WARSHIPS WILL LEAVE.

IN BROOKLYN CHURCHES.

In Puritan Congregational Church, Lafayette and Marcy avenues, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor, will preach to-morrow morning on "The Ensign of the Nations and of the Centuries," followed by holy communion. In the evening the second of the series of sermons on the Gospel of St. John will be delivered, the subject being "Jesus Seen in Action at a Wedding and in the Temple." The Sunday School observes Rally Sunday at 2:30 P.M. On Wednesday night at 8 o'clock the subject for the prayer meeting will be "The Experiences, Observations, Blessings and Lessons of Vacation."

In St. James Episcopal Church, Lafayette avenue and St. James place, the Holy Communion will be observed at 8 A.M. and at 12 o'clock noon. The rector, the Rev. Charles W. Naumann, will preach at the morning service, at 11 o'clock, and in the evening at 7:45. The Sunday school will hold its first session for the year in the Parish House at 3 P.M.

In the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John H. Kerr, will preach to-morrow morning on "General A and His Forces," and in the evening on "Armed Recreants."

To-morrow evening's topic at the White Church, on Bushwick avenue, will be "William of Nassau, Pathfinder of Modernism, First Exponent of 'Americanism.'" The Rev. Edward Niles, pastor, has translated into English the two most representative Dutch national anthems, "Wien Neerlandsche Bleed" and "Wilhelmus van Nassauwe Ben Ik," which will be sung by the large chorus choir, under the leadership of Professor Eugene C. Morris, together with other patriotic music. During the summer the choir loft has been remodeled and enlarged to twice its former capacity to provide room for the fast growing choir. Among the church decorations will be the large American flag which covered the pulpit of the American Church in The Hague during the past summer.

Pastor Russell will occupy People's Pulpit in Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, to-morrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock. His subject, "Sin Atonement," will be based upon the text, "Without shedding of blood there is no remission." No collection will be taken and seats are free.

The Rev. Dr. Robert MacDonald, pastor of the Washington Avenue Baptist Church, will preach at 11 o'clock and observe the communion. The Young Men's Bible Class, led by Frank Harvey Field, and the Young Ladies Class, led by Mrs. MacDonald, meet for the first session at 10 o'clock. The church opens for evening service at 7:45, with a musical service assisted by Marcus Kellerman, recent baritone of the Royal Opera, Berlin, Germany, who sings from the oratorio of "Elijah." At this service Dr. MacDonald will give the first of a series of addresses on "Current Events."

In the Church of the Messiah, Greene and Clermont avenues, there will be Holy Communion and sermon to-morrow morning, at 11 o'clock. The rector, the Rev. Dr. St. Clair Hester, will preach morning and evening, his topics being "The Contrasted Days of Small and Great Things" and "The Good of Struggle." The Sunday school meets at 3 o'clock and the evening services are resumed at 7:45 o'clock.

Holy communion will be observed to-morrow morning in the Summerfield M. E. Church. The communion address will be given by the pastor, the Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, on "Choosing the Cross." In the evening the pastor will preach on

AMATEUR DRAMATICS.

The amateur dramatic season is now in full swing. Already several excellent performances have been given by local societies and more are to come this week. Up to date farce comedy has been preferred as a vehicle for such productions, but soon plays of a heavier type, requiring studied and better sustained acting, will entertain the large following which amateur theatricals have secured in Brooklyn. As usual, holidays are preferred for amateur performances, for it is the common belief that because of the holiday spirit, better attendances are the result. With this in view, plans for performances on Thanksgiving Day, Saturday evenings and even Christmas Eve, have been formulated in many instances. There is every indication of a very busy year, as far as this particular phase of social life is concerned.

The final rehearsals for the production of "The Charity Ball" by the Majestic Dramatic Company at Labor Lyceum on Tuesday evening have given promise of one of the best amateur "shows" seen this season in Brooklyn. The cast will be made up of several well known amateurs, including Francis Lawrence, Joseph M. Collins, Alexander Collins, Edward Martin, and Florence Collins, all capable players who are able to essay any role no matter how difficult. Mr. Lawrence will be seen in the character of Judge Knox, a part that is peculiarly suited to his ability. The curtain will rise at 8:15 o'clock. Dancing will follow the performance. A large attendance is expected.

The annual election of officers of the Mantell Dramatic Society tok place at its meeting at Maretta Mansion on October 5. The officers elected are: Howard E. Brown, president; Miss Minnie Wetzler, vice president; C. William Hamm, secretary; Miss Bella Wetzler, treasurer; Otto Boss, dramatic director. The play to be presented by the society at Brooklyn Labor Lyceum on Tuesday evening, November 4, is "The Other Mr. Smith." The rehearsals are progressing favorably under the direction of Nat E. Farnham.

The cast will be as follows:

The Rev. John Smith.....Nat E. Farnham
John Smith.....Howard E. Brown
Dick Desmond.....Robert Wetzler
Colonel Duncan Smith.....John Robinson
Sergeant Duffell.....David C. Booth
Mabel.....Miss Anna Wetzler
Nora.....Miss Susie Cook

General interest is being shown in the entertainment and reception of the Church of St. Martin of Tours, which will take place at Schwaben Hall, Knickerbocker and Myrtle avenues, on Tuesday evening. The popular St. Martin Players, under the management of the Holy Name Society, will present two clever sketches entitled "Ici on Parle Francais" and "Fennell; or, The Violin Maker of Cremona." The caste is composed of experienced amateur Thespians. Vaudeville features will also be introduced. Miss Helen Bergmann will play "Alla Ingaresen" during the performance of "Fennell." Miss May Bergmann will recite "Mrs. McGlaggerty on Roller Skates." Master Sylvester Shelton will sing several songs. The casts will be: "Ici on Parle Francais," Major Regulus Rattan, James Swan, jr.; Victor Dubois, Harry A. Barry; Mr. Spriggins, Louis Ripperger; Mrs. Spriggins, Miss Winifred McGrath; Angelina, their daughter, Miss Anna Mahood; Julia, wife of Major Rattan, Miss Margaret Walsh; Anna Maria, maid of all work, Miss Mamie Mullen.

"Fennell": Taddeo Ferrari, Peter B. Knapp; Filippo, M. J. O'Hearn; Sando, Joseph Droesch; Gianina, Miss May Bergmann.

A movement is on foot to organize a new dramatic society. Already a working force has gathered together for the purpose of outlining arrangements for headquarters, an enlarged membership and finally the production of a suitable play. Applications are received by C. Dressel, 626 Decatur street.

The Mansfield Dramatic Society will open its ninth season early in November, at Prospect Hall, with a familiar English drama, entitled "Fielding Manor." In selecting the play for the next production of the company, C. H. Birkner, the coach, took careful note of the characters in the play, and the ability of the members of the society to portray them. He is satisfied that the play will be most successfully given. C. A. Fredericks has been chosen to study the difficult part of Stanley Fielding. Robert J. Hall will portray the leading male character of Lucian Glyre. Mr. Hall is one of the founders of the society and has played many difficult roles. William J. Keegan, also a pioneer member, has been cast for Cyril, a juvenile part, especially adapted to his style of acting. Other members of the cast are George Ellis, John J. Keefe, Patrick Q. Glynn, J. J. Lynch and the Misses Fanny Carroll, Helen Simmons, Ethel Pitchard and Miss Della Wesley, the latter being chosen for the difficult role of Edith Fielding.

The Park Slope Social Club will hold its annual entertainment and dance at the Kings County Democratic Clubhouse on Thanksgiving night, November 25.

There will be two sketches, the casts of which are:

"TRUST THE WAITER."

In Brooklyn Churches

In Prospect Heights Presbytorian Church, corner Eighth avenue and Tenth street, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Edwin D. Bailey, will speak this morning on "The World's Greatest Campaign." It will discuss and compare some of the Oriental religions with Christianity and set forth some of the practical values of the true religion on the common affairs of life. The Sunday evening address will be a continuation of the series of addresses on "A New View of Revelation." It will be entitled "The Inauguration of a Great Modern Movement," and it will deal with some of the great events of history leading up to modern conditions. One week from Sunday night, according to announcement made to the congregation, Dr. Bailey will discuss the issues involved in the present municipal election and their bearing on the interests of the people.

Special Sunday evening services have been arranged by the Homecrest Presbyterian Church, Avenue T and East Fifteenth street, the Rev. Edward L. Tibbals, pastor. There will be a service of song and praise this evening, with sermon by the pastor on "The Influence of Christian Hymns." On Sunday evening, October 24, the Rev. Philip J. Clifford, secretary of the South African Foreign Missions, will speak on "Does God Deal With a Crowd?" Lieutenant G. A. Hall, first officer of the Lusitania, will sing, October 31 the pastor will speak on "Our Duty as Citizens."

In the Summerfield Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington and Greene avenues, the pastor, the Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, will preach this morning the second in a series on "The Fundamentals of the Christian Faith," subject, "A Study of Sin." The evening sermon will be on "The Young People's Supreme Opportunity." Dr. Charles M. Allen teaches the men's Bible class at the close of the morning service. The Sunday school board will meet on Monday evening at the Hotel Mohawk. Mrs. J. W. Barnes, supervisor of graded instruction, will speak on "The New International Graded Lessons."

In the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John H. Kerr, will preach this morning on "The Exaltation of Christ, the Son of God," and in the evening on "Under the Juniper Tree." Men's Bible class at 11:55 A.M.

In the Church of the Messiah, Greene and Clermont avenues, the rector, the Rev. Dr. St. Clair Hester, will preach this morning and evening. There will be holy communion at 8 o'clock and Sunday school at 3.

In Westminster Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. F. E. Simmons, will preach this morning on "The Fatherhood of God," the first sermon in a series on the Lord's Prayer. The evening subject will be "Improving a Last Chance."

The Rev. Sydney Herbert Cox will preach at both services to-day in the Church of the Evangel, Flatbush, Bedford avenue and Hawthorne street. In the evening his sermon will conclude the discussion of "The Real Bible for the Men of To-day." In the morning his theme will be "What Is Meant by the Guidance and Possession of the Holy Spirit?" An unusual treat is offered to Flatbush women on Tuesday afternoon when at 3.30 there will be an address by Miss Mary L. Graffam of Sivas, in the heart of Turkey, where she has spent the last eight years. The meeting is open to visitors and will be held under the auspices of the Women's Association. Mrs. Harry H. Gould is the president and Mrs. William Van Deusen secretary. On Friday night Mr. Cox will continue his Bible expositions, the topic being, "Hezekiah and the Third Reformation in Judah."

In the Bushwick Avenue Reformed Church, this morning, the service will be an "In Memoriam" service in memory of the late Dudley Buck. The choir will render a number of his anthems and the pastor, the Rev. Edward Niles, will take as his text "American Church Music." The evening service will be in charge of Lieutenant Colonel Damon and his corps of Salvation Army workers. The title of his lecture will be 'In Darkest America."

In the Church of Our Father, Grand avenue, near Fulton street, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Edward Potterton, will preach this morning on "Nineteen Hundred and Now; a Lesson from Edward Everett Hale." The Sunday evening services and lectures will be resumed on November 7.

The Rev. Dr. H. Allen Tupper, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street, is preaching a series of strong gospel sermons. He will preach at both services to-day.

To-day in the Church of St. Matthew, McDonough street and Tompkins avenue, there will be Holy Communion at 8, morning prayer at 11, meeting of the Sunday school and the rector's Bible class at 3 and evening prayer at 7:30 o'clock. The rector, the Rev. Frederic W. Norris, will preach morning and evening. On Monday, St. Luke's Day, there will be a celebration of Holy Communion at 10 o'clock. On Friday, at 8 o'clock, evening prayer will be said. The curate, the Rev. James M. Wright, will make an address.

The Rev. D. A. MacMurray, pastor of the Lenox Road Baptist Church, will preach this morning on "The Winning Church" and in the evening on "A Prisoner's Wonderful Experience." A brief song service will precede the evening sermon.

"Church Problems to be Solved" and "What Church Membership Should Mean" will be discussed in the Bushwick Avenue Congregational Church this morning and evening by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Lewis Clark. Shryock's "Te Deum Laudamus" and Wiske's "Jubilate Deo" will be harry in the morning and evening anthems. As a prelude in the evening Professor Howard Cadmus will given Sullivan's "Lost Chord." The young people of the church have organized a new society, which will hold its meetings from 7 to 7:30 Sunday evenings. Frederick Pitluka is president.

In Bethany Presbyterian Church, McDonough street and Howard avenue, the pastor, the Rev. L. O. Rotenbach, M.A., will preach this morning on "The Sympathy of Jesus," and in the evening on "Thou Art the Christ." There will be a big fair next week, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings, at the church. The Rev. Dr. J. D. Burrell, pastor of the Classon Avenue Presbyterian Church, will formally open the fair on Tuesday evening, at 8:15 o'clock. It is under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society and the proceeds are for the new organ, which will be demonstrated each evening.

At the Church of the Redeemer tonight, the rector, the Rev. T. J. Lacey, Ph.D., will deliver a special sermon to members of the medical profession. The service has been arranged appropriate to the eve of the festival of St. Luke the Physician. A number of eminent preachers have accepted invitations to the pulpit this winter. The Rev. Dr. Rodgers, warden of St. Stephen's College, will be heard here on October 24.

In the [illegible] Russell, who is on a lectu[illegible] the Maritime Provinces, at a series of Bible students conventions, the People's Pulpit, at Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, will be occupied this afternoon, at 3 o'clock, by Assistant Pastor F. W. Williamson, who will take for his topic, "Faithful Unto Death." Seats free. No collection.

To-morrow, in Warren Street M. E. Church, the pastor, the Rev. John E. Zeiter, will preach this morning on "The Leavening Process" and in the evening on "Satanic Philosophy." The reading room is open every evening from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. The employment bureau is doing good work in finding employment for those out of work and suitable employes for those seeking helpers.

In the Church of the Nativity, Kenilworth place, near Avenue F, the holy communion will be celebrated at 8 A.M. to-day. The Rev. Andrew Fleming, rector, will preach at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. The evening service will be the first monthly musical service of the season. The early celebration will be a corporate communion for Sunday school teachers and church workers, and the sermons will be on the importance of the work of the Sunday school for the future of the individual, the church and the community.

The services in the Moravian Church, Jay street, near Myrtle avenue, the Rev. Paul M. Greider, pastor, will be as follows to-day: At 10 A.M., Men's Bible Class and prayer service; 10:45 A.M., litany and sermon by the pastor; 3 P.M., rally service for the Sunday school, speakers the Rev. Stephen A. Lloyd and Captain H. L. Meeker; 8 P.M., gospel service, speaker Mr. Clark, Bible reading by the pastor. Friday, 8 P.M., Christian Endeavor prayer service.

The Rev. W. S. Jackson, pastor of the Prospect Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach to-morrow morning on "The New Covenant," and at night on "Civic Corruption." All is in readiness for the big fair which has been busily preparing for many weeks. It will be held the last four days of next week. Supper will be served each evening in the restaurant. On Friday evening a roast beef supper will be given.

The preacher to-morrow at both services in the Hanson Place Baptist Church, corner of South Portland avenue, will be the Rev. Maurice Penfield Fikes, pastor of the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church, Detroit. His morning subject will be "The Divine Arrest," and in the evening "An Impossible Task."

In the Metropolitan Temple, Fourteenth street and Seventh avenue, the pastor, the Rev. John Wesley Hill, will preach to-morrow morning in continuation of the series on "The Voyage of Life," "The Passenger List." At the evening service he will close the series he has been preaching on "Civic Problems." His subject will be "For Whom Should I Vote?"

In the Bushwick Avenue Congregational Church, corner of Cornelia street, the Rev. Dr. John Lewis Clark, minister, will preach on "The Powers That Be" and "The Voice of the People," at to-morrow's services.

At Christ Church, Bedford avenue, the Rev. R. H. Scott will be the preacher at the 11 A.M. service and the Rev. William Sheafe Chase will in the evening preach upon "The Moral Issue of the Campaign." At this service the Actors' Church Alliance will be present in a body. Monday, being All Saints' Day, there will be holy communion at 11 A.M. Service in the church. Friday the Bible study class will meet at 8 P.M. in the chapel. The subject for study will be the Book of Exodus.

In the Arlington Avenue Presbyterian Church the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John H. Kerr, will preach in the morning to-morrow on "Unexpected Revelations of God," and in the evening on "The Christian Citizen, His Present Duty."

"The Soul of an Anarchist: or, The Crime of Christians Against Criminals", will be the theme of the sermon to-morrow morning by the Rev. Sydney Herbert Cox, pastor of the Church of the Evangel, Bedford avenue and Hawthorne street. At night at 8 o'clock Mr. Cox will preach on "What Is It to Be a Christian?" He will give a prelude on "Election Morals." The Men's Brotherhood meets on Monday night at the church. On Friday night Mr. Cox will deliver the next Bible lecture in the course on the later Jewish leaders, his topic being "Josiah and the Last Reformation in Judah."

"The Harvest is the End of the World," will be the subject for the discourse to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton. In the absence of Pastor Russell the pulpit will be occupied by Assistant Pastor H. C. Rockwell. Seats free. No collection.

At the Church of the New Jerusalem (Swedenborgian) at 10:45 to-morrow morning, the pastor, the Rev. Arthur Mercer, will treat of the nature of hell in a sermon entitled "The Rich Man in Hell and His Chance of Getting Out."

In the Flatbush Unitarian Church, Beverley road and East Nineteenth street, the Rev. Leon A. Harvey will speak at 11 A.M. to-morrow on "The Church and the Citizen"—a pre-election sermon. On Friday evening, November 5, this church will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its first meeting. There will be a reception at 6:30, a dinner at 7 and a parish meeting at 8 o'clock.

In Bethany Presbyterian Church, McDonough street and Howard avenue, the Rev. L. O. Rotenbach, M. A., pastor, will preach to-morrow morning on "Power," and in the evening on "The Unavoidable Christ." Special evangelistic services every night next week, excepting Saturday. Leading pastors of the city will speak at the service, a different one each evening. Also the Rev. W. P. Bruce, brother of ex-Lieutenant Governor Linn Bruce, will speak on Friday evening.

In Puritan Congregational Church, Lafayette and Marcy avenues, in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, who is college preacher at Amherst, the Rev. Herbert Gould Crocker of Plymouth Church will preach to-morrow morning and the Rev. Dr. Albert J. Lyman of South Congregational Church in the evening. On Wednesday evening the prayer meeting will consider the subject "On the Watch! For What?" A Hallowe'en social will be given by the Young People's Association on Thursday night.

The Rev. Caleb S. S. Dutton, minister of the Second Unitarian Church, Clinton and Congress streets, will to-morrow, at 11 o'clock, bring to a conclusion his special series of sermons, five in number, on "The Religion of All Earnest Men."

In the Church of Our Father, Grand avenue, near Fulton street, the Rev. Dr. Thomas Edward Potterton will preach to-morrow morning on "The Religion of the Future," a sermon suggested by President Eliot's address at the Harvard Summer School of Theology. Monday evening the Sunday School Association will hold its monthly meeting. Friday evening Dr. Potterton will deliver the first lecture in the illustrated course on "Norway: the Land of the Midnight Sun."

In the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church the Rev. N. T. Hafer will preach morning and evening to-morrow and be present at the Sunday school session in the afternoon. Mr. Hafer is considered one of the most promising of the younger ministers in New England. For two years he has been filling the position of state evangelist in Vermont. The marriage of Miss Anna Obrig and F. M. Hallenbeck, jr., brought together a large company in the church on Wednesday evening.

In Summerfield Methodist Episcopal Church to-morrow morning the pastor, the Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, will preach on "A Study of Redemption," the fourth of a series on "The Fundamentals of the Christian Faith." His evening subject will be "He Could Not Be Hid." Special music will be furnished by the quartet under the direction of A. Howard Watson. The devotional meeting of the Epworth League will be led by Miss Agnes Stevens.

In the Flatbush Congregational Church, Rochester road and East Eighteenth street, the pastor, the Rev. Lewis T. Reed, will preach to-morrow morning on "A World of Reactions." In the evening at 8 o'clock Mr. Reed will also preach. Music will be rendered by the quartet and chorus, under the direction of William Edward Taylor, choirmaster. At the midweek meeting on Wednesday, the Rev. M. S. Littlefield will speak on "Hand Work in the Sunday School." The Young People's League will hold its monthly social on Friday evening.

The monthly musical service will be given in St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, to-morrow evening. The choir will render the oratorio, "Eli," by Sir Michael Costa. The Rev. Dr. John H. Willey, pastor, will give a fifteen-minute address on "Eli in Modern Politics." The subject of the morning sermon will be "The Christian Ballot." A Hallowe'en social will be given by the S. M. P. Club on Monday evening. A church social will be given by the Ladies Aid Society on Thursday evening. An old fashioned love feast will be held on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, followed by the second quarterly conference. The committee on decorations has arranged for an afternoon tea on Saturday from 3 to 5:30 to which all the neighborhood is invited.

The Rev. Dr. T. Calvin McClelland will preach at both services to-morrow in Memorial Presbyterian Church, Seventh avenue and St. John's place. The subject of the morning sermon will be "The Essential Elements of [illegible] and it will deal among [illegible] what President C. W. [illegible] "The New Religion." [illegible] ice the solo quartet will [illegible] "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled," and the offertory will be Mendelssohn's "Jesus Be Thou Ever Near Me," a solo by Miss Electa Gifford. At evening service the music will include a "Barcarolle," by Offenbach, Mark Andrew's "The Angel of the Lord," Gounod's "Glory to Thee, My God" and von Weber's "Softly Now the Light of Day."

In St. Ann's Church on the Heights, Clinton and Livingston streets, the Rev. C. Campbell Walker, rector, will preach at 11 A.M. The 8 P.M. service will be a musical one, with the Jagy String Quartet, Robert Casey, first violin; Lloyd Kroenlein, second violin; W. C. Clark, viola, and A. E. Tongo, 'cello, will play during the service, and in conjunction with William A. Goldsworthy, organist, will give a recital after service.

In Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Seventh avenue and St. John's place, the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, pastor, the preacher to-morrow at 11 A.M. will be the Rev. Millard Robinson, assistant pastor of Hanson Place Methodist Church. Mr. Shannon will preach at 7:45 P.M. Class meeting on Tuesday evening; Junior League on Friday afternoon, 3:30 o'clock; prayer and praise service on Friday evening, 8 o'clock.

In the Nostrand Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles W. McCormick, will preach in the morning the second of his series of sermons on "The Fruits of the Spirit"; the special topic will be "Joy." Dr. McCormick will preach in the evening on "Wild Oats: A Meditation on the Law of the Harvest." The third of the free Saturday evening entertainments will be given this evening.

Miss C. Hutchinson will address the Epworth League at 6:45 on "Poor Rich and Rich Poor." In the evening the Rev. David Hughes will again preach. Evangelistic services every night except Saturday at 8 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Dr. Thompson, the Rev. David Hughes and Professor Burton.

In Westminster Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. F. E. Simmons, will preach his third sermon in the Lord's prayer series on "The Kingdom," in the morning. In the evening on "Concerning Doubt." The women of the church hold their annual fair on Thursday and Friday.

In the Sixth Avenue Baptist Church, corner of Lincoln place, the pastor, the Rev. G. O. Griffith, will preach to-morrow morning on "Unspotted From the World," and in the evening on "The Unknown Fellow Traveler." The regular session of the Bible school will be held as usual in the afternoon.

To-morrow afternoon musical vesper services will be started in All Souls Church, corner of Ocean and Ditmas avenues, Flatbush. Musical afternoon services were tried last winter as an experiment and proved successful. The services last one hour, from 4:15 to 5:15 P.M. Programmes of a high standard will be maintained by All Souls quartet of soloists and by the Klingenfeld string quartet. At to-morrow afternoon's services, in addition to music by the choir, the Klingenfeld string quartet will play Haydn's quartet in D major.

In All Saints Church, Seventh avenue and Seventh street, there will be the usual services to-morrow, with preaching by the rector, the Rev. William Morrison. This year the church seems entering on a revival of Sunday school work. As men fitted for this work could not be had, Mrs. H. L. O'Brien was appointed lay superintendent, and she has effected a wonderful change, both in attendance and in general interest in a short time. The people of this parish intend holding a fair toward the later end of next month.

The Rev. Dr. Allan Douglas Carlile, pastor of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, will preach at both services to-morrow. In the morning the choir will sing the anthems "Morning Hymn," Wagner, and "Like as a Father Pitieth His Children."

In the Church of the Nativity, Kenilworth place, near Avenue F, the rector, the Rev. Andrew Fleming will preach at 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. The sacrament of baptism will be administered at 4 P. M. At 4:30 P. M. there will be a short service for the breaking of ground for the new church building, to be erected at the corner of Ocean avenue and Avenue F. The Rev. Dr. T. G. Jackson, rector of St. Paul's Church, will make an address.

In the DeKalb Avenue M. E. Church, near Franklin avenue, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Wilson, pastor, there will be an autumnal service to-morrow morning, when the church will be suitably decorated, special music, and the sermon of the pastor will be to the laboring, toiling masses, the aged and others, while at night he will preach to the unsaved, his sermon being preceded by a brief gospel song service and followed by an after service. The music of the day will be in charge of Professor Zeiner. The regular services of the week will be resumed with a love feast on Wednesday night, followed by an evangelistic service.

To-morrow evening will be Young People's Night at the East End Baptist Church, 267 Van Sicklen avenue. The pastor, the Rev. M. G. Dickinson, will give an address on "Ideals and Real Greatness." Good music.

In Unity Church to-morrow morning the Rev. Dr. W. M. Brundage will preach on "The City of Our Dreams; How Can It Be Made Real?" The Sunday school meets at the usual hour, 10 A.M.

FRANKLIN TRADE BOARD RENEWS ASH DUMP FIGHT

Dissatisfied With Conditions, Members Seek Prohibitive Injunction

JOHN S. HAYES IS VERY ANGRY.

Objects to Long Rows of Refuse-Laden Carts Lined Before His Door.

The Franklin Board of Trade, an organization formed for the purpose of securing the abolishment of an ash dump located on Lexington and Franklin avenues, is still vigorously waging war against that concern. Last night the executive committee met at its headquarters, 349 Franklin avenue, to develop some new plans of attack and to discuss the progress made by the visiting committee since the last meeting. The duty of the visiting committee is to obtain a sufficient number of affidavits from residents in that section in which the "dump" is operated proving that the plant has violated the injunction granted them by Justice Crane, whereby the contractors were to operate the plant on the condition that the objectionable nuisances heretofore created from its operation, were to be obviated.

After the formation of the above organization an injunction prohibiting the operation of the plant, unless these elements of nuisances could be averted, was secured from Justice Crane. This abatement of the nuisance modified the attitude of the property owners towards the operators of the "dump" until they discovered that the company was again running the plant as it had previous to the granting of the injunction, and that day after day sparks, caused from cremating the refuse, dust, soot and nauseating odors were emitted from the premises. The board aims now not only for the abatement but for the complete abolishment of the ash dump. There are twelve or fourteen frame houses situated in close proximity to the disturbing premises and it is the contention of the Board of Trade that the sparks and fire emitted from the dump endangor their property. They also hold that the premises afford breeding grounds for tuberculosis and all sorts of germs, and claim that while the dump exists and is operated, the lives and health of the residents are in jeopardy.

John S. Hayes, a prominent member, in speaking of the dump, claimed that yesterday twelve single carts filled with refuse and ashes, and three three-horse trucks were lined up in front of the various houses near the dump, and declared that the smell emanating from these wagons was nauseating. He also said that drivers gathered around his own door, and he found on his inspection later that the stoop rail was completely broken. In his mind this excessive line-up of carts shows that the establishment is not equal to its own demands, and for this reason alone should be abolished. Emphatically asserting that this state of affairs was created and strengthened by the past and present street cleaning commissioners, he looks to the coming administration to obtain relief if the board doesn't accomplish its purpose before next January.

FISKE O'HARA THE GUEST.

Irish Tenor Talks to Knights of Columbus About Elevation of the Drama.

Fiske O'Hara, the Irish tenor and actor, was the guest last night of Loyola Council No. 477, Knights of Columbus, at the conclusion of the business session at its meeting rooms in the Amphion Theater Building, Bedford avenue. He had been invited by the members of the council to talk on "The Elevation of the Irish Drama," which, while short and pointed, was quite satisfactory to the gathering, which included Father Fitzpatrick, chaplain of the council; Father Halloran, Father Tobin and Grand Knight McGroaty. Mr. O'Hara declared that it was his purpose to uplift the Irish drama as much as he could. He announced his intention of producing a new play, entitled "The Wearing of the Green," and he gave his pledge that it would not contain a line which would not meet with the approval of every Irishman.

Father Fitzpatrick, in replying to Mr. O'Hara, said that it was mortifying indeed to every one with Irish blood in his veins to witness some of the characters portrayed, and complimented Mr. O'Hara on his efforts to uplift the Irish character.

IN GERMAN CIRCLES.

The Zoellner Maennerchor to-morrow night will give its annual concert at Arion Hall, under direction of Arthur Fraemcke. Eminent soloists will assist. The chorus of the Zoellner Maennerchor is well trained. President August Schuermann hopes that this concert will be marked by the largest attendance for years. The society is celebrating its forty-ninth anniversary.

To-night the Brooklyn Branch of the National German-American Alliance will give a public reception to its president, Richard F. Schmidt, who represented the bund recently in Germany at the celebration arranged in honor of the anniversary of the battle in the Teutoburger Forest.

At the skat and pinochle tournament arranged by the Brooklyn E. D. Turnverein on Sunday afternoon the winners at skat were: Otto Vogt, Peter Kaiser, Franz Franz, August Pape, George Doscher, R. Heinrich, Louis Fink, A. Wolff, A. Gleissner, Fritz May and R. Apel. The consolation prize was won by Frank Ibert. The winners in pinochle were: John Brass, Jacob Roecker, Reinhard Seebach, Ferd Zweifel, John Gebhard, Jacob Suleder, J. Bornemann, sr., and J. Smith.

August U. Tiemann has resigned as member of the German Liederkranz.

The Manhattan Quartet is to assist in the second concert of the Independent Women's Chorus, which is to be given on November 28, at Arion Hall.

The Singing Society Eichenkranz of East New York is busy with the preparations for its carnival, which is to take place on January 16.

On Saturday next the Cornelia Maennerchor, of which Max Guenther is musical director, is to have an entertainment at its headquarters, Brendel's Hall, 178 Stockholm street.

Arthur Claassen, musical director of the Arion, has announced a change in the programme for the concert of the Arion, to be given on Sunday, November 21, at Arion Hall. The new compositions, "Das Geisterschiff," by Wengert, and "Mein schoenes Heimathsland," by Hirsch, are to be substituted in place of two songs which were first intended for the concert.

OBJECTS TO SISTER'S WILL.

Riverhead, L. I., November 9—Through his lawyer, Ralph C. Greene of Sayville, Everett Halsey of Brooklyn, a half-brother of the late Mary L. Hallock of Flanders, yesterday filed objections to the probate of Mrs. Hallock's will, which disposes of upward of $4,000. Statutory objections are alleged; that is, if the will was ever executed by the decedent her mind was not sound and the execution of the paper was obtained through undue influence.

Most of Mrs. Hallock's property went to nephews and nieces.

Sixth Avenue Church Continues Its Quarter Century Celebration.

The quarter century anniversary of the Sixth Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church which began there on Sunday, was continued last evening with the ceremony of a love feast and a special address by the pastor, the Rev. William A. Layton, D.D., in which he briefly reviewed the history of the church and the individual workers who have figured during the past twenty-five years in its activities, which embraced many lines of service to God.

"Thousands of people of all ages have entered our unpretentious church during those years," said the pastor, "and have become a part of Brooklyn's history, and in fact have become dominant factors in many parts of our great country and in its great enterprises."

A service of song with appropriate selections of hymns of joy and testimonials by the members of the congregation and visitors concluded the love feast. The ceremonies will be continued to-night and throughout the week.

GOING TO BAKER ABOUT IT

Union Label Women Take Up Miss Dreir's Case.

She Is Said to Have Been Brutally Treated by a Policeman.

A mass meeting of the auxiliaries of the Label Council of the Women's Auxiliaries of Greater New York was held yesterday afternoon at the Labor Lyceum, 955 Willoughby avenue, Miss Annie C. Patterson presiding. Miss Patterson spoke of the rapid and beneficient growth of the organization and its still greater usefulness, urging all members to use goods bearing the union label. "That all goods handled by the manufacturer and consumer," said Miss Patterson, "bearing the union label, is evidence that proper wages have been paid to the worker, and that the extension of this system means improved conditions for all workers." Other delegates, representing various trades in Brooklyn, told of the success of adherence to the union label campaign in their respective neighborhoods and lines.

Details and reports were submitted from standing committees in relation to various manufacturing and other industries and their attitude toward the union label.

Subsequent to the regular meeting an informal discussion of the alleged brutal treatment of Miss Mary Dreir by Policeman 4,740 occurred, in which a large number of women joined. It is evident that the matter will be laid before Commissioner Baker for his consideration. One militant member of the shoe industry said:

"We do not condemn all those servants of ours that we pay to do our work, but there is a whole lot of them who are unfit to be policemen. The only other job they ever held was hanging around some barroom and 'following' same 'district leader.'"

A Brownsville delegate said: "What's the use of putting them off the job, the courts put them back again and give them back pay for the alleged work they did not do?"

TOO MUCH RELIGION FOR HIM.

Young James Sullivan Fled From the Work and Prayers of Pastor Russell's Society.

James Sullivan, a tall, fifteen-year-old boy, pleaded not guilty to being a juvenile delinquent, before Judge O'Keefe in the Children's Court, yesterday. The real charge against the boy is that he has too much of a hankering after personal liberty for the son of a missionary of Pastor Russell's Watch Tower Tract and Bible Society. Last year James was at the Adventist school the Fox River Academy at Sheridan, Ill., but he left a little before the official commencement. To forestall any renewed enrollment at the school this year, he came to Brooklyn about a month ago to see his sisters.

That, he now feels, was a foolish move, for his sisters are both employed by the Watch Tower Tract Society here in Brooklyn, and with the husband of one are members of the Pastor's brotherhood family at 124 Columbia Heights.

The father is a traveling preacher for the society out on the Pacific coast. The boy's mother is dead and the sisters are only half sisters, but for all that the boy was well received and set to work. That, and the frequent prayer meetings he was forced to attend both at the house at 124 Columbia Heights, were too much for the boy, so he fled to Philadelphia but came back to Brooklyn Sunday afternoon and was arrested. The sisters want to send him to a reform school where he cannot run away any more. He hopes to appeal to his father before he gets sent away.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY WORK.

At the November meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, which was held yesterday afternoon at the Ozanam Home, Concord street, Mrs. M. F. McDermott, the vice-president, was elected a delegate to attend the tenth annual conference of Charities and Corrections in Albany next week. Monsignor William J. White, director of the auxiliary, presided at the meeting. An executive committee, consisting of the present officers and last year's officers, was formed for the purpose of advancing the work of the society.

Encouraging reports were read from all the settlements identified with the work, which showed that the attendance was steadily increasing in various quarters. Miss Grace O'Brien reported for St. Helen's settlement; Miss Emma L. Fortune for the Visitation settlement; Miss Lozano for the Spanish settlement, and Miss May O'Brien for St. Ann's settlement. Other reports were read as follows: Kings County Hospital, Mrs. Vincent Gallagher; prison work, Mrs. John Nolan; Home for Aged, Miss Christina Gneckler; Nursing Sisters, Miss Rice; Ozanam Home, Mrs. Jones; St. Vincent de Paul Society, Miss Leech; treasurer's report, Miss Kate McAvoy.

DEBATE AT Y. M. C. A.

"The Election, Its Results and Significance" was the subject discussed by some campaign orators Saturday night at the Central Y. M. C. A. The debate was held under the auspices of the Literary and Debating Society. E. E. Cockefair, president of the society, was chairman. Among the speakers were Elmer E. Thompson, James G. Wallace, John T. Rosengren, Lawrence A. Caro, Edward T. Curran, Alfred F. Wilson, George McLeish, Charles W. Morhouse and James P. Koehler. A resolution was passed at the meeting protesting against a rule proposed by the Twenty-third street branch of the Y. M. C. A. to restrict membership in its literary society to those connected with the Twenty-third street branch. The wording of the resolution is in the form of an emphatic protest.

COOKE CLUB SMOKER.

In Conner's Assembly Hall, Nostrand and Park avenues, the John J. Cooke Association last night held their annual smoker. The entertainment was furnished by E. Lackey and D. C. Harrington, monologues; Lew Johnson, Richard Harney, Stephen Allen, Richard Hardy, Otto Siegler, Nicholas Caddy and Walter Maher, songs; Richard Carroll, Irish tenor, and Tom Jeffries, songs, dances and stories. Albert Karsher was stage manager. The association is making preparations for its picnic at Gerken's Ridgewood Grove on Easter Sunday, March 27.

LILLIAN RUSSELL IN "THE WIDOW'S MIGHT"

Shows Skill as a Comedienne as Though She Had Won Her Laurels That Way.

WELL PLAYED AT MONTAUK.

Edmund Day's Comedy Has Plenty of Diversity, Sparkling Dialogue and Is Consistent in Structure.

In Edmund Day's comedy in four acts, "The Widow's Might," anyone who has not heard the star, Lillian Russell, in light opera, would not have imagined, as she appeared and acted at the Montauk, last evening, that she had done anything on the stage but reign as a leading comedienne. As to the play, there is a pun in it; a fact that dates the action of the piece back of the incidents that take place in the first act. The widow, as Mrs. Laura Curtis, had recently been made a widow, and a young and very fascinating widow, by the death of her "Billy," that deceased railroad operator in Wall Street having been a man's man, loved by his companions in business, and so strongly is the action throughout the play, influenced by his memory, that it almost seems as though he were an invisible member of the cast. The crux of the action lies in the fact that "Billy" had invested in a lot of cats and dogs, as the Wall Street parlance has it, and she was left penniless, but Billy's old, or, rather, young, friends, put up a fund for the widow, unknown to her. This is known to them as the widow's mite.

Then enters the inevitable villain of the desperate, Wall Street type, who steals papers important to the widow's benefactors, gets her power of attorney, and tries to ruin the friends in a big railroad deal. He also lies to her in making her believe, for a time, that the man she loves, who is one of her several "boys," helped to ruin her husband. By overhearing his brazen confession when charged with being a scamp by the man she loves, she is able to put him where he belongs by turning into the market the funds he had bought in her name to hold out against her friends. The price is forced her way, and love triumphs with added big fortune in the Street. John D. O'Hara, as the sharper, was forceful and concise, as well as convincing.

Frederick Truesdell, as Mortimer Wall, the man whom the widow loves, was direct and natural, holding a difficult place amid his friends and in the apparent freakiness of the fair widow. All of the friends loved the widow openly and frankly confessed it among themselves, so that a good part of the dialogue was the more or less good natured bickering among themselves as to their place in her heart. It was with genuine charm in acting that Miss Russell pleaded that she wanted to be friends with them. But in vain.

Besides Mortimer Wall there were Hamilton Broad (Julius McVicker), Charles Hoffman (Walter Hitchcock), and Willard Hooper (Sydney Booth), and when, at a ball scene in the third act, with Laura (Miss Russell), each in turn, alone with her, proposes marriage, the young widow does her best acting as a comedienne in her different ways of treating their devotion, dropping frivolity and becoming truly womanly—and feminine. Each is dealt with in accordance with his temperament, and each man is well cast for his role. She escapes from her dilemma, when pleaded with by her lover, by falling into the arms of his nephew, Richard (Joseph Tuohy), who is desperately trying to get her consent to his marrying her sister, Beryl (Ellen Mortimer). There is a pretty bit of comedy in the next and last act, in the Wall street offices of two of the widow's friends, when the young couple attempt to say good-by to each other forever, the situation soon clearing up by the appearance of the widow and her displaying her "might" in bringing fortune and happiness out of impending disaster.

A well conceived foil to the widow was brought into the piece in the characters of Mrs. William Henry Puffer (Susanne Waterford), and her husband (Samuel J. Burton), honest but illiterate persons, who served to heighten the comedy effect. Miss Westford in particular shining in bad grammar and general misinformation at her grand ball.

Miss Russell's costumes were the envy and admiration of the big audience. And she dominated the stage as she is in the habit of doing, but oh there were many at the play who admired her acting, but who would have loved to hear her sing one little song, had the playwriter only given her a chance to do so. Next week, Eva Tanguay, in "The Follies of 1909."

"THE HEART OF MARYLAND."

So accustomed have the patrons of the Bijou become to the production of plays that rise above the ordinary in merit that the presentation of "The Heart of Maryland" by the Corse Payton Company last night drew an audience that filled the house to the doors. The Civil War play was presented in detail with great effect. Frances Nielsen in the role of the fiery Maryland Calvert, made famous by Mrs. Leslie Carter, gained further laurels and won tremendous applause.

The famous scene, in which the heroine hangs to the clapper of a bell in order to prevent it from sounding the doom of her Northern lover, proved the usual feature of interest. The other scenes were presented with dash and zest that added more than ordinary interest to the well written plot as conceived by David Belasco. Robert Gaillard appeared as Alan Kendrick, the lover of Maryland and colonel of the Ninth Cavalry of the Northern forces. Maryland's wayward brother, Lloyd Calvert, was portrayed by Daniel Hamilton. Colonel Fulton Thorpe, the spy, was presented by Eugene Frazier, the Payton "heavy" man.

Many laughs were caused by A. S. Byron as Sergeant Blount, the fat provost of the Southern Army. Other roles were taken by J. Merion Strock as the sexton of the old church, J. Hall Owen as Uncle Dan'l, Eddie Mulligan as Phil, a prisoner; Miss Bowers as Mrs. Claiborne Gordon, Miss Mabel Griffith as Phoebe Yancy and Miss Gwendolyn Piers as Nancy McNair.

"BRAND OF A THIEF"

At the Amphion Has Ramsay Morris' Prairie Fire Scene.

ANNA HELD AT THE BROADWAY

Charles A. Bigelow, Lawrence D'Orsay and Other Stars Help Out in the Funmaking.

Anna Held and her company delighted a big audience at the Broadway Theatre last night with Ziegfeld's latest Parisian production, entitled "Miss Innocence." It is a typical Anna Held play, full of snap and brightness, and elaborate with costumes and scenery that cost a fortune. Miss Held appears in the title role of Miss Innocence, a girl who from childhood has been brought up at a boarding school on the Island of Innocence, presided over by an old maid, and where a man is never allowed to set foot upon the land. Charles A. Biglow, in the role of a bewhiskered government detective in search of an heiress, goes to the Island of Innocence under government orders, and is the first man that Miss Innocence ever sets eyes upon. Bigelow is homely enough just as plain Bigelow, but disguised as a detective he is something fearful and wonderful to look upon and he impressed Miss Innocence accordingly. Miss Innocence is taken away to Paris to find her parents, and thereafter things move with a rush. There is a gay Parisian restaurant scene, where Biglow does his inimitable waiter act, again as a detective in disguise, and later on he appears as one of the girls learning to dance in a ballet school. Miss Held is to the front in all the situations of the play with gorgeous costumes and catchy topical songs, but her dainty dancing is not as much in evidence as heretofore. There is dancing enough, however, by other members of the cast and the big chorus, which is made up largely of girls who can sing and trip the light fantastic to perfection.

Lawrence D'Orsay appears in his old-time role of a Captain of the English Guards, and his British drawl is immensely funny. Alice Hegeman, in the role of Miss Sniffins, the old maid who runs the boarding school on the Isle of Innocence, was the sensation of the play. It is a homely, gawky part, but Miss Sniffins nevertheless managed to get six husbands, all living, before she was found out. Others in the support of Miss Held who do good work are Gene Luneska, Frances Farr, John Reinhard, William Powers and Maurice Hegeman. There are several attractive novelties in the play, a thoroughly up-to-date one being Miss Innocence and her lover going up over the city of Paris in an aeroplane.

"WILDFIRE" AT THE GRAND

Julia West in the role of the charming widow, Mrs. Barrington, scored a success last night at the Grand Opera House in George Broadhurst's and George V. Hobart's racing comedy, "Wildfire." The play is full of dramatic situations, is realistic and thoroughly wholesome. The company supporting Miss West is a capable, well balanced one and pleased a large audience with its presentation.

There are many amusing situations and Miss Barrington's love affairs and her efforts to keep a secret her ownership of a racing stable provide many a laugh. Her two suitors, Rowland G. Edwards as John Garrison, a lover of horses, and Charles Walton as Fred Sanderson, an automobile enthusiast, were both good, especially in the last act. It was a case of the horse against the automobile and the horse finally won out. J. K. Hutchinson made an admirable Matt Donovan, the trainer of the "Duffy stables." He was perfectly at home in the character of the big, faithful, good natured Irishman. Will Archie in the part of Bud, the slangy little stable boy, shared, in no small way, the honors with Miss West. He is a clever little actor and was just built for his part. W. Blacklock Woodhall, in the role of Doctor Woodhurst, who is strongly opposed to betting, acted well. John Duffy, a bookmaker, was cleverly handled by John Cavanaugh and his downfall in the last act was brought about cleverly. Cecil Lynden as Bertie Almsworth, with aristocratic connections, was good. Jeanette Woolf as Hortense Green, a colored maid, and Nick Basil, as Chappy Roster, a colored jockey, were equally popular.

The piece is excellently staged, and in the second act the interior of Matt Donovan's training quarters gave the audience an idea of the sport of racing.

Miss West in her little philosophical sayings about racing, automobiles and horses earned much applause. Her work was clever, and she made an acceptable substitute for Lillian Russell, who first appeared in the piece.

"THE GOVERNOR AND THE BOSS"

Entertained a Crowd at the Gotham, With Ben F. Wilson the "Boss."

Ben F. Wilson joined the forces of the Forbes-McAlister stock company at the Gotham yesterday. Last night he got a flattering reception, a handsome floral horseshoe and an abundance of applause from a crowded house that gave unmistakable evidence of satisfaction with his share of the work. He appeared to great advantage in the part originated by him in Manhattan, that of Big Tim McCormack (the Boss), in the play of "The Governor and the Boss." The piece was written by Guy Fletcher Bragdon and William Postance, and the theme of the play is politics, but a pretty love story is interwoven to add interest. There is novelty in the plot, the climaxes are well worked out and several of the scenes, laid in and about New York, are of the thrilling variety. The stage settings are good, and the characters, as usual, were ably handled. G. A. Forbes played the part of David Graham, the governor, with the manly and forceful style that has made him a favorite, while Miss Jessie McAllsten was Ethel Forsythe, the governor's secretary, and she proved to be a sweet and lovable person. Miss McAlister stirred the audience to a keen appreciation by her clever impersonation. As Rose Walton, a trying character, Miss Jane Stuart ably supplemented the efforts of Miss McAlister, and Miss Evelyn Watson did well as Dorothy Graham. Dick Thompson was effective as the villain, and Tom Williams had a comedy role, which he worked up well. Norman Wandell, Frank Fielder, William Davidge and Henry Cooper contributed to a well-rounded performance. There were moving pictures and songs between the acts, by Sammy Collins, which were well worth hearing.

AT THE COURT.

"Wanted by the Police" is a sensational offering at the Court Theater, this week. On the programme the play is called a "thrill-o-rama," and it is entitled to its name. There are four acts and nine scenes without a dull minute, and the climaxes are of the hair-raising order. A race across the mountains in locomotives was a thrilling piece of mechanical ingenuity that called forth considerable applause. Harold Vosburg, as Billy West, a telegraph operator, gave full satisfaction. Joseph Holicky, as Alfred Kingdom, had a heavy role and he was well fitted for it, as was Helena Rapport, who played opposite to him, in her role. Margaret Hagan was good as the heroine, while Verne Sheridan, as Lena, a waif, made a hit. Others in the cast were Walter Horton, Al Dupont, Joseph Howard, Charles Fogg, Thomas Toner, Joseph Wilkes, Joseph Bond, Frank Morse, Charles S. Sand, Thomas Norton, William Splivens, Frank Wilton, Charles Furlong, [illegible] O'Neil and Fred Best. [illegible] specialties by Thomas Toner [illegible] Sheridan.

A POEM IN PROSE IS "THE RETURN OF EVE"

ACTRESS MAKES HER MARK

By a Performance of Variety, Charm and Power—Edward Mackey Her Support.

The play bill calls the play "The Return of Eve," in which Bertha Galland appeared last night at the Majestic, "a modern fantasy." It is perhaps a fantasy in the sense that an improbability must be conceded in the beginning, but is by no means so much of a fantasy as "A Midsummer Night Dream." It is, what is far better, a poem, informed with the true poetic spirit. It is a sweet and wholesome breath, inspiring and uplifting. Idealistic? Yes. And stealing in on us as we have eyes and ears attuned to the sordidities of the realistic, most refreshing. The twanging of an old chord? Yes. And how responsive that large audience was to the old note so often sounded in the days when we were so happily ignorant that we believed that the mission of art was to depict the beautiful—those days before we had come to the worship of the ugly in life, as the high aim of art. To the author, Lee Wilson Dodd, the thanks of those who have yet some poetic feeling are due, that he was brave enough to touch the old chord and so skillful as to give us the old poetic note that lingers on the ear long after the final curtain has shut out of sight the modern Eden.

In Miss Galland the author found a rarely fine interpreter of the modern Eve. It is a part that makes great demands on the artist. In its requirements it is of wide range. In the first act we have the young girl brought, untouched by contact with the world, having no knowledge of evil, purely a child of nature, to whom comes the serpent to awaken curiosity as to the great world beyond the gates of the modern Eden. In the second, we have this sweet, unsophisticated creature brought into contact with the artificialities of modern society—legitimate comedy. In the third, the awakening to the greed, the hatred and the treachery that finds place in this stage of development, calling for a display of emotion, and, in the last, a return to the ideal life with a knowledge of what lies beyond its boarders before unknown, and with human passions stirred to activity. Miss Galland met these varied requirements and possessed them in a degree as satisfying as it was delightfully surprising. She demonstrated powers of comedy that were not less than those that lifted her to the high emotional outburst that closed the third act and brought her again and again before an enthusiastic audience. Miss Galland was delightful in her comedy and powerful in her emotion. Subtlety and finesse marked her delineation, and her methods were of that art which conceals art. Even to her friends her performance must be a revelation.

She was most ably supported by Edward Mackay, and again we had the demonstration that among the younger men of the stage we have none so good as a reader and among his elders few that reach his skill. In all parts the drama was well played, though a few of the characters were afflicted with the modern notion that it is art to get upon the stage and converse in such conversational tones as not to be heard over the footlights. But for all that it was a delightful play, delightfully played.

REVIVE 'PRISONER OF ZENDA.'

Anthony Hope's Romantic Drama Well Played by the Crescent Stock Company.

The drama founded on Anthony Hope's novel "The Prisoner of Zenda," that a few years ago was such an emphatic dramatic success, as to be produced simultaneously by several companies, was revived last evening upon an adequate scale by the stock company at the Crescent Theater. Both Edward H. Sothern and James K. Hackett at one time played the dual role of Rudolph, King of Britannia, and Rudolph Rassendyl and Howard Gould and other excellent players were also seen in the romantic and interesting character.

The part, which is a difficult one, was creditably portrayed last evening by George Allson, leading man at the Crescent Theater, and the audience, one of the largest of the season, filling every seat in the playhouse, followed the adventures of both heroes with close attention. Alice Fleming was an attractive and appealing Princess Flavia, and Arthur Buchanan as Colonel Sapt, Charles T. Schofield as Franz Teppich; James A. Boshell as Lorenz Teppich, Emilie Melville as Frau Teppich, and Joseph Eggerton as Black Michael acted varying roles with force and color.

The play is elaborately staged and mounted and remains one of the most interesting dramas of the romantic type. "The Marriage of Kitty" is announced as next week's bill.

"THE SWORD OF THE KING"

At Payton's, Puts Minna Phillips Into Breeches.

An excellent production of Ronald MacDonald's romantic drama, "The Sword of the King," was witnessed last evening by a large audience in Payton's Lee Avenue Theater, where it is the attraction for this week. The play deals with those interesting days when an accidental nudge invariably resulted in sword play and the scenery and costumes were picturesque and pleasing. Although the lines are a bit too fulsome, the plot is entertaining enough and the company of clever players worked out the various scenes to the best advantage.

It goes without saying that as Phillippa Drayton Miss Minna Phillips came pretty near being the whole show. When masquerading as a boy she was sprightly and charming, and handled her comedy lines in a breezy, entertaining way. Louis Leon Hall was Edward Royston. For vigor, color and sincerity there was nothing lacking in his performance. In fact, Mr. Hall is seen at his best in romantic drama. Claude Payton as the Prince of Orange did a clever and capable piece of acting, and Joseph Girard gave a lavish display of his high talents as the free-and-easy de Rochiniacque. Albert Warburg as Sir Michael Drayton, Mrs. Charlotte Wade Daniel as Lady Royston, and Miss Grace Fox as Prudence Emmett filled satisfactorily the incidental parts. One of the noteworthy features was Frank McMunn's portrayal of Philip Drayton, the priest.

GREENPOINT THEATER.

Nineteen people appeared in "At the Waldorf," a clever sketch in the vaudeville programme at the Greenpoint Theater, last night, and they furnished a half hour of excellent entertainment. It was their first appearance there. In fact, first appearances were the rule. They included, Liane de Lyle, a billiard expert; Lillian Shaw, a clever character comedienne; Harry De Coe, who balanced tables and chairs in a marvelously dexterous manner, and Raymond and Caverly, German Comedians. O'Brien Havel, assisted by Bessie Kyle, was an attractive number on the programme.

GEORGE BEBAN'S PRETTY PLAY

Character Actor Heads Fine Orpheum Bill.

Nella Bergen's Songs Also Please; The Mermaids Furnish a Sensation.

The talented George Beban in his pretty little play, "The Sign of the Rose," took the audience at the Orpheum last night by storm. The piece permits of a fine bit of character acting by Mr. Beban. In the role of an Italian whose child has been run down by an automobile and is near to death he calls at a florist shop to buy a rose for the little one. Detectives are waiting there for a man connected with the Black Hand who is to call to collect his money for the return of a kidnapped child, and who is supposed to make known his identity by purchasing a rose. Bebau as Pietro Massena is taken for the criminal, but convinces the parents of the kidnapped child that he is innocent and subsequently learns that it was their automobile which nearly killed his little girl. There is a lot of pathos in the scene wherein Pietro proves his innocence, it is found that there had been no kidnapping, and the parents of the returned child hand Pietro $10,000. In addition to this strong card Manager Williams has provided this week a number of other excellent numbers. Albert Whelan, a clever mimic and comedian, imitates Albert Chevalier in the "My Old Dutch" song and Harry Lauder in "I Love a Lassie." Work and Ower appear in a comical acrobatic sketch, and Ernie and Mildred Potts in singing, dancing and bag punching; Harry B. Lester in imitations of prominent actors; Stepp, Mehlinger and King, musicians and singers; Charles and Fanny Van in a comedy skit add good variety to the bill. Nella Bergen, the prima donna, who got a very cordial reception, provides another entertaining number. Her voice has lost none of its excellent qualities, and she has selected songs for her vaudeville turn which take a good grip on the audience and bring about several recalls. The Mermaids give a sensational performance in a big glass tank. One of the two reclines on the bottom of the tank for nearly two minutes, and the other dives and picks up with her teeth fifty-seven coins from the bottom. The vitagraph, as usual, shows good motion pictures.

ELTINGE AT THE FULTON

Which Includes Ventriloquial Imitations of Roosevelt and Much Music.

At the Fulton Theater, yesterday, Rinaldo, the Wandering Violinist, made a hit with an audience that filled the house. His opening number, "Light Cavalry," was played with abandon but nevertheless skillfully, sustaining throughout the spirit of the piece. "Killarney" and "Annie Laurie" he gave with feeling. As an encore he so successfully simulated the inebriated fiddler that he created the illusion of an intoxicated instrument rather than a tipsy musician.

W. E. Whittle, ventriloquist, appeared in "9 P.M. at the White House." He has some of the facial characteristics of a recent President and appeared on the stage as a hunter of the African variety. He had a number of figures with which he carried on a "conversation." His representation of a voice above the stage, in the gallery, and under the stage, brought forth applause.

Vincent McCarthy of McCarthy and Major did good work as a crazy Frenchman—crazy with love. Agnes Major has a good singing voice.

The Svengalis, consisting of an unnamed trio, in music, mimicry and mystery, were well received. Svengali, standing in the aisle, with his back to the stage, transmits to a woman seated at a piano, and with her back to the audience, songs or operas suggested by auditors. A man under similar conditions impersonates internationally prominent men. The woman is beautiful and statuesque, and has a good voice.

Ralph Johnstone, in "The Wheelman's Rest," did some heavy stunts in the way of stair climbing and trick bicycle riding, but seemed to be inconvenienced by the heat. Julian Eltinge, in feminine characterizations, including "The Nell Brinkley Girl," "The Hayden" and "The Bathing Girl," received much applause. Lester and Quinn, dancers; Felix and Caire, "youthful prodigies," and the Marco Twins also appeared. Last and by no means least in these days of vaudeville, it was a clean bill.

BURLESQUES.

John L. Sullivan, who is making his farewell tour of the world with Jake Kilrain as his sparring partner, and with whom he fought a battle for the championship of the world many years ago, is the feature with the "Rialto Rounders" at the Star Theater this week. Ethel Hall, late of the "Wine, Woman and Song" Company, was especially well received. Julia Heltzman and Vera Desmond are the principals who lead a well-trained chorus of good singers to success. An attractive feature was an aeroplane swinging over the stage with Miss Hall directing a searchlight. A number called the "Blinkley Girls" also scored a hit. Sam Howe takes able charge of the comedians, and the vaudeville acts include Raymond and Smith, singers of the latest songs; Sam Howe, in a little playlet, entitled "A Broken Heart," in which he is assisted by Vera Desmond and Matt Taylor; Ward and Raynor, comedians and singers, and "A Day at the Races" was the closing skit.

The Kentucky Belles made a good impression last night at the New Casino. The characters are ably taken by capable people, who show to advantage in their respective roles. Frank Graham has lost none of his popularity, as was evidenced by the applause given him. Joe Opp, Will Derry and Charles Egan also shine as mirthmakers. Edith Randall as a leader is fascinating, and has a capable partner in Blanche Curtiss. A chorus of real beauties sing and dance well. "The Girl from Albany" and "A Texas Desperado" are the comedies. The scenic effects are good and the music catchy. La Belle Helene earned applause in her version of the "Slave Mart." She is a dancer of much ability. The Pantzer trio show in a remarkable contortionist act. George Egan rendered songs in a taking manner, and Deery and Francis present a good skit.

The three Dummonds in their clever street singing specialty are among the headliners this week at the Gaiety Theater, and they make a good addition to the Jersey Lilies Extravaganza Company. There is a good measure of musical comedy, with a chorus of excellent talent, and such spirited players as Leon Erral, James E. Cooper and Alf P. James. The vaudeville features include the Dummonds, Fannie Veeder, assisted by the National Four in dancing and singing; Jams Croix and Mackey appear in a pleasing one-act comedy, entitled "The Strike," and James E. and Lucia Cooper are seen in "The Chattering Chums."

One of the best burlesques that has ever been presented at the Empire Theater is the "Follies of the Day," which was enjoyed by a big audience last night. The company was unusually good and the chorus sang with fine effect. The musical numbers were somewhat out of the ordinary in burlesque shows, inasmuch as they were especially written for the piece by Harry Von Tilzer. The star of the burlesque was Gertrude Hayes, who gave some good impersonations. Other funmakers are Larry McCale, H. I. Mason and John Williams. The dancing of a pony ballet were both lively and graceful.

NEW THEATER OPENED

With a Gorgeous Revival of "Antony and Cleopatra" Last Evening.

The New Theater opened officially last evening with a revival of "Antony and Cleopatra," of which the dress rehearsal was given on Saturday, and the audience was only less brilliant than that at the invitation affair. The production is the most brilliant spectacle which New York has seen for years, not excepting the lavish displays at the opera houses. The Shakspearean play lends itself to spectacular treatment, but full advantage has been taken of its opportunities. It is to be noted, however, that the display is not merely a riot of gorgeousness for its own sake, but is tasteful and intelligent, forming a background for the dramatic story rather than a rival to it.

The ideal of the New Theater is an ensemble performance rather than to put emphasis upon one or two parts, but that ideal cannot be fully realized so long as Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe appear in its casts. Those actors carry any performance in which they participate by force of personality. Mr. Sothern's Antony was, perhaps, the most successful single impersonation, the completeness with which he "filled the eye" in the part coming as a surprise after his boyish Romeo and his melancholy Hamlet. He had built out the head to the round outlines so often seen in leaders of men and lovers of women, and he carried the air of the bluff and passionate soldier. His big voice is fortunate for the New Theater, where the large spaces sometimes swallowed up the voices of other actors, and his reading was singularly fine and forceful. Miss Marlowe's Cleopatra was a revelation. When Modje and the proper hygiene of the home are most important, and this Store talks more about it in the advertising than vaporing its own vanity. Proper clothing which we sell, proper diet which we sell. Proper ventilation of the house, particularly the sleeping rooms, that rests with the individual.

The Care of the Body

We Are Glad to Give Free Space, Time and Advertising to the Sale of Red Cross Stamps, which you are asked to buy and stick on every package and letter, every penny of which goes to the Red Cross people.

But if all the gold out of and in the mines was given to stamp out tuberculosis, it will fail to do so unless each individual insists on taking care of himself or herself. The medical authorities declare that tuberculosis, of which one in every three die, is preventable. Ignorance is its father and Carelessness its mother, and there is little excuse for either. Expensive clothing isn't necessary. The food on which tuberculosis cannot thrive is simple and costs least. The ventilation of a bedroom is a very simple matter. We sell a little window catch for 7c. that will hold a window at the right height, hold it against burglars, stop its rattle in the fiercest wind and help ventilate the bedroom just right. Buy the Red Cross Stamps—the society needs the money. The steamboat bought by the society last Summer with the money from sales of stamps, on which hundreds of little children in incipient stages of tuberculosis were taken on excursions, is of more importance than the Hall of Fame. But, incidentally, help spread the news about right living, clothing, food and bedroom ventilation.

The game of duck-pins has been making such rapid strides in Greater New York that the Eastern Alley Owners Association has decided to take up the matter and discuss the advisability of adopting uniform pins, balls and rules. President W. Cordes of the association has written to Al Schwebke, the secretary, stating that as the game is becoming so popular it is advisable that uniformity prevail in the equipment.

The American Duck Pin Association has adopted a regulation pin and ball and has also formulated a set of rules. These will come up for consideration.

Dave Woodbury checked Fred Pump's rush for the Eagle medal by defeating the Bronx bowler on the Crotona alleys in six out of eight games. Pump was in poor form and in every game had at least one miss. Woodbury was perfectly at home on the drives and averaged 206.3 for the series, with one game of 249. The scores:

Billy Weingarth, after losing the first two games to Whitey Horan on the Tuxedo alleys, found his stride and reeled off six straight counters. His total of 270 in the fourth game was his best effort. Weingarth is rolling just about the best ten-pins of his long career on the alleys. He averaged 213.2 for the series.

Echo, L. I., November 26—Miss Florence Natalie Yarrington, only daughter of F. H. Yarrington, and Harry Duffield of Selden were married on Wednesday evening, at the bride's home, on Tuthill avenue, in the presence of about fifty guests. The Rev. F. M. Hallock of Cutchogue officiated. The bride wore a white silk princess gown and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Addie Mae Osborne of Selden was maid of honor, and Raymond D. Yarrington of Seymour, Conn., a cousin of the bride, was best man. The Misses Elsie and Grace Yarrington, also cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. A supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Duffield will spend a short honeymoon in the Berkshire Hills and will make their home in Selden.

IN PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

RIVAL WATER CO. MAY ENTER FLATBUSH

CLAIMS NO EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS.

Flatbush Water Co. Would Not Object to City Furnishing Supply for Fire Protection, Says President.

Notwithstanding that the rights of the Flatbush Water Works Company, in the Twenty-ninth Ward, are such that the city is prohibited from supplying water to that territory, the company does not appear to enjoy an exclusive franchise in the sense that another private company might not enter the Flatbush ward and compete with it in furnishing water, not only for fire protection, but as well for domestic uses.

The Court of Appeals has held in a strikingly similar situation, in the case of the Long Island Water Supply Company in the Twenty-sixth Ward, the old town of New Lots, that neither the annexation act excluding the city nor the statute under which the charter was granted, prevented the city from contracting with another company to furnish an additional supply of water in the same territory, "even if the natural consequences may be such as to entail loss, if not ruin, upon the existing corporation, through rivalry and competition."

It was as a result of long litigation which ended in this decision by the Court of Appeals that the Legislature, in the annexation act of 1894, by which Flatbush became a part of Brooklyn, expressly provided that the Flatbush Water Works Company should not be deemed to enjoy an exclusive franchise.

Company Does Not Claim Exclusive Rights.

When the company's representatives were asked to state whether or not exclusive rights were claimed, in view of this provision, the reply was in the negative, Fortesque Metcalfe said, on behalf of John Z. Lott, president of the Flatbush Water Works Company, that the company did not even contend that the city should not furnish water in Flatbush for fire protection.

"The annexation act," he said, "prohibits the city from supplying water in Flatbush. The company, however, does not construe that to apply to water supply for fire protection. It would oppose city distribution of water only for sale for domestic consumption. There would be no objection to salt water mains for fire protection, as had been suggested."

At the present time the Flatbush Water Works Company is paid $25,000 a year for supplying water to city institutions and fire hydrants in Flatbush. The contract is about to be renewed, and the company is demanding $30,000. How much it considers the fire hydrant service worth is not known. At all events, if the city were to be allowed to step in and install high pressure salt water mains, as has been recommended by Deputy Water Commissioner William C. Cozier, the Flatbush company would lose revenue.

Could Organize Private Company for Fire Protection Supply.

On the other hand, there is the possibility, though not a probability, that a private company would be organized in Flatbush to finance a fire-protection water service. Nothing, moreover, appears to stand in the way of a new company entering the field and supplying water to consumers.

TEACHER'S TOE CRUSHED.

L. I. City Kindergartner Badly Injured—Saved Child From Being Killed Under Heavy Table.

Placing the safety of one of her little pupils above that of her own, Miss Carolyn Bailey, of 321 Lexington avenue, Manhattan, a kindergartner in Public School No. 4, Prospect and Crescent street, Long Island City, yesterday was so badly injured that she had to be taken to St. John's Hospital, where an operation was performed on her. The great toe on her left foot was mashed by a heavy table falling on it, and the injured member was amputated.

Some children in the class where Miss Bailey was teaching were at play at a long sand table. This table stands about two feet high, on legs that fold under it when not in use. The sand is wetted down for use and the table is then quite heavy.

A ball escaped from the child holding it and rolled under the sand table. A little boy in the class went after it. Just as he got under the sand table Miss Bailey saw the table tottering. She rushed to the child and pulled him from under the table. He might have been crushed to death had it come down on him. The plucky teacher did not think of herself, so the weight of the table as it came down descended on her foot, crushing the toe and making amputation necessary.

The accident will prevent her from returning to her duties until after the Christmas holidays.

JUDGES TO MAKE ADIEUX.

Gaynor and Dickey Will Be Present at Banquet.

As a parting tribute by their associates in the trials of cases in the Supreme Court in the Second Judicial District, Justice Dickey, who retires the last day of the year from the bench, and Justice Gaynor, who resigned to become mayor, are to be present at a banquet at the Hamilton Club on Thursday evening next. Only the trial judges are to be present, and the guest of the evening is to be Presiding Judge Cullen, of the Court of Appeals. The banquet is to be spread upon a big circular table, at which all the diners are to sit, and there are to be no speeches.

HEAD BATTERED IN ROW.

Bartender Gets Worst of Argument With Five Men.

While Frank Zimbroski, employed as a bartender for his brother, Tony, in the saloon at 233 Berry street, was cleaning up shortly after opening this morning, five young men entered. They engaged in a row which the bartender tried to quell, with the result that he was struck on the head with a chair and knocked senseless.

When the prisoners were taken to the station house they described themselves as Joseph Shavuto, of 153 South Fourth street; Cornelius Flemming, of 272 South Fourth street, and Martin Cannon, of 204 Bedford avenue. Shavuto was pointed out as the man who had used the chair, and was charged with felonious assault, while his companions were held for disorderly conduct. Later they were taken before Magistrate Higginbotham, in the Bedford avenue court, and held for further hearing.

BLACKSMITH ON RAMPAGE

Had Two Loaded Revolvers and a Club When Disarmed.

Tried to Kill Brother, Sister and Brother-in-Law—Shot at Officer. Clubbed Into Submission.

John Metzger, thirty years old, a blacksmith, of Broad and Third streets, Maspeth, armed with two revolvers, one of 44-caliber and the other of 38, went on a rampage last night, firing three shots at his brother-in-law, John Geyer, of the same address; threatening to shoot Geyer's wife and brother, and firing a shot at a policeman who had been summoned to arrest him.

To protect himself, the policeman was forced to use a club, which he wrested out of the hands of the furious blacksmith. None of the shots fired took effect, and Metzger, his scalp lacerated and bleeding, was finally subdued, after a hard struggle and taken to the Glendale precinct stationhouse.

In the presence of the lieutenant at the desk, before whom he was arraigned, and Patrolman Martin L. Cuff, who arrested him, Metzger said he only regretted that he had not killed the policeman for interfering with him.

Patrolman Cuff was on his way to the Glendale stationhouse about 7:30 o'clock last night, when John Geyer ran up and asked him to arrest his brother-in-law, who had fired three shots at him, and was even then standing guard in front of his home, threatening to kill his own sister and brother, who had barricaded the door from the inside, afraid to let him in.

The policeman accompanied Geyer to his home and found Metzger sitting on the front steps of the house, a revolver in one hand and a club in the other.

Metzger is a giant compared to the plucky policeman, but Cuff, nothing daunted, seized the burly blacksmith by the wrist and attempted to disarm him. In the course of the struggle which followed Metzger pulled out another revolver from his hip pocket, and fired a shot at the bluecoat.

Cuff managed to secure the blacksmith's club and beat him over the head with it, finally conquering him. Meekly, Metzger accompanied Patrolman Cuff to the stationhouse, where he expressed regret at not having succeeded in killing the officer.

LAUD EAGLE SUBWAY PLAN

Central Flatbush Taxpayers Hear of Aid by Loop.

Big Meeting Is Held, and Many Improvements for the Entire District Are Discussed.

The members of the Central Flatbush Taxpayers Association, at a special meeting held at 1380 Nostrand avenue, to discuss the subways and other civic matters, met last night. The principal point of business transacted was the report from T. S. Hollister, president of the association, concerning the action that has been taken by the Flatbush Joint Subway Association in relation to the Nostrand avenue extension. Mr. Hollister explained at length the methods employed by the subway association to arrive at a plan, and he declared himself in favor of it.

Gregory Weinstein, the secretary, read the plan for a comprehensive system of rapid transit submitted by the Eagle, calling for the Coney Island and Fourth avenue extension to the Fourth avenue subway; the construction of the Broadway-Lafayette avenue route, with the addition of the Cranberry street tunnel, and the operation of a great double bridge loop system, of which the Manhattan segment will be the Centre street tunnel and the building of the subway links necessary to establish the routes between the North River and Coney Island, desired by the B. R. T.

The reading was heard with interest by a large audience and the matter was given over to the committee on subways to investigate the plans more thoroughly and to report its findings. A communication was received from the Citizens Union, advocating the principle of calling a public hearing before any franchises are granted.

A letter will be sent to School Commissioner Frank W. Meyer, asking him for definite information regarding the selection of a site for a public school in the vicinity of Lenox road and Brooklyn avenue. The members expressed interest in the subject.

IN THE PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

The People's Pulpit at Brooklyn Tabernacle, Hicks street, near Fulton, will be occupied to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by the pastor, C. T. Russell, V. D. M., who will speak on "Blessed Judgments." In the evening, following a praise service at 7 o'clock, the pastor will conduct a question meeting. This will be the last time Pastor Russell will be with the congregation in Brooklyn for some time, having accepted invitations to be the principal speaker at a series of Bible students conventions, which will take him to the Southern and Central states and to Canada. Seats free. No collection.

RESCUES HORSES FROM FLAMES.

A lamp used in the loft of the stable of Julius Levy & Co., at 39-45 Ainslie street, which is a one-story brick building, exploded this morning and the flames spread rapidly among the hay and feed. Policeman Arsell discovered the fire. He smashed the stable door, and then with the aid of several men, the dozen horses stabled in the building were rescued. The fire was extinguished with a damage of $500.

MUST PAY FOR TRUCK.

The single truck which was sold at the auction of police goods yesterday for $11.50 will cost the purchaser $5 more if he wishes to get it. It was taken away last night by the Street Cleaning Department and stored in the yards of the department in Pacific street, after the residents of the district around headquarters had asked for its removal. The new owner of the truck was told to get it

BROOKLYN TO DOMINATE BOARD OF ALDERMEN

MUCH PATRONAGE INVOLVED.

Caucus of Brooklyn Democratic Aldermen Held to Decide on Programme.

The result of the last election has placed the Brooklyn Democratic organization in a unique position from a political standpoint. Brooklyn is practically supreme in the organization of the next Board of Aldermen. In the past, Brooklyn had to accept the dictates of the Tammany Tiger. With the organization of the new board on the first of the year, Charles F. Murphy will have to accept the conditions imposed by Deputy Controller John H. McCooey, the new county leader in Brooklyn. It is the first time since consolidation that a leader of Tammany Hall has been ruled by the Brooklyn organization.

Twelve aldermen were captured by the Democrats in Brooklyn at the last election. These, with the Tammany aldermen elected in Manhattan and the Bronx, and the Democratic aldermen in Queens, will give the organization just enough votes to organize the new Board of Aldermen on a Democratic basis. Tammany needs the support of Brooklyn to achieve this result, and Mr. McCooey has laid down the conditions on which he will agree to support the Tammany programme.

These conditions were agreed upon at a caucus of the Brooklyn aldermen, over which Mr. McCooey presided. It was decided that if the Tammany organization insists upon selecting the chairman of the aldermanic finance committee, which carries with it the leadership of the board and gives the incumbent a seat in the Sinking Fund Commission, Brooklyn will demand the right to select the vice chairman of the board. The vice chairman is entitled to a seat in the Board of Estimate in the absence of the president of the Board of Aldermen.

Terms on Which Brooklyn Delegation Will Lend Its Support.

For the support of the Brooklyn delegation it was also agreed that Tammany would have to divide the patronage in the city clerk's office. The Brooklyn office of the city clerk is now presided over by Joseph V. Sculley. Mr. McCooey will insist that his organization be given the right to appoint a full-fledged deputy the same as in the other boroughs.

There are also places in the city clerk's office with salaries ranging from $1,500 to $2,500 held by Republicans which the Brooklyn organization will insist should be distributed among Democrats. All the places in the city clerk's office are in the exempt class, so the appointing power will not have to contend with any civil service restrictions in agreeing to the demand of the Brooklyn organization.

McCooey to Designate Leader.

During the caucus the question of selecting a leader among the Democratic Aldermen from Brooklyn also came up. It was decided that the designation of the leader would be left to Mr. McCooey as the county leader. The vote on this point was unanimous by the Brooklyn delegation. It is understood that Mr. McCooey will probably select Alderman William J. Heffernan, who is also one of the district leaders in Brooklyn.

Charles F. Murphy, the leader of the Tammany organization will have no alternative but to accept these conditions. Without the help of the Brooklyn aldermen he cannot organize the board. And if the board was organized on a Republican basis, the vast patronage in the city clerk's office would be lost to the Tammany organization.

City Clerk P. J. Scully, who expects to be re-elected, receives a salary of $8,000 a year. His first deputy, Joseph Prendergast, another Tammany district leader, receives $5,000 a year. John Oakley, still another leader, receives a salary of $5,000. There are almost two score of minor jobs paying fat salaries which are held by members of the rank and file in the Tammany organization.

CORBETT BACK AGAIN

Says He Will Help Train "Jeff" Without Pay.

Refuses Vaudeville Engagement to Spend Christmas at His Bay Side Home.

James J. Corbett, confident and debonair, returned home to-day on the Cunard Line steamer Mauretania. He declined an offer of William Morris to open in Manhattan in a vaudeville act on Monday, saying that he had not spent a Christmas at home in eight years and that he would go to his home in Bay Side, L. I., and enjoy a good old-fashioned holiday.

"I'm here to train Jeffries," said Corbett, smiling, "but it will take several fights to get Jeff into shape. One thing I want to have understood is that I am not getting paid for training Jeffries. There isn't money enough in the world to pay me for doing that. But we talked it over and we decided that it was a case of getting the championship out of the black man's hands and putting it back where it belongs, in the hands of the white man.

"Jeff's condition is O. K., but he needs stamina and endurance, something one is apt to get rusty in after many years away from the ring. If Jeff was in the condition he was ten years ago and the battle with Johnson was on the schedule, I wouldn't bother going to the fight. It would all seem fixed in advance, for Johnson would never have a show. But now it is different. Jeff has gone into this fight more to get the championship belt back into the white man's hands than anything else. And I volunteered to train Jeff for nothing for the same reason.

"Say, it was great to see all the English, Scotch and Irish get up in meeting and shout their approval when I mentioned the hope that Jeff would give Johnson just what he gave me in the long ago. They don't want to see Johnson win under any circumstances.

"I shall be with Jeff only the last forty days of his training period, and in the meantime I shall train myself, while on the road with my act, in order to be able to give Jeff several good fights before his real battle with Johnson."

Jim Corbett was the hero of the Mauretania. He was so popular that he was presented last night with a diamond pin because he broke all records with the pool auctions. He auctioned off the pools and got such high figures that he was hailed as champion.

WILL LAY A CORNERSTONE.

Rockville Centre Odd Fellows to Place That for New Temple on New Year's Day.

(Special to the Eagle.)

Rockville Centre, L. I., December 17—Elaborate preparations are being made for the laying of the cornerstone of the new building in course of construction on Merrick road, adjoining the Rockville Centre Bank for Rockville Centre Lodge No. 279, I. O. O. F., which will be held on New Year's Day, at 1:30 o'clock.

The lodge members, accompanied by others of the fraternity, will meet in the lodge rooms at 1 P.M. and march in a body, headed by a band, to the site of the new building, where the stone will be laid with impressive ceremonies.

Following the laying of the stone the Odd Fellows will march to Atheneum Hall, where addresses will be made by Past Grand Master William H. Friday, Grand Secretary Harry Walker and other prominent men, following which refreshments will be served.

All of the lodges in the Queens-Nassau jurisdiction will be represented.

The cornerstone, which will be of granite, has been presented by Joseph L. Suesenbury and George M. Hill, the contractors, who are erecting the building, and the copper box to be placed in the cornerstone will be presented by Past Grand Richard Van Wicklen.

COLEMAN HOLDS HIS STRIP.

Will Build Fence Ten Feet Out on Ely Avenue, Under Authority of Court.

Patrick Coleman, who owns a little strip of land adjoining his drug store building, with a frontage of 75 feet on the east side of Ely avenue, at the East Eleventh street corner, and encroaching ten feet on the avenue according to the map, has just won a victory over the city which tore down a fence he built around the narrow strip and out upon the sidewalk.

Commissioners in condemning the property for widening Ely avenue, about eighteen years ago, from sixty to eighty feet, neglected to take in the Coleman strip, and the owner is now going to fence it in unless the city acquires the same by condemnation, a very costly process, or gives him a good round figure for it on private purchase.

FIVE GIRLS MISSING.

Believed to Have Lost Their Lives in Fire.

Philadelphia, December 17—At least five girls who were employed in the six story building occupied by Schrack & Sherwood, which was destroyed by fire last night are missing, and it is feared they lost their lives.

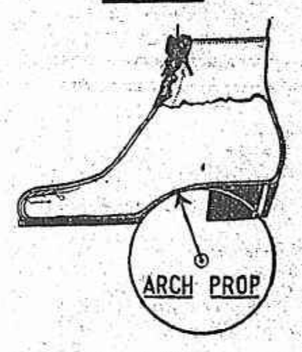

One fireman, Joseph Toner, was killed. He gave up his life in searching for missing women in the lower floors of the building, while the upper part of the structure was aflame. A score of persons sustained burns and other minor injuries.

WOMAN DEAD IN TRAIN WRECK.

Flagstaff, Ariz., December 17—In a railroad wreck at Winona, Ariz., last night, Mrs. Alice D. Bennett of Hartford, Conn., was killed and eighteen passengers were injured.

The collision was a rear end one, between Sante Fe Limited No. 4 and the Overland passenger No. 8, both eastbound.

PROPOSALS.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The person or persons making a bid or estimate for any service, work, materials or supplies for The City of New York, or for any of its departments, bureaus or offices, shall furnish the same in a sealed envelope, indorsed with the title of the supplies, materials, work or service for which the bid or estimate is made, with his or their name or names and the date of the presentation to the President or Board or to the head of the department at his or its office, on or before the date and hour named in the advertisement for the same, at which time and place the estimates received will be publicly opened by the President or Board or head of said department and read, and the award of the contract made according to law as soon thereafter as practicable.

Each bid or estimate shall contain the name and place of residence of the person making the same, the names of all persons interested with him therein, and if no other person be so interested, it shall distinctly state that fact; also that it is made without any connection with any other person making an estimate for the same purpose and is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud, and that no member of the Board of Aldermen, head of department, chief of bureau, deputy thereof or clerk therein, or other officer of The City of New York is, shall be or become interested, directly or indirectly as contracting party, partner, shareholder, surety or otherwise in or in the performance of the contract, or in the supplies, work or business to which it relates, or in any portion of the profits thereof. The bid or estimate must be verified by the oath, in writing, of the party or parties making the estimate that the several matters stated therein are in all respects true.

Each bid or estimate shall be accompanied by the consent, in writing, of two householders or freeholders in The City of New York, or of a guaranty or surety company duly authorized by law to act as surety, and shall contain the matter set forth in the blank form mentioned below.

No bid or estimate will be considered unless, as a condition precedent to the reception or consideration of any proposal, it be accompanied by a certified check upon one of the state or national banks of The City of New York, drawn to the order of the comptroller, or money to the amount of five per centum of the amount of the bond required as provided in Section 420 of the Greater New York Charter.

The certified check or money should not be inclosed in the envelope containing the bid or estimate, but should be either inclosed in a separate envelope addressed to the head of the department, president of board or submitted personally, upon the presentation of the bid or estimate.

For particulars as to the quantity and quality of the supplies or the nature and extent of the work, reference must be made to the specifications, schedules, plans, etc., on file in the said office of the president, board or department.

No bid shall be accepted from or contract awarded to any person who is in arrears to the City of New York upon debt or contract, or who is a defaulter as surety or otherwise, upon any obligation to the city.

The contracts must be bid for separately.

The right is reserved in each case to reject all bids or estimates if it be deemed to be for the interest of the city so to do.

Bidders will write out the amount of their bids or estimates in addition to inserting the same in figures.

Bidders are required to make their bids or estimates upon the blank forms prepared and furnished by the city, a copy of which, with the proper envelope in which to inclose the bid, together with a copy of the contract, including the specifications, in the form approved by the Corporation Counsel, can be obtained upon application therefor at the office of the department for which the work is to be done.

Blank forms of bonds of construction work may
