"PASTOR" RUSSELL'S IMAGINARY SERMONS

Printed Reports of Addresses in Foreign Lands That He Never Made.

ONE AT HAWAII A SAMPLE.

World Tour "a Huge Advertising Scheme," Says Japanese Paper of Expedition.

"Pastor" Russell, who has found the atmosphere of Brooklyn uncongenial ever since The Eagle published the facts concerning his methods and morals, is making some new records in the far parts of the world. He is delivering sermons to imaginary audiences on tropical islands and is completing "searching investigations" into the missions in China and Japan by spending a few hours in each country.

Following The Eagle's exposure of "Pastor" Russell's Miracle Wheat enterprise and the publication of the testimony on the basis of which Mrs. Russell obtained a separation and alimony, the "Pastor" developed the "world tour" idea. He set his printing plant to work to get out advance literature, huge bundles of which were sent to every place where he intended to appear. Then he contracted for advertising space in many American newspapers to print his imaginary sermons.

His first stop after sailing from the Pacific coast was Honolulu. And presto! The newspapers in which advertising space had been engaged print long "cable dispatches" which present the "Pastor's" discourses. In one paper which printed the advertisement the opening sentences read: "Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands—The International Bible Students Committee of Foreign Missions Investigation stopped at Honolulu and made observations. Pastor Russell, chairman of the committee, delivered a public address. He had a large audience and attentive hearing." Then follows the sermon, full of local color and allusions to the "Paradise of the Pacific."

"I can now well understand," the printed report makes the "Pastor" say, "why your beautiful island has been described as the 'Paradise of the Pacific.' I note your wonderful climate and everything which contributes to bring about this Paradise likeness." And so on for two columns.

Did Not Deliver Address at Hawaii at All.

It has long been known that "Pastor" Russell has a strong imagination, but it now appears that he is even capable of delivering imaginary sermons. "Pastor" Russell never spoke in Honolulu during the few hours that his ship stopped there to take on coal. In the hope of securing an accurate report of his sermon The Eagle wrote to the editor of The Hawaiian Star, which is published at Honolulu. His reply reads as follows:

In answer to your inquiry of December 19, concerning Pastor Russell, I would say that he was here for a few hours with a Bible students committee of foreign missions investigation, but did not make a public address as was anticipated.

WALTER G. SMITH, Editor, The Star.

As to the "Pastor's" methods in carrying Russellism to the heathen and the speed with which his "searching investigation into the missions of the world" is being conducted, the Japan Weekly Chronicle of January 11 supplies some interesting information. After explaining how the office of the paper had for weeks been bombarded with Russell literature and advance agents with contracts, "just as if the reverend gentleman was an unregenerate theatrical company," the Chronicle says:

"These gentlemen arrived in Japan on Saturday, the 30th December. On the following day 'Pastor' Russell delivered a sermon in Tokyo, entitled 'Where Are the Dead?' which, though the title is a little ambiguous, does not seem to have had any special connection with mission work. On Monday it is to be assumed that the investigation into missionary work in Japan was begun and finished, for the next day seems to have been devoted to traveling, and on Wednesday 'Pastor' Russell and his coadjutors left Kobe for China in the same vessel in which they had arrived in Yokohama. In this vessel, it seems, they are to proceed to Hongkong, staying a few hours in Shanghai, and from Hongkong the party goes on to the Philippines. It does not appear that more than a few hours are to be given by the committee of investigation to China proper. How much time is to be devoted to the Philippines, to Siam, India, Arabia and the other places we cannot say. * * * The truth is that the expedition is merely a huge advertising scheme."

The "pastor" has progressed since the above was published. The last "sermon" reported here was delivered at Madras, India, on February 11. While waiting for their shepherd to return the Brooklyn flock is busily stuffing copies of the People's Pulpit into the mail boxes of local residents.

MOTHER, SISTERS and BROTHER.

SLENSBY—In sad and loving memory of our dearly beloved mother, ESTHER B. SLENSBY, who departed this life February 19, 1911.

RESOLUTIONS.

KIRKMAN—In the death of Mr. ALEXANDER S. KIRKMAN the members of Unity Church mourn the loss of a highly honored and dearly beloved brother, who in his life and personal character illustrated most persuasively the principles and the spirit of our noble faith. He was a man of rare gifts of mind and heart.

He loved the Truth and bravely followed whither it led, and yet he was not intolerant. To do justice was his aim in private and in public life, as a business man and as a citizen. His sympathy was ever enlisted in behalf of all who suffered, and according to his ability he sought to aid and comfort. He believed with all his soul in the coming of God's Kingdom on earth, among men, and he labored diligently to hasten its coming. To the end of his life among us he ever faced toward the future, never toward the past, and grew more hopeful and confident of the triumph of right over wrong, of love over hate.

It is first of all to his noble generosity, although while here among us he would never permit us to acknowledge it, that we owe the equipment for efficient service that Unity Church possesses today.

In this resolution we desire to express in some slight manner our grateful appreciation of his devoted service to our beloved cause.

THIRD UNITARIAN CONGREGATIONAL SOCIETY.

TWO VIEWS OF "PASTOR" RUSSELL'S HONOLULU "SERMON"

NO INSULT TO KNOX, SAYS COLOMBIA'S ENVOY

Believes Government Will Support Note That Visit Would Be Inopportune.

HAS ASKED FOR ARBITRATION.

Claims Requests to Settle Differences Resulting From Panama's Acquisition Have Been Ignored.

Washington, February 19—Senor Pedro Nel Ospina, Colombian Minister to the United States, who has advised Acting Secretary of State Wilson that Secretary Knox's proposed visit to Colombia is "inopportune," apparently is confident that his government will back him up in his personal declaration that Mr. Knox is not wanted in Colombia.

The thought of personal insult, which position the State Department is reported to have taken as to the tenor of Senor Ospina's communication, had not occurred to him, the Colombian Minister said today. He had intended only to set forth the impatience of his government at not receiving what he considered to be proper consideration of its notes asking for arbitration of Colombia's claims against the United States.

No change was made today in the itinerary of Secretary Knox's trip because of the Colombian minister's letter of protest. The department will await word direct from the Bogota government before altering its plans.

Some intimation, either diplomatically confirming or repudiating the action of its representatives in Washington is expected within the next twenty-four hours. No action of any kind in the matter is possible before tomorrow.

It developed today that when Senor Ospina first read the White House announcement a week ago that President Taft directed the Secretary of State to visit the countries bordering on the Caribbean Sea, he hailed it with concealed enthusiasm.

Ospina Hoped Colombia Request for Arbitration Would Be Granted.

In a statement of comment on the Knox trip, prepared at that time but not made public until today, the Colombian Minister foresaw a possible recognition by the United States of the demands of Colombia for arbitration of the differences growing out of the partition of Panama and the acquisition by this Government of the Canal Zone strip.

"If Mr. Knox, as I sincerely hope," wrote Senor Ospina at the time, "is now fully cognizant of all the facts on which the claims of Colombia rest, I have no doubt that his visit to my country will be fruitful, for he will find that the popular feeling which at present prevails there, as in most all South American countries with regard to the United States, was mainly caused by the manner in which that traditional ally of the United States, Colombia, was treated in 1903 and 1904, in connection with the severance of Panama, and by there having been so far no equitable settlement of Colombia's claim growing out of that conduct.

"All good Colombians are heartily desirous that such a feeling there, as elsewhere in South America, be appeased. The sooner, the better; it is never too late to do right.

"Colombia does not ask that her contentions be accepted at her assertion. She has simply demanded for the last eight years that her claims be arbitrated; so that whatever the result of that arbitration may be, confidence and sincere friendship with the consequent development of increasing commercial relations with the United States be restored. And I cannot but hope that Mr. Knox, who with President Taft, is one of the foremost champions of general international arbitration, will take advantage of his visit to Colombia to show the world his sincerity either there or here, by facilitating the opening of the door to a satisfactory settlement of these claims by an arbitration honorable to both Governments and profitable to both countries."

Senor Ospina smiled when he was reminded of that comment today.

"The situation has changed," he said; "it is different."

No Reply to Ospina's Third Note.

During the week, it is reported, intimations came to the Colombian minister that Secretary Knox was not bound on a mission of pacification of Latin-American troubles. To Senor Ospina, who on November 25 last presented a third request from his Government for arbitration and to which no reply had come, the expected benefit of the Knox trip vanished. His letter to Acting Secretary Huntington Wilson, of the State Department, expressing his personal views that Mr. Knox's trip would not be timely, followed as a consequence.

Though Senor Ospina in that letter emphasized that he was speaking on his own behalf and without instruction from his Government, it is known that Senor Ospina came here on May 31 last with a definite idea of the position of his Government in the dispute of eight years standing and the attitude he was to assume here.

Senor Ospina declared in his letter to Mr. Wilson that he had asked his Government to mail him instructions. This, he explained today, would be a matter of twelve days at least. Senor Ospina apparently is confident that his Government will reiterate that Mr. Knox's visit would be "inopportune."

The contents of Ospina's last note asking for arbitration, presented in November, never have been made public, but it is understood that the language is no less insistent than the references made by Senor Ospina in his letter to Mr. Wilson.

Rainey Denounces Panama Acquisition.

The letter incident brought out a statement today by Representative Rainey of Illinois, author of a resolution to submit Colombia's damage claims to arbitration in which he denounced the methods used by the United States to acquire the Panama Canal zone.

"Minister Ospina's letter," he said, "forcibly calls attention to our indefensible conduct for nearly ten years in refusing to Colombia the arbitration she has requested."

The Panama incident, which has been the subject of committee investigation, was denounced by Mr. Rainey as "the blackest page in our history as a nation." He charged that the revolution was engineered by "a New York promoter" with the sanction and aid of President Roosevelt and the State Department."

MINISTER'S MOTHER DEAD.

Mrs. McClelland Expires of Apoplexy at Niece's Home.

Mrs. Elizabeth McClelland, widow of William McClelland, and mother of the Rev. Dr. T. Calvin McClelland, former minister of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, died at the home of her niece, in Long Island City, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. McClelland was born seventy years ago in the parish of Bellenesagart, County Tyrone, Ireland. She came to this country as a young girl. Her husband died five years ago. Her son, the Rev. Dr. T. Calvin McClelland, was her only child, with whom she had lived since her husband's death, and until a recent visit to her niece, at whose home she was stricken with apoplexy on October 12 last. At the time of her death she was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. L. Mason Clarke is pastor. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Brick Church, Thirty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, Manhattan, of which church she and her husband had for many years previous to their residence in Brooklyn been members.

"CICERONIANS" MEETING.

Y. M. H. A. Debaters Decide Question of Deity in Negative.

The Ciceronian Literary Society of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, 345 Ninth street, held its regular bi-monthly meeting at the Association building yesterday afternoon. A large number of the members and their friends attended.

Before proceeding with the business meeting, a literary programme was rendered. Herman B. Tarkoff recited Kipling's "Gunga Dhin"; Charles Sonenschein talked on "Public Speaking." A debate, "Resolved, That there is a Supreme Being," was won by the negative. Ralph K. Jacobs, president of the Y. M. H. A., addressed the members, and offered to award a medal to the best speaker at a declamatory contest if the members will arrange one.

CONEY ISLAND HAS VISITORS.

Bright Skies and Balmy Air Draw People to the Beach.

The bright sunshine on Saturday and Sunday induced a good many people to go to Coney Island and started some of the peanut venders into activity, while a few photographs and rifle galleries were opened. On Sunday at least 5,000 people visited the resort and they found the benches dry and very little snow on the ground. Some of the smaller stands have already been daubed with fresh paint. Yesterday and today many launches were scooting about the bay.

VETERAN FIREMEN MEET.

The Aryowrius Association, Exempt Volunteer Firemen, met yesterday afternoon at their headquarters, 103 Pineapple street, and elected new officers to serve for the coming year. The successful candidates were formally installed at the same meeting. A good attendance of members participated in the balloting. The new officers are: Chief, William J. Stuart; president, A. H. F. Bauer; first vice president, Victor Gennett; second vice president, William W. Vaughan; treasurer, E. M. Beraud; secretary, John J. Campbell. Board of directors, William J. Stuart, Stephen Flynn, Thomas F. Fallon, Thomas Conk; foreman, Victor Gennett; assistant foreman, E. M. Beraud; sergeant-at-arms, Richard Curran; delegate to New York State Firemen's Convention at Newburgh, N. Y., Thomas F. Fallon.

Everybody in the audience at a moving picture show at 7415 Fifth avenue made a break for the door when a film caught fire and exploded shortly before 10 o'clock last night. All got out without injury except Pauline Schamp, 16 years, of 132 Greenwich street, Manhattan, who was trampled upon. Richard Scott, the operator, tried to put the fire out with his hands and was badly burned. The damage was $50.

FRANCIS H. STILLMAN DEAD

Francis H. Stillman, president of the Watson-Stillman Co., hydraulic machinery manufacturers, of the Bridgeport Motor Company, of Bridgeport, Conn., the Pequannock Commercial Company, organizer and the first president of the Machinery Club of New York, and the first president of the National Metal Trades Association, died suddenly yesterday of intestinal hemorrhage at his home, 105 Rodney street, in his sixty-second year.

Mr. Stillman was born in Manhattan in 1850, and was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale College in 1874, immediately entering business as a manufacturer. He was markedly successful, and recognized as a leader in his line of business.

He was a member of the Engineers Club, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and was treasurer and a director of the National Association of Manufacturers since 1903. He was also a director of the Manufacturers Association of New York, the Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, the Franklin Institute, the Crown Castings Company, and the Guardian Trust Company, and the New York Board of Trade Transportation.

Mr. Stillman was well-known socially and belonged to the Hunnewell Club, the Congress Club, the Young Republican

Francis H. Stillman.

Club, Hyatt Lodge, F. and A. M., De Long Council, R. A., and to the Royal Arch Masons, the Knights Templar, Brooklyn Consistory of Thirty-second degree Masons, and Kismet Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Irene M. Bancroft of Boston, and two sons, Edwin Arthur and Austin Frank Stillman. Funeral services will take place tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, at his home.

NOT "CITIZENS ASSOCIATION."

Prospect Heights Board of Trade Has Been Meeting Rear of Cafe.

It was stated in an article in yesterday's Eagle that "the members of the Prospect Heights Board of Trade, of which T. F. English is president," had decided to change their place of meeting from the rear of a cafe at Franklin avenue and Sterling place. The organization is not the Prospect Heights Citizens Association, which meets in the Berkeley Institute, and draws its membership from the Park Slope. The members of the latter organization have justly taken exception to a line in the heading of yesterday's article referring to the "Citizens Association," instead of the "Board of Trade."

The following letter has been received from William D. Niper, president of the Prospect Heights Citizens Association:

"The Prospect Heights Citizens Association, of which I have the honor of being president, is now in the eighth year of its history, and during that entire period the Berkeley Institute, situated on Lincoln place, has been its only place of meeting.

"Its personnal of membership has ever been of the highest, consisting of many of Brooklyn's foremost citizens, such as the Mayor, Controller and Bridge Commissioner of the City and many other national, state and city officials.

"The association has ever been most jealous of its standing, and no place of meeting would ever be considered except one, the atmosphere and surroundings of which would be in accord with the character and dignity of the association.

"It has always been our policy, as indeed I believe it should be of every civic organization, to so conduct its affairs as to command the respect of the public, and it is only by the strenuous maintenance of such a policy that such a body can expect to receive the support of right thinking citizens which is so essentially necessary to its strength and influence in the community. Certainly a saloon is not a place for any civic organization to meet.

"I am decidedly at a loss to understand how your paper came to make such a mistake, inasmuch as one of your representatives frequently attends our meetings at the Berkeley Institute.

"I regret extremely that through your columns the impression has been allowed to get abroad that our association has been meeting in a saloon, and in behalf of our organization I determined to call your attention to this serious mistake, and ask that you rectify it at once, by kindly publishing this letter in your valued paper at an early date, giving it equal prominence with the said article in today's issue."

TAFT MEN IN WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee, Wis., February 19—A large number of followers of President Taft are to hold a conference this afternoon to select delegates at large to the National Republican convention. The delegates must oppose at the primaries those selected by the La Follette conference.

USED DYNAMITE AND KNIFE.

Bowling Green, Ky., February 19—After attempting to blow up the home of Florence Tinsley with dynamite, it is alleged, Marion Crockett attacked George Williams, a caller, and cut Williams' throat from ear to ear. Jealousy is supposed to have been the motive.

CHURCH WINDOWS STRUCK BY BULLETS

Fatal Fusillade in Front of Edifice at Havemeyer and North Sixth Sts.

ONE DEAD AND TWO WOUNDED.

Leader of One Gang of Italians Slain, Would Make No Statement—Stray Shot Wounds Girl in Eye.

One man is dead, another seriously wounded and a young girl will probably lose the use of her right eye, as the result of a pistol battle between two lawless bands of Italians, yesterday afternoon. The affair occurred at Havemeyer and North Sixth street, directly in front of the Church of the Annunciation. The worshippers were leaving the edifice after the vesper services and were greeted by fusillade of shots.

The police have only a slight idea as to how the fight started. They learned from people living in the neighborhood that a dozen men were seen arguing, when one suddenly knocked another to the ground. Immediately the men separated and lined up on either side of the street. Each drew a revolver and the shooting began.

Lead flew in every direction and the crashing of glass aroused the neighborhood. Bullets struck the windows of the church and the congregation fled. The first one to be injured was a fleeing churchgoer, Emanuel Montabana, 35 years old, of 48 Hopkins street. He was dashing down North Sixth street when a bullet brought him to the ground. He had been shot in the right arm.

This did not bother the desperate gang members for they continued to empty the chambers of their guns. A wild shriek by a young girl announced the next victim. She was May Pisorella, fifteen years old, of 18 Withers street. A stray shot sent a bullet into her right eye.

At this point the fighting became more heated and the gangsters started to close in. One fell. He was the leader. His followers lost confidence in themselves and fled. The man was left on the sidewalk, face downward.

Policeman O'Donnell of the Bedford avenue station who had been three blocks away, heard the shooting and hurried to the scene. As he appeared around the corner at North Sixth and Roebling street, all he saw was three men dart around Havemeyer street in the direction of the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza.

O'Donnell picked up the wounded man and with the assistance of citizens carried him into a dwelling. Dr. Eckert was summoned from the Williamsburg Hospital. He examined the man and found a bullet had entered his abdomen and another his right lung. The injured girl was next attended. Both were placed in the ambulance and taken to the hospital.

The police were told of the other man who had been struck, but he could not then be found. An hour later he was located in a drug store at Ellery street and Marcy avenue, asking for attention.

In the police investigation Detective Digillo of the Italian squad visited the injured gang leader and tried to get a statement from him. All that the man would say was that he was Cironimo Santanello. He positively refused to give an address. He was told that he would probably die, and urged to make some sort of statement. He replied, "I know who it was that shot me, and if I get well I'll get him. If I die it won't make any difference, but he will be killed." The man died two hours later.

It was made known last night by Detective Digillo that Santanello was a desperate character. He lived in Manhattan somewhere on Mulberry street. Two cousins of his are in Sing Sing for homicide. One killed Raphael Gascone two years ago in Manhattan, and the other was convicted on a similar charge. A brother is also being hunted for the killing of a man on Maujer street.

A dozen detectives are working on the case today and have every confidence of making several arrests. They have some valuable information in the description of two of the men who started the fight.

WOMEN FIGHT OVER MAN.

Mrs. Shortell Makes Charges Which Miss Dreher Denies.

Miss Mamie Dreher of 37 Bremen street told Magistrate Hylan in the Gates avenue police court today what a hard time she had to get rid of Thomas Shortell, husband of Mrs. Helen Shortell and father of her four children, but who, according to Miss Dreher, has been pretty attentive to her for about ten years.

"Why, I've tried to throw him out, judge," testified Miss Dreher, "and I've begged him on my knees to go home to his wife. But somehow I can't get rid of him."

Magistrate Hylan told her the next time Shortell came to her house not to let him in.

These troubles got an airing when Mrs. Shortell procured a summons for Miss Dreher to tell in court why she had threatened to assault Mrs. Shortell. Mrs. Shortell had gone to find her husband and try to get a little money to help support her children, and had found him where Miss Dreher lived. Mrs. Shortell testified that she was chased away by the Dreher woman.

Magistrate Hylan told both women to come back on February 27 and by that time Shortell may be a witness.

A YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE.

The Young People's Society had full charge of the services in the First Reformed Church last night, and the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar, pastor, took a seat in a pew for the second time in twenty years, while the Rev. William Stricker, jr., the assistant minister, a charter member of the Junior Congregation, preached the sermon and led in prayer. A committee of ten young men from the society acted as ushers. Some beautiful singing and music was given during the evening. Everyone that took part was identified with the Young People's Society.

The services were opened with an organ "Reverie," by Miss Beatrice Crandall, who was the organist for the evening, which was followed by a bass solo by F. B. Metz. A hymn was sung by the choir and prayer offered by Mr. Stricker. Mrs. Florence Duryea played a selection on the violin. "Still, Still with Thee," was then sung by Mrs. M. Ackland, soprano. Mr. Stricker followed with his sermon, which was on "Friendship." The text was from John xv:15. He eloquently showed the value of friendship, the blessings that accrue under it and the utter ruin that befalls the one who ignores it. Prayer and benediction closed the services.

The young men who arranged the services included William C. Cross, chairman; S. Van Loan, George Quick, R. C. Squire, Charles Farrar, Fred Ketchamm, M. De Mott, N. McBunney, J. F. Merchant, S. Barton and Joseph Davies.

BLACKHEADS VANISH

Simple Treatment of Warm Water and Resinol Soap Did the Work.

How many women long to have the beauty of Lillian Russell? And while it may not be possible for you to be that beautiful, yet you can have lovely skin—and make yourself attractive. If you are troubled with blackheads like this woman was, follow this treatment: Bathe the face thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water. Then with a flat key or a "Comedo-extractor" (which may be bought from your druggist for 10 or 15 cents) press the blackhead until it comes out. An excellent preventive of blackheads is rubbing the face with Resinol Soap and water until considerable friction is produced. If you have a marked tendency to develop blackheads or they become numerous, Resinol Ointment should be applied freely every night until you are free from them. In the morning massage with Resinol Soap and warm water. Here's her letter:

"I had always been troubled with blackheads. I heard of Resinol Soap, sent for a sample, made a lather of same and rubbed it thoroughly into my face, then washed it off with warm water, and in this way I was able to remove the blackheads.

"Resinol Ointment also cured me of piles in a very short time.

"ELLA DARRAGH.
"Edmonds, Wash."

Resinol Soap is made for the toilet and bath and its purpose is to promote skin health—and it does. It's different from other soaps; keeps the skin free from impurities and will do more for the complexion than any amount of cold cream and "beauty preparations." It nourishes the underlying tissues of the skin, stimulates the cutaneous circulation of the blood, thus preventing the stagnation that causes sallowness and drying and wasting that results in scurf and wrinkles. To prevent barber's itch use Resinol Medicated Shaving Stick. All druggists sell these preparations or free samples can be had by writing to Dept. 109, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR.

From injuries received in being knocked down by a trolley car last night, James Farrell, 75 years of age, address unknown, died shortly after midnight at the Cumberland Street Hospital. At the time of the accident he was crossing Fulton street, between Clermont avenue and Adelphi street. The car was moving slowly, and the old man, apparently not noticing its approach, stopped directly in front of it. He was knocked down and his skull was fractured. He was hurried to the Cumberland Street Hospital by Ambulance Surgeon Powell, where he died several hours later.

LUTHERANS ARE AGAINST THE FORWARD MOVEMENT

STAND ON BIBLICAL GROUND.

Modern Church Life Full of Indifference and a Go-as-You-Please Christianity.

The Men and Religion Forward Movement has prompted the pastors in Brooklyn and Queens, of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Churches, more than fifty in number, to issue an official statement setting forth their attitude toward the movement. Their position differs radically from that of other Protestant churches. While they say they have been ready to improve the present opportunity to arouse the men of their circles to greater activity, they did not see their way clear to co-operate with the other churches of the city, nor to work along the same lines.

They have taken up the matter independently and declare they will work according to their own methods, which they have practically followed for years, and by which they have been successful in getting into their churches a comparatively large percentage of men and workers. The official statement which has been sent to the Committee of One Hundred and copies to every Protestant pastor in Brooklyn and Queens, follows:

Dear Sirs—We, the members of the Missouri Synod Lutheran Church of Long Island, have been asked by your committee to join the Men and Religion Forward Movement. This being a country-wide movement, deemed to be of considerable importance to the church, we felt that we dare not ignore it and that we owe you an explanation as to our attitude towards it.

Co-operation on our part is altogether out of the question. Why can we not co-operate? It may be difficult for us to answer this question within the short space of a letter in such a manner that you will fully understand and appreciate our position. The Men and Religion Forward Movement is unionistic in its very nature. While the movement does not seek to bring about a union or federation of churches, yet it does expressly call for co-operation of the churches and does not recognize the existing division of the visible church upon earth to be due to differences more or less essential, which differences should not be ignored and which ought to preclude co-operation of the churches among whom these differences exist and as long as they exist. We well realize that the differences which divide the churches of the so-called reformed scheme of theology (the Christian churches among the Protestants outside of the Lutheran Church) are not as great and as essential as those which divide these from the Lutheran Church, and that therefore some of these churches, which are by their very scheme of theology closely related, can with little or no scruples of conscience unite to promote a religious enterprise. At their very inception the churches of the so-called reformed scheme of theology did not accept the Bible as the only form of doctrine and rule of life, but at once subjected the Bible to the test of human reason, and have done so ever since, as history amply proves from the time of that memorable colloquy at Marburg, in 1529, down to the present day. These churches have to a large extent tolerated and sanctioned differences of opinion in religious belief. What may be termed a happy inconsistency, inasmuch as those who, either consciously or unconsciously, rejected some plain truths of Scripture, did not at once reject all, has in the course of years largely resulted into an unhappy consistency, inasmuch as many in our day act on the principle that if some parts of the Bible may be subjected to the test of human reason, others may also be, and that, if some parts may be rejected, others may also be rejected. Thus many are now reaping the evil fruits of an evil sowing. This also well accounts for the tendency of our time to break away from all creeds without at the same time getting any closer to the Bible itself, which is the unerring inspired Word of God. Modern church life is full of inconsistencies and is marked by spiritual indifference, a go-as-you-please Christianity, and a lack of thoroughness, conservatism, fervency, and consecration. At the same time, we well know, this very condition, which we so much deplore, is looked upon by not a few as approaching the ideal. We are told by many that Christianity has never been at so high a level as it is today and that the golden age of the church has arrived or is not far distant.

In view of such conditions we can well understand that one of the national executive officers of the Men and Religion Forward Movement said, "Speaking as an officer of the National Committee and without attempting to suggest methods which might be suited to your particular locality, I wish to state definitely and emphatically that the Men and Religion Forward Movement wants Protestants to be good Protestants and Catholics to be good Catholics. We will say or do nothing which would hurt or offend our Jewish friends and fellow-citizens, or in any way tend to lessen their faith in the universal Father of all mankind." * * * How the Gospel of Jesus Christ can be preached without offending the Jew, and all those minded like the Jew, we utterly fail to understand; yes, we know that it cannot be done, for Christ crucified whom we preach is unto "the Jews a stumbling-block and unto the Greeks foolishness." I Corinthians, 1:23.

In view of the great spiritual indifference manifested by many of the churches of our day, we also well understand that our conservative position will not be readily appreciated. But this fact does not in any way move us to change our position, though it does make us feel sad to know that so many are indifferent to the truth and are breaking away from the old Gospel and a good sound Christianity, and that so very many are not at all willing to concede the seriousness and importance of doctrinal differences. We are firmly convinced that with our conservative position we stand on Biblical ground. We could quote any number of texts which fully justify the very position which we take and which compel us to take it. * * *

While we must admit, according to the Word of God, that all who believe in Jesus Christ are members of the holy Christian Church, yet we also learn from that same Word of God that it is contrary to the will of God to ignore or make light of doctrinal differences. Every departure from the Word of truth is error and poison to the soul.

We cannot understand why any thinking man cannot realize the seriousness of conditions. The case is plain and simple enough if duly considered. If, for instance, the doctrine of the Apostolic Succession of the Episcopal Church is Scriptural, then we preachers, who have not been ordained by an Episcopalian Bishop, have no right whatever to be and remain incumbents of the holy office of the ministry. If the doctrine of immersion, so tenaciously held by the Baptist Church, is Scriptural, then all we, who have not been immersed, are not baptized. If the doctrine of an election to eternal damnation, taught by the Calvinists, is Scriptural, then we are deceiving the people by preaching that Jesus died for all sinners and that God will have all men to be saved. If the doctrine that Christ's body and blood are not really present and orally partaken of in the Sacrament by all communicants, is Scriptural, then our Lutheran Church is misrepresenting our Saviour in saying that they are. If the doctrine, that the Bible is not verbally inspired, is Scriptural, then we are making far too great demands upon the people by teaching that the Bible is the verbally inspired Word of God and that it is to be received and believed as such.

That these and many similar differences should not be worthy of recognition and of the most prayerful and careful consideration on the part of all Christians and lovers of the truth and their Lord, and sufficient ground to preclude co-operation of those among whom these differences exist and until they no longer exist, is difficult to be understood by all such as have learned the Word of truth and have learned to stand for a definite theology on the basis of such Word of Truth, it being the unerring inspired Word of God.

We have herewith candidly and frankly stated our position. We trust that what we have said will be received and considered by you in the same Christian and charitable spirit in which it has been written. We are also ready to appear before you in person and discuss this matter further with you at any length that you may deem the matter worthy of your careful consideration."

ELEVATE OZONE PARK TRACKS.

L. I. R. R. Will Build Concrete Structure With Steel Bridges.

At a hearing this morning before Public Service Commissioner J. Sergeant Cram in the matter of the abolition of grade crossings through Ozone Park, Engineer Carlisle of the Long Island Railroad submitted two plans.

One which met the approbation of all the property owners who spoke at the meeting was to carry the tracks at an elevation of about 20 feet through the village for over a mile by means of a series of concrete arches, to have openings of 30 feet betwen piers of 5 or 6 feet in thickness at the base.

The tracks would be carried over Broadway and Grafton, Belmont and Liberty avenues and Rockaway Plank road by means of steel girder bridges. The structure would be wide enough to provide for the four tracks that now exist on the street surface at grade, and with the high class concrete work used in its construction would, it is said, be an ornamental structure. The cost of the work would be $833,440, excluding connections with the big Lalance & Grosjean factory, an ice plant and a coal yard, which would cost $50,000 to $60,000.

The other plan provided for a solid embankment with concrete retaining walls and bridges over the highway, instead of arches. This would cost $754,550. It was condemned by all of the citizens.

Commissioner Cram said he would grant another hearing on Monday, March 25. The work will be paid for, one-half by the railroad, a quarter by the State and a quarter by the city.

LONELY MAN A SUICIDE.

Shoemaker at Head-of-the-Vleigh Road Was Despondent.

John Hall, a shoemaker, 41 years old, who lived by himself in a little frame house, on the Union turnpike, near the Head-of-the-Vleigh road, where three police precincts join, committed suicide early this morning by shooting himself in the head with a single barreled shotgun. One side of the man's head had been completely blown off when he was found, lying in a pool of blood, by George Napp, a neighbor, who had been spending the night with Hall and was aroused by the commotion. The Flushing police took charge and notified Coroner Schaefer.

It was said that Hall had been despondent because of financial difficulties and because of his lonely life. Although a shoemaker by trade he had been engaged for some time as a farm hand.

Hall was a native of Germany and had no relatives, so far as the police could learn.

TO INVESTIGATE SUDDEN DEATH

Friend Left Alex. McCollum a Few Minutes—Dead When He Returned.

The sudden death of Alexander McCollum, 35 years old, a roomer at 757 Wythe avenue, last night, will be investigated today when Coroner Glinnen will have one of his physicians perform an autopsy. The man died while his friend, Gottlieb Leon, who was visiting him, had gone to a store for some refreshments. Only a few minutes had passed and when Leon left the Wythe avenue house, McCollum was in a merry spirit. On his return he found a motionless body and hurried to the Bedford avenue station. Dr. Taylor was sent from the Williamsburg Hospital and pronounced the man dead. When McCollum was searched $74.72 was found and a bankbook showing a balance of $1,542. This was taken over by the police.

"PASTOR" WASN'T LIKED IN THE PHILIPPINES

ANOTHER IMAGINARY SPEECH.

Excerpts From Manila Times and Japan Weekly Chronicle Show What Really Happened.

"Pastor" Russell is encountering obstacles at every step in his record-breaking world tour in which he is delivering imaginary sermons and completing "thorough investigations" of foreign missions by allotting from one to three days to each country. According to newspapers received here this week from the Philippines his reception in Manila was anything but flattering. The accounts of what actually happened as reported in Manila newspapers differ materially from reports given in the "cable despatches" published as paid advertisements by "Pastor" Russell in the American newspapers.

The "Pastor" and those who accompanied him on his world tour have decided to abandon the "thorough investigation into the mission work in foreign countries." He is now on his way back to New York. According to the advertisements which appeared in this morning's papers he has hired the New York Hippodrome for the afternoon of March 3 to report the results of the "thorough investigation."

The records of the "Pastor's" exploits in Manila as contained in local papers show some further interesting discrepancies with the records of those exploits as published in the shape of Russell advertisements in many newspapers in this country. The "cable dispatch" dated Manila, January 14, which pretends to relate the happenings there on the preceding day, declares that "Pastor" Russell delivered two addresses there to "large audiences, chiefly Americans."

The Manila Times which carried a news story on the "Pastor" on the same day, January 14, says that he delivered only one address to an audience "of probably 800 people, the bulk of whom were Filipinos," and that in the evening William P. Hall delivered "a discourse along the same lines to a considerably smaller audience."

Another peculiar discrepancy between these "cable dispatches" reporting the "Pastor's" sermons and the actual addresses is that whereas while abroad the "Pastor" everywhere advertises and sometimes delivers his address on "Where Are the Dead?" which has been his favorite sermon for the past thirty years, the "dispatches" each Monday report a different sermon and never the old favorite.

The "Pastor's" Manila experience is summed up by the Japan Weekly Chronicle in its issue of February 1, 1912, as follows:

"'Pastor' Russell with his suite reached Manila on the 14th ultimo, having sandwiched in an investigation into the mission problem in China between his departure from Kobe on the 3d and his arrival in Manila on the 14th. He gave a lecture at the Opera House to an audience of about 800, mostly Filipinos. In an interview 'Pastor' Russell attributed the small attendance to the criticisms upon him reproduced from The Brooklyn Eagle, against which journal he is bringing a libel suit for $50,000 damages, not, of course, for purposes of advertisement, but for justification. Speaking of finances, he said that his organization spent $148,000 last year, and that this was $20,000 short of the receipts—a method of expenditure which in a bankruptcy court would be described as dishonest—but 'Pastor' Russell did not produce a balance-sheet. Altogether he seems to have been rather disappointed in Manila."

DR. BUCKLEY HONORED.

Editor Who Proposed Methodist Episcopal Hospital Feted by Distinguished Colleagues.

A bronze bust of Dr. James M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate and president of the board of directors of the Methodist Episcopal Hospital of Brooklyn, was today presented to the hospital by a number of Dr. Buckley's friends as a permanent memorial of their esteem. The sculptor is Gutzon Borglum. The presentation took place at a gathering of some 200 men at a luncheon at the St. Denis Hotel, Manhattan, where addresses were made by Bishop Luther B. Wilson, Dr. A. Ross Matheson, Dr. St. Clair McKelway, Dr. Glentworth R. Butler, President Noble of Dickinson College, Dr. J. W. Pearsall, ex-Judge George G. Reynolds, Dr. G. P. Eckman, Dr. Robert Bagnell and Dr. R. B. Urny.

Dr. Buckley has been called the most distinguished of living Methodists. For thirty-two years he has edited the Christian Advocate, and for forty years has been elected successively to the General Conference of his denomination. Thirty-one years ago Dr. Buckley published an editorial calling upon the Methodist Church to enter a new field of humanitarian effort and to establish a hospital. The appeal reached the heart of George I. Seney, a railway magnate of New York, and by his gifts, amounting to over $400,000, the Methodist Episcopal Hospital in Brooklyn was founded. Dr. Buckley being elected the first president of its board of managers, an office which he has held to this day. The hospital has been generously supported by the church and has received many large benefactions, of which those of Mr. and Mrs. William Halls, jr., are the most notable. The property and equipment of the hospital are now valued at $1,200,000, and the endowment funds aggregate $540,000. The institution is without debt. Its expenses are about $130,000 a year. Last year 12,000 patients were treated in all its departments.

Charles Nelson, 45 years of age, of 69 Ryerson street, was found dead in bed yesterday from gas poisoning. He was discovered by Henry Odis, another tenant of the house, who detected the odor as he was passing through the hall. He opened the door leading to Nelson's room and there lay the unconscious form of Nelson. Gas was pouring from a half-open jet, which Nelson, who was near-sighted, had accidentally left open. He was pronounced dead by Ambulance Surgeon Peaks of the Cumberland Street Hospital.

BRITISH MINERS OUT.

Several Thousand Quit While Negotiations Are Still Under Way.

London, February 26—The first miners actually to lay down their tools were a few thousand employed in Derbyshire, who ceased work at noon today.

Territorial reserve troops in certain of the mining districts have received instructions to have the straps removed from their rifles, so that in the event of disorders the rioters will not be able to seize the weapons so readily.

This is considered as the most critical day in the negotiations between the British coal owners and the miners who, under the auspices of the British Government, are endeavoring to find the basis for the peaceful settlement, and thus prevent the threatened strike of nearly a million men. The decision of the miners of South Wales today will, it is expected, exercise considerable influence on the national conference of miners, which is to be held tomorrow.

About 30,000 workers in other industries already have received notice from their employers that the factories will be closed unless the coal strike is averted.

RABID DOG BIT SIX CHILDREN

Beast Ran Through Eastern District and Greenpoint Streets Till Shot by Policeman.

A big brown setter rushed through the streets of the Eastern District and Greenpoint yesterday afternoon and attacked a dozen people before it was finally killed by a bullet from the revolver of Policeman Walsh of the Greenpoint station. The dog, which acted as if rabid, snapped and snarled for three miles and left behind it six badly bitten victims.

They are: George Levitt, 4 years old, of 355 South Third street; Harry Heskin, 7 years old, of 62 Eckford street; Samuel Fishenbaum, 9 years old, of 365 South Third street; Tillie Schmilk, 10 years old, of 361 South Third street; Reuben Skanasky, 12 years old, of 544 Graham avenue and Edward Fleeker, 15 years old, of 21 Stagg street.

Dr. Hutchings of St. Catherine's Hospital cared for the injured children, cauterizing their wounds and cautioning their mothers to take them to the Pasteur Institute for further treatment.

Just after noon there were many people at Union avenue and Grand street, a transfer point, waiting for various cars. A shriek from a boy attracted attention and horrified men and women stood helpless while the dog mutilated the lad. It first tore at his feet and a moment later was sent sprawling in the gutter by a kick from the boy. This only maddened the animal and frothing at the mouth the brute sank its teeth into the calf of Edward Fleckner's left leg. The victim fell and the beast, followed by a mob of angry men, rushed through Union avenue toward Greenpoint.

Again and again the setter stopped long enough to attack some boy or girl, leaving its victim helpless. Soon a crowd of a hundred or more followed the mongrel, their cries being a warning to those ahead. Policeman Walsh, who was stationed at McCarren Park, caught a glimpse of the big brown dog and knew what was to be done.

He did not rush for the animal but let it pass him, taking shelter behind a post. A second later a shot rang out and the beast leaped. It fell in a heap. Not sure that the bullet had taken effect Walsh fired again. The brute rolled but was made motionless by a third shot.

The body was taken to the Greenpoint avenue station to be held for the Health Department.

WIFE FINDS SUICIDE.

Waits for Husband to Go Walking. He Cuts Throat.

Philip Julius, 37 years old, of 1633 Seventy-first street, committed suicide yesterday afternoon as he was getting ready to go out for the afternoon with his wife, Mary. The man had been ill for some time, but according to neighbors who knew the dead man for some time his act was due to temporary insanity.

Mrs. Julius and her son had finished their preparations for the visit before Philip and had gone downstairs to the street to wait for him. After she had been waiting for a long time and her husband did not appear, Mrs. Julius became worried and went up stairs again to find out the cause of the delay. Directly inside the door she discovered the body of her husband lying in a pool of blood. In his right hand he held a razor with which he had slashed his throat from ear to ear.

The woman aroused her neighbors and they sent a hurry call to the Norwegian Hospital. Dr. Dugan, responding, pronounced the man dead.

Lansing, Mich., February 26—At noon today the Michigan Legislature convened in special session to consider proposed legislation to establish a presidential primary system in this State and to act on recommendations made by a State commission providing a workingman's compensation plan for Michigan industries.

"THE MANILA TIMES"

MONDAY, JANUARY 15, 1912

Pastor Russell, the widely advertised divine from Brooklyn and London, arrived yesterday morning, accompanied by his assistants, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon delivered a lengthy lecture in the Grand opera house, to an audience of probably 800 people, the bulk of whom were Filipinos.

In the evening, at 7 o'clock, Brigadier General Hall, assistant adjutant general of the Army, delivered a discourse along the same lines, to a considerably smaller audience. The small attendance is attributed by the pastor to the article published in this city a few days ago charging him with accumulating wealth at the expense of the ignorant.

Pastor Russell gave two addresses to-day to large audiences, chiefly Americans. He had a very earnest hearing. NO OPPOSITION TO NEW PARKS

Corporation Counsel Watson made the formal motions today before Justice Marean, in the special term of the Supreme Court, for the appointment of condemnation commissioners in the two proceedings begun by the city to acquire parks at Coney Island and Rockaway Peach. There was no opposition apparent to the granting of both motions and the appearances of lawyers representing the Long Island Railroad and property owners at Coney Island were only to ask for the privilege of suggesting names of some of the commissioners. The motions were granted as a matter of course, Justice Marean saying that he would welcome suggestions from those interested as to the personnel of the commissions.

Assistant Corporation Counsel John J. Kearney said that the Corporation Counsel's office was only interested to have the Coney Island park commission appointed promptly. The city already had an option on Dreamland, which option, Mr. Kearney said, expired on April 15. If the commissioners could be appointed so that they could organize before that date and approve of the option the city could promptly take title. Justice Marean, it is expected, will appoint the commissioners some time this week.

The public park known as Seaside Park, is located at the outer end of Rockaway Peach and has a frontage of 4,920 feet on the ocean, and 1,590 feet on Jamaica Bay. The city has an option on the entire tract for $1,225,000.

Dreamland at Coney Island has already been offered to the city at a price approximately $1,000,000.

COFFYN TAKES PICTURES.

Aviator Flies Over Brooklyn and Bay, Snapping Camera.

Frank T. Coffyn made three flights in his hydroplane yesterday afternoon, taking pictures of Brooklyn, Governors Island, Miss Liberty, the Battery and parts of New Jersey. Many thousands watched him from the Battery. On his first flight he descended in a spectacular spiral from a height of 800 feet, and as he neared Castle William he turned his camera on the old fort and by means of an electrical contrivance snapped a series of pictures. His second flight was to get some pictures along the Brooklyn waterfront, while on the third he trained his camera on the high buildings along the Battery.

AUTO RAN OVER BOY'S LEG.

While crossing Leonard street at Meserole street, with his mother, yesterday afternoon, Louis Williams of 127 Meserole street was struck by an automobile operated by Solomon Spector of 290 Bedford avenue. The wheels of the machine passed over the boy's legs and Policeman Stern of the Stagg street station carried him to a nearby drug store, where the mother refused to have an ambulance called, and had her son removed to their home. No complaint was made against the chauffeur.

ANKERS WOMAN PLEADS, IS RESTORED TO BABY

THE LAW FORBIDS SEPARATION

Alleged Slayer of Eight Children Is to Be Examined by Experts on Insanity.

Winifred Ankers, the woman charged with responsibility for the deaths of eight children at the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants Hospital, pleaded wildly today for the return of her baby to her.

"Let me have it!" she cried, "You needn't be afraid that I'll hurt it!"

The woman told of the suffering she is undergoing as a nursing mother, and Mrs. Ida M. Tietgens, the court probation officer, told Magistrate Hylan of the woman's supplications for the return of her infant, and that Dr. Laniel Robert, who was sent from St. John's Hospital this morning to examine the woman had said that her physical condition was such that she ought to have her child. Magistrate Hylan inquired if some arrangement could not be made whereby the baby could temporarily be entrusted to its mother in her cell.

Agent Molloy, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, was asked to take an interest in the case. He said that there is a law which forbids the taking of a nursing baby from its mother, no matter what the mother's standing before the law may be. Later in the day, the Ankers woman was taken to her baby at the Brooklyn Nursery and Infants Hospital.

The Ankers woman's plea for the return of her infant to her followed her appearance in the Gates avenue court this morning before Magistrate Hylan, for re-arraignment. When she came from the prisoners' pen she advanced smilingly to her attorney, E. J. Reilly. After he had talked to her he made a request for an adjournment, in which Assistant District Attorney Louis Goldstein joined. Magistrate Hylan granted the request, setting the examination for 10 o'clock Thursday morning, and remanded the woman without bail.

Soon after she had returned to her cell she complained to Mrs. Tietgens of the treatment she had received in prison, alleging that she needed medical attention which she had not received. It was then that St. John's Hospital was notified and Dr. Robert responded to the call and agreed that she ought to have her infant.

The question of the woman's sanity is still in doubt. Some doctors have expressed an opinion unofficially that she is not sane while other persons who have seen her are convinced that she is rational. It is reported that an expert alienist from the staff of Bellevue Hospital, in conjunction with some Brooklyn authorities on psychopathic disorders will examine her and report on her condition.

On Saturday the woman said that her mind had been unsettled by worry.

The Ankers woman was taken to the Infants Hospital at 404 Herkimer street, and allowed to nurse her baby for half an hour. She arrived in the custody of Police Lieutenant McCurdy and Probation Officer Mrs. Tietgens. She walked into the hospital between the two with her head held up proudly, but the moment the baby was brought to her she vent over it, kissed it and fondled it with emotion. When the little one had satisfied its hunger the mother was taken back to her cell in the Gates avenue police station.

It was not known at the hospital whether or not the woman would be allowed to return as often as her baby needed her, as the matter was said to be in the hands of the police.

Louise Howard, superintendent of the institution, when asked if she had heard of any proposed investigation of the hospital, said that she knew of no such plan, but that she would welcome one if it should be deemed necessary. She is confident that the administration will be found blameless.

SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

RELIEF FROM ECZEMA COMES CHEAP

After Spending Hundreds of Dollars, Lady is Cured by Fifty-cent Jar of Resinol.

"I have given Resinol Ointment to patients troubled with eczema and it always worked like magic. One lady, after spending one hundred dollars, in various ways, was cured by the use of a fifty-cent jar of Resinol Ointment. It is the real thing for eczema and all itching eruptions.

"F. M. STEVENS, D. D. S.,
"Dover, N. H."

There are a great many varieties of that troublesome skin disease—eczema, but itching is its main symptom and most distressing feature, and the first thing to do is to relieve the itching, and Resinol Ointment does this at once. And it does more. It cures most cases of eczema, frequently when ordinary treatment has completely failed.

Resinol Ointment is the most wonderful skin-remedy today. For sores, pimples, every form of eruptive skin disease, irritation and inflammation, tetter, milk-crust, scaldhead, ringworm, barber's itch, blackheads, chilblains, cracked lips, chaps, burns and scalds it is an effectual and reliable remedy. It soothes, relieves the pain and heals.

Self-shavers should use Resinol Medicated Shaving Stick to keep the face free from pimples.

Your druggist sells and recommends these preparations; the ointment in two sizes—50c and $1.00, or you can make a free trial first by writing for samples to Dept. 12, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS.

Successful Gathering of Brooklyn South District.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Brooklyn South District Woman's Home Missionary Society of the New York East Conference opened this morning at Grace M. E. Church, Seventh avenue and St. John's place. The session opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. W. H. Webster. This was followed by the appointment of committees for the day. The reports of the officers and the chairmen of committees were then read.

Those reading reports were: Treasurer, Mrs. L. A. Souville; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. McIntyre; home missions, Mrs. Chapple, mite boxes, Mrs. Irene Bradshaw; reading circles, Mrs. G. H. Wood; temperance, Miss A. Rowlandson.

The Rev. F. F. Shannon of Grace Church greeted the women and the morning session closed with an address by Miss Mahon of the Brooklyn Deaconess Home. She told of the work that is being done at the home.

This afternoon at the meeting the principal item of business will be the election of officers. There will be special music and an address by the Rev. E. C. Tullar of the Sixth Avenue M. E. Church.

MANILA PAPER EXPOSES "PASTOR'S" PRESS AGENT

BROOKLYN EAGLE WAS QUOTED

An interesting sidelight on the difficulties that are being encountered by "Pastor" Russell and his press agents in their record-breaking world tour of "investigation" of foreign missions, is furnished by extracts from the Manila Cablenews-American, just received in Brooklyn. This paper tells of a curious experience it had with an industrious but wabbly press agent who wanted to pay money to get reading puffs of "Pastor" Russell into the columns of the paper.

The "Pastor" arrived in Manila on Sunday, January 14. On Saturday the Cablenews-American reprinted from The Eagle the account of "Pastor" Russell's prediction that the world would end in October, 1914, with an ingenious suggestion that his followers prepare for the windup by turning over to him and his associates their worldly wealth. The Manila paper put this caption over the article, "World to End in October, 1914, Warns 'Pastor' Russell. Get In on the Ground Floor by Getting Rid of Your Property, Invites Unique Evangelist."

This publicity had the effect of nullifying the work of the Russell advance press agent and kept down the audience of the "Pastor" the following day to a few hundred, chiefly Filipinos. On Tuesday the Cablenews-American printed the following interesting statement of its dealings with the Russell agent:

"'Pastor' Russell, the much-advertised religionist, who visited Manila Sunday, gave out an interview in which he said that there was no truth whatever in the article copied from The Brooklyn Eagle and published in the Cablenews-American of January 13. Yet, in the second paragraph of his interview, he said: 'It is true that we spent $148,000 last year.'

Advertising Paid For, but Another Side Is Discovered.

"In view of the fact that 'Pastor' Russell has expressed himself as aggrieved that the Cablenews-American published the article in question, we take the liberty to make the following statement: Some time ago 'Pastor' Russell's advance agent came to Manila and arranged for advertising with the Cablenews-American for the much-heralded address on 'Where Are the Dead?' The money was deposited in the business office of the Cablenews-American, and a number of laudatory articles in the form of paid reading notices were left. After the advance agent had left the city the attention of this paper was called to the fact that there was another side to 'Pastor' Russell's propaganda that was not advertised in the stories left by his advance agent. The article published on January 13 was taken from The Brooklyn Eagle, against which 'Pastor' Russell says he has a damage suit pending for $50,000. There are other records of a similar nature. For example, there are the court records of the District of Columbia in a case in which 'Pastor' Russell had sued the Washington Post for a sum as large as that which he now asks from The Brooklyn Eagle, but in which, after the testimony in the case was heard, the jury awarded 'Pastor' Russell $1 damages.

"The testimony in that case is most interesting as bearing on the claim by 'Pastor' Russell that his evangel is not tainted with a desire to acquire filthy lucre. It shows that at the time he was professing that he was not engaged in business of any kind, and that he has given his time almost exclusively to religious work for the past fifteen years, he was one of the incorporators of the United States Coal and Coke Company, capitalized at $100,000; that he was interested in the Pittsburg Asphaltum Company, Ltd.; that he was interested in the California Asphaltum Company, Ltd., and in the Silica Brick Company; that he was interested in the Brazilian Turpentine Company, Ltd., with a capital stock of $100,000, he holding the majority interest, and that the offices or headquarters of some of these companies, if not all, were in the Bible House in Allegheny, Pa., from which he operated. It also appeared from this testimony that many of 'Pastor' Russell's associates in his advertising plant on Hicks street, Brooklyn, where the $148,000 was received last year while ostensibly receiving $10,000 a month, at some time or other accumulated thousands of dollars worth of stock in various corporations, including those aforementioned in which 'Pastor' Russell was interested.

Said Article Was False, but Admitted Truth of Statements.

"Yesterday Dr. Jones, who belongs to 'Pastor' Russell's party, came to this office to complain about the article published on January 13. He started out by saying, like 'Pastor' Russell, that it was entirely false, but, on being pinned down to the truth or falsity of the statements contained in each paragraph, he was compelled to admit that they were true, with the exception that whereas the article said 'Pastor' Russell predicted the world would end in 1914, he had asserted that the end of the 'Gentile times' would arrive in October, 1914, and the present dispensation would end, and on the point that 'Pastor' Russell was said to urge his followers to contribute their material wealth to the propaganda in order to have a part in the new order of things, he said that 'Pastor' Russell urged the personal consecration of his followers, and that, of course, the consecration of the man's self meant the consecration of his pocketbook, also, hence the contributions unasked for, aggregating $148,000, received last year at his headquarters have been entirely voluntary gifts. Dr. Jones was reminded that the man who purchases a gold brick does so voluntarily after the gold brick artist has had his say.

"Suffice to say that the money left in this office by 'Pastor' Russell's advance agent was returned to 'Pastor' Russell upon his arrival in this city, and the laudatory articles left by him for publication were not printed.

"Our reason for this attitude toward the matter is this: Inasmuch as we accepted and published his advance agent's estimate of 'Pastor' Russell and his work, we regarded it only fair to the public that we should present the facts on which other people had formed a different estimate of the man and his work in order that our readers might be fully prepared to judge for themselves."

SALARIES OF MEN TEACHERS.

Hearing Before Assembly Committee on Grady Law Amendment.

(Special to The Eagle.)

Albany, February 28—There was a hearing before the Assembly Cities Committee this afternoon concerning a bill affecting the salaries of men public school teachers. A bill amending the Grady law in a number of particulars is pending before the committee, having been introduced by Assemblyman William W. Colne of the Eleventh District, who is chairman of the committee.

Among those who appeared in favor of the measure were Arnon L. Squires of Flatbush, counsel for the men teachers; Joseph K. Vandenberg, president of the Men Teachers and Principals Association, and Maurice J. Allen of the association of men teachers eligible to appointment to graduating class positions.

The main contention made by Mr. Squires for the teachers was to the effect the bill simply amends the law of last year so that men teachers may be promoted from one grade to a higher one without any loss of salary.

It also was asserted the new schedules in every case are lower than those under the Davis law and in no way affect the subject of "equal pay" which was fought out last year. The bill affects about two thousand male teachers in Greater New York.

FOR PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

Heads of Departments Ask for Big Issues of Corporate Stock.

The Board of Estimate at the meeting tomorrow will be confronted with numerous requests for the issue of corporate stock to pay for important public improvements. Bridge Commissioner O'Keefe has made a requisition for $2,000,000 to carry out the reconstruction of the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge, the plan of which was recently published in The Eagle. His request will be considered by the special committee of the board, which is making up the corporate stock budget.

President Connolly of Queens has a communication before the board asking for an appropriation of $20,000 to construct a floating bath, which the borough authorities propose to station at College Point. Water Commissioner Thompson estimates that he will require $2,202,252 for salaries and wages for the water system of Brooklyn.

Police Works Commissioner Pounds requests the board to permit the borough administration to pave Lewis avenue, between Gates avenue and Madison street, and charge the estimtied cost of $6,000 to the repaving fund. A similar request is made for Morgan avenue, between Metropolitan and Johnson avenues. The estimated cost is $9,200.

The board tomorrow will authorize the issue of special revenue bonds in the sum of $100,000 for the Fire Department, to purchase hose, and $50,000 for the maintenance of the Williamsburg Bridge. Controller Prendergast also recommends the appropriation of $250,000 for the Nurses Home and Training School at the Kings County Hospital, and $29,000 to furnish the home and school.

BADLY SLASHED WITH RAZOR.

Two Young Men Victims of Assault. Arrested Italian Identified.

John Romano, 18 years of age, of 249 North Eighth street, was cut about the face and hands early this morning while in an altercation with an unknown man in the neighborhood of Kent avenue and North Seventh street. He was found by Patrolman M. McAnerney of the Herbert street station at Lorimer and Withers streets. Dr. Hutchins of St. Catherine's Hospital, who responded to a call, dressed the young man's wounds and took him to his home.

The police of the Bedford avenue station were communicated with, where it was learned that James Dennallo of 11 Skillman avenue was also frightfully slashed about the face. Detectives Kavanagh, O'Conner and Vehan were sent out on the case, and after an hour's work arrested Alfred Genardo of Lorimer and Jackson streets, and who positively identified by Romano and Dennallo as their assailant. A bloody razor was found in his possession. He was arraigned in the Manhattan avenue court this morning on two charges of felonious assault and held for a further hearing.

NEW COMMERCE COURT CLASH

Interstate Commission Annuls Decision in Reducing Freight Rates.

Washington, February 28—An order of the Interstate Commerce Commission reducing certain class freight rates from New Orleans to Montgomery, Selma and Mobile, Ala., and to Pensacola, Fla., today was annulled by decision of the Commerce Court.

The decision, handed down by Judge Archbald, is certain to add considerable fuel to the controversy already acute between the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Commerce Court. The Court declares that Congress never intended to clothe the commission with the wide authority it has assumed. It is further asserted that the Court could discover nothing in the record in support of the conclusions of the commission or to justify the reductions in rates that it ordered.

POLICE CAPTAINS MOVE.

Bourke From Bridge Station to Oak Street, and Toole Vice Versa.

Police Captains Edward J. Toole and Edward J. Bourke changed places by order of Commissioner Waldo, today. Bourke goes from the Bridge station on Washington street to the Oak street station in Manhattan and Toole from Oak street to the Bridge. Captain Toole has been in command of the Oak street precinct for many years and the transfer was the occasion of much comment in the Police Department this morning. It is known that Toole made good while in the precinct and that for courtesy and efficiency he was a revelation to the business men there, who had been accustomed, until he came, to official bulldozing. The captain who comes to the Bridge is an old Brooklyn officer and lives in the Sixth Ward of Brooklyn.

There were two transfers of lieutenants from Manhattan to Brooklyn yesterday, and two from Brooklyn to Manhattan, making no gain to this borough. The transfers were L. J. Collins from Charles street to Fourth avenue; Henry Ebert from West Twentieth street to East New York; Joseph Ivory, from East New York to West Twentieth street, and William J. McGovern, from Gates avenue to Charles street.

BREEN JURY DISAGREES.

Four Men, It Is Said, Against Divorce for Croker's Daughter.

Four men out of the twelve who constituted the jury that heard the evidence given by private detectives concerning alleged doings of John J. Breen, the husband of Ethel Croker, daughter of the former chief of Tammany Hall, it is said, disagreed with the other eight that the former Miss Croker was entitled to an absolute divorce. A sealed verdict in the divorce case was returned this morning before Justice Goff in the Supreme Court, in Manhattan. It was a simple announcement made by the clerk that the jury had remained in session up to midnight last night, and had failed to agree.

Justice Goff set next Friday as the day on which the date for a new trial is to be argued.

APPLETON OR O'RYAN AS STATE MILITIA HEAD?

Military Circles in a Ferment Over Naming of Major.-Gen. Roe's Successor.

POLITICAL INFLUENCE USED?

Tammany Leader Murphy Said to Favor O'Ryan—Officers and Men as a Rule Want Appleton.

The question as to whom Governor Dix will appoint to succeed Major-General Charles F. Roe as commanding officer of the National Guard of the State of New York when Major-General Roe retires because of the age limit on May 1, is today disturbing members of the National Guard.

Friends of the Governor fear he has in mind an appointment which will not meet with approval among the Guardsmen. They are seeking to impress upon him that he must keep politics out of the National Guard. To this end there has been presented for his consideration the name of Colonel Daniel Appleton, commanding the Seventh Regiment in Manhattan.

The man whom Governor Dix is said to have in mind to succeed Major-General Roe is Major John F. O'Ryan, a junior officer in a battalion of field artillery. Major O'Ryan is just barely eligible under the law for the position as commanding officer of the State forces. Colonel Appleton on the other hand has reached an advanced age in the service, and within a few years will reach the age limit and must then retire.

To officers and men who are familiar with Colonel Appleton's record the suggestion that a man so young as Major O'Ryan be appointed commanding officer is not pleasing. The report has gone the rounds among guardsmen in this city that if Major O'Ryan is appointed it will bring on a number of resignation by officers who, while not personally acquainted with Colonel Appleton, will consider Major O'Ryan's appointment with resentment.

Among those who, it is reported, have threatened to resign if Major O'Ryan is appointed are: Colonel John H. Foote of the Fourteenth Regiment in Brooklyn, and Colonel Hotchkiss of the Twenty-second Engineers. Colonel Foote and Colonel Hotchkiss are said to feel along with a majority of other officers, that if Major O'Ryan is appointed it will mean the injection of politics into the National Guard, and that it will mean further, that Governor Dix ignored a precedent of years by appointing a junior officer who still has many years of service ahead, instead of a man whose record entitles him to the highest position in the State's National Guard.

Many Letters Sent to Governor Dix Opposing O'Ryan's Appointment.

It is known that Governor Dix has received letters urging against Major O'Ryan's appointment from a number of retired National Guardsmen. Officers in service are not expressing their opinion, except among themselves, but their general sentiment is being conveyed to the Governor through letters from retired officers.

Among those who have had correspondence with the Governor is Andrew C. Zabriskie of 52 Beaver street, Manhattan, formerly a captain in the Seventh Regiment. Captain Zabriskie is a member of the eDmocratic State Committee and a personal friend of Governor Dix. He has urged the Governor that it would be unwise for him to appoint Major O'Ryan, and has stated that the rank and file of guardsmen, at least in this city, is against Major O'Ryan and for Colonel Appleton.

"I am a eDmocrat, but Iam also a thorough soldier," Captain Zabriskie said today: "I feel sure that it would reflect credit upon the Governor's administration if he would appoint a man of Colonel Appleton's character."

Major O'Ryan is a Democrat, and a lawyer at 220 Broadway, Manhattan. He is said to have the political backing of Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall. Colonel Appleton is a Republican. Major O'Ryan is a Catholic and is said to be receiving the support of the Catholic guardsmen and their friends.

According to Colonel Appleton's friends, among those who are said to be working for his appointment is Colonel William G. Bates of the Seventy-first Regiment, himself eligible for Major General Roe's position, and Colonel George R. Dyer of the Twelfth Regiment. The commanding officers of the Brooklyn regiments are being sounded as to their sentiment. Colonel Appleton's friends say that if the vote of the guardsmen determined who should succeed Major General Roe the honor would fall to Colonel Appleton.

Colonel Appleton is about 60 years old, twenty years the senior of Major O'Ryan. Colonel Appleton will be retired in four years, and his friends are urging upon Governor Dix that his appointment as commanding officer of the State forces will round out a splendid military career.

On the other hand, if Major O'Ryan is appointed he will have twenty-four years to serve before he must retire, and there has been no precedent in many years for a lengthy service for a commander of the State National Guard. This last fact, together with Major O'Ryan's comparative youth, has been brought to Governor Dix's attention as an argument in favor of Colonel Appleton's appointment.

The appointment of Major General Roe's successor requires confirmation by the State Senate. As the Legislature will adjourn before he retires, on May 1, Governor Dix must make an interim appointment, so that the announcement of the new commanding officer's identity is expected within a few weeks.

L. I. R. R. MUST EXPLAIN.

Company Will Have to Tell Why It Operates Cable Ducts.

The Long Island Railroad Company will be called upon to explain to the Board of Estimate why it is operating numerous subway ducts for its cables which supply power to the electrified part of the system without securing the consent of the city authorities or paying the compensation that is usually exacted for this privilege. The subway ducts complained of are located in the First Ward of the Borough of Queens.

Four of these ducts are laid in Front street, from Flushing street to Fourth street; 20 ducts are in Front street, from the powerhouse to the dock; another 20 are laid in Fourth street, from the powerhouse to West avenue; 20 other ducts are in West street, from Fourth to Sixth street.

The complaint is made by the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity. The company will have to apply either for a franchise or a revocable permit, otherwise the city will commence legal proceedings to compel the company to discontinue the use of the ducts.

END OF SHIP WITH HISTORY.

Philadelphia, February 28—The steamer Goldsboro, which grounded on Brandywine Shoal yesterday, has been abandoned to its fate. The Goldsboro's career has been interesting. Years ago two brothers in New York got possession of the ship, stored her with $200,000 worth of merchandise obtained on credit and sailed to Honduras on what is described as a piratical cruise. Previous to that the ship had been one of the Clyde liners.

GLORE MAY GO INTO COURT.

Brettman Refuses to Sign Bladen Certification.

Unless George Brettman, president of the Fourth Election District of the Twentieth Assembly District signs the certification of the caucus' recommendation of John T. Bladen as a candidate for the county committee sometime today, the Glore forces in the Twentieth will bring court proceedings to mandamus Brettman and force him to sign the recommendation certificate.

Bladen defeated Brettman in the caucus Monday night and the loyal Schnitzspan supporter refused to sign the certificate of recommendation. The secretary, Mr. Glade, affixed his signature, but Brettman, who is the president of the district and whose signature is necessary has refused to sign it.

The supporters of ex-Assemblyman Harrison C. Glore, who is waging battle against the present executive member, William Schnitzspan, now claim that they have won fourteen of the twenty-four election districts in the caucuses.

SUES TO RECOVER BIG ESTATE.

Mrs. Julia Curtiss Lawrence Charges Fraud and Collusion.

Mrs. Julia Curtiss Lawrence of 142 West Eighty-sixth street, Manhattan, today brought suit, in the Federal District Court, against Elinore S. Banks of Fairfield, Conn., to recover her estate, which includes a large bank account, a third interest in the property of Mary G. Pinkney, her aunt, located in this city, and is said to be valued at $6,000,000. On August 17, 1907, the Probate Court of Fairfield County, Conn., adjudged Mrs. Lawrence to be an incompetent person and appointed Banks as sole committee of her estate. The proceedings were brought in the Probate Court by Louis H. Morris, who asserted his mother was incapable of managing her affairs by reason of intemperance and mental derangement.

Mrs. Lawrence, in asking for the restoration to her of her estate, alleges that the proceedings resulting in the appointment were void, because of fraud and collusion in the procurement thereof.

The plaintiff, who, on February 14, 1911, was married to G. Alfred Lawrence, in the State of Delaware, states that her income from her aunt's estate amounts to about $100,000 per annum.

GLEDHILL VS. DIEMER.

Former Senator Starts Fight Against Sixth A. D. Leader.

Former State Senator Reuben H. Gledhill, supported by two of the district captains and Thomas Leslie and Edward Domsche, has started a fight against the Republican leader of the Sixth Assembly District, Alderman John Diemer. The men have held several meetings, and there are factions in both the Union Club and Seward Club that are upholding them. Alderman Diemer says that he has eighteen of the twenty election district captains with him.

One of the issues upon which the insurgents are basing their fight against Diemer is an alleged mistake made in the report of Albert Schaefer, who was treasurer of the campaign committee during the last campaign. The anti-Diemer men claim that in the treasurer's report filed with the Secretary of State at Albany the Seward Club is put down as receiving $125 for the use of their rooms during the campaign. They assert that the report read before the district captains stated the disbursement to the Seward Club as $25.

WOMEN FROM ALBANY HERE.

Investigation of Immorality There Has Caused Exodus.

May Hawkins and May Burke were arraigned before Magistrate Reynolds in the Adams street court this morning, charged with being disorderly persons. They were picked up by officers from the office of Inspector Harkins, who had been sent out to clear the streets of women in the late hours of the night and the early hours of the morning. The Hawkins woman was dismissed from custody because the officer who made the arrest did not have, in the opinion of the magistrate, enough evidence to convict. The other woman was held for further examination.

Miss Annie Connelly, the probationary officer of the Adams street court, said this morning that many of the women who are brought in from the streets just now are from Albany. Since the Barnes investigation into the immorality of the Capital City there have been swarms of women drifting into Brooklyn from the place. The Albany police have been arresting the women's men, and the women have been forced to flee from the town.

IN JAMAICA ISLAND RIOT.

Party of Americans Involved, in Which Were Brooklynites.

In a pitched battle in the streets of Kingston, Island of Jamaica, on Monday night, during the strike of the street car employes, looters are reported to have attacked a party of Americans which included Captain Fritz Joubert Duquesne, the African photographer; Mrs. Duquesne and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wortley of Brooklyn. Mrs. Duquesne was reported to have been injured by a flying missile.

At the home of the Wortleys this morning, at 19 Herkimer street, it was doubted whether Mrs. Duquesne had been injured, for if she had received any serious injury a cablegram would have been immediately sent here in regard to the matter. But no word has been received.

Kingston has been in the throes of a serious conflict between the police and strikers, and many fights have taken place. The American party was out in an automobile when it was attacked and they had to defend themselves against the ferocity of the mob. As a result of the fighting the riot act has been read in Jamaica.

MOVING PICTURE LOST.

Company Not on the Job When Its Auto Was Wrecked.

When the Solax Company, manufacturers of moving-picture films, stages an Indian fight, a Western holdup or a runaway, the picture men are always on the job, but they overlooked a smashup this morning when a big touring car belonging to the company ran into a lamppost at the foot of a hill at Eighteenth street and Fourth avenue and left both the post and the machine fit for little more than souvenirs.

Nobody appears to know just how the accident occurred or whether anybody was hurt. But the lamppost was bent to the ground, two wheels were torn from the machine and the tonneau was split wide open. The wrecked machine was found by the police.

Harry Methzan, the driver, could not be discovered this morning, and the Solax Company said he had not been heard from. Neither was he at his home in Collins place, Flushing. But it was explained that Methzan almost every night went for showgirls in New York and brought them to the Solax plant, where they did some picture posing after midnight. It was said that probably the accident occurred when Methzan was returning from one of these trips.

GOLD SNAKE FOR TAFT.

Washington, February 28—The White House mail today brought to President Taft a silk shamrock and a gold snake from Mary F. Flattery of New York, which the President will wear in the lapel of his coat when he rides at the head of the St. Patrick's Day parade, in Boston, March 18.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB TAKES ITS ERRANT SONS BACK

BUT 120 FELL BY THE WAY.

Only Thirty Come Back From Month's Estrangement, and McCooey's Name Is Shriekingly Silent.

The Democratic Conference Committee of One Hundred and Fifty returned like prodigal sons to the headquarters of the Brooklyn Democratic Club, 224 Livingston street, last night, after sojourning at the Johnston Building, Nevins street and Flatbush avenue, for more than a month. They left the Brooklyn Democratic Club because they said they were being criticised as being "one of the club's radicalisms." They returned last night with only an unofficial explanation that "they might as well be criticised for being too much under the influence of a "radical" club as to be criticised for deserting the organization that had given them birth."

They left the club a month ago 150 strong, after a meeting at which McCooey had been arraigned in strong terms. They returned last night only thirty strong. McCooey's name was not mentioned during the meeting. His administration was not subjected to the radical assaults which had characterized the former meetings and a report of the plan and scope committee was accepted, which was a much modified version of the opinions expressed on the floor of the Brooklyn Democratic Club a month ago, when the county-wide anti-McCooey movement was launched.

One member, John J. Dowd, openly declared on the floor of the hall that the "resolutions were not strong enough," and a strange conservative spirit pervaded the entire procedure.

Said to Meet Alignment With the "Original Nine" Anti-McCooeyites.

The resolutions declared that the anti-McCooey men would wage war in every Assembly district "where the conduct of the executive member has been such as to indicate his acquiescence in the control by New York County of the Democratic organization of Kings County." This was interpreted after the meeting was over by one of the leaders in the movement to mean that all of the McCooey leaders who had stood by McCooey and who would not when approached declare against him would be fought, and that the Committee of One Hundred and Fifty would stand by the "original nine" in any primary fight they might have to wage in their respective districts.

The report mildly assailed the present administration of the Kings County Democratic organization by saying: "The misfortunes of the Democratic party in this county are the direct result of the lack of real leadership in this county and the general resentment at the subserviency of the Kings County organization to that of New York County. Tammany domination means defeat."

It recommended the changing of the name of the committee to that of the "Democratic County Autonomy Committee of One Hundred and Fifty," and also recommended the appointment of an executive committee of twenty-five to carry on the fight. The report was accepted and Chairman Alonzo G. McLaughlin appointed the following executive committee: Edward M. Bassett, Richard W. Bainbridge, David A. Boody, William J. Duane, A. H. Eastmond, Thomas F. English, Charles H. Fuller, Carl S. Flanders, A. Augustus Healy, George E. Lovett, William R. McGuire, Matthew T. Meagher, William E. Melody, Thomas Magner, Hugh V. Monahan, Frank E. O'Reilly, Richard S. Ramsey, Rudolph Reimer, Rufus L. Scott, sr.; John L. Shea, James Shevlin, Augustus Van Wyck, Bernard J. York, Charles G. Wise and members ex-officio, Alonzo G. McLaughlin, Eugene A. Van Nest and Michael E. O'Connor.

The report also recommended a fight for a return to the election district system in the Democratic organization.

Edward M. Bassett made a brief address, in which he explained the mildness of the report by saying that it was designed so that it would not be a harsh criticism of the Democratic organization of New York County, but that it was a simple protest against the interference of that organization in the affairs of Kings County.

No explanation of the return of the committee to the fold of the Brooklyn Democratic Club was made by any speaker, and unofficially it was stated that the only support that the Brooklyn Democratic Club, as a club, will give the movement will be the use of its rooms as a headquarters, rent free.

DID BRINER SIT IN HER LAP?

Mrs. Bristol Says He Did, but He Denies It.

Did Morris Briner sit in Mrs. Bristol's lap in the Liberty Theater last night? Briner says he didn't while Mrs. Bristol insists he did, and Magistrate Voorhees is to decide.

There are no reserved seats in the Liberty Theater, at Liberty and Stone avenues; you buy your ticket and get the best chair you can find that is unoccupied. When a seat on the front rows is vacated there is generally a rush for it, for the performance goes right on and the audience constantly changes.

Morris Briner, who is a wholesale flour merchant, living at 188 Sackman street, Brownsville, took Mrs. Briner to the theater last night. They couldn't get very good seats at first, but when Briner saw two women leaving chairs in the front row of the balcony he started for them. o did Mrs. Dora Bristol, who was accompanied by Mrs. Marion Christie, her daughter.

Who got to the seats first is somewhat in dispute, but Briner says he did, and that when Mrs. Bristol tried to plump herself down beside him he informed her he was holding the seat for Mrs. Briner, a cripple, who was slowly following her husband down the aisle.

Mrs. Bristol told Magistrate Voorhees in the New Jersey avenue court today that she got there first and that Briner deliberately sat in her lap and that she drew her hatpin in self defense.

At any rate, when Briner and the hat pin met there was some howling and Briner gripped the arm that held the pin. In the fracas a sleeve from Mrs. Bristol's coat was torn out and some pretty warm words passed. It all resulted in Briner being arrested for assault.

"Why, I couldn't sit in her lap, judge," Briner explained in court today, "my wife was there."

"It is quite evident that if you did sit in Mrs. Bristol's lap it was not because of affection," commented Magistrate Voorhees. Then he said he would reserve his decision.

GERMAN PROTEST TO TURKEY.

Constantinople, February 28—The German Embassy has taken up the cudgels on behalf of the Italians in Palestine. The Ambassador today made a vigorous protest against their expulsion from Turkish territory under the terms of the recent decree. Many of the Italians affected by the order are workmen on the Bagdad Railroad, which is a German undertaking.

WOMAN DIES IN STREET.

Mrs. Pauline C. Einfuerer, 50 years old, of 605 McDonough street, dropped dead at Howard avenue and Decatur street late yesterday afternoon. Policeman Phelan, who saw her fall, summoned Dr. Walenta, but he could do nothing for her. Death was due to heart failure.

SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

TEXAS WOMAN SPEAKS OUT FOR RESINOL

Ten Years' Experience Convinces Mrs. Zeliff that its Healing Properties Are Unequaled.

It isn't necessary for you to try Resinol Soap or Ointment for ten years to be convinced of their superior merits. The daily use of Resinol Soap will keep away germs and prevent infection, for it is harmless and antiseptic and cleans as well as disinfects.

Likewise use Resinol Ointment, for it is the greatest remedy for skin disease known.—Its marvelous curative properties, in long standing cases of aggravated eruptive skin disease, sores, pimples, etc., recommend it. Here's the letter describing the test Mrs. Zeliff made:

"I have made a hard and thorough test of Resinol Soap and Ointment, and in my past ten years' experience have found nothing like their healing properties. I used Resinol Ointment on an infant of four months with laceration behind ears and on neck, and in three weeks it was completely healed, when everything else that we knew of had failed.

"MRS. J. W. ZELIFF,
"Houston, Texas."

This is one of the thousands of testimonials that come to us unsolicited. Everyone speaks of a cure resulting from the use of Resinol Ointment. For eczema, tetter, milkcrust, scald head, ringworm, barber's itch, burns, scalds, chilblains, chapped hands and cracked and bleeding lips, Resinol Ointment is unequaled as a curative remedy. It instantly relieves itching, irritation and inflammation, and is an invaluable application for itching and inflamed piles. Resinol Soap is medicated in the same way as the Ointment, and when used either alone or in conjunction with it will be found highly beneficial. All druggists sell these preparations; the Ointment in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You can make a free trial of them by writing for samples to Department 113, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

STRIKE UNLIKELY DECLARES SHONTS

Interborough Prepared to Prevent Organization of Its Men by Stone.

B. R. T. IS NOT AFFECTED.

Officials Deny Employes Are Being Gathered in Union—Hedley Again Flays Labor Leader.

Officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company say they are thoroughly prepared to prevent any organization of their employes by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers or any strike. There is only a remote possibility of a strike, they declare.

Officials of the B. R. T. denied positively that their employes were being organized by Stone. Mr. Shonts, in an official statement, said:

"The Interborough relations with Mr. Stone's organization have been very unfortunate. Some years ago we had a contract with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers which was violated by that organization, and which violation resulted in a perfectly causeless strike, inflicting hardship on the public and immense suffering to innocent employes.

"We have no relations with any other system or outside connection, so that even from Mr. Stone's point of view there is no reason why we should be interfered with. We are not like the electrical department of the New York Central, or the New Haven, or the Hudson and Manhattan, where the electrical motormen operate side by side with railroad engineers under railroad conditions."

This latter remark of Mr. Shonts was clear evidence that the Interborough does not propose to allow Stone or any other railroad labor man to use the club of railroad connections as a means to enforce their end. He said further on this point:

"In a word, this attempted movement on the part of the Brotherhood is not necessary even in the interests of its own organization, because we are an entirely separate and distinct unit, not having any relations with any other companies. It is not for the benefit of the employes, as we take as good care of them as is possible and will do better as our ability increases.

"So far as the public is concerned we think it is much better served by an organization which is a local and family affair, by itself, rather than to be subject to outside influences of any kind or character."

Hedley Gives Lie to Claims of Stone.

Frank H. Hedley gave the lie direct to Mr. Stone three times this morning in reiterating his statement of Saturday night. Mr. Hedley said that he is now and all along has been thoroughly informed of every move or plan made by Mr. Stone.

"I challenge Mr. Stone or anyobdy else or any other labor agitator," he said, "to issue as drastic an order as he likes, and at any time thereafter you may go upon the subway or the elevated and you will not know that such an order has been issued.

"The percentage of B. L. E. men on our lines is very small. The minute I find a man agitating or stirring up trouble that man goes. I do not mean by that the mere fact of a man belonging to the union would cause his dismissal.

Interborough to Be Run on Open Shop System.

"The Interborough is going to be run on the open shop system, despite Stone or any other labor agitators. That is the only way in which men can be promoted on the merit system.

"I have a man with Stone in Cleveland to-day. I have a man in every one of their organizations and I have agents in these organizations because I want to know when Stone sends down a bunch of agitators to help him hold his job by contributing $60 a year."

Mr. Hedley further explained that the men were paid 35 cents an hour for a ten-hour day, and not on the mileage system, as had been stated. He declared that the insurance system of the company was entirely voluntary and that the men were not forced to join it, as labor agitators have stated.

Despite these statements of the Interborough, there is a general feeling that Stone has a card or two up his sleeve, which he is expected to reveal when he returns from Cleveland on April 10.

Brotherhood Making No Move in B. R. T.'s Ranks, Says Calderwood.

"Stone's men are not working in the B. R. T. The B. R. T. men are not organizing and they are not contemplating a strike. I have been watching the situation very closely, and I know what I am talking about. I have been here for ten years and I am not sleeping. If you catch me asleep, you can have the job."

This is the reply made today by General Manager John F. Calderwood of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, to the story that the organizers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers are working to bring about a strike in the B. R. T.

"What is the situation in regard to the Interborough company?" Mr. Calderwood was asked.

"I haven't definite information," he said, "but I understand Stone's men are over there. But the whole thing is being worked up and exaggerated. There is always this same cry when Stone comes to town."

Mr. Calderwood said the B. of L. E. tried to work into the B. R. T. three years ago, but that this time they had made no move toward his company.

WILL HAVE SANITY TESTED.

Man With Many Delusions Visits Police Headquarters.

Shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, a well-dressed man of 37 years, with a wild look in his eyes, visited local police headquarters and asked to see the Commissioner. Lieutenant Lawrence Hynes was about to tell him that the Commissioner was not in the habit of getting around at 5 in the morning when Patrolman Franklin of the Adams street station ran in and said that he had been following the man, who had been acting queerly.

"He thinks he is a reincarnated Deity," said Franklin, who is himself something of a searcher after the secrets of soul-transmission.

"So I am," said the stranger. Then he told the lieutenant that he was the man who would be "the next President" and asserted that he wanted to get into communication with Theodore Roosevelt "right away." It was plain that he was temporarily, at least, unbalanced mentally, and Franklin took him to the nearest patrol box to telephone for the wagon from the Adams street station. He pathetically begged the policeman not to electrocute him.

Later he was taken in charge by Surgeon Heifield, of the Brooklyn Hospital, and was sent to the observation ward at Flatbush. The stranger said he was 37 [illegible]

APRIL GRAND JURY SWORN.

Members Will Have a Busy Month. Court Calendars Are Full.

The April grand jury was sworn in before County Judge Dike today. This will be the only grand jury this month, as no application has been made by the district attorney's office for an extra one for April.

During the past month a special grand jury reported indictments before Supreme Court Justice Crane. Justice Garretson will hear criminal cases in Part V of the Supreme Court, the same as Justice Crane did last month.

Four terms will be devoted to criminal cases, because the list of indictments awaiting trials is still a long one. Both County Judge Fawcett and County Judge Dike will have criminal calendars before them this month, and so will County Judge Joseph L. Moore, of Montgomery County, who will preside in Part IV of the County Court. Civil cases will be heard this month in Part III of the County Court by Judge Olin T. Nye, of Schuyler County.

Thomas M. Henderson, foreman, 22 Irving place; J. Gratz Brown, 140 Fifty-ninth street; Daniel Buckman, 232 Grant avenue; William W. Carner, 1029 Fortieth street; Richard Caccia, 165 Vernon avenue; N. C. Durham, 183 Lefferts place; Claus H. Klee, 252 Clifton place; Arthur Folwell, 427 Macon street; Horace W. Miller, 22 Van Sicklen avenue; Jacob Miller, 41 Graham avenue; Edward P. Faulkner, 19 Polhemus place; Daniel Harris, 231 Woodbine street; W. Wallace Grant, 61 South Oxford street; Simpson S. Kory, 145 Midwood street; Frederick E. Neades, 29 Broome street; Francis L. Strickland, 804 Lincoln place; Albert Schwab, 341 Vernon avenue; William A. Norris, 739 Eastern Parkway; Edward Bennett, 1609 East Twenty-second street; Clement F. Kingman, 611 Jefferson avenue; John T. Lee, 299 Seventh avenue; Richard S. Cole, 191 Hancock street; Joseph Kinsert, 214 Ten Eyck street.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Two men, laborers, died without medical attendance in their furnished rooms in Greenpoint today. Joseph Bloomberg, 53 years, at 142 Franklin street, and James Kiernan, 25 years old, at 110 Franklin street.

Bloomberg's death was due to heart failure; Kiernan's following an attack of pneumonia. Bloomberg's body went to the morgue.

Frank McGuire, 40 years old, and most woebegone and hungry in appearance, went to the local police headquarters on State street at 10 o'clock this morning and reported that he was hungry and homeless.

"I escaped from a lunatic asylum in Byberry, Pa., last August," said he, "and I've been drifting around ever since. I am not able to make a living, and I want to be sent back to the asylum."

Magistrate Voorhees committed him to jail as a vagrant, pending an investigation into his story.

Big Ben, one of the faithful old horses of Engine Company No. 118, located at Hart street and Central avenue, went to his last fire yesterday afternoon, and this morning the members of the company are mourning his death. It was while responding to a small fire at Lafayette avenue and Sumner that the engine collided with a street car, and Ben was so badly hurt that his death was ordered by Dr. Doyle, the veterinary of the Fire Department.

Carmine Cirrelo, a plasterer, of 300 Hudson avenue, is in a precarious condition in the Brooklyn Hospital, suffering from a knife thrust which cut through the bones of his skull, and from a dozen stab wounds in the body. He had a dispute last night in the house at 18 St. Edward's street, with Luigi Bruno, over a game of cards, and the wranglers went to the City Park, in the neighborhood of Navy street and Park avenue, to argue it out. Bruno, it is claimed, drew a dagger and slashed away at Cirello until he fell unconscious on the street.

"I am Harry Karell, from Austria; no work, no money, is the reason," was the scribbled message left by a man who spent his last quarter last night for a room in the Mills Hotel at 160 Bleecker street, Manhattan, and then swallowed oxalic acid with fatal result.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 1.—The campaign in Pennsylvania for delegates to the Republican National Convention will be enlivened by Colonel Roosevelt who, it is announced, will make three speeches in this State before the primary election on April 13.

Utica, April 1.—The managers of the cotton spinning and yarn mills in this city to-day announced a flat raise of wages of 10 per cent. to take effect today. This affects some 6,000 to 7,000 people. The numerous knitting mills in this section have not been affected and there has been no demand for increase.

San Juan, Porto Rico, April 1—The United States cruiser Washington, which arrived here yesterday morning with Secretary of State Knox and his party on board, sailed for Port au Prince, Haiti, at 10 o'clock this morning.

Providence, R. I., April 1—"I did not mean to kill him." This was the reply of Antonio Mariano, the 14-year-old boy arrested Saturday night charged with the being responsible for the death of William Mather, jr., 12 years old, when Judge Rueckert today asked him: "Did you kill William Mather?"

"I was climbing up a rock," the Mariano boy said, "and Willie was behind me, and a rotten piece of rock got loose and fell on his head."

Judge Rueckert accepted this as a plea of not guilty and held him in $2,000 bonds.

Yonkers, N. Y., April 1—Edward R. Baker of 721 Albert street, Steinway, L. I., was fined $10 by Judge Beall today for speeding an automobile here yesterday.

LUPIN THIEF STILL BUSY.

Robs Mann Home in Flatbush and Exchanges Clothing.

Adam Mann, who lives in Glenwood road, near the crossing of the Brighton Beach Railroad tracks, is the latest victim of the burglar who leaves behind clothing in place of that stolen. Three suits and an overcoat were stolen from Mann's home yesterday, and in exchange he got one sack coat. Several hundred dollars worth of clothing, silverware and jewelry were stolen.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann and their daughter, Blanche, were away from home from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 at night. When they got home they saw that a window opening on the front porch was open. When they got inside they found every room but one ransacked. In that one room were wedding presents valued at several hundred dollars which had been sent to Miss Mann, who next week marries Frederick Charles Mann. Almost everything else of value had been taken from the other rooms.

Today Mr. Mann said it took the police an hour to get to his house after they were notified of the burglary.

Recently the police have found six places where houses have been burglarized and clothing left behind by the burglars.

BROOKLYNITES SAILING.

Among the Brooklynites sailing for Europe [illegible] Mrs. Frederick Wilhelm [illegible] Mrs. Frederick Wilhelm jr. Vanden Bosch, Herman Miller and Phillip J. Pfeiffer. The Mohawk that sailed for Charleston, S. C., and Jacksonville, Fla., on Friday, had the following Brooklyn passengers: Mr. and Mrs. John Graeber, Mrs. F. B. Johnson, Miss E. S. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Howard, Thomas Howard jr., Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock, Howard Whitlock and Thomas Whitlock.

BISHOP HAMILTON PUSHING BUSINESS

Wants to Adjourn New York East Conference Tomorrow Night.

DUE AT SALISBURY WEDNESDAY

Much Routine Work Done—Supernumerary and Superannuated Lists.

Routine business occupied the forenoon hours of the New York East Conference session in the Nostrand Avenue Church this morning. Bishop Hamilton was early on hand, as he is anxious to catch up with the business, which is not quite so far behind as it was on Friday but still lagging a little. It is the regular order that the conference shall adjourn tomorrow night when the appointments are made, but it is thought now it will be at a late hour. The Bishop and his cabinet are putting in much time on the adjustment of appointments, and it is found that there will be a large number of changes, particularly in the country districts.

The Bishop said at the close of the morning session that he had three conferences in succession, one down on the peninsula at Salisbury, Md., a colored conference, and he would like to take a train so as to reach there tomorrow at midnight and organize the conference on Wednesday. If he could not get through he would have to postpone the Maryland conference by wire. Dr. Henderson said there was still much to be done and the business could not, in the opinion of many, be closed until late tomorrow night, which was the usual time for the New York East Conference.

The Rev. Dr. James C. Chadwick reported the incorporation of the New York Education Society, composed of members of New York and New York East Conferences. Dr. Chadwick asked for the election of the following managers from the New York East Conference and they were chosen: J. S. Chadwick, George P. Mains, A. B. Sanford, J. E. Holmes, C. W. McCormick, L. R. Streeter, Alfred Hodgetts, W. A. Layton E. G. Richardson.

The Rev. Dr. M. W. Prince, formerly a Brooklyn pastor and until recently a professor in Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., was, at his own request, placed upon the superannuated list.

Bishop Hamilton was requested to appoint W. W. Martin conference historian; J. E. Holmes, superintendent of the Brooklyn and Long Island Church Society; A. C. McBride, conference evangelist; D. A. Jordan, treasurer of the One Per Cent. Endowment Commission; Crandall J. North, corresponding secretary of the Conference Endowment Fund, and A. S. Kavanagh, superintendent of the Brooklyn Methodist Hospital.

The following were placed upon the supernumerary list:

A. R. Davis, W. S. Harper, C. A. Knesal, W. N. Taft, J. S. Tillinghast, A. M. Treistad, W. J. White and R. F. Norton. W. E. Jeffries, who has been on the supernumerary list, asked to be made effective. Bishop Hamilton asked if he could be given work, and it was answered that it would be difficult. R. F. Norton has been assistant to the Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester, pastor of St. Mark's Church. C. A. Knesal, who has been resting for a year in Vineland, thought of returning to the effective pastorate, but, he said, owing to the congestion to the conference, he would remain in his present relation.

The following are the superannuated preachers:

Joseph Baird, E. L. Bray, Albert Booth, John Brien, William Brown, E. W. Caswell, T. F. Clarke, C. P. Corner, D. W. Couch, G. B. Dusinberre, A. C. Eggleston, R. S. Eldridge, W. P. Estes, E. A. Gray, D. F. Hallock, F. M. Hallock, J. S. Haugh, W. P. Hill, H. G. Lane, O. C. Laine, H. Q. Judd, David McMullen, J. O. Munson, T. M. Littlewood, J. C. Peck, T. L. Pamison, C. M. Pegg, S. H. Platt, W. T. Pray, R. S. Putney, B. P. Raymond, former president of Wesleyan University; E. B. F. Reeve, J. F. Robertson, James Robinson, W. H. Russell, S. K. Smith, H. A. Starks, Thomas Stevenson, R. S. Stowe, P. M. Terry, who has attended more sessions of conference than any other member; G. L. Thompson, George Van Alstyne, W. H. Wardell, H. E. Wing.

Mr. Estes spoke briefly and said: "presiding elder" instead of "district superintendent," and explained that he had not become used to the new name. 'Oh, we'll get back there yet," said Bishop Hamilton, and there was loud applause. Mr. Estes is 77 years old, and has attended fifty-three annual conferences.

The Rev. Dr. George Van Alstyne, formerly pastor of the Sands Street Memorial M. E. Church, and for a term presiding elder of the Brooklyn North District, has been fifty years in the ministry, and wrote a letter.

At this point Bishop Hamilton said he was forced to retire to meet some appointments, "and," said he, "I will experiment with Brother Downey for a while." This was greeted with laughter and loud applause. Dr. Downey is pretty sure to be elected a Bishop at the meeting of General Conference in Minneapolis in May. He took the chair.

The Rev. W. R. Miller, president of the New York Civic League, spoke for a few minutes, and said that the good news from Albany was that the Legislature had adjourned and thanks were due as much for what it had not done as for what it had accomplished. "Boss Barnes and Boss Murphy," he said, "had determined to pass the race track bill and we had to sit up nights to watch them."

The Rev. Clarence True Wilson spoke for the Church Temperance Society.

Frank L. Brown, chairman of the Conference Board of Sunday Schools, read his report. There had been an increase of Sunday school missionaries and the opening of foreign work had been extended. Sunday school work had been increased in all the districts through the medium of frequent institutes. Praise was given to Dr. Downey, secretary of the Board of Sunday School Publications, for the whole church, for his efficient work.

Dr. Downey said the board was now thoroughly organized at the service of the conference and ready to co-operate with the ministers in all that tends to increase the efficiency of Sunday schools, particularly teacher training. There were 155,000 conversions and additions to the churches of Methodism from the churches during the year.

The Rev. Dr. John Wesley Johnston, who last year had a nominal appointment at the Hanson Place Church, it is said, will ask for an appointment. It is understood that he will return from London in time to begin work at the close of conference.

TAKEN FROM BURNING BED.

Police Rescue Woman Asleep While [illegible]

[illegible] men responded Smythe [illegible] clouds of thick smoke which filled the hallways of the house at 510 Wythe avenue this morning, and made their way to a room where they discovered Mrs. Julia Donohue, a tenant, asleep in bed. The bed was blazing. Between them the policemen carried out the woman. The fire was put out after it had caused small damage.

FIALA CONFIDENT OF SCOTT'S SUCCESS

Believes He Will Reach Pole and Return With Important Data.

WELL EQUIPPED TO DO SO.

Bridgeman Awaits More Definite News From Akaroa Before Giving an Opinion.

News that the ship of Captain Robert F. Scott, the Arctic explorer, had arrived at Akaroa, New Zealand, with word that on January 3 he was within 150 miles of the pole and advancing, was eagerly discussed today by members of the Arctic Club.

Anthony Fiala, the explorer whose party was rescued by the Terra Nova, Scott's ship, in the Arctic wilds, expressed his confidence in the ability of Captain Scott to reach the pole. Mr. Fiala thinks that Captain Scott remained in the vicinity of the pole for the purpose of making scientific observations and that he will come back with most valuable and voluminous data.

He believes that both Scott and Amundsen were helped materially in their journey to the pole by the work of their predecessor, Sir Ernest Shackelton, who discovered the existence of the great ice barrier extending southward, and that the knowledge of the presence of this ice barrier greatly aided Scott and Amundsen.

"Captain Scott," said Fiala, "doubtless intends to stay long enough in the polar regions to make careful observations, without which the mere discovery of the pole is of no great value. He is well equipped for the gathering of much important data. He has a large boat and his party is big enough to split up with convenience. I expect Captain Scott will have some very important observations to report when he returns."

Herbert L. Bridgeman, secretary of the Arctic Club, said: "We ought to have more definite news tomorrow."

When asked what he thought of the probability that Captain Scott reached the pole he replied:

"The news is so very brief that your opinion on that point is as good as mine. From the point where the news of his progress left him to the ship is 650 miles, and what we shall now wait to hear is how this news came from him. I think we should have further details tomorrow."

WOMAN A SUICIDE BY GAS.

Mrs. Maude Winternitz, wife of Samuel Winternitz, of 817 Park place, 35 years old, committed suicide by inhaling gas, in her apartment early this afternoon. She was found by the janitor of the apartment, wkho summoned Dr. Price and Dr. Hall of the Swedish Hospital. They administered oxygen without avail.

PLEA FOR PLAYGROUND

Flatbush Citizens Ask That Property Near Erasmus High School Be Secured.

A hearing was held today before a subcommittee of the Public Recreation Commission on the proposition to provide a playground for Flatbush, at which, the Flatbush Playground Committee made a strong plea for the acceptance of a field in the rear of Erasmus Hall High School.

The sub-committee of the Commission composed of General G. W. Wingate and George B. Pratt, has this proposition before it and another proposed by the owners of what is known as the Hawthorne Field.

It developed at the hearing that the city has available $187,746.84 the unused balance of a legacy left to the City by Betsy Head of Islip, L. I. The Board of Estimate has turned over to the Public Recreation Commission this amount for playgrounds.

The opinion of most members of the Flatbush organization, when asked by General Wingate, was that if necessary the residents of Flatbush would be willing to be assessed about 50 per cent. of the cost of the project, which is estimated at $350,000.

James A. Timon represented the claims of the owners of Hawthorne Field, and said that it could be bought for $75,000.

It is the opinion of the subcommittee that a number of smaller playgrounds throughout the borough would be better than one large one for each locality. It is understood there is about $50,000 of the Betsy Head legacy available for the Borough of Brooklyn.

The committee representing the residents of Flatbush was composed of John Thatcher, Superintendent of Buildings of Brooklyn, chairman; Dr. W. B. Gunnison, the Rev. J. T. Woods, Justus C. Hyde, Gregory Weinstein, C. H. Fuller, W. L. Castle, Henry A. Meyer, Thomas H. Flood and George W. Wilson.

DEAF MUTES TO MARRY.

Sign-Language in Use at the Brooklyn License Bureau.

Two deaf mutes gote out a marriage license at the Brooklyn office of the Marriage License Bureau this morning. The man was Frank Curley, an electrician, living at 168 Linden street, and his bride-to-be is Miss Ollie V. Wolfe of 1419 Greene avenue. When they approached Clerk Jacob Hellestein and began wiggling their fingers he placed before them an application blank, thinking, he said afterward, that this was the only thing they would come to that place for.

The couple understood and after they had filled out the paper, Deputy City Clerk J. V. Scully administered the oath in the sign finger language, in which he is an expert.

BELGIAN MONEY FOR CHINA.

Loan Is Regarded Principally as a Russian Deal.

Peking, China, April 1—The Russo-Asiatic Bank handed over today to the representatives of the government at Wu-Chang, approximately $1,056,000 on behalf of the Belgian syndicate, whose representative at Peking declares that the Chinese government has been credited already with approximately $3,850,000.

The opposition to Premier Tang-Shao-Yi appears to be increasing in Northern China, where there is a belief that the so-called Belgian loan is principally a Russian enterprise, being bound to the [illegible]

RESENTS RUSSELL'S SLAP AT MISSIONS

The Rev. Stanley White of Presbyterian Board, Challenges "Pastor's" Report.

TALKS AT THE HIPPODROME.

Big Floral Display, but Little Enthusiasm at Meeting in Big Playhouse.

"Pastor" Russell appeared at the Hippodrome yesterday afternoon, in fulfillment of advertisements which announced that he would make a report of his trip around the world to investigate foreign missions. This trip was made in 107 days, the "Pastor" and his committee not quite equaling Jules Verne's fictitious "Around the World in Eighty Days."

Only a brief report was made of the general conditions found, but in an account of the meeting in the morning papers, which was printed at the expense of the "Pastor," or his "followers," a two-column headline announced that the "Gospel of Christ is no longer preached" in the foreign field.

"Any man who makes such a statement doesn't know what he is talking about," said the Rev. Stanley White of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, today.

"Pastor" Russell's complete report has just gone to the printer, and in about two weeks it will be given to the public. It will be amply illustrated with photographs taken en route.

The committee of seven, of which "Pastor" Russell was chairman, left San Francisco December 13, and returned March 29. In that time stops were made in Honolulu, a month was spent in Japan, China and the Philippines, three weeks time was devoted to India, while Egypt, Greece and Italy were visited, and then the "Pastor" and his associates hurried home, barely stopping in Rome, Paris and London. The entire trip was made on schedule time, as mapped out in advance.

Those who made the trip with "Pastor" Russell were: Adjutant General W. P. Hall, of Washington, Robert B. Maxwell of Mansfield, O.; E. W. V. Kuehn, a broker of Toledo, O.; Professor F. H. Robinson, secretary of the committee; J. T. B. Byles, a merchant of Washington, and Dr. L. W. Jones of Chicago.

Although the report of "Pastor" Russell's committee is supposed to be exhaustive and covers the entire subject of foreign missions, so far as could be learned today from the boards of foreign missions with offices in New York, missionaries in the field had seen nothing of the "Pastor." Missionaries in the countries visited by the committee working under the Baptist Board of Foreign Missions and the similar board of the Presbyterian Church have made no references to the visit of the "Pastor" in their reports to this country.

Wonderful Floral Display Greets "Pastor" Russell at the Hippodrome.

The Hippodrome stage yesterday was decorated with a great display of flowers. "It was a wonderful tribute to 'Pastor' Russell," one of his "followers" said today. "The display represented many thousands of dollars—probably $20,000." According to the "Pastor's" paid account of the meeting these flowers came from Bible students in twenty-one States. The "Pastor's" committee was appointed by the International Bible Students Association.

Russellites from many sections swarmed to the Hippodrome, and before the hour for the meeting to open, the building was well filled. Although the tickets promised the bearer "any vacant seat in the orchestra up to 2:55 p.m.," the ushers rounded up all those occupying these seats and sent them to the galleries at 2:30. Just before Pastor Russell commenced to speak, these orchestra chairs were filled and after he started to talk many people got up and left, so that there were plenty of vacant chairs.

"Pastor" Russell talked for an hour and a quarter, but devoted not more than a quarter of his time to a discussion of missions. His remarks on missions were very general in character, and he gave no specific information gathered in this world-wide journey.

In one of the boxes there was a choir that sang and the audience joined in a hymn before the "Pastor" spoke. There was brief hand-clapping when he rose to speak. There was no other demonstration. Previously Secretary Robinson had read a brief categorical report of the trip. The suggestion of this report was that as long as there are denominational differences little can be expected from the foreign mission field.

"Pastor" Russell himself spoke in the same tone. He said that he had found that so-called heathen in the East was much the same sort of people as the so-called Christians in the West. He said he had visited a missionary school at Honolulu where he had been informed that no attempt was made at teaching religion except to the very small children. He said that, in general, present day missionaries do not teach Christianity, but rather secular instruction of a general character. He said that although many of the teachers in these missionary schools may be believers in the higher criticism of the Bible, very much less teaching in that direction is done in the East than in this country.

"Pastor" Does Not Discourage Giving of Contributions to Missions.

That was about the only feature of present day missions that "Pastor" Russell said he could commend. He did not discourage giving money to missions, "because," he said, "it benefits the giver," and later he said that "only those can be happy who have given all they have to the Lord."

If there were any persons in the audience who had expected a first-hand account of conditions and missionary work in the Orient, they were wholly disappointed. The "Pastor" confined himself to vague general conclusions as to the effect of missionary work on the Eastern peoples. He scored the Christian missionaries for their lack of co-operation, and apparent inconsistencies of doctrine. He announced that there is no reason to believe that the world can be evangelized within the present generation by the use of large missionary funds.

This view he explained by his theory of the coming of the millenium, after which, according to Pastor Russell's reading of the Bible II Samuel, 2, Christ will ask the Father to give Him the heathen.

To the statement that missionaries of various denominations are not pulling together in their work, the Rev. Mr. White said to-day:

"Never was there a time when the denominations were working with greater harmony or more vigor. Each January representatives of the various churches meet and map out the work for the year. John R. Mott, foreign secretary of the Y. M. C. A. student volunteer movement, is going around the world to visit all the mission boards in an effort to make the mission movement world-wide."

KRUM MARRIAGE VOID.

An interlocutory decree of annulment of the marriage of Martin Krum to Margaret Theresa Smith Turner was today granted by Supreme Court Justice Van Siclen. The Krums were married in 1906, and the annulment was asked for by the husband on the ground that his wife had not been legally divorced from her first husband, Addison Turner, at the time of her second marriage. Both live in Manhattan.

MRS. PIPER ASKS ALIMONY.

Chauffeur Blames Mother-in-Law for Marital Troubles.

Mrs. Irene Piper, who blames Miss Agnes Waugh, the young woman who was seriously assaulted one night last fall, with being responsible for her marital troubles, asked Justice Maddox in the Supreme Court today for alimony and counsel fee in her separation suit against Fred W. Piper, a chauffeur. Lawyer Martin P. Lynch appeared for Mrs. Piper and Lawyer Harrison Glower for Piper. Piper's attorney told Justice Maddox that the notoriety his client got from certain charges made by his wife against Miss Waugh and Piper had prevented his keeping his job or obtaining another. Justice Maddox took the papers and reserved decision.

The Pipers were married on August 13, 1905, and have a daughter, Mildred, 6 years of age. Mrs. Piper is now living with her mother, Mrs. Meyers, at 562 Ninety-eighth street. When the acts complained of by the plaintiff are alleged to have occurred the Pipers were living together at 560 Ninety-second street. Piper denies all the charges made by his wife, and, in the separation suit, no mention is made of the alienation action brought by Mrs. Piper against Miss Waugh. Piper claims that all their marital trouble has been caused by his wife's mother.

WORK ON NEW TUNNEL PLAN

Effort to Solve Downtown Subway Situation, Provides Two Tunnels.

The engineers of the Public Service Commission and the engineers of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company are today working on another plan for the settlement of the downtown tunnel situation in Manhattan. The plan to run four tracks through Whitehall street to the water's edge, there to branch into two two-track tunnels, one to Pineapple street and one to Montague street, held water up to Saturday night and then was practically discarded.

The latest plan is for two single tunnels in Manhattan, one through Whitehall street and one through Battery Park. The Liberty street line today seems to have been abandoned as completely as has the Atlantic avenue tunnel. The pressure of the B. R. T. was too much for Atlantic avenue, and the pressure of the Interborough has been too much for Liberty street.

At the meeting of the Public Service Commission tomorrow there may be received a report from the attorneys on new routes, which will bring up the first step toward the validating of the West End line to Coney Island. The attorneys were instructed some weeks ago to give a report on all pending routes as soon as possible.

Chairman Willcox of the Commission said today he felt he was now in position to push ahead and wind up a lot of matters which have been hanging fire. He said the recent action of the Legislature gave the city power to go ahead and he was going to do so.

LUNA TO OPEN IN MAY.

New Owners Plan Many New Attractions, They Announce.

J. A. Nelson, secretary and treasurer of the Sea Beach Land Company, with offices at 60 Wall street, stated positively today that Luna Park will open its gates to the public next month. He further said that the park would be more attractive in every way than in past years. Under whose management the place will be has not yet been decided. Plans are now being made to replace many of last year's amusements. Just what the big park will contain in the way of attractions will be announced by Thursday of this week.

Mr. Nelson further said that the Sea Beach Land Company intends to see that the public gets more for its money than it has since Luna Park was opened in 1902.

"We fully realize the necessity of a good park for Coney Island," he said, "and will not let expease stand in our way. Many of the attractions that were presented to the public last season had been in the park since its first year, and we have decided to remove them and make way for new shows that will greatly appeal to pleasure seekers."

OWENS RE-ELECTED.

Chosen Executive Member of 14th A. D. by District Captains.

Sixteen of the eighteen Republican captains of the Fourteenth Assembly District met yesterday afternoon in headquarters, 121 South First street, and re-elected ex-Senator George A. Owens executor member. There were two absentees, Louis Prudenta and Alexander Russell. John T. Brannigan called the captains together, explained the object of the meeting, and in less than a minute ex-Senator Owens was unanimously re-elected to represent the district in the executive committee. As soon as the result was announced Mr. Owens was called upon to address the party workers in the district, and brought forth loud applause when he declared:

"It must give satisfaction to all of the Republicans of Brooklyn to find that our ex-Lieutenant Governor is again with us, is again at the helm, and I for one welcome him."

The applause which greeted this took the speaker by surprise. It lasted for several minutes.

"I see," he continued, "that you evidently agree with me. Now let me say a few words concerning the election in this district. The election in this Assembly district was conducted fairly; in fact, no charge of fraud has been made, but on the part of my opponent there seems to be a desire, a pseudo desire, of course, for the holding of another election. I welcome another election, and if it is held there is not the slightest doubt in my mind, but that my opponent will be more decisively beaten."

PROF. WM. A. FINCH DEAD.

Professor William Albert Finch of the law department of Cornell University, died yesterday at his home, 53 Bainbridge street, after a long illness, of heart trouble. He secured a leave of absence a year ago from the university, and went to a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., coming to Brooklyn, unimproved, last December. He was born in Newark, N. J., and was in his 57th year. He was graduated from the Ithaca High School and from Cornell University, in the class of '80, and after practicing law in Ithaca, with Samuel Hallday for a time, became a professor in Cornell University. He leaves a sister, Miss Harriet Finch, and the remains will be taken to Ithaca for funeral services and interment.

DEATH OF MARY A. WALSH.

Mary A. Walsh, a devout member of the Church of St. Peter, and a lifelong resident of the Sixth Ward, where she was highly respected, died Sunday at her home, 441 Second street. She was the sister of former Police Lieutenant Thomas A. Walsh, and an aunt of Thomas F. Dockey. Funeral services will take place at her late home Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the interment [illegible]

EDWARD A. MOREHOUSE DEAD.

Edward A. Morehouse, connected with the New York Edison Company and a Civil War veteran, died yesterday at his home, 379 Cornelia street, of organic heart trouble. He was born in Brooklyn, September 3, 1843, and was a member of Ernstus T. Tefft Post, G. A. R. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

FOUR INDICTMENTS IN EVERGLADE CASE

Dismissed Government Employes Are Charged With Presenting False Vouchers.

BLAME LAND PROMOTERS.

Secretary Wilson Suppressed Amended Report Which Had Referred Favorably to the Florida Land.

Washington, April 1—Indictments growing out of the Florida Everglades investigation in the Department of Agriculture were returned by the Federal Grand Jury today against C. G. Elliott, Allinson D. Morehouse, Ray P. Teele and Frank E. Singleton.

The defendants are charged individually with having approved or presented false vouchers against the Government. Elliott and Morehouse have asserted that the charges of technical violation of the law against them and their dismissal from the department were brought about by their opposition to Everglades land promoters.

Elliott formerly was chief of drainage investigations in the Department of Agriculture; Morehouse was assistant chief; Teele formerly was an assistant chief of irrigation investigations, and Singleton an accountant. Singleton is under suspicion.

The charges against Elliott and the others were made to Secretary Wilson by J. O. Wright, formerly an assistant to Elliott in the department, but now chief drainage engineer of the State of Florida. Wright, according to testimony at the recent Congressional investigation, made a very favorable report on the Florida Everglades. Elliott did not approve it. Wright resigned and went to Florida and the report, amended by Elliott, eventually was suppressed by order of Secretary Wilson.

The Secretary also suppressed a circular letter prepared by Elliott in which some facts relating to the Everglades lands were presented in answer to the letters of inquiry from thousands of investers in the various land schemes. Elliott testified recently that two land agents had threatened him in his office, and in the presence of other officials, if he insisted in taking an unfavorable view of the Everglades. They also threatened to take the matter "higher up."

Wright charged that Elliott, Morehouse, Singleton and Teele had technically violated the law in approving vouchers for a transference of public funds. In 1909 the appropriation for drainage work was exhausted. The work in hand was nearly finished, however, and the officials borrowed money to complete it, paying it back out of the next year's appropriation by placing the lenders on the payrolls. It was not charged that any of the defendants profited by the transaction, nor that the Government suffered loss.

Secretary Wilson dismissed Elliott and Morehouse and suspended Singleton. Teele had resigned sometime ago. Solicitor McCabe referred the matter to Attorney General Wickersham and today's indictments resulted.

ARTIST NEWMAN FOUND DEAD

Aged Man Was Beloved by the Children of President Street.

Robert Loftin Newman, the aged artist who was found dead in a small room at 206 East Eighteenth street, Manhattan, yesterday, lived for two years up to last Saturday at 243 President street, Brooklyn. He was a kindly, genial, clever man, beloved by the children of the neighborhood, for whom he often bought trinkets from his store of spending money. He was 86 yehrs of age, always slept on the floor, and in consequence was as straight as an Indian.

Mrs. Catherine Peterson, who keeps the President street house, said today that Newman had traveled a great deal and seemed to know everyone of importance in the world who painted. He had no immediate family.

Robert Underwood Johnson, Kenyon Cox and other men of distinction in the art world have today come forward as friends of the dead man. He served in the Civil War as a Confederate soldier and afterward studied art under Jean Francois Millet. A bust of Newman is in the Luxembourg.

CITY GAS REGULATORS.

To Install Economy Device in Brooklyn Public Buildings.

Bids were received at the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity in Manhattan today for the installing of 225 new gas regulators in the public buildings of Brooklyn. These regulators are to control the flow of gas and prevent too much air from becoming mixed with it.

They are attached to the meters and the department has already given 175 of them a trial in the various public buildings of the borough. The new order for 225 more was given because those already installed had given satisfaction and had been found to economize the gas.

STATE COMMITTEE MEETING.

Republicans Fix Tomorrow for Election at Headquarters.

The Republican State Committee will meet to organize at the state headquarters in West Thirty-ninth street, Manhattan, tomorrow. William Barnes, jr., the present chairman, will be elected, according to predictions today.

TAYLOR FUNERAL WEDNESDAY.

Washington, April 1.—Thousands of Tennesseeans are expected to pay homage to the late Robert Love Taylor at the State Capitol at Nashville next Wednesday. On account of Senator Taylor's death yesterday it was agreed that the Senate adjourn immediately upon convening at 2 p.m. to-day.

G.O.P. SENATOR FOR TENNESSEE

Nashville, Tenn., April 1—For the first time since the period before it, and which include, of course, the Eastern District tunnel route.

The Commission is anxious to send all of the routes which have not thus far been approved to the Board of Estimate in order that it may be possible to put them legally on the map before the summer session of the Appellate Division.

Chairman Willcox was asked today if he thought the sections of the borough through which the B. R. T. would have the proposed new elevated lines run were of the sort that would be harmed by elevated structures or that property values in them would be depreciated.

"I would prefer to leave that to Commissioner Williams," said the chairman. "He has lived over in Brooklyn and knows conditions better than I do."

"There wouldn't be any elevated if the chairman and I had our way," was Commissioner Williams' final word in reply.

Part of General Scheme to Expand B. R. T.'s Elevated System.

It is generally understood that if the B. R. T. is successful in securing permission to construct the new elevated lines through the Eastern District it also plans to rebuild and possibly three and four track its existing elevated lines, in order to take care of the additional traffic that would be created.

The plans of the B. R. T., as explained to the Commissioners today by engineers of the road, proposed an expenditure of $1,500,000 to make over the Manhattan Crossing Station in East New York and in station and track betterments in and around the junction of the Fulton street, Broadway and Eastern District lines.

ATTACKS FOURTH AVENUE TROLLEY AT EASTER MASS

Father James Donohoe, rector of St. Thomas Acquinas Roman Catholic Church, at Ninth street and Fourth avenue, termed the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company a "Lilliputian juggernaut running flat-wheeled cars" at several masses yesterday morning, when he exhorted his parshioners to do all in their power to prevent the transit company from obtaining a franchise to lay tracks in Fourth avenue.

He declared that although some people believed that the new street car line in Fourth avenue would develop and advance property in South Brooklyn, such was not the case, as the surface lines in Third, Fifth and Seventh avenues, with an elevated line along the last-named thoroughfares and the new Fourth avenue subway, would provide all necessary transportation facilities.

"Fourth avenue is a great military boulevard and automobile highway, and the presence of tracks along it would ruin it," thundered the rector. "The Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company recently had a bill passed in the Legislature at Albany permitting the Lilliputian juggernaut to run its flat-wheeled cars along Fourth avenue from Ninth street to Flatbush avenue. If this company gets a franchise from the city, Fourth avenue, Shore Road, Bay Ridge, Fort Hamilton and Bensonhurst will suffer great detriment. South Brooklyn civic bodies will supplicate you to take this matter up and prevent this crime being perpetrated. I ask you to interest yourselves and aid them in your own behalf."

DEKALB AV. EXPRESS STATION ASSURED SAYS WILLIAMS

Announcement was made at the Transit Conference at the Hotel Bossert this afternoon that the Manhattan and Queensboro bridges would have to be reconstructed at a cost of $3,000,000 before they can be used by subway trains.

The Queensboro Bridge will need reconstruction at a cost of $2,500,000, and the Manhattan Bridge will need alterations to cost about $500,000.

The figures were given by George V. S. Williams, the new Public Service Commissioner. It was his first public address on the subway situation.

He made other points, during his speech, which are of vital interest to the people of Brooklyn.

That the Public Service Commission has practically decided to make an express station on the Flatbush avenue extension at DeKalb avenue was announced.

He spent considerable time developing the point that residents of the borough must work together to get anything and dwelling upon the fact that the reason the Bronx was getting more transit facilities was because the people up there were united in their demands.

"Now over here in Brooklyn, if the city says there isn't money enough to build both the Eastern District tunnel and the Eastern Parkway subway, why don't you get together and decide which you would rather have and then present a united decand for that," said the Commissioner.

He added that there was no sentiment among the commissioners to discriminate against Brooklyn and that if any developed there would be trouble as he intended to stand out strongly for this borough.

ONE STABBED; OTHER IN JAIL.

Guests at a Christening Have a Serious Encounter.

As a result of a stabbing affray, John Tatske, a cooper of 29 Clay street, is suffering from several serious cuts and Stephen Schaeckle of 189 Eagle street is in jail.

Schaeckel was before Magistrate Hylan in the Greenpoint court, this morning, charged with felonious assault. He was held.

When returning from festivities incident to an Easter christening, Tatske and Schaeckel started an altercation, in which several other members of the party took part. Most of the damage was done to Tatske, and all got away except Schaeckel, who was arrested by Patrolman Smith of the Greenpoint station.

Dr. Greenwald of the Williamsburg hospital dressed Tatske's wounds.

ELECT NEW COMMITTEEMEN.

Officers Chosen in Municipal Districts Saturday.

Results of only four of the seven Municipal District Committee meetings held on Saturday night were received today at Democratic Headquarters in the Jefferson Building. Officers, chairman, secretary and treasurer, were elected as follows:

HILLIS AT FUNK FUNERAL

One of Several Brooklyn Clergymen to Aid in Services at Montclair.

(Special to The Eagle.)

Montclair, N. J., April 8—Funeral services so simple in character that they were doubly impressive were held today at the First Congregational Church here for the Rev. Dr. Isaack K. Funk, the noted writer and investigator of psychic phenomena, who died on Thursday at his residence in this place.

A number of prominent clergymen from Manhattan and Brooklyn were present and took part in the services. A delegation of the employes of the Funk & Wagnalls Company journeyed to Montclair in a special car, and many men well known in civil life were also present at the church.

Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, and by the Rev. Dr. J. B. Remensnyder, pastor of St. James' Lutheran Church in Manhattan. "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me" were sung as solos.

The invocation was pronounded by the Reev. G. Bayard Young, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Brooklyn. Dr. Young also read the Scripture lesson. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Black, professor in the Union Theological Seminary.

A letter was read from the Rev. A. J. Lyman, who extolled Dr. Funk as a man and spoke of his many virtues and Christian qualities.

Dr. Hillis said that at last Dr. Funk had found out the great secret which he wished so much to know. He told of a remark once made by Dr. Funk, who said: I wonder what will happen five minutes after I am dead."

"Now the rich curtains and draperies have been drawn aside," continued Dr. Hillis, "and the concealments have been taken away. He knows the secret.

"My sorrow that he has gone from us so soon is tempered by my great joy that God counted us worthy to have had him so long."

Dr. Hillis paid a tribute to Dr. Funk's sincerity, simplicity, integrity and his "sunny optimism," which remained with him to the end. By these qualities, he said, he had won the esteem and affection of some of the most influential men of his generation.

Among those who attended the service were the Rev. James Ludlow, the Rev. Dr. J. W. Farrar, pastor of the First Reformed Church of Brooklyn; the Rev. W. C. P. Rhoades, pastor of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, Brooklyn; the Rev. Dr. Joseph Dunne Burrell, pastor of the Classon Avenue Presbyterian Church; J. L. Halley, vice president of the Trow Directory Company; R. W. Smith, ex-Congressman J. J. Little, the Rev. Dr. William V. Kelly, the Rev. Dr. Louis Francis, for many years pastor of the Reformed Church in Greenpoint; Dr. John Cummins, treasurer of the National Temperance Union, and many others.

DAVID THORNTON IS DEAD

Was Former President of Union League Club and a Prominent Lawyer.

David Thornton, once a leading Republican of this county, prominent in the Seventeenth Assembly District, and at one time mentioned for Justice of the Supreme Court, and President of the Union League Club, during the years 1903-4, died yesterday at his home, 257 Hancock street. He had been ill since December.

Mr. Thornton was born in Manhattan sixty-six years ago, and studied law in the office of Lot C. Clark and Matthew Hale of 51 Wall street, Manhattan, afterwards going with De Groot Rawson and Stanton, and finally forming a law partnership with Thornton, Carl and Kiendl, at 41 Park Row, Manhattan. He was also associated with Adolph Kiendl for ten years.

For forty years a resident of Brooklyn, twenty years ago Mr. Thornton was especially prominent in the councils of the Republican party, and a leader against the domination of Jacob Worth, Ernst Nathan and others. The meetings were held at Liberty Hall, in Gates avenue, and the movement was successful. He was a member of the Brooklyn Bar Association, and an attendant at the Central Congregational Church. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Annie Merritt of Marlborough, N. Y., and a daughter, the wife of Lawyer Charles J. Murphy of Henry street.

Funeral services will be held at his late home, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

MAYOR APPROVES THE WAGNER BILL

Signs Subway Relief Measure Immediately After Hearing.

VERY LITTLE OPPOSITION.

Borough President McAneny of Manhattan Chief Speaker in Favor of Legislation.

After a hearing which lasted two hours, Mayor Gaynor today announced that he had accepted on behalf of the city the Wagner bill amending the rapid transit act to permit the city to enter into contracts with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for the new subway routes laid out and approved by the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate. Ten minutes after the Mayor's announcement the certified copy of the bill with the official acceptance of the Mayor was deposited in the Post Office for transmission to Governor Dix at Albany.

The hearing on the bill attracted a large crowd, but the opposition to it was quite insignificant. The principal speaker who advocated adverse action on the bill was a man who has opposed all subway extensions under the present law for the past few years. Cornelius F. Sheehan of Brooklyn, one of the members of the Allied Boards of Trade, was another opponent of the bill. Mr. Sheehan was quite caustic in his comments on the proposed legislation.

"The Tweed Ring saddled the city with a debt of $41,000,000, and the present subway legislation will burden the city with a debt of $60,000,000," he said.

The Mayor did not take kindly Mr. Sheehan's reference to Boss Tweed.

"I wish," he said, looking directly at Mr. Sheehan, "that the speakers before me would come to some point. All this talk about Tweed doesn't help any. I want to hear something that will help me."

President McAneny was the chief advocate of the proposed legislation. He said, that notwithstanding the fact that the Brooklyn portion of the proposed subway extensions would represent an investment of $100,000,000, they would be self-supporting in the period of five years. The subway plan which the Wagner bill would ratify, Mr. McAneny said, was the best possible investment that the city could make. At the end of ten years Mr. McAneny said the city could take possession of the entire new system or any one of the six units into which it is divided.

McAneny Supported by Representatives of Taxpayers Associations.

In his argument Mr. McAneny was supported by representatives of taxpayers organizations of every one of the five boroughs. Organizations which were not represented transmitted letters and resolutions to the Mayor urging him to approve the bill. They all indicated that the time had arrived for the city to obviate any further delays on the construction of subway extensions in the different boroughs.

The Mayor listened patiently to all the speakers. He evidently desired to avoid any implied criticism that he refused to give the speakers in opposition a proper chance. After the hearing was concluded the Mayor said:

"Have you all been heard? I don't want anybody to go away and say that he did not have a hearing before me. I expect two newspapers tomorrow to say that I refused to hear you.

Then with a touch of sarcasm in his voice he concluded: "I must say the opposition presented a great case."

After retiring to his private office the Mayor immediately orderer Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell to bring the Wagner bill. Without waiting to prepare a memorandum the Mayor signed it. His instructions were to send the bill to Albany without delay. In addition to the Wagner bill the Mayor held public hearings on thirty-four other pieces of legislation which were passed during the recent season.

Mayor Says Present Subway Contract Is a Profitable One.

Mayor Gaynor said after the hearing:

"Of course the chief trouble we encountered in the beginning and all through this negotiation was the contract of the present subway. This is a profitable contract beyond a doubt, but it was made more than ten years ago with only one voice in the city objecting to it, so far as I remember—on the ground that it was too favorable to the company. It has turned out to be a profitable contract. It is protected by the Constitution of the United States and of this State. Some people talk as though we could just rip that up and take it away from them—loose people. They restrained their loose talk here today because they know somebody would call them to account. And some of the loose talkers have not 2come at all I noti.e. So that in adjusting this matter that was always an obstacle in the way.

"But as Mr. McAneny has revealed to you, that after ten years we may take over not merely what we are now about to build, but we have got them to agree that we may take over the existing subway. You do not read that, some of you, in the newspapers. If you read decent newspapers you would know it. After ten years, as Mr. McAneny explained to you, we can take over any fragments of the system or any two fragments, or all of it. Some people say we have more money than we want now to build it all, and yet in the next breath they say we won't have money enough to take over anything, although we are going to enlarge the city and the taxable values of the city immensely by this system of subways. And there is another thing Mr. McAneny broached to you that I want to have you carry home an absolute knowledge of—the amount that they are making on the present subway we could not take away from them or diminish, but we did get them to agree that in adjusting the earnings of the new branches we are building, their present earnings should never be any larger, but should remain at a fixed figure, and that is the average of the last two years. We think we have the best end of that because I think any sane man who looks at the growth of this city must know that, as the years go by, the earning capacity of this present subway will increase in place of diminishing. So that we had to leave it as it was.

"But it is persistently stated that on the new $77,000,000 which one company is putting in, and the values which the other company is putting in, we are to pay 9 per cent. before the city gets anything at all. Now that is an absolute falsehood. We pay them the interest on their bonds, 5 per cent., plus a 1 per cent. sinking fund, and that sinking fund, as Mr. McAneny has explained to you, is really the city's and for the benefit of the city in the long run. Here is the sum to be paid to the companies for the money they put in. No doubt you will see two newspapers in this city tomorrow morning state the other thing, but I want you to know the truth: (Reading)

"A sum equal to 6 per centum per annum for each of the forty-nine years upon the investment of the Interborough Company in the subway lines and equipment hereinbefore set forth. The investment of the Interborough Company under this clause shall not be less than and shall not exceed $77,000,000, or $58,000,000 for new construction and $21,000,000 for equipment."

"Six per cent., you will notice. Now, the city is next getting the 9 per cent., but they say the company is getting the 9 per cent., or 8.76 per cent. (Reading):

"After the payment of the foregoing obligations to the company, there shall be deducted out of the profits, interest and sinking fund upon the capital provided by the new lines, and such further sum as will bring the payments to be made to the city during the entire period of the forty-nine year lease up to an amount equal to 8.76 per centum upon its capital investment in the original construction of the new subways."

Sarcastic Comment by Mayor on Attitude of Some Newspapers.

Some newspapers will say tomorrow that that is paid to the company, but you heard it read. It is to the city. The company is being paid 6 per cent., next the city 8.76 per cent., and now listen to this (reading):

"The remainder of said profits shall annually be divided between the city and the company, share and share alike."

Now, that is the agreement. Of course, there are a good many people who put credence in what dishonest people who own newspapers may choose to put in them for awhile, but they must be found out sooner or later.

"It has been said here that the workingmen have been deceived about this. They were for a little while. You can deceive some of the workingmen all the time and all of them some of the time, but cannot fool all of them all the time, by a long shot. I guess they are just about as wise as the rest of us when it comes to that. And they are finding out certain people who are misguiding them, and finding that out very fast. The gentleman who spoke here about the eight-hour law is entirely in order. No doubt such a condition will come to pass. The trouble is now that all the eight-hour laws we passed in this State so far have been declared void by the Court of Appeals as unconstitutional on the ground that they take away from the workingman the inestimable liberty to work all night if he wants to, and all day, under the clause of the Constitution which says you shall not deprive a man of his liberty without due process of law. Our fathers thought that meant you should not lock a man up, but it seems it means now that you shall not take away from a man or a woman the liberty to work all the twenty-four hours of the day and night if they see fit. That is the modern interpretation. So you see where you have got to go to get that thing straightened out. I am satisfied of this, although I would not allow Dr. Zimmerman to go into it, that everybody in the city now knows, in all events, that my associates in this matter, both in the Board of Estimate and in the Public Service Commission, are absolutely honest and devoted to the community in this matter, and that we have done the very best that we can do. So that means that I am going to sign the bill."

END OF SHORT BEACH CLUB

Well Known Organization No Longer Popular; Its Affairs to Be Wound Up.

The members of the well-known Suffolk County Sporting Association, known as the Short Beach Club, situated on Sexton's Island, in the Great South Bay, opposite the State Park at Fire Island, have asked Justice Maddox to permit them to wind up the affairs of the club on the ground that conditions have so changed that it is in danger of becoming a losing proposition.

The law firm of Davies, Auerbach, Cornell & Barry appeared before Justice Maddox today, and got an order directing all persons interested to show cause on May 22 why the club shouldn't be dissolved. The trustees making the motion, on behalf of the stockholders, are Horace Havemeyer, Harry B. Hollins, jr.; Harry T. Peters and Charles A. Van Rennsselaer, all of Islip.

Among the many boating, yachting and other sporting clubs of the Great Sputh Bay the Short Beach Club has been very prominent. It was organized on July 7, 1887, and was a favorite resort for the younger members of New York swell sporting set. It now has fifty-seven members, and includes among them August Belmont, jr.; F. G. Bourne, Allen Pinkerton and J. M. Ceballos, with such Brooklynites as J. F. Carlisle of 373 Clinton street; Lewis Mills Gibb of 303 Garfield place, B. R. Meserole of 481 Washington avenue, and J. Adolph Mollenhauer of 156 South Ninth street.

The trustees say that interest in the club has so greatly fallen off because of changed conditions in the Great South Bay that it isn't worth while to keep the club alive. They have made an inventory of the clubhouse and its contents, which is filed with the papers. There is $13,60 on deposit with the Manhattan Trust company. There are very few creditors, the trustees say, and bills for 1912 have been sent out, which will more than cover the liabilities.

DIX'S AUTO WAS STUCK IN MUD

Farmer Demanded $25 to Haul It Out Before He Learned Governor's Identity.

Albany, April 8—Governor Dix told today of an experience he had while returning to Albany from Thomson early yesterday morning. His automobile got stuck in the mud in one of the branch roads leading to the main highway near Cohoes. Making his way to a nearby house, the Governor awakened a farmer to ask for help.

Before driving his team from the barn the farmer demanded $25, but after learning that the automobile was owned by the Governor he refused to take the money. After some insistance the farmer finally accepted $5 for pulling the machine out of the mud and the Governor proceeded to Albany.

CHAUTAUQUA LAKE RISING.

Jamestown, N. Y., April 8—Recent rains have resulted in an unprecedented rise in Chautauqua Lake and its outlet, the Chadakoin River. The water is five feet above its normal level and is steadily rising. A small bridge on Race Alley in this city was carried away today and the water is several feet deep in some of the city streets. Families residing in the flooded district were rescued by firemen in rowboats.

KILLING OF EDITOR LAID TO MRS. SNYDER

Woman Who Claims to Be Wife Held by the Coroner in Manhattan.

TELLS STORY OF HER LIFE.

Weeps Hysterically as She Is Accused of Murder of Man Found Dead in Bathtub.

Following the autopsy made on the body of Walter J. Snyder, editor and manager of the Sports and Times, who was found dead yesterday lying in a bathtub in his apartments at 930 St. Nicholas avenue, Manhattan, the woman whose maiden name was Mary Karn, and who calls herself Mrs. Walter J. Snyder, was sent to the Tombs prison today by Coroner Hellenstein on a charge of murder. She will be kept in the Tombs without bail until April 18, when the inquest will be held into Snyder's death.

The woman who is accused of murdering Snyder by stabbing him four times in the breast with a pair of scissors, wept hysterically while awaiting the arrival of Coroner Hellenstein. She had to wait in the Coroner's office nearly two hours. The first hour she kept herself under control, but later broke down and wept continually.

There was no testimony taken when the coroner arrived. The woman, weeping, was charged with homicide by Detective Garvin of the West 152d street station. As she listened to the charge being read to her, she screamed and buried her face in her hands. So far as is known, there were no friends in the room and none have put in appearance since she was arrested. She seems to have had no friends here, or else they prefer to remain away.

Th two elevator boys in the apartment house where the couple lived—James Sprinor and Isaac Valderde—were held in $100 bail as material witnesses. The bail was supplied by the owner of the apartment house, Harry Herzog.

Mrs. Snyder, as she claims to be, was dressed in a big black hat, light tan suit, a white shirtwaist, white gloves and black shoes.

Before the coroner arrived she chatted with newspaper men and seemed to be unconcerned as to what became of her, and did not seem to care very much about the charge against her.

Woman Tells Her Story to the Newspaper Men.

When asked to make a statement to the newspaper men, she readily agreed, and even smiled as she began to tell her story.

"I was born in Morristown, N. J., where my father has been in various business enterprises," she said. "Besides myself, I have four brothers and four sisters. My father and mother separated when I was quite young. Two of my brothers are dead, but several of my relatives still live in Morristown. Seven years ago Snyder came to Morristown with a man named Barney Demorest, a well-known horseman. They opened a roadhouse there. Shortly before he came to Morristown, he was married to Annie Tracey of Baltimore, but she secured a divorce from him after he had been in Morristown for some time. I met Snyder through friends, and he told me of this. Some time later we were married. We went to Newark, N. J., and liver there for a number of years then we went to Detroit, Mich., where he became secretary of the Detroit Racing Association."

At this point, Mrs. Snyder started to cry, and wrung her hands pitifully.

"He started to go around with other women, and would not listen to me. He met a woman named Yaeger, and became her companion all the time. I stood it as long as I could, and then I came East alone. I came to New York to live and forget. To support myself, I took positions as housekeeper and maid. I tried to forget him, and was getting along all right, when I heard that he had returned to New York with the Yaeger woman.

Went to Live With Snyder Again in Manhattan.

"I wanted to see him. The Old Glory horse sale was on at Madison Square aGrden, and I knew he would be there. So I wrote him a letter to the Garden and he got it. He came to visit me. He was then living at 200 West 140th street with a girl named Kaufield. It makes no difference where I was living at the time.

"We talked of old times, and he declared that he still loved me. I told him I thought we should try to live together again, and he agreed. I told him, however, that he could not come back to me unless he gave up all other women. He said he would."

By this time the woman was weeping hysterically, and had to stop her narrative for sometime before she regained her composure.

"Walter and I then moved to 604 West 145th street," she continued. "We remained there for some time and then went to 930 St. Nicholas avenue. We got along happily but he would not give up other women. We did not quarrel, but that was the only thing that he would not do for me."

The woman stopped and walked excitedly up and down the room, plainly showing that the strain she has been under was fast telling upon her.

Tells of Struggle in Which Snyder Was Stabbed.

"Oh, I never realized the seriousness of it all," she cried, wringing her hands, and, dropping into a chair, she buried her face in her arms.

"I did not realize how bad it was, or I would have called a doctor sooner than I did. We were out late Saturday night, and in the morning as I was fixing my hair, and as he was preparing for his bath, he came in with a handful of water and shot it at me. I said if he didn't stop it I would do something to him.

"'What would yo do?' he asked me.

"'Something awful,' I replied in mock seriousness.

"I had been cutting the ends of the tidy on the bureau with a pair of shears which I held in my hand. He grabbed my hands and drew me toward him and banged my hands in his chest four times. I held the shears in my hands, and they cut him. He then released my hands and went into the bath room. There was some blood on his under shirt and I asked him if he was badly hurt. He said no. While he was in the bath room I washed his underclothes as he only had two suits and one suit was in the wash. I am sorry now that I ever washed the suit with the blood on it. After he had been in the bath room for some time I became worried and went into see what was the matter. He was lying in the tub, and could hardly speak. 'Get a doctor, quick, I am dying,' he just managed to whisper, and that was the last thing he ever said."

"I ran into the hall and went to the telephone. I called up Dr. Azul, but he was not in, and I then 'phoned for Dr. Trout. The 'phone boy said they couldn't get him, so they sent for Dr. O'Neil. When he came he said Walter was dead.

"That's just how it happened," she finished. "My belief is that he only meant to frighten me. It is too bad that I did not 'phone for a doctor before I did."

The woman had to be half carried to the Tombs Prison. She moaned and cried all the way over and it is believed that she will collapse entirely.

Only One of Snyder's Four Wounds Was Fatal.

Coroner's Physician Schultz, after performing an autopsy on the body of Snyder at the morgue this morning, declared that only one of the wounds caused death. There were four wounds, he found, two on the left side, one that entered through the fifth rib, into the covering of the heart. It was this wound, said the physician, that caused death. This resulted in compression of the heart, the blood from the vein flowing into the heart and stoppping its action. The other wound on the left side entered between the fourth and fifth ribs, but did not perforate further. The two wounds on the right side of the chest did not figure at all in the man's death, and were much smaller than the two on the left side.

Snyder lived at least an hour or an hour and a half after the wounds were inflicted, said Dr. Schultz. As to how the wounds were inflicted, the physician did not advance any theories, but said they could have been made with the open blade of a pair of scissors. Whether it would have been possible for the man to have inflicted the wounds himself, the coroner's physician refused to say.

ON April 1, the American Plan Service was discontinued at the Hotel Margaret, 97 Columbia Heights, and a la Carte service introduced, on a very moderately-priced bill of fare.
It will cost but the price of one meal to convince yourself of the quality and the fairness of prices. Table d'Hote Dinner will be served on Easter Sunday from 6 to 8 p.m., at $1.00. 4-8

POLICE AID SOCIETY IS DISBANDED

Mutual Benefit Association Long in Financial Difficulties.

SOME MEMBERS MAY SUE.

Cut in Death Benefit From $1,000 to $500 Precipitated Association's Troubles.

The Brooklyn Police Mutual Aid Association disbanded on Saturday after a meeting that was held in local police headquarters. The organization has been in existence about thirty years and had paid out a lot of money to the widows and orphans of deceased members. Its purpose was life insurance on the mutual plan, and for years it held a clean record. But the consolidation of the Brooklyn with the New York force and the multiplication of benefit societies in the department, was a lingering deathblow to the association.

The young men would not go into the old organization, and many of the old Brooklyn policemen dropped out as the years passed. The new blood in the force did not want to join an association which depended on death for their benefits. They wanted some endowment scheme which would bring them money in case of dismissal or separation from the department.

The last president of the Mutual Aid was Patrolman James J. Mannion of the Prospect Park police. He succeeded Captain Miles O'Reilly about a year ago, and he found his hands full of trouble. There was a vote to reduce the death benefit from $1,000 to $500, and the majority decided in favor of cutting down the amount. The disbursements had been far in excess of the collections and for a long time only half of the $1,00 had been paid to claimants, leaving a balance of $500 still unpaid. Those who were waiting for the other $500 were unwilling to agree to the action of the association reducing the amount and claimed that a contract was a contract and if the full amount was not paid they would sue. The new president was at his wits' end and Lieutenant Charles Lutz, the general secretary, who has been acting since the illness of Thomas Carroll, the former general treasurer, in the dual capacity of secretary and treasurer, could not get in the cash. It was plain that there was need of immediate action, and the heads of the organization decided that the best thing to do was to disband, distribute the money on hand among the claimants and wind up the affairs of the society. The meeting was held and the members decided that this was the only way out of their troubles. There was no dissenting voice.

A number of suits may be commenced against the refunct society for the recovery of unpaid death benefits, but it is not likely that the claimants will recover. The affairs of the Mutual Aid will be wound up in a few days, it is understood, and it is not at all unlikely that some steps will be taken to reorganize the Brooklyn policemen into some other benefit society that will be established on some firmer and more modern basis than the old ones.

"The reason of our failure," said one of the members today, "was that the old men were dying out and that there were few new ones coming in. And the claims that had not been paid were becoming bothersome."

A number of well-known people who were at one time connected with the Police Department were members. This included all of the surviving ex-commissioners of Brooklyn. Only the other day former Commissioner Hayden paid his monthly assessment, and a number of assessments were received from men, formerly on the force, who are on the retired list, and are farming in various parts of the State and in New Jersey.

DEPOSIT PURCHASE BUREAUS.

Ruling by Attorney General That Stores Cannot Solicit Them.

Albany, April 8—Attorney General Carmody, in an opinion today, holds that a domestic corporation organized under the business corporation law must not solicit deposits of money upon which it pays interest and against which purchases may be charged or which may be withdrawn in the form of cash at any time. The Attorney General says this practice is a form of banking.

The opinion was given in response to an inquiry from Superintendent Van Tuyl of the State Banking Department as to the right of a New York City department store to maintain a deposit purchase bureau.

STRIKE VOTE BY ENGINEERS.

Cleveland, O., April 8—The result of the referendum strike vote now being taken by the Brother hood of Locomotive Engineers on Eastern railroads probably will not be made known in New York until April 10, as expected, Grand Chief Warren S. Stone said today.

"The ballots will all be brought in by that time, but it will be impossible to count them so as to announce the result then," said Mr. Stone, "there may be several days delay."

ARRESTED AFTER CHASE.

John Durkin, 35 years old, of 200 West Ninth street, was arrested by Patrolman John J. Keene, of the Fifth avenue station, today, after a chase of several blocks, charged by Thomas Paulson of the Thomas Paulson Company with having stolen a molding pattern valued at $15.

Paulson says he discovered Durkin in the act of taking the pattern through an open window. He gave an alarm, and Durkin ran away, carrying the pattern. Keene, who heard Paulson's cries, gave chase.

ASKS ABOUT ATTACK ON FOREIGN MISSIONS

Why Does "Pastor" Russell Criticise Missionaries, Baltimore Man Wants to Know.

"PASTOR" A PEACEMAKER?

Editorial and Sermon Don't Agree. Say Flock Is Leaving Him.

From Baltimore comes a letter to the Editor of The Eagle, signed by a man who is interested in the attack on foreign missions "Pastor" Russell made a week ago at the Hippodrome immediately after his return from a 'round-the-world trip in 107 days, made for the special purpose of "investigating" foreign missions. In "Pastor" Russell's report of this trip at the Hippodrome he said that the gospel of Christ was no longer preached in the foreign mission field, and that no good was being accomplished because the missionaries were too busy preaching denominational doctrines. The letter to The Eagle says:

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I notice in one of the New York papers of last Monday that Pastor Russell has undertaken to attack the various foreign missnons, an done of his arguments in his attack was that there is not unity enough among the missionaries. It might be well for Pastor Russell to adhere closely to the teachings of the Bible by not trying to take out a mote from somebody's eye when he has a beam in his own eye. He must have forgotten the editorial in his own paper, the Watch Tower, March 15, 1912, on "Love of the Brethren a Crucial Test," stating in that editorial the following: "But it seems that the causes of friction are increasing rather than diminishing. It is proper therefore that we should note the source of the difficulty and thus be enabled to ward off the danger and to be peacemakers among the brethren."

Perhaps the cause for this editorial was the fact that a number of Pastor Russell's followers have left him and others are leaving, on findin gout what he really is. I have recently received a very lengthy open letter which was issued by a number of former members of the Brooklyn Tabernacle (Pastor Russell's) with their name attached to it, and among them is Pastor Russell's former private secretary, who had been with him over ten years, and also Pastor Russell's own niece. In that open letter a number of reasons are stated why they have left Pastor Russell and his Tabernacle, but I will simply quote two of these:

"THAT SERVANT."

"In the issue of the Watch Tower for September 15, 1909, 'Pastor' Russell has personally set forth the view that he alone is 'That Servant' referred to in Matthew xxiv:45-47, Luke xii:42-44."

The second:

"BIBLE STUDIES."

"'Pastor' Russell has through the Watch Tower, and in answer to questions at meetings of the Tabernacle congregation, expressed his disapproval of meetings held for Bible study unless such study was in connection with those works of which he is the author or editor, and has stated that he doubted whether much good had ever been derived from all the independent Bible study undertaken in the past.' Then a request was made at the Brooklyn Tabernacle before the entire congregation of three hundred that a Bible study meeting, long previously in existence in Brooklyn should be continued under the auspices of the Tabernacle ('Pastor' Russell's), the unfavorable remarks made concerning such meetings by 'Pastor' Russell resulted in the request being denied, only seventeen out of the entire number present voting to uphold the principles advocated by 'Pastor' Russell."

The People's Puplit (Pastor Russell's paper) has recently been filling up its pages with fake interviews with Pastor Russell, containing attacks on Mrs. Russell, the Brooklyn Eagle, and others who do not agree with him. It also contains a statement made by Pastor Russell that his (Russell's) sermons are published in over 1,000 newspapers; I heard it stated that this is not so from several sources. Can this statement be verified? Otherwise it ought to be discredited. In fact unless Pastor Russell publishes the names and places of those newspapers that are publishing his sermons, his statements about the 1,000 newspapers publishing his sermons cannot be accepted.

HURRICANE HIT BERMUDIAN.

Returning Travelers Shaken Up as Voyage Was Near End.

The Bermudian, of the Quebes Steamship Company came in from Bermuda this morning with a large number of returning tourists, some of whom told how the end of a quiet trip was enlivened by a hurricane. The steamer ran into yesterday's storm and had a lively time of it for a few hours.

Tearing winds came over the calm summer sea and tossed the passengers around the decks. Women who were reclining in deck chairs enjoying the sunshine were rudely disturbed and forced to rush for shelter.

One of the passengers was Louis L. Mowbray, who was until recently superintendent of the Bermuda Aquarium and Museum in Hamilton. He is an expert, well known in this port, because of the many trips he has made here, bringing specimens of Bermuda fish for the Battery Aquarium. He has resigned his post in Bermuda to go with the Boston Aquarium on June 1. He will return to the island shortly to make additions to the collection he has secured for the Boston institution.

WOMAN BADLY BURNED.

While putting coal on a stove in her home this morning Mrs. Catherine Dunker, 52 years old, a widow, living on the third floor of 437 West Fifty-third street, Manhattan, got too near the blaze and her clothes became ignited. She ran to the hall a mass of flames, and Margaret Flood, a tenant in the house, threw a blanket around her.

The fire department arrived, as did an ambulance. Mrs. Dunker was taken to Flower Hospital by Dr. Andrews, and is in a serious condition from burns of the head, face and body.

THE PHOSSY JAW BILL

Scientific Facts That Are Alleged as to the Proposed Law.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

My attention has been called to an editorial on the "Phossy Jaw" bill, in The Brooklyn Eagle of April 3. I am sure you will be glad to know that there is absolutely no truth in the statement that John T. Huner of Evergreen, L. I., or any other manufacturer, will be obliged to close his factory if President Taft signs the bill which prohibits the use of poisonous phosphorus in the manufacture of matches. Furthermore, you will be interested to know that the most extraordinary attempts to prevent "phossy jaw" by sanitary precautions in match factories, while reducing the number of cases somewhat, has in every country of the world proved a failure. The United States is no exception.

Presumably, you will also be surprised to know that no new machinery is required in the manufacture of strike-anywhere, non-poisonous matches. The change simply requires the substitution of the harmless chemical for the deadly phosphorous now used in the paste into which the splints are dipped.

You will also be pleased to know that several match manufacturers have sold millions of non-poisonous matches, and that one factory, about the size of Mr. Huner's, has been turning out 40 per cent. of its output with the non-poisonous paste.

Particularly you will be pleased to know that they are selling these non-poisonous matches for the same price—6 cents for a box of 500—and that there is absolutely no excuse for the statement that the price of matches will be doubled.

You will be glad to know, as a scientific fact, also, that it has been demonstrated scores of times that "phossy jaw" cannot be prevented merely by keeping the teeth filled.

With reference to the constitutionality of this law, you will be glad to know that that has been definitely settled by the Supreme Court of the United States in several instances where the taxing power has been used for purposes other than raising revenue—as, for example, in the case of McCray vs. U. S., 195 U. S., 27, upholding the constitutionality of the tax on artificially colored oleomargarine, and in the case of the United States Supreme Court in Veazie Bank vs. Feno, where a tax upon State bank notes was held constitutional. These decisions merely confirm the long list of decisions from the time of McCullough vs. Maryland, where Chief Justice Marshall enunciated the famous dictum that the power to tax involves the power to destroy. As Professor Ernst Freund of the Chicago University Law School, and author of "Police Power," "Public Policy" and "Constitutional Rights," has recently said: "It is too late to contend that the taxing power cannot be used for purposes other than that of producing revenue. Hesitation to tax with a view to collateral effects savors of pedantry where it is a question of protecting life and health. I am, therefore, decidedly of the opinion that the provisions of the Esch phosphorus bill are not subject to criticism on the ground of usurpation of power by the Federal Government."

I could quote to you numerous important decisions and opinions of similar effect if it were necessary. I am merely anxious, however, that you understand the situation as it exists, because I value very highly the educational workof The Brooklyn Eagle.

JOHN B. ANDREWS, Secretary.
American Association for Labor Legislation, Metropolitan Building, Manhattan, April 9, 1912.

Authorities generally agree with The Eagle's view; such authorities are unstimulated by Match Trust influences. The apparent errors of the above letter will appear from the following excerpts:

Mr. Huner declared that a tax of 2 cents per 100 on phosphorus matches would soon drive him out of business. He sells his matches at 5 cents per 1,000.—Interview in Eagle, April 1, 1912.

Workers who are exposed to phosphoric vapors are subject to a peculiarly distressing disease, which attacks the jaw and ultimately produces necrosis of the jaw bone; though, with scrupulous attention to ventilation and cleanliness, much of the risk of the disease may be avoided.—Encyclopedia Britannica, Vol. XVii, P. 876.

Chronic phosphorus poisoning consists in poisoning from phosphoric vapors. * * * Those persons only are affected who suffer from decayed teeth.—Quain Dictionary of Medicine, P. 11 64.

Clearly, therefore, the price of the Huner matches is just one-half of the trust price quoted by Mr. Andrews. Clearly, Mr. Huner's view of his industrial future is not so optimistic as Mr. Andrews'. Clearly, ventilation and cleanliness are important factors. Clearly, decayed teeth are the one avenue through which phosphoric fumes get into the system. If these authorities are to be accepted.—Ed. Eagle.

WHERE CARS SHOULD STOP.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I did not vote on the matter of how the trolley cars should stop, as the limit of choice offered by the company was too limited.

I am in favor of the cars stopping on both sides of a street if there are passengers waiting. For at times the near side may be too muddy, or snowy, or blocked by excavations, and the far side be the better to take. Vice versa, of course. Where cars cross other tracks, the rule as to stopping on both sides should be mandatory.

As to eliminating stations in the middle of blocks, I do not care one way or the other; it is immaterial to me. I am not one of those who expect steam railroad speed on city trolley cars.

ARTHUR M. GILLENDER.

THE POSITIVE MR. SMITH.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

The next President of the United States will be Theodore Roosevelt. That will be his second term in office. His first time was only filling out the unexpired term of William McKinley. He was not elected by the people for that place, so it does not count.

The Western people look at it in this manner, and they are going to nominate him and elect him over the heads of all the shouters and squealers of New York City and State.

The Western people know the great benefit of an independent, honest and upright man in the Presidential chair. That is the reason they are going to send the above named gentleman back for a second term.

Mr. Roosevelt is the strongest and best man the Republican party has got at this present time. There would be danger in putting up any other man, because then the party might be beaten. Many say that Mr. Taft could not be elected.

But the principal factor that will have Mr. Roosevelt nominated and elected is a daily paper published here in Manhattan. Yes, this paper brings him up continually before the people. In fact it is making his nomination and election sure.

The other day it had him as a fine fighting man in the ring. Yes, that is the kind of man the country wants for President. Yes, the New York World will elect Mr. Roosevelt.

JOHN HENRY SMITH.
Manhattan, April 17, 1912.

TOO WIDESPREAD.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

As a reader of the people's page of The Eagle, I have noticed "John Henry Smith" has put a lot of wording under the title of "All to Be Saved." Apparently John Henry Smith doesn't care much about saving himself, as he uses lots of space in this valuable paper, repeating his notices, as I have seen this "All to Be Saved" thing a few times, but that is not saying how many times he has inserted it.

John Henry Smith names so many things that should be saved that he most likely affects every Catholic, Protestant and those connected with city and national government doings. Yes, and all general wrongs. Surely his notice in the paper and almost one of sarcasm will not save anything. C. J. L.

APPROVES A. I. D.'S SUGGESTION

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

In your issue of Sunday, April 14, 1912, I read with much interest A. I. D's letter on the subway question, and he certainly has struck the right note in the situation. This proposition of his is one that deserves the interest of every business man in the East Side downtown section of Manhattan, and the proposition, if carried through, would be a source of great relief to the district it affects. Transit facilities in the main for taxpayers in this district seem to be a dead issue, and all the talk points to uptown relief. Why should the downtown merchants' interest be totally ignored in favor of the former? Don't they need, and are they not entitled to some benefit by this lavish expenditure of the city's money? They contribute largely in the way of taxes, while on the other hand, their properties are assessed at a much higher value than many of the uptown sections.

To demonstrate to those Brooklynites who are not acquainted with the details, let me propose that they start some afternoon from Water street and Maiden lane for their homes. If they take the subway it is a question of walking to the Wall or John Street stations (both of which are about the same distance from this given point), or the night boat via Fulton Ferry, take the time both ways. Then after this is figured out, take the approximate time it would take to the same destination if the subway was run as indicated in A. I. D.'s letter, i. e., through Maiden lane and under the river to Brooklyn, and you will readily see that the East Side downtown district has good cause to demaud these subway connections. R. B. Jr.

AN OPINION OF THE EAGLE.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Last Sunday's paper said all the best people read The Eagle. You are right. Last summer I traveled over 800 miles by trolley—all through the New England States—and in every town and city we stopped there was The Eagle, the only Brooklyn paper. My sister traveled with me. She is from Philadelphia, but not a paper from her city was seen. While in California some five years ago, every five days I could get The Eagle. So you see you are pretty well known. I have read it forty years. By keeping your price you have made your paper. It is clean and has all the news one wants to read. B. M. M.

IS HE A PROPHET?

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Signs of the political spring are evident in the budding of candidates' names for the Governorship of New York. No one can foretell who will be the next Governor, but almost anyone can be prophet enough to tell who will not be in the Gubernatorial chair as a result of the next election.

And this is my prophecy, i. e.: It will not be Prendergast or a Roosevelt adherent, or a Roman Catholic. Those three things are quite certain.

Now as to the uncertainties. My preference would be Congressman Calder, or ex-State Senator Fuller. (You see I am not bound by any political ties in State matters because I am opposed to bosses—hence am not a camp follower of Barnes, Murphy, Woodruff, Kracke, Dady, Crimmins or Cohalan.)

Some one of force and character who can say "No" better than Governor Dix can; can say no to increase the salaries for teachers, judges and politicians who are already overpaid; can say no to a revival of betting at horse racing tracks; a positive and emphatic no to prizefighting or fisticuffs at so-called athletic clubs. We want strong men in the Governor's chair, men stronger than the bosses, men who will call graft by its right name of thievery, and prevent it.

NOT "BEAUTIFUL BROOKLYN."

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

While many of our so-called public spirited citizens are vociferously clamoring for a "beautiful Brooklyn" they are planning to saddle our borough with more unsightly elevated structures in sections where their own personal interests may not be affected.

While they are planning to beautify their own section at the expense of the whole city they seem utterly indifferent as to the interests of their fellowmen.

Is it not monstrous that such men should turn upon their neighbors and bankrupt so many, for it means bankruptcy to many of those in front of whose property elevated structures are to be placed and to many owners of property adjacent thereto. It is impossible, as all know, for property owners to get fair consideration for property thus practically confiscated.

All well informed citizens who know anything as to these corporate schemes know that in most cases it is a system of robbers from start to finish. The cry for "beautiful Brooklyn" seems to be a sham and a fraud if we are to install extensions of the elevated system in every direction.

It is time—high time—that motor busses enter upon the scene, as in London and Paris, to help out in transit and that overhead obstructions be dispensed with. With a borough so admirably adapted for subway transit it is a scandal that public officials should gratify the demands of jobbers in transit and barter away the rights of a people.

CONTROVERSY OVER FATHER BELFORD'S ATTACK ON SOCIALISTS WHO OBJECT TO BEING TERMED ANARCHISTS

BULLETS MAY BE NECESSARY.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Mr. Wallace Hedden's letter in yesterday's Eagle proves the real attitude of the Socialist toward the Catholic Church. The case of Giordano Bruno is at least a mooted question, but some non-Catholic writers insist on assuming that there is but one side to the case. Bruno was convicted of heresy, under the law of the country, the crime was punishable by death. Perhaps Mr. Hedden does not know that as late as the eighteenth century Catholic priests and schoolmasters were executed by the English Government in Ireland under the infamous Penal Laws, the same government being a Protestant one. A price was set on the head of the clergyman and schoolmaster. Yet this was under the "Glorious Reformation" ideas. In spite of all of this, it would be unfair to assume that present day Catholics and Protestants would resort to bloodshed to stifle liberty of thought. Father Belford merely stated what plenty of us native born Americans believe; his remarks referred to the action of Socialists stamping on the American flag and attacking the Constitution of the United States. The bullet may yet be necessary to check that sort of thing. Many of those fellows are foreigners who cannot understand our institutions, in fact, never will understand them.

Last year, I witnessed the Socialist May Day parade here; the American flag was carried side by side with the red flag of anarchy. I did not see any Yankee faces among the paraders, no Irish, Germans, nor Scandinavians. Only the undesirable classes of our immigrants were represented, and I wondered how many could be citizens. Some of our Socialistic brethren seem to believe that the right of free speech is intended for themselves alone. They can advocate mob violence, but the man who suggests a mode of punishment for them must be arrested for inciting the public against them. But what else can be expected from foreigners, who (if we had proper immigration laws), could not be admitted to this country. They glorify Ferrer, the anarchist, whose chief claim to bravery lies in the fact that he incited mobs to attack convent schools, in Barcelona, where only women and children would be encountered. A splendid hero, for an equally brave (?) crowd of foreign anarchists.

J. F. B.

BLAMEFULLY INDIFFERENT.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

What a lack of interest is shown by our people to the growth of anarchy and criminal socialism in our midst! And because there is growing up this weed of opposition to law (and a rank growth it is getting to be), some of our public men are mistaking it for "the voice of the people."

Hence the demand for all sorts of iconoclasm, the erection of false gods, the truckling of the Herods, and the beginning of decadence—unless eyes are opened soon to the enormity of the acts and teachings of these undesirable citizens, who are making preachments opposed to law, order, decency, and the Puritan principles of our forefathers on which basis is our republic founded.

These Huns and barbarians come here and attempt to dictate to us how we shall live, what we shall pay, and actually have the audacity to nullify our laws, customs and conventions. With their allies, the Apaches, the Blackhands, the Camorra, the Nihilists and various other gangs and associations banded together for graft, loot, plunder, murder, arson, blackmail and other crimes against society and social order, they intend to upset, destroy, alter and build to suit what they term "the new democracy"—which is really and truly only a mask name to hide the deformity of the mob face and mob spirit behind it. I join with Father Belford in his statement that socialism and anarchy are a menace to the commonwealth.

HENRY M. WEISER.
(A Protestant and an American.)

A REVOLUTIONARY SOCIALIST.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I have been reading your issue of Sunday, April 14, especially the article entitled "Socialism Attacked, Defended, Excused," and as a revolutionary Socialist, also born and brought up a Roman Catholic, it is truly shocking to me to see in the public print such gross ignorance on the part of supposed Catholics. It certainly puts to shame my early training in church matters. I not only believe, but know the virtue of, religion. A deeper study of Socialism has taught it to me. And those who write in your issue of the above date against the Socialism and our science (which it truly is) would be better Catholics if they, too, knew what Socialism means. The writers against it show in their articles that they understand it to be a "political game," as all others. Such, however, is not the case. Socialism is like a die, perfectly square on all sides; no matter which way you turn it, there always is an equal amount of surface exposed. It is many sided; and when you honestly and thoroughly examine each side, and learn what it all means, you, too, will be first a doubter, second a considerer and third a convert. These processes are at work at all times in the human mind, and if you can coax yourself to be a little patient, and investigate, you, like the writer, will eventually find the truth. Economy: Every sensible, sane person tries to practice it; it is a natural law; they who do not practice it are truly not sensible. Socialism is, therefore, primarily economic, teaching economy. The various systems in various countries, kingdoms, empires or republics are systems of economy. In some the people have no say. In the United States the people have a say, as in all constitutional government. In the United States we have great wealth in the hands of a few, and great poverty in the hands of the many. Since this is true, is it not a fact that there must be something wrong? My parents taught me that the Catholic Church goes back to St. Peter's time; that he was our first Pope. That's quite a while ago; and now would it be out of place to ask what has it (the church) done of a lasting character to better the economic state of its millions of faithful believers? For it appears to me today (not as when I was a baby) that the church has much to say in economic matters of the working masses generally. I have many warm friends among the priesthood, and in many private talks with them they have repeatedly assured me that their only duties in life in the church are spiritual; so I am prompted to ask the question of the Rev. Father Belford, Why does he mix himself up in matters that are not of the church—unless it be that the church, according to the reverend father, is a bit vexed on account of the slowness of business, and wishes to destroy our bodies "with a bullet," so he may have the job of saving our souls later. The other writers against Socialism, with Father Belford, appear really silly at this time, when in every walk of life mostly, except the Roman Catholic Church, great numbers of the most sensible, honest and sincere are coming to our movement. Father Belford, you are doing us a wonderfully good service. You are advertising our movement splendidly, and at no cost to the party. Also, you are bringing the matter to the minds of your own flock, and soon they, too, will be with us. Some are with us now, but you don't know it; so I certainly thank you as well as Father Vaughan for this great service you have unwittingly given us. And in closing permit me to say—not unkindly, however—that if you are to destroy Socialism or the Socialists, accept my advice and read it up a little, become acquainted with its meaning to God's creatures and do not hand out propaganda for Socialism, as you have done, without first reading it yourself, though it did come from Scotland.

Christ died on the cross for you and me, father. He would not teach you to murder us Socialists if He were here. Don't teach murder, Father Belford, it's very unbecoming to your station in life; save a life, rather, that a soul may be also saved. Socialism will teach you, as well as it did me, how it can be done.

J. L. RYAN.

A DIRECT ISSUE.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

In your issue of the 12th inst. Mr. Belford says that my interview with him, reported in the Call of the 11th, was "an unqualified lie." Inasmuch as he goes on to tell what he did say to me in the interview which he never gave, I submit that he "queers" himself and relieves me of the necessity of descending into the dirt to bandy lies with him. Since he lays aside the elementary instincts of a gentleman and refers to me as Harrison, I shall refer to him as Belford. That is as far as I care to go in his direction.

Belford is very disingenuous. He knows that the clipping he mentions was from the Call; it was the only paper involved in this affair. Besides, the matter on the other side of the clipping was purely Socialist organization news. Yet he pretends ignorance of its source.

I am not surprised that he should be "roaring mad" at the interview as I write it up, because I referred to him as an ignorant priest. He still is. And he seems unable either to tell the truth or to do the other thing and stick to it. "If I have done wrong," he says, "I desire to take the penalty" (you will see by this that his education is not good enough to enable him to write correct English), "but it is nauseating to be a means of advertising this scum and their unholy party or creed." It might interest others to know that among this "scum" are Hubert Bland and the members of the Catholic Socialist Society of Glasgow, Scotland; Father Thomas McGrady of Bellevue, Father William Poland and many good Catholics. But ignorance such as Belford's is indiscriminate.

The man is absurd. He first says that the Socialist "is the mad dog of society and should be silenced, if need be, by a bullet." Then he double shuffles like a skulking coward and says, "I told him expressly and repeatedly that my critics had put into those words a meaning I never intended, a meaning that did not appear from the context and a meaning that no fair-minded man could possibly take." This is his own English—not mine. Now, in the name of Heaven, or the other place, what does Belford mean? Does he think that all the readers of The Eagle are Jesuits? It was this same tendency to tergiversate that made Charles Kingsley ask, "What, then, does Father Newman mean?" That eminent English Catholic, Dr. St. George Mivart, in a letter to Cardinal Vaughan, referred to those "ecclesiastics who have so profoundly disgusted me by simultaneous assertions and denials." Disgust is the right word, and it exactly describes my feelings in regard to such people.

Let me fix a few points in this controversy. I interviewed Belford. He spoke to me freely and at length, because I interviewed him in the guise of a Catholic. He told me that the Common Cause and the Live Issue were the authoritative Catholic sources of anti-Socialist information. He gave me two copies of the Common Cause and a pamphlet by Herbert Bland on "Socialism and the Catholic Faith." He gave me these as ammunition against Socialism. But the pamphlet was in reality a defense of Socialism by a Catholic layman, and the ignorant priest was misled by the title and had evidently never read the pamphlet itself. He told me that he meant his murderous words to be taken as written—and I am willing to swear to all this before a notary or a court of record. As soon as my interview with him was published, Belford sneaked over to a Brooklyn paper—although the interview was published in a Manhattan paper—and defamed me behind my back. I do not live in Brooklyn, and, therefore, do not read the Brooklyn papers. If it had not been for a cartoon and an article in yesterday's Call I should not have known of his defamatory utterances. Then, like a coward, he "wants controversy closed"—without a word from me. Roma locuta, causa finita est. But it won't do in this day and generation. Teddy Roosevelt is the only man in America who can put himself right by shrieking "liar." Belford has not yet attained that proud preeminence. My word is at least two degrees better than his, because I am not a priest. And I submit that yelling "negro" will not make this advocate of murder a safer moral guide for Brooklyn.

"UNCHRISTIAN, UNAMERICAN."

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Father Belford does not represent the sentiment of all the Catholic people when he says in the Mentor that Socialists should be silenced if need be by a bullet. This is contrary to what I have been taught by the Catholic Church, and is unchristian and unamerican and should be repudiated by all decent citizens. It is just such advice that makes enemies for the Church and tends to drive away its followers. It is a flagrant violation of the Fifth Commandment: "Thou shalt not kill," and according to the Catechism—"We are commanded (by the same Commandment) to live in peace and union with our neighbor, to respect his rights, to seek his spiritual and bodily welfare," etc. How any man, and especially a Catholic priest, can advocate such doctrine is beyond my understanding.

And also says Father Belford, "There seems to be no law to suppress or control him." If this is true then it follows that what the Socialist does is perfectly legal and is within his rights, and consequently is lawabiding.

As for some of your correspondents, calling names and lying is not honest argument. Calling Socialists scum of Europe, free lovers, anarchists, atheists, etc., is not fair play, and is striking below the belt. These are some of the pet names, warmed over, that have been applied to Lincoln, Washington, Columbus and even Christ, and only shows an ignorance that is unpardonable.

OPPOSES RED FLAG.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Entirely aside from the matter of religion I am opposed to the socialists and anarchists who are on the side of disorder and against established law. Their ideas are repulsive to Americans. I would like to drive out of the country all these malcontents and brigands who do not approve of us and who are endeavoring to bring about a reign of terror.

Down with the red flag adherents.

HITS AT PRENDERGAST.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I imagine it is high time that we establish a law whereby all our high officials when away from their duties have such absence deducted from their salary.

The people elected William A. Prendergast to attend to his office as Controller, and not to run all over the country in the interest of the Big Stick.

Wake up, Mr. Municipal Research, to the absence of the Important Ones. Should a poor clerk earning $1.60 a day stay home the secretary of the Finance Department is a live wire and this deduction is quickly made from his $50 a month salary, but is Mr. Prendergast's salary meddled with when he makes these Teddy Tours? Oh, no!

IS ONE WITH FATHER BELFORD.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Although it is not my desire to enter into a controversy with any "mushhead" Roman, I cannot refrain from rejoicing at Father Belford's command that Socialists should be shot as one would shoot mad dogs. I use the word "rejoicing" in all sincerity, for nothing pleases me better than to see Popish priests show what utter idiots they are. This Father Belford has done in his famous (?) diatribe.

The writer is not a Socialist, nor has he ever read any Socialistic textbooks, but as a young man who believes in fair play and the extension of progressive principles, such as municipal ownership, State life insurance and other kindred economic doctrines, he recognizes, as thousands of intelligent Catholics are beginning to recognize, that one of the greatest foes of the progressive movement is the Roman Catholic Church.

I was raised a Catholic and attended for a time a parochial school, but fortunately when I arrived at the age of 13 years I was sent to the public school and to high school, where I found in the teachers there rational humans, and not bigoted parasites, as are the instructors of the Catholic Church. I can honestly respect an ignorant man or woman who worships as a Catholic, for where "ignorance is bliss, etc."; but for the priests and men and women of; let us say, elementary education, who are ordinarily supposed to be endowed with reasoning power, who bow down before the Popish dogma, I have nothing but contempt and class them as either hypocrites or mushheads.

Without entering into a theological discussion of the absurdities of the Roman Catholic Chubch, I would like to ask some honest Catholic if he ever heard of the Popish clergy in this city, or any other city in the United States, trying to obtain shorter hours and more pay for the overworked, underpaid thousands of poor Catholics (not to mention other religions) whose money they so greedily grab in the Sunday collections. Did he ever hear of the Catholic priests of New York or elsewhere banding together to wipe out the "social evil?" Did he ever hear of the Roman clergy trying to wipe out the disgraceful liquor traffic whereby the poor Irish Catholic squanders his money in gin mills? Did he ever hear of the Roman clergy trying to break up the alliance between the crooked politician (generally an Irish Catholic who contributes liberally toward the support of the priests) and the grafters, saloonkeepers and redlight cadets of his district? Did he ever hear of the Roman clergy going to Albany to urge the passage of some legislative measure beneficial to the poor people of the city? I could cite other important things which the Roman clergy have never interested themselves in, but refrain from lack of space. On the other hand, is it not true that the Socialists have tried and are workingly zealously to advance the welfare of the poor people of the cities, irrespective of religion? Let the honest Catholic ask himself these simple questions and then he will no longer wonder why the priests are becoming panic-stricken at the growth of Socialism and the desertion from the Catholic Church of thousands of Irish-Americans like the writer. That is why I say I rejoice at Father Belford's utterance, which has opened the eyes of thousands of Catholics to the bigotry and uselessness of the Roman Church.

WANTS SOCIALISM STUDIED.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

As I thoughtfully peruse one of the "Frank" letters, I am most forcibly reminded that it sounds like one of Father Bernard Vaughan's Lenten sermons on Socialism. All right, "Frank," but please don't confine your study of Socialism to Father Vaughan's sermons, but get some standard work on Socialism by a socialist author. I have copies of all of Father Vaughan's sermons, as reported in the New York Times and The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, and the reverend gentleman's (like all of the exponents of Socialism), whole argument is nothing more or less than misrepresentation. He brings out the old bogeyman that has done duty so long to scare the people, and tells us that Socialism is opposed to religion, and that it will break up the home. If Socialism will break up the home, any faster than is being done today, under the capitalistic system, it would be going some. If you visit our courts you will find the calendar clogged with divorce cases; and there are many instances today of men deserting wife and children because they are unable to get work and provide for them. The only homes that Socialism will break up are the miserable, dirty tenements that are not fit for human habitation; and Socialism will put clean, comfortable and healthful homes in their place. Socialists don't believe in chance, so they are not taking any chances, not even of getting shot by a bullet.

"Frank" makes a lot of assertions in regard to Socialism that are contradicted by facts. Because I believe a certain thing to be true, that does not prove that it is true; and if you believe it to be false, that does not prove that it is false; but if we can prove what we say by facts and our belief has got something tangible and substantial to rest upon, we may assert this, that or the other thing, and it amounts to nothing, unless we can bring forward facts to prove that what we say is true. My reply to "Frank" is simply a denial of all he says.

SOCIALISTS NOT ANARCHISTS.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Will you permit me through your columns to answer at least two opponents of the Socialists. I refer to the Rev. Father Belford of Brooklyn and one Ian Mullaney of Tarrytown, the latter having shown such a sweet and charitable disposition toward Socialists in last Sunday's Eagle. Belford says "shoot them" if necessary—which of course is a most holy procedure according to fifteenth century methods. And now enough of Belford. He is not worth the powder to blow him as far as he would blow a Socialist. The gentleman from Tarrytown is next in order. He refers to the Socialists as "vermin scum" who ought to be hanged to the nearest lamppost. Ian, you have a generous spirit, exactly in keeping with the gentleman of the first part. "Shoot them," "hang them." How different from the precept promulgated 1900 years ago, "Do unto others as ye would have them do unto you." Do you notice the difference, Ian, between the language of the Grandest Being who ever trod the earth and yours? Your language has the savor of some barroom lounger or street corner loafer. "Vermin scum" is good, although not original. No doubt some of ours are "vermin scum," according to you. If they are, my dear friend, they have come to us to have the "scum" cleaned off. Scum of centuries of bigotry, intolerence, hatred of all things uncatholic, and we are willing to wash that "scum" off and make them as clean as their creator intended they should be. Think over this Ian, and don't forget that the average Socialist is cleaner in mind than the man who uses barroom language in deunciation of a class which is spiritually and intellectually as far above him as the limits of the blue sky are above the earth. If you wish to denounce us, you should imitate Father Vaughn, who at least does not resort to vile invectives and cheap wit in his arguments against Socialism. As far as the Anarchists are concerned we have nothing to do with them, and judging from your article in The Eagle, you have the making of an excellent one in you. That'll be about all. A. L.

THE "PASTOR'S" RETURN.

["Pastor Russell is back in town. Why do not the clergy of Brooklyn unite with The Eagle in its efforts to expose this successor of Dowie?"—Letter to Eagle Forum.]

Hark! hark! the dogs do bark,
And the beggars begin to frown,
But here is fact, stiff and stark,
Pastor Russell is back to town!

He has sailed the billowy seas,
And traveled the world up and down;
He has preached under Lebanon's goodly trees,
But now! the Pastor is back to town.

Like rams that skip and run,
And little hills that laugh for glee,
The noble Pastor hath bid us shun
The "isms" of old-time orthodoxy.

O, whence comest thou,
King of the prophets of old,
And whence the garlands on thy brow,
Fairer than fadeless gold?

Hast thou saved London town indeed,
And caused John Bull to frisk his tail,
Joyful to follow thy holy lead,
As upward to Zion he doth sail?

And didst thou not, as Pastor,
Carry hope to benighted Germans, too,
Lest thou shouldst invite disaster,
As neglectful, belated parsons do?

Surely the culture of Goethe's land,
And the clime where Schiller sang,
Shook thy greatly patriarchal hand
With a rip, zip, smash and bang!

And say, thou shrewdest of modern men,
Whose words are sweeter than honey is sweet,
Wilt thou not kindly tell us once again
How to get a corner on "miracle wheat?"

For the days of miracles are never done—
Witness the golden touch of "Mother,"
"Elijah," the "Pastor!"
Though the holy fakirs have loads of fun,
The gold of the faked pours in the faster.

Else whence our spacious, noble hall
On a quiet Sunday afternoon,
With "no collections" at all,
And none to be expected soon?

And then that antique, Aaronic face—
Seen free of charge in Academy or Hippodrome—
How doth this scion of Father Adam's race
Get his "mug" upon the billboard's dome?

O clergy, don your cap and gown!
Refute! Reply! Deny! God save the mark!
Let Pastor Russell wander up and down!

STREET RAILROAD RULES.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

The inclosed is one of many ballots given to passengers on the B. R. T. trolley line in the past few days. I have placed cross in space for first question block (yes), as I think the near side is the better for a stopping place; and to the other question I have answered (no), for the reason that oftentimes schools, fire houses and other important buildings are located in the middle of the block in various parts of the city; and also out of consideration for the old folks a half block either way means a whole lot to an elderly man or woman, who happen to live in the center of a long block, and last but not least, how are the men who operate the cars going to make the allotted time they must lose with people expecting them to stop any place that a passenger takes a notion to leave the car as they do at present. The conductors and motormen are subject to all sorts of insults and reports just because the public at large do not understand what is expected of them. I hope The Eagle will take the matter in hand and publish the final decision made by the B. R. T. for the benefit of passengers and employes.

THE TITANIC EDITORIAL.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I take this opportunity to thank the person who wrote Tuesday's editorial on the Titanic disaster. It certainly was beautiful, and so different from that of a Manhattan paper, which did nothing but "knock" the officials. I, having a relative who was probably lost, was of course deeply interested in the details; but I can say sincerely that nothing was more consoling than Tuesday night's editorial's

A NOVEL SUGGESTION.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Will you allow me to suggest through your columns to the committee of Congress which is to consider new laws relative to safety of oceangoing passenger vessels, the following provisions which seem to me to be as reasonable as the precautions insisted on in all schools against danger from fire.

A passenger's ticket should show not only the number of the berth, but also the number of the seat in a lifeboat which corresponds to the berth; this would insure the existence of a sufficient number of seats in lifeboats. No berth should be sold without assignment to a lifeboat seat.

The law should provide also that once on every trip an emergency drill should be held in which every passenger would learn the exact location of his lifeboat seat.

Why should such instructions and drills be sensible and useful on land in schools and theaters and yet be omitted on the far unsafer ocean?

Such a drill would be welcomed to the passengers as a diversion and good-natured prize competitions for the boat load which was ready first would add an amusing feature to often monotonous journeys.

The necessity for praising the gallantry of men in standing back to allow women to be saved first, constitutes a crime on the part of the steamship company in making such a choice necessary.

RECALLS OTHER DISASTERS.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

The appalling disaster to the Titanic fills the minds of the people of the world to the exclusion of all other thoughts and with an absorbing interest seldom equaled in history.

At such a time our memories naturally revert to other events, which, at the time of their occurrence, awakened the deepest motions of the human heart. Among them I recall the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, which occurred on the same date, forty-seven years ago.

I was in the Pennsylvania depot, at Jersey City on the day that the body of the martyred President passed through it en route to his home at Springfield, Ill. The depot was filled with people, but not a sound was heard, excepting that arising from the movement of trains. There was a brooding solemnity of sorrow and awe. The depot was draped with mourning emblems. Over the entrance to the ferry appeared in large white letters on a black background the words, "Be still and know that I am God." The same deep feeling prevails today, the like shock is felt by every human heart capable of emotion and all turn with a common impulse to the Creator and Ruler of all things and the words quoted in respect to the event of 1865 loom before our mental vision with great spiritual power and point us to the unseen things that are eternal and which dominate the universe.

A halt is called amid the tumult and ambition of the life of today and thought is turned inward; conscience has full sway and our lives are attuned to higher and holier things and we are reminded:

"That though God in His providence may at times send upon us clouds so dark and impenetrable that our hearts sink beneath them, yet the eye of a Christian faith can overlook them all and see within the care of Him who doeth all things well, a bright and happy day that hath no night and whose joys shall never have an end."

TITANIC DISASTER

TO MRS. ISIDOR STRAUS.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

All true women give honor to the brave, noble men of the Titanic who died to save others, I think we respect and love true manhood today, as we never did before.

But I cannot refrain from giving a word of tribute to Mrs. Isidor Straus, the brave, faithful wife who preferred death with her husband to life without him.

Although an entire stranger to me—and of different faith—nevertheless, I bow in love and reverence at the shrine of her true wifehood.

May her unflinching devotion to her husband forever silence the cynicism that the romance of love belongs to youth alone, and that love wanes with mature years. The love of this mature woman would not hope against hope, would take no chances, run no risk in losing her loved one. Hand in hand they walked together in life, so they would in death. How he must have loved her then! O Death, mighty for ages, thou wert robbed, in this hour, by weak woman, of thy sting!

Doubtless, she stood by in all the storms of their lives, and now, in this great tempest of their souls, with encouraging hand in his, she assured him of that which nothing had the power to do heretofore, that death could them not part, that her love was stronger and mightier than death.

How wonderful is the love of woman! Yes, and of man. Did we but give it dominion in life as we do in death, how often we would overcome and conquer where without its sustaining help we fail; life would then make heroes of us all.

May those who are bereaved by her death find consolation that she, too, died a hero. Love had gained victory over death. I know, with a mighty joy in her heart, she deemed it a privilege to die with her life companion.

I trust that God, who is Love, extended His boundless mercy toward her as she stood in His presence. For He himself hath said, no man hath greater love than this.

A WIFE.

REFLECTIONS ON DISASTER.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Having read of the awful loss of life through the sinking of the steamship Titanic, it behooves all of us to find out if we were put on earth for material things only. You will agree with me that an act of Providence shattered in a few moments all the boasts of scientific men that they had built an "unsinkable" ship.

The lesson that we should learn from it ought to be, Trust in God and do the right. Love thy neighbor as thyself.

THE HEROISM OF MEN.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

COLONEL SHAKES UP CO. F, TWENTY-THIRD

COMPANY HAS GONE BACKWARD

Conditions Displeasing to Commanding Officer of the Regiment, So He Intervenes.

Colonel Frank H. Norton, commanding the Twenty-third Regiment, has taken a hand in the troubles of Company F and has placed First Lieutenant James B. De Mott in command, assigning Captain F. S. Greene to duty on the staff. The company is not in the best condition, having only forty-two men—officers, noncommissioned, and privates—in the membership, and Colonel Norton feels this keenly, as F is the company he joined when he entered the National Guard by enlisting in the Twenty-third Regiment.

Two years ago Captain Ball retired from the captaincy and Lieutenant F. S. Greene was chosen. It is said that the colonel did not consider the men had made a wise choice, but he said he would give the new company commanding officer a chance to "make good." As the command has shown no improvement, but rather signs of retrogression, Colonel Norton sent the following order to Captain Greene:

"You are hereby relieved from command of Company F and assigned to duty on the regimental staff. First Lieutenant James B. De Mott is hereby placed in command of the company."

This action by Colonel Norton is very unusual and is the first time he has thus attempted to straighten things out in a company since being elected colonel several years ago.

Lieutenant De Mott was one of the detail of officers of the Twenty-third to go to Texas last spring to receive military instruction in connection with army maneuvers on the Rio Grande. He is popular with the men and recently took twenty of the company on a "tactical walk," without rifles, from Jamaica to Douglaston and return via the old condemned range. The other officer of the company is Second Lieutenant Hall, recently elected.

Next to Captain Norton, now colonel, the most popular officer Company F has had for some years has been the first lieutenant, who has just been assigned to the command of the company.

It was announced at the Fourteenth Regiment Armory Saturday night that Captain M. J. A. Wilson, recently promoted from first lieutenant in Company F, had been assigned to the command of Company L, from which Captain Arthur E. Wenige recently retired under a cloud. Captain Wilson commanded the competitive drill which was the chief military feature of the entertainment given by Company F Saturday evening. Out of a field of thirty starters Corporal Anthony Imhof won the Gillon medal for excellence in infantry work. Sergeant Charles B. Sagona was second, Sergeant Frank Heany, who had won the trophy twice consecutively and needed only a win last night to become permanent possessor of the prize, was among the competitors. The judges were Colonel Foote and Majors Baldwin and Donovan.

Spectators to the number of 2,000 attended the stag at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory Saturday night. There were moving pictures, vaudeville, singing of the National anthem by the throng to the unfurling of the flag, and some sparring and wrestling bouts.

HOLY NAME MEN MEET.

Members Are Urged to Foster Laymen's Retreat Movement.

Laymen's retreats was the topic chiefly discussed yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the delegates of Brooklyn Holy Name Society, at St. Louis Church, Ellery street and Nostrand avenue. William L. Carey of St. John the Baptist Church, chairman of the committee in charge, gave a report on retreats, urging that they be held oftener. His plan is that the Holy Name Society hold these retreats bi-weekly. He recommended the League House, Staten Island, where they are conducted under the direction of the Jesuit Fathers. His report was adopted and he was given a vote of thanks for his excellent work. Rev. Tobias Farrenkopff, assistant pastor of the church, pointed out the great work that such retreats have done in the past, and assured his listeners that participation in them would never be regretted.

The rector of St. Louis Church, the Rev. Jules Jollon, in giving a short history of the Holy Name Society, told the men that it was formed for the purpose of suppressing blasphemy. He stated that although the society had worked wonders in this respect, there is much blasphemy and cursing going on today. So forcibly did the priest dwell on the evil that at the conclusion of his discourse, on a motion, the society decided to investigate the matter and see if something more could be done for the suppression of the evil. For this purpose the officers are to act as a committee in conjunction with the Rt. Rev. Bishop Mundelein, whom they are first to wait on and with whom they expect to devise a plan to put a stop to the use of vile language.

It was reported at the meeting that the society has received no invitation for their July meeting. At this meeting it is the annual custom for the men to journey in a body, sometimes as many as twenty-five thousand of them, to a Long Island parish and there hold services in the open. By this time in previous years the church was usually selected. It is a great event among Holy Name men and they are anxiously waiting to see what Long Island retreat is to welcome them.

David T. Healy presided over the meeting and Joseph Garvey recorded. There was a large attendance. Before the meeting all the delegates attended benediction service conducted by Father Farrenkopff.

HEBREW AUXILIARY DANCE.

The Auxiliary of the Brooklyn Hebrew Home for the Aged, now in course of construction at Dumont street and Howard avenue, gave its first dance of the season on Saturday night at the Imperial. More than 400 people attended and a good sum was realized.

The auxiliary was organized less than nine weeks ago, principally through the efforts of Miss A. R. Houseman, chairman of last night's arrangement committee.

The committees in charge Saturday night were:

Arrangement committee—A. R. Houseman, chairman; Harry Shick, I. Nectar Hofmann, Jeannette Houseman, Reuben Krefetz; J. H. Smolen, floor manager; H. Shick, assistant floor manager; B. Krefetz, assistant floor manager.

The officers of the auxiliary are:

NONE COMES TO BROOKLYN.

Commissioner Waldo got twenty-seven new patrolmen from the school of recruits on Saturday and he did not send any of them to Brooklyn precincts. He assigned them to duty instead in Manhattan. One was sent to Amsterdam avenue where the commissioner has been in the habit of sending the new men in big bunches, and the others were distributed throughout many of the other police districts in Manhattan.

CHILDREN'S MUSEUM NEWS.

Charles R. Luscombe, who has made many models for the Children's Museum, has just completed another, which he has planned as well as constructed. It is of a blast furnace, built on the scale of three-sixteenths of an inch to a foot, and is part of the illustrative material in the mineral collection. Silas C. Wheat has presented a specimen of "A Shell Unusual to the Coast of Long Island," and Allan Nicolay, a young soft-shelled turtle from the Southern United States.

At the Children's Museum the spring flower and tree bulletins have been posted. Lectures at this museum during May are mining industries, geography of Canada, light, plant products useful to man, insects and flowers.

Arrangements for the seventh annual meeting of the American Association of Museums, to be held in Manhattan, June 4 to 7, include a Brooklyn Day on June 6. Luncheon will be taken at the Central Museum, and the afternoon will be spent in visiting the Children's Museum.

"BIG HOUSE" OPENED.

First Spring Dance of Marine and Field Club Enjoyed.

As an experiment the "big house" of the Marine and Field Club was thrown open on Saturday night, a month ahead of time, and a very gay semi-country dance given there, the first of the spring dances of the year. Close to 200 people were present, representing a number of the Brooklyn sets.

The dance had as a feature a number of Columbia men who dined at the club after the inter-class races. Among the people present were:

George L. Beston, Miss Beston, Miss Sarah Beston, Frank Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bellows, Charles Bellows, Miss Ethel Martin, Richard Kettle, Aquiles Lopez, Jeff Vail, Robert Moore, Miss Harriet Marsland, Miss Ruth Field, Charles Brant, James Globon, Miss Evelyn Zorn, Edward Bohnet, Richard Starr, James Jenkins, jr.; Major and Mrs. George G. Cochran, Percy Manzbach, Mr. Cummings, George G. Cochran, jr.; Dwight Austen Cochran, Miss H. D. Valentine, Joseph Valentine, Miss Florence Valentine, Miss Mary Brand, Leaf Brand, Loughton Smith, Miss Helen Tegeloff, Miss Dorothy McCullough, Mr. Bemis, Miss Marian Bemis, Miss Elizabeth Watson, Miss Hazel Bemis, Miss Dorothy Hicks, Philip Hawes, Miss Doris Rude, Mis Mary Dillard, Miss Margery Foote, De Hart Bergen, Floyd Forshay, Miss Edna Thomas, Miss Katherine Thompson, F. C. Thompson, L. H. Stevens, Mrs. Rehage, Miss Ellis, Miss Fitch, Miss Hilda Bohnet, Miss Hazel Behrens, Miss Barbara Brabant, Ernest Kahl, Donald Bennett, Albert Zimmerman, Miss Ada Roy, Miss Hazel Whitney, Miss Bardell, W. H. Van Vleck, Dr. V. W. Weed, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Fairchild, Paul Brew, H. D. Dechand and Irving Smith.

PRESENT STATUS OF UNITY.

During the recent Conservation Congress of the Men and Religion Forward Movement representatives of Disciples, Congregational, and Episcopal churches, held conferences on Christian unity. Four sessions in all took place, one of them bringing together men from all three bodies. It was voted that these movements have assisted the cause, while not organized primarily to do so. It was also voted to make the largest possible use of the summer meetings this year to further unity plans.

The proposed World Conference on Faith and Order, toward which all are working, was declared to be no nearer in point of date. Far more preliminary work has been found necessary than was expected. Reports of unity plans tried out in Australia and South Africa were presented and discussed, and were held to have some bearing upon the situation here and in England. It was the prevailing judgment that the World Conference, when held, should sit in an American and not in an European city. It is an American project.

The striking feature in the unity situation was held to be the growth of the Christ sentiment. That is, the argument that he serves his Church best who serves Christ best was found to be growing, and that as it does so the relative importance of denominational fences diminishes. A result of the conferences was the conclusion that as long as this change is taking place it is well to avoid any possible interruption of it. A waiting policy will, it was felt, awake more sure and practical results of a World Unity Conference. Meetings of representatives of the bodies named, and of others, are to be continued.

MR. WALKER BEGINS WORK.

The Rev. Charles T. Walker, former rector of St. Lydia's Church, began his rectorate yesterday at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Fourth avenue and Fiftieth street, where the Rev. W. T. Ackley was long rector. It was Communion Sunday, but Mr. Walker prefaced the sacrament with a few remarks asking for the hearty co-operation of the people. "I look for loyalty and regard," he said, "and I will endeavor to return the same faithfully. This neighborhood offers a splendid opportunity and it is for you and me to grasp and make the most of." He spoke of the great number of young people present and said that it meant a great deal to a new minister, considering the number of attractions set to lure young folks away from the church. He concluded his talk with congratulatory remarks to the company of the United Boys Brigade of America connected with the church.

HELD A PARTY.

A birthday party was held last night in honor of "Al" Zantic of 295 Twenty-first street. The guests enjoyed themselves with games and dancing. Some of those present were: Miss Adeline Smith, Miss Josephine Smith, Miss Margaret Curry, Miss Anna McCloskey, Miss Grace McCloskey, Miss Helen Wyckoff, Miss Frances Dempsey, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Anna Miller, Miss Helen Zantic, Al Zantic, Joseph Konchell, jr., John Smith, Frank Pinnock, John Studick, George Hoag, Joseph Kimball, John Klein.

ARAL CLUB MEETS.

A regular meeting of the Aral Social Club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Harry Levy, 265 Myrtle avenue, with Harry Levy presiding. Many matters of importance were brought up. The meeting was followed by merrymaking, singing, and dancing being the main features. Refreshments were served.

DR. FELIX ADLER ON SPIRITUAL LIFE

LARGELY SECULAR MOVEMENT

Majority of Mankind Not Advanced Beyond Adolescence in Religious Thinking.

Yesterday morning the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture met for the first time in its new quarters, the Music Hall of the Academy of Music. An address on "The Renewal of Spiritual Life" was made by Dr. Felix Adler, who founded the Ethical Culture Society in New York thirty-six years ago. Dr. Adler said:

"Some say that there is a spiritual revival in the churches today. I see no signs of it. They say there is a new consolation among the Jews. I can see race-feeling asserting itself. Zionism, which is a political reaction against anti-Semitism, standing by the old faith for the sake of the race, but not a new religious feeling. In the Christian churches I see a revival, a new interest in social questions, in labor, in social justice and all this is a most welcome movement, but is not a religious movement. It is moral, if you please; it is largely a secular movement. Some of the most earnest champions of radical reform are to be heard today in the pulpit, but in all these movements I can see not a glimmer of new doctrine. All my life I have been protesting against dogma, that is, doctrine forced upon people; but doctrine we must have, that is, teaching, embodiment of spiritual insight. None of this can I see in what is called the revival in the churches.

"The majority of mankind has not advanced far beyond the adolescent stage of religious thinking. I am not railing at the idea of God, which is to me infinitely previous, but at the conceptions which have been current and which are still allowed to sway. The human race has existed, not for 6,000 years, but for sixty hundred thousand years, no one knows how many. Before that there were the geological epochs, millions on millions of years, the birth of a planet out of the furnace of the suns, before that, the birth of the sun out of some other sun, and so on endlessly. Who can reach the origin of things?

"What right have we to speak of a special Providence exercising special solicitude for us? The germ diseases invade us just as they do the plants or lower animals. If we are shipwrecked the waves engulf us just as they would any lump of clay. There is no use in deceiving ourselves with religious teachings that only dismiss our problems instead of helping us to solve them. If religious truth is to be held, it must be stated on new terms.

"The way to find divinity is along ethical lines. Seek it in yourself and fellows. When I say there is something holy in us I make full allowance for all that is detestable and weak and foolish. These loathsome aspects of human nature are only part of the masquerade in which the something noble and potentially divine appears. Our revolt against them is witness to the presence of a holier nature.

"As evidence, let me allude to the horror, the sense of the forbidden which oppresses us at the tought of touching the honor of a woman by scandalous word or tongue. The poorest lout feels something here inviolable, not to be desecrated. In like manner the remorse of the first murderer has repeated itself, wherever the conscience has not been dulled into insensibility, every time the life of a human being has been taken. The butcher kills flesh and blood every day for our tables; but we feel none of this horror and sense of desecration here. There is in man something more than flesh and blood.

"Another evidence of the something more than physical is the obstinate conviction we have that even the most degenerate can be regenerated. Though we may never live to see the regeneration, though we ourselves may be powerless, we do not abandon the belief that if we applied the proper agencies, if we were wise enough and good enough ourselves, there is no one whom we could not raise again to nobler life, not the most abject creature of the streets into which men have crushed their fellow-beings.

"Now, if you will ask what is that holy thing? It is not easy to express it in words. We know that it is there. Just what it is we cannot get at, if we take the individual alone. The essential character that belongs to man is to be found in the fact of spiritual linkage, in the fact that we are linked life to life in such a way that I live in the life of others. You can make my life reflect the influence of your life simply because you and I are part of one life.

"In this oneness of spiritual life I can find the way to the solving of the world-riddle. And the truth becomes clearer in accordance with my living out the practical injunction which it lays upon me. To understand the religion of spiritual linkage make it your constant effort to elicit the element of perfection in those with whom you come in contact. Study them; try to imagine what they would be without their imperfections. Carry this image about with you; for this is the divine in them. Then make yourself so genuine that you will promote in them the process of becoming like this image. Let the truth in you elicit the truth in others, and your star greet theirs across the gulf of separateness."

"PASTOR" RUSSELL PREACHES

Heralded by advertisements "Pastor" Russell of London and Brooklyn Tabernacles appeared before an audience in the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon to deliver one of his weekly sermons. The "pastor" came on this occasion to find "The Lost Key of Knowledge," or rather to help his hearers find it, for he claims he is already the proud possessor of that useful and lucrative instrument.

Evidently, too, there was a goodly number of persons who desired to find the key, for the opera house was fairly well crowded with men, women and children, in fact, an unusual number of the latter. The "pastor" occupied their attention for nearly an hour and a half, during which time he endeavored with all his power to make present day ministers and doctors of divinity seem no better than the Pharisees, and Scribes of old as far as being hypocrites is concerned.

On the platform with the preacher were three men, one of whom led the audience in hymns, another made several announcements, besides introducing the speaker, and the third led in prayer. The man who made the announcements said "Pastor" Russell would not be heard in the Academy again before the first Sunday in June, but that in the meantime his weekly sermons and Bible studies might be read in two New York daily newspapers.

That the "pastor" and his aids find these Sunday meetings excellent fields for advertising their numerous publications might be gleaned as soon as one entered the door of the Academy and confirmed when one passed out. In the former instance one received an envelope containing, with a hymn sheet, a circular setting forth the merits of the publications of the International Bible Students Association, while at the close each person was handed a copy of the People's Pulpit and the Watch Tower. "Pastor" Russell's own weeklies. There was, indeed, an abundance of literature and young men to hand it out.

SOCIALISM DEBATE.

Volunteer Takes Place of Speaker Who Wanted to Be Paid.

The Brooklyn Philosophical Association closed its lecture season yesterday afternoon with a debate held in the auditorium of the Long Island Business College, on South Eighth street, near Bedford avenue. The subject of the debate was "The Effect of Socialism on the Activities of the Individual." The main speaker on the socialistic side of the argument was to have been Professor George R. Kirkpatrick of the Rand School of Socialism, but, it was stated by the chairman of the meeting, Professor Kirkpatrick said at the last moment that he expected to be paid for his contribution to the "cause." The chairman said that as it had not been the policy of the association to pay the men who spoke at these Sunday afternoon meetings he did not intend to see the association "held up" in this summary fashion, and therefore had secured the services of a speaker who was sufficiently imbued with the spirit of Socialism to give his services without compensation.

Adolph Benevy was the speaker for the affirmative and his opponent was William J. O'Donnell, vice president of the League for Social Order. The debate lasted for more than an hour, and the subject was then thrown open for discussion, in which several men in the audience took part. Music preceded the debate, and the large audience was enthusiastic and generous with its applause to both speakers, in spite of the fact that the large majority of the men and women present were ardent socialists.

SISTERHOOD ENTERTAINS.

A most enjoyable affair was the reception and dance last night under the auspices of the Sisterhood of Temple Beth Israel Ansche Emes, in the vestry rooms of the Temple, Court and Harrison streets. The proceeds will go to the Talmud Torah. The committee in charge were: Mrs. L. Summer, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Weinberg, Mrs. H. Goldsmith, and Mrs. Copland. The officers of the Sisterhood are: Mrs. P. Weinberg, president; Mrs. A. Wolfe, vice president; Mrs. Goldfob, secretary; Mrs. H. Alexander, treasurer.

Their Hands Cracked Open, Resinol Cured

Also "O. K." for Dandruff, Old Sores, Cuts, Burns and Pimples.

Out of her wide experience with Resinol Soap and Ointment, Mrs. Mary Rollman says: "I have tried Resinol Soap and Ointment for dandruff, for the face and hands, and for lots of cuts, old sores and burns, and find them O. K. Last year a friend's hands were terribly cracked open and bleeding. He called it 'eczema,' and said that nothing did him any good. I gave him part of my jar of Resinol Ointment, and the next time I saw him his hands were well by using the Resinol Ointment. I gave some to another friend for her hands. She had eczema, and had been treating them, but it did not help her any. She could not put her hands in water, they were cracked open so badly. Resinol Ointment cured her, too."—Elk Garden, W. Va., April 10, 1912.

And Miss Agnes Strey, of Chicago, says: "I have used Resinol Soap for over two years and find it the best I have ever used. It cured me of pimples and blackheads. My face was covered with them, but is now as clear as a baby's."

Resinol Soap and Ointment not only do all that these letters suggest, but they stop itching at once, and prove the quickest, easiest and cheapest treatment for tormenting, unsightly skin and scalp eruptions, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, scalds, wounds and especially itching, inflamed piles. Recommended and sold by your druggist (Soap 25c, Ointment 50c and $1), but a generous sample of each may be had on application to Dept. 2-R, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

FORWARD MOVEMENT PLANS ARE MATURED

STRONG COMMITTEE IN CHARGE

Plans for continuing the work of the Men and Religion Forward Movement in Brooklyn were announced today by the officers of the committee which conducted the recent campaign of the movement. The conservation committee, appointed at the closing meeting to formulate a plan of continuation, has made its report, which has been approved by the Brooklyn committee of one hundred, and the workers in the Forward Movement are now preparing to continue the movement under the new form of organization.

According to the plan, the churches are now joining the Federation of Churches with practical unanimity, as is being done in Manhattan.

Pastors and laymen who participated in the work of the Forward Movement in Brooklyn were unwilling to give up their local organization, fearing a loss of efficiency if the headquarters and machinery of the new union of the churches should be transferred to Manhattan. This objection was readily overcome by the decision to have a Brooklyn and Queens committee for the Federation of Churches, with a separate headquarters and with full authority in local matters. The budget for the federation will be raised and disbursed in one general fund for the entire city, and some of the secretaries will serve in all parts of the city, but in most respects the result of this arrangement will be that the churches of Brooklyn and Queens have a virtually independent union for interchurch work.

Clinton L. Rossiter to Head Committee.

Dr. George W. Brush, who was chairman of the Brooklyn committee, has been urged to take the chairmanship of the Brooklyn and Queens committee of the Federation of Churches, but, as has been stated, has declined on account of the pressure of other duties. Clinton L. Rossiter has been agreed upon as the new chairman. The vice chairmen are to be the Rev. Robert Bagnell, pastor of Janes M. E. Church; the Rev. William G. McCready, rector of St. Peter's P. E. Church, and James H. Post, for Brooklyn; and Samuel R. Smith, president of the Bank of Long Island, for Queens.

Herbert B. Brush, who was executive secretary of the Forward Movement committee and had charge of the executive work of the campaign, will remain in charge under the new form of organization, with the title of Men and Religion Secretary. C. W. Dietrich of the Central Y. M. C. A., who was recording secretary of the original committee, is to remain in that capacity in the new one. Charles A. Hull succeeds James H. Post as treasurer.

The rooms on the seventh floor of the Real Estate Exchange have been retained as the offices of the Brooklyn and Queens committee. They will be the headquarters for all interchurch activities in Brooklyn and Queens along the lines mapped out by the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

A new finance committee has been formed, consisting of James H. Post, chairman; Clinton L. Rossiter, Charles A. Hull, C. J. Peabody, D. W. McWilliams, Ezra B. Tuttle, H. F. Mollenbauer, Herbert K. Twitchell and F. A. M. Burrell. The district plans will be continued with committees on all phases of the work, with Frank Harvey Field for the Bible Study Committee, Frank L. Brown on Boys Work. The Rev. John Howard Melish succeeds Dr. George J. Fisher as chairman of the Committee on Social Service. The Rev. Dr. Theodore S. Henderson succeeds Herbert K. Twitchell as chairman of the Committee on Evangelism. Edward F. Cragin succeeds Charles A. Hull as chairman of the Committee on Missions.

Some of the district committees have reorganized and are now hard at work. Activity is particularly marked in the East New York district, where Municipal Court Justice Edward A. Richards, jr., has been re-elected chairman, and almost all of the churches have joined the Federation. Each church has been assigned certain blocks in the district, to prevent duplication of effort, and the men of the churches are making a house-to-house canvass of their blocks to prepare a church census of the district. Lists are being made of the church attendants of each denomination, of those who have leanings toward one denomination or another, and of those who have no church affiliations at all. This information is to be used later in a campaign to arouse the people generally to greater interest in the churches and in church work. Other districts will soon be busy with the same task. The institute idea is to be continued.

The Rev. Leslie Willis Sprague of Brooklyn is one of the first to be selected for a position on the new greater city staff of the Federation of Churches. He has been made secretary for neighborhood and social service and has given up his position as assistant pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims to devote his entire time to his new duties. He has headquarters both at the Brooklyn office, at 189 Montague street, and at the Manhattan office, at 200 Fifth avenue. The Rev. Walter Laidlaw is executive secretary for the entire city and George L. Leonard is financial secretary.

The recommendations contained in the report of the Brooklyn Conservation Committee, which were published at the time, are now being carried out by the churches.

BEGINS TWENTIETH YEAR.

The Rev. Erwin Dennett in Tabernacle Baptist Church.

The Rev. Erwin Dennett, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, Third place and Clinton street, celebrated the beginning of his twentieth year as pastor yesterday. His morning sermon was based on Psalm c:4, 5. His subject in the evening was "The Endurance of God's Truth and the Instability of Earthly Things."

Mr. Dennett only recently returned from an extended trip in the Orient and Palestine, through the courtesy of his congregation. He first came to Tabernacle Baptist Church from Roslindale, a suburb of Boston, twenty years ago, and preached his initial sermon to the congregation on Sunday, May 7, 1893.

ROUND TABLE CLUB DANCE.

A large attendance marked the annual shirtwaist dance of the Round Table Club at the New Palm Garden, in Sackman street, near Liberty avenue, on Saturday night. The function proved the most successful yet given by the club. The floor committee included Henry Kaplan, Moe A. Greenfield and Milton H. Bookfer. The club's officers are as follows: Milton H. Bookfer, president; Benjamin M. Fisher, vice president; George Margolin, recording secretary; Morris Greenfield, financial secretary; Max Rolheim, treasurer, and Harry Goldberg, sergeant-at-arms.

Court Rules That It Would Be Unfair to Indicted Men to Go On With Case Now.

Justice Crane in the special term for motions today, refused pointblank to adjourn a proceeding brought to oust the Carroll forces from control in the Fourteenth Assembly District until the criminal indictments against O'Reilly, Carroll and their friends had been disposed of. It would be manifestly unfair to the indicted men to do so, Justice Crane held, and he set the hearing in the civil action down for Wednesday, May 15, at 2 p.m.

The proceeding before Justice Crane was brought by John McKeon of 165 Bedford avenue, Daniel J. Carroll's opponent in the Fourteenth Assembly District. McKeon, who is represented by Lawyer Ira L. Rosenson, asserts that gross frauds were perpetrated by the other side in the Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Election districts of the Fourteenth Assembly District on primary day, March 26 last, and that the election of the Carroll men as members of the Democratic county ticket, and as delegates to the various conventions are void. McKeon demands a new primary election.

When Justice Crane called the case this morning, Lawyer Robert H. Wilson appeared for Lawyer Rosenson, who was otherwise engaged, and asked for a postponement of the argument until the O'Reilly and Carroll indictments were disposed of. To this ex-Assistant District Attorney Elder strenuously objected on the ground that it would be extremely prejudicial to his clients, the indicted men. Justice Crane took this view, too, and announced he would go ahead with the argument as soon as the attorneys could fix upon a day on which all could be present.

The Board of Elections, which was represented by Assistant Corporation Counsel Shanks, took no active part in the debate, and all agreed upon May 15 as the day for argument.

MOSER ESTATE OVER $500,000

An estate of over $500,000 was left by John M. Moser of 222 Hancock street, who died July 26, 1911. The principal part of the property consists of bonds and shares of stock in the Frank Brewery Company. The will of Mr. Moser gave all to members of the family.

The report of the State Transfer Tax Appraiser has been filed in the office of Surrogate Ketcham. The house at 222 Hancock street, which was given to the widow, Mrs. Ottilie Moser, has been appraised at $11,500, and the summer residence at Far Rockaway at $17,000. A membership certificate of the New York Produce Exchange is rated at $320. Mr. Moser owned 188 $1,000 6 per cent. bonds of the Frank Brewery Company, which are appraised at par, and 2,555 shares of the stock in the same company, which are listed at 83 1-3, making a total of $212,916.66 worth of stock. The gross amount of the estate is $578,492.72.

This sum is distributed in varying proportions among the widow, and following children: Mrs. Clara Friedman of 211 Hancock street; Mrs. Tillie Wuennberg of 544 Fourth street; William Moser of 573 Decatur street, and Elsie Moser of 222 Hancock street. Five grandchildren also share in the property.

MARITIME CONFERENCE.

Called on Kaiser's Initiative, It Will Discuss Ocean Traffic Affairs.

Berlin, May 6—The Maritime Conference called on Emperor William's initiative in consequence of the Titanic disaster was opened today at the Department of the Interior under the presidency of the Secretary of State.

A large gathering of department officials, representatives of the transatlantic shipping companies, shipbuilders, marine associations, etc., is present and questions relating to life saving equipment, ocean routes, wireless telegraphy, bulkheads and speed are to be considered. The conference is expected to last a considerable time.

MINERS MEET THIS WEEK.

Convention to Consider Ratification of Wage Agreement.

Philadelphia, May 6—The call having been issued for a tri-district convention at Wilkes-Barre on May 14 to consider the wage arrangement agreed upon by the sub-committee of miners and operators, the anthracite mine workers will this week occupy their time by electing delegates to the meeting. Every local union of the miners' organization in the region will elect delegates in proportion to membership.

Sentiment on the question of ratifying the agreement in the face of the action of the executive boards of the three districts in voting it down, appears to be divided. Some of the local unions have endorsed the action of the executive boards, while others have appeared satisfied with the tentative agreement.

ARBUCKLE APPRAISER NAMED.

Surrogate Ketcham has signed an order designating James J. Monahan as the State Transfer Tax Appraiser of the estate of John Arbuckle. The heirs, Mrs. Catherine A. Jamison and Miss Christina Arbuckle, have deposited bonds amounting to $1,500,000 with the Brooklyn Trust Company with which to meet the tax as soon as the amount is ascertained.

There will be no tax on the first $5,000, since the heirs are sisters of Mr. Arbuckle. On the remainder a graduated tax up to 4 per cent. will be levied. Until the question as to who will administer the estate has been settled no proceedings in the appraisal can be had.

The matter of an administrator will be argued before the Surrogate tomorrow.

WIFE AND CHILDREN.

NO TRACE IS FOUND OF GIRL'S ASSAILANT

HER DESCRIPTION IS VAGUE.

Can Only Tell He Was a White Man, Very Tall, and Had a Rough Face.

No trace of the man who criminally assaulted Virginia Dolen, the 12-year-old Coney Island girl, last night, has been discovered by the police, who today are scouring the section for the man. The description available is very vague.

The girl was sent out by her mother, Mrs. Sarah Dolen, from her home, 17 New street, Coney Island, to mail a letter, and when she returned, on a suggestion from her brother, James, was sent after some ice cream. Taking the customary short cut across a field near the car barns, she was suddenly attacked from the rear. A rough hand was pressed over her eyes, and for a second the child thought it was some playmate and made no outcry.

Then the man told her to make no noise or he would murder her. He asked her name, and the address of her parents, and receiving no reply, told her she was a clever girl not to talk.

In the meantime the girl's mother became alarmed at the child's absence and started to look for her. As she, too, crossed the field she heard a man and called out in the darkness, asking what was the matter. A man's voice answered: "What in —— do you want to know for?"

Then the man jumped up and leaped a wall. Scarcely looking at the girl, the mother failed to recognize her, and started after the man. He ran down Neptune avenue and then several other people joined in the chase, but the man escaped.

Mrs. Lolen and the crowd started back to the field and carried the unconscious girl to the residence of Dr. P. J. Nash, Neptune avenue and Cortland street, where the girl was found to be badly bruised and suffering from fright.

The police reserves were immediately sent out on the case, but search for the girl's assailant so far has failed.

This morning the child was slightly better, and Dr. Nash said that she would recover despite her maltreatment. She attends Public School No. 100, is in Class 5B, and is known as a smart student. She stated today that she could only give a vague description of the man because it was dark. She knows he was a white man, was very tall, had a rough face and wore a light cap.

FOUR HELD FOR ASSAULT.

One Man May Die as Result of Melee in Amusement Park.

Thomas Ramsy, Michael J. Markey, Henry Lundsey, Joseph Sullivan and Henry Hellike, were today held by Magistrate Miller, in the Flushing court, in $1,000 bail each for examination on Wednesday, on a charge of assault in the first degree. The four men were members of a party that went to Feltman's Park yesterday afternoon on an outing.

It is alleged that they stole some beer and when accused of the theft, started a fight, and when Special Officer Jacob Siekel interfered, he was struck on the jaw.

During the melee, Charles Phenix, 16 years old, of 153 Cherry street, Manhattan, who was with the other youths, received two stab wounds in the back. Phenix started for home but when he reached the New York end of the Brooklyn Bridge, he collapsed and was taken to the Governeur Hospital, where it was said this morning he was not expected to recover.

HAD LONG SEARCH FOR PARSON

Brooklyn Man Found Marriage Hard to Accomplish.

Yonkers, N. Y., May 6—Difficulties and discouragements encountered by Carl Frederick Selburg, jr., of Flatbush, Brooklyn, a cashier, in getting married on Monday here to Miss Mabel E. Weisbecker of Belmar, N. J., became known today.

First, the couple motored from New York to Greenwich, Conn. Town Clerk Wells would not issue a marriage license because Miss Weisbecker was only 18 years of age. Cruel Connecticut laws necessitate both parties being over 21.

Visiting another village near Greenwich, the couple were refused a license on the same grounds.

It was at Harrison, Westchester County, that they finally secured a license from Deputy Town Clerk Coxe. Going to the Harrison Presbyterian parsonage, they were disappointed to find that the Rev. Lester Bent, the new pastor, had not been ordained and could not marry them. At his suggestion, they went to Rye and asked the Rev. Douglas Putnam Birnie to tie the knot. He looked askance at the license, because it was not obtained in Rye, and declined to perform the ceremony.

With ebbing hopes, they motored to Port Chester and called at the residence of the Rev. Arthur Boynton, pastor of the Methodist Church. He quickly married them, and as the bridal auto headed for Manhattan even the Boston bull terrier, which had accompanied the couple on their search, looked happy.

SUPT. WYBURN TALKS.

Water Street Mission Converts at Bedford Branch, Y. M. C. A.

John H. Wyburn, superintendent of the McAuley Water Street Mission, was the speaker yesterday afternoon at the Bedford Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association. The meeting was held in the lobby, the auditorium meetings having closed the previous Sunday, with an address by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Superintendent Wyburn spoke of the power of Christ over the lives of men, and told of his own conversion, he having been reclaimed from the life of a drunkard by the gospel. A number of the converts of the mission gave interesting testimonies.

PLAN TENNIS TOURNAMENTS.

Baldwin, L. I., May 6—Tennis will be a favorite pastime in this village this season. On Decoration Day the Baldwin Tennis Club will open its courts, and it is reported that interesting tournaments will be arranged for the months of June and July. The committee has prepared a schedule of matches with other Long Island clubs, and another schedule of games among the members of the club for local supremacy. The club is desirous of adding several members to the roll, and a cordial invitation has been extended to lovers of tennis to attend the games to be played.

TO EVADE REPORTERS BRINGS SUIT HERE

While Attorney in Divorce Action Explains Reason Six Scribes Take Notes.

SUIT IS NOT DEFENDED.

Mrs. Mary S. Sidway Asks $600 a Month Alimony From Harold S. Sidway.

Asserting that her husband's mother was "immensely wealthy" and had been supporting him at the rate of $7,000 a year for fifteen years, Mrs. Mary S. Sidway asked Justice Crane today for $600 a month alimony and $2,000 counsel fee from Harold S. Sidway, a loan broker of 156 Broadway, Manhattan, in her suit for an absolute divorce. The Sidways were married in London, England, on December 19, 1897, and have two children, James and Franklin, the former being away at St. Luke's School in Wayne, Pa. Mrs. Sidway says that her husband has been lavishing his love and affection upon one Maude C. Love since May, 1910, and living with her as man and wife in Manhattan.

A rather unusual reason was given by the plaintiff's attorney for bringing the action in Kings County, as it was stated Mrs. Sidway lives in Broome County and Sidway in the Morris Hall apartments, upper Manhattan. It was thought the action would not have as much publicity in Brooklyn as in Manhattan, counsel said, "where the court reporters were as numerous as flies." At least six reporters were present as the remark was made, all industriously taking notes of the case.

Sidway, it appears, is the son of Mrs. Franklin Sidway of Buffalo, N. Y., and Pittsfield, Mass. He was in court sitting with his attorney, who indicated there would be no strenuous opposition to the wife getting a decree, if she was entitled to it, but, counsel said, he didn't wish the court to get the idea that Sidway was rolling in wealth, just because his mother was reputed wealthy. All that he was really getting, his lawyer said, was about $2,400 a year, about $1,000 of which was commissions from his business as a real estate broker. He wasn't getting a cent from his mother nowadays, he said.

Mrs. Sidway's attorney declared that Sidway was paying $125 a month for the apartment in which the wife says, he is living with the Love woman. And there are appended to the papers statements of expenses, which include bills from stores which Mrs. Sidway says, were articles of female apparel bought on her account but given to the corespondent. Sidway denies all the allegations of the complaint, but says in his answer that he has instructed his lawyer to put in no defense to his wife's action.

BROOKLYN MAN HONORED.

John A. F. Randolph, a Brooklyn boy at Columbia University, class of 1913, has recently been honored in being elected

Mr. Randolph is an Erasmus Hall graduate, class of '09, and earned laurels there as a debater, being president of the Senate Debating Society at one time. He spent his freshman year at Dartmouth College, and was captain of the freshman debating team.

He later entered Columbia, to take the law course there, and is a member of Philolexian Literary Society, Chi Phi, the Politics Club, King's Crown and the Glee Club.

NEW BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

The Trow Business Directory for the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens for 1912 has just been issued. It is a far more comprehensive volume than anything of the kind hitherto issued, even by the Trow Company.

The publishers state that the information contained in the directory was obtained by a house-to-house canvass of all business places in the entire territory of Brooklyn and Queens, from Coney Island on the south to Flushing on the north, and from the East River to the Queens easterly limit.

The boroughs are entirely separate in the book, and the various businesses are classified and easily looked up by exceptionally good indices. The Brooklyn section also contains a street directory. Another little convenience is the printing of the Brooklyn section on pink paper, and that of Queens on yellow.

The book speaks eloquently of the great progress made by the business men of Brooklyn and Queens, and should be highly valuable as a handy reference book.

BROOKLYNITES AT ASBURY.

Asbury Park, May 6—The homecoming of William L. Keenan and his wife, who was Miss Isabel Morgan of Greenpoint, Brooklyn, on Wednesday, May 8, to begin housekeeping in a bungalow built for the two at Wanamassa, will be celebrated that evening at William Griffin's Hotel in Wanamassa. Many friends will gather to join in the welcoming.

Mrs. Marvin Briggs of Brooklyn spent the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Ross of Ocean Grove.

PASTOR IS PRAISED FOR THIEF TAKING

MILK WAGON DRIVER HELPED.

The Rev. Dr. Herman E. Schnatz, pastor of the Bushwick Avenue German Presbyterian Church, Bushwick avenue and Ralph street, suffered little or no ill effects from his strenuous experience in capturing a buglar early yesterday morning. His friends continued to call at the parsonage today to extend their sympathies for the shock occasioned by the intrusion of the burglar and to compliment him for his fine work in capturing his man.

Hugh Lisk, 22 years old, the man who broke into Pastor Schnatz's church and then into the parsonage will have two serious charges to answer when he appears in the Gates avenue court on Wednesday next. Pastor Schnatz will press a charge of burglary, charging the prisoner with having stolen a gold watch and two gold chains, and Policeman Charles Hoffman will accuse him of felonious assault. Hoffman is still nursing a lacerated finger, which was bitten when he tackled Lisk in a cellar of a house.

Lisk gave his home address as 46 Jefferson avenue, Richmond Hill. The police say they suspect that he hails from Kansas City. According to papers in his pocket he served in the United States Navy and was discharged on February 23, 1909. He was held in $3,500 bail.

It was shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday morning when Miss Elizabeth Meiss, guest in the pastor's home, was awakened by footsteps in her room on the second floor of the parsonage. She sat up in bed and saw a man. When he saw her he disappeared.

Miss Meiss screamed and awakened Dr. Schnatz and his wife. The pastor sent his wife and Miss Meiss to the floor above, while he went hunting for the intruder.

After searching the building and the church next door, Pastor Schnatz saw a man minus coat, hat and shoes, running down Ralph street. He went after him. The fleeing man ran up Bushwick avenue, and with the aid of a friendly driver of a milk wagon, which he boarded, Dr. Schnatz managed to keep him in view until he disappeared in the cellar of a house. In the meantime the reserves had turned out in response to a call sent by telephone from the parsonage.

Patrolman Hoffman found Lisk in the cellar of the house at 873 Hancock street and arrested him. A watch which Miss Meiss identified as her property was found in the cellar where the prisoner was taken. Lisk's coat, hat and shoes were found in the rear yard. He had broken a glass in the rear of the church to gain entrance and had robbed the poor boxes before going into the parsonage.

RECEPTION TO MGR. BONZANO.

Cardinal and Twelve Bishops to Welcome Papal Delegate.

The Most Rev. John Bonzano, the new apostolic delegate to the United States, will be the guest at a reception this evening at the Catholic Club. President Michael Mulqueen and prominent members of the club have been preparing for the event for weeks, and in many respects it will be the most elaborate ever given under their auspices.

Besides Cardinal Farley, the twelve bishops of his province will be present. The sees to be represented in honor of the representative of Pope Pius X will be Albany, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Newark, Ogdensburg, Rochester, Syracuse and Trenton. Before the reception Cardinal Farley will entertain the delegate and visiting bishops at a dinner in his Madison avenue residence.

William Laurel Harris, secretary of the National Society of Mural Painters, has planned elaborate decorations. The great reception hall will be most effective in the colors of the United States—red, white and blue—and the yellow and gold of the pontiff. At the far end of the room two thrones will be erected, with a background of white and gold. The drapery of the Cardinal's throne will be of old gold, lined with vivid scarlet. Just back of the chairs will be a cloth of gold hanging, strewn with shamrocks, to indicate that the distinguished visiting prelate enjoys the hospitality of the Cardinal Archbishop of New York.

Cardinal Farley and President Mulqueen will make brief addresses, and Mgr. Bonzano will reply.

4 MORE ASSOCIATE COMRADES

Winchester Post No. 197, G. A. R., had a most interesting session at the headquarters in Masonic Temple, Lafayette and Clermont avenues, last Saturday night, mustering in the following well-known citizens as associate comrades of the post: Professor Alfred G. Reeves, Assemblyman George Heiberger, James E. Doherty and William B. Green. After the impressive service of the muster in by Commander Charles W. Strout, the new comrades were called on and expressed their great pleasure in being thus honored by the post, and promising to ever keep in mind the obligation they had taken, and to do their best to carry forward the patriotic work of the veterans in the future.

Commander Strout, after some impressive words of welcome, called on Comrade W. P. Griffith, who impressed upon the new comrades the great importance of the work they would be called upon to do in furthering the patriotic work already done by the Grand Army in establishing forever three things—first, the Union of the States as a great nation; second, the destruction of slavery, and, third, in fostering love for the flag for which the veterans had fought and died, and for which they were ready to fight again, if need be.

Junior Vice Commander Martin Byrne, as chairman of a committee, read a preamble and resolutions, which recited the impressive lesson of the heroic death of Major Archie Butts and Colonel John Jacob Astor on the liner Titanic as an illustration of the soldier spirit that animated the entire nation, and commending their example in all as worthy of emulation. These resolutions were ordered sent to the family of Colonel Astor and to President Taft at the White House. After the adjournment of the post the entire party gathered in the lunchroom upstairs, where a banquet had been prepared by Quartermaster David P. Cameron.

The post will present a marching flag to Public School No. 147, Bushwick avenue, near McKibbin street, on Wednesday night next. A fine programme has been prepared.

ALFRED FAWCETT IS BETTER.

The condition of Alfred Fawcett, brother of the County Judge, was considerably improved today. He is suffering from meningitis at his home, 975 Park place. Dr. Jacob B. Campbell, who is attending, said today that there was a noticeable improvement over yesterday.

MURDER AND HOLDUP ADD TO E. D. TERROR

One Man Shot Dead for Brushing Into Stranger; Another Blackjacked.

CRIMES OF VIOLENCE GROW.

Robberies, Assaults, Holdups and Murders of Daily Occurrence in Bedford Avenue Precinct.

One man was murered in cold blood and another was held up at the point of a pistol, blackjacked and then robbed of his savings early Sunday morning, in the Eastern District. There have been many crimes of violence in the section of late. Sunday's police blotter hardly differed from that of any day preceding and the section is becoming one that is dangerous to walk about in after dark. Last week a fire battalion chief was held up and badly beaten, but the proximity of the police prevented a further outrage and both marauders were arrested.

It was at about 4 o'clock yesterday morning that William Kavanagh, a clerk, 26 years old, who lived in a lodginghouse at 302 Bedford avenue, was mortally wounded by a bullet fired from the revolver of an unknown assailant. The man died later in the Williamsburg Hospital.

Not long afterward Louis Mehl, a butcher of 120 North Fourth street, was held up and robbed of $18, all the money he had with him.

Both the murder and the highway robbery occurred in the Bedford avenue section.

Kavanagh, together with several friends, was coming through Driggs avenue early Sunday morning. When passing Fillmore place he is said to have brushed against a man standing in a shadow. Before Kavanagh could excuse himself, the unknown man had whipped out a revolver and, muttering something in a strange tongue which sounded to Kavanagh's friends like Italian, fired on Kavanagh. The latter fell to the ground with a bullet wound in the abdomen. His friends, a man by the name of McCune and another named Frank Broderick of 1719 Nostrand avenue, were so surprised by the sudden attack that they didn't get a good look at the assailant.

Realizing the seriousness of the wound they called a policeman, who summoned an ambulance from the Williamsburg Hospital. Kavanagh was removed to that institution by Dr. Eckert and died there at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Both Broderick and McCune were detained by the police as material witnesses. Kavanagh was conscious up to a few minutes before his death and in those minutes gave no evidence that could be construed against any one.

Louis Mehl, who was returning home early Sunday morning, from his butcher shop, was stopped at the corner of Berry and North Fourth streets by two men who asked him for the time. Before he could respond he had been struck by a blackjack and felled to the ground.

Mehl had been in a saloon near the scene of the holdup and had displayed a roll of bills. Two men, who were later arrested by the police, are said to have seen him there and then to have followed him out. One man who was arrested and held later in the Manhattan avenue police court on a charge of assault and robbery, gave his name as Tony Kublius, a bartender, 36 years old, of 114 North Fourth street.

HITS AT "PASTOR" RUSSELL.

The Rev. J. E. Robinson Terms His Doctrines Unorthodox.

The Rev. J. Ernest Robinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Sheepshead Bay, who preached for the Rev. Dr. C. P. Cole, who is attending the General Conference in Kansas City, in the Bride Street African M. E. Church yesterday morning attacked the doctrine advanced in sermons preached and distributed by "Pastor" Russell as being unorthodox and dangerous.

Dr. Robinson preached on "Paul's Consecration to the Cause of Christ." His text was Acts xxi, 13: "Then Paul answered, what mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus." Mr. Robinson said:

"'Pastor' Russell's sermons distributed would make you think him orthodox, but those who know theology know that his preaching is not orthodox, and that he is, as Saint Paul said, an heretic. Some of our people, led by such, are persuaded to believe that the principles of our religion are wrong. A woman of about 40 years came near 'losing out' by hearing 'Pastor' Russell, who made her believe that she was wrong."

DOLLARD WILL RECOVER.

The condition of Patrolman Michael Dollard of the Rockaway Beach police station, who was accidentally shot while asleep Saturday morning in the dormitory of the station house, by a fellow officer, Patrolman Eakins, was such this morning that a speedy recovery is looked for.

It was thought Saturday night that the injured policeman would loose the sight of both eyes. Dr. William L. Mulcahy, who, with Dr. S. B. Thomas, house surgeon of St. Joseph's Hospital, operated on Dollard, stated today that the many friends of the unfortunate officer may be assured that he will soon be well, and the sight of one eye saved.

There is widespread sympathy throughout Rockaway Beach for both the policemen. Hundreds of messages of sympathy have been sent to them, and while everyone who meets Eakins assures him that there is none who does not believe the shooting was an accident, he is inconsolable.

That the hand of fate played a strong part in the shooting of Patrolman Dollard came to light yesterday. When he retired Friday night he asked Doorman Brown to call him at 7 o'clock the following morning, as he had a few matters to attend to before going on tour at 11 o'clock.

Brown awakened him at five minutes past 7, but Dollard said he thought he would rest a few minutes longer. Ten minutes later he was unconscious from a bullet from Eakins' revolver.

KAPPER'S DIG AT T. R.

Mineola, May 6—Justice Isaac M. Kapper, who assumed his duties this morning as presiding justice of the May term in Nassau County, took occasion to deliver some caustic comment when no one was ready for trial, in spite of the sixty cases on the calendar.

Judge Kapper opened court promptly and found that there was no quorum of the Grand Jury present, and that not one of the sixty cases to be tried were ready for him. The judge was visibly annoyed at such a state of affairs, and delivered a lecture from the bench, mentioning the waste of time and the fact that such business as was evidently ready for him could have been done over the telephone.

"Yet the air of the whole country," said Justice Kapper, "is saturated by the complaints of a distinguished citizenry of youngr county of the law's delays. People outside of this jurisdiction cannot understand," added the judge, "why these delays should be."

ESCAPES DEATH ON THIRD RAIL

Because he was despondent over marital troubles, David Goldberg, a mail clerk, 28 years of age, living at 332 Vermont street, attempted suicide last night by jumping to the elevated tracks from the Kings County Railroad station at Pennsylvania and Pitkin avenues. Goldberg hit the third rail and then rolled over, hurting only his two arms. His shouts were heard by Switchman Louis Cohen, and the latter ran to his assistance. Goldberg was taken to the Bradford Street Hospital by Ambulance Surgeon Campbell, who found both arms burned, and was later arrested by Policeman Frank Dougherty and taken to the New Jersey avenue police court before Magistrate Voorhels. His escape from death was considered almost miraculous.

Goldberg has been married only since January, but he and his wife separated two weeks after the nuptials because of quarrels. Mrs. Goldberg, who was Gertrude Beutch, said today that she could not get along with her husband's folks. The couple met last night and Goldberg asked his wife to return to him, but she refused. She now lives with her aunt, Mrs. Abraham Sweedlen, at 2220 Pitkin avenue.

CONTESTS IN ARKANSAS.

Regularity Claimed by Both Taft and Roosevelt Workers.

Little Rock, Ark., May 6—Taft and Roosevelt forces in Arkansas will have chances to measure strength in meetings scheduled for today and Tuesday.

The first of these contests will take place tonight. The Fifth District Republican convention has been called and there will be two meetings. The Taft men claim regularity for the meeting they will have, and the Roosevelt workers make counter claims. The contest will be carried to Chicago.

The Roosevelt Republican League of Arkansas and the Republican State Central Committee will have meetings tonight in anticipation of the State convention, which will take place tomorrow. Whether the Roosevelt workers will enter county protests to the committee tonight or wait for tomorrow's convention has not been determined. Both sides express confidence in the outcome of the State convention.

RUSSELL MEETING ENDS IN A ROW

ARRESTED, BUT IS RELEASED.

Letter From India Tells How Tabernacle Agent Secured Y.M.C.A. Auditorium Under Misrepresentation.

Eagle Bureau,
608 Fourteenth street,
Washington, May 12.

Washington, May 12—A meeting which was held in the National Theater here yesterday afternoon by Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle ended in the ejection of one man and the placing under arrest of another.

The man placed under arrest was the Rev. W. C. Cuddy, an evangelist of Washington, who declares that he shaved off his white beard in order to enter the theater unidentified.

The man ejected was Philip Sidersky, a member of the board of directors of the National Federation of Gospel Missions.

The trouble occurred just at the close of the meeting, when Pastor Russell was calling for a hymn to close the services. At this point the Rev. Mr. Cuddy arose from his seat in the gallery and attempted to ask Russell a question. Several men rushed forward and attempted to force him back in his seat and, according to Mr. Sidersky, one of them placed his hand over Mr. Cuddy's mouth while another tried to choke him. When Mr. Sidersky saw this he stepped into the aisle on the first floor of the theater and shouted, "Don't choke an old man."

Several attendants rushed forward and attempted to force Mr. Sidersky from the building, he says. Stepping back he shouted: "Don't touch me. I dare you to have me placed under arrest. If I have done anything contrary to the law of God I am perfectly willing to pay for it."

In the meantime the attendants in the gallery who, Mr. Sidersky claims, are followers of Pastor Russell from Brooklyn and who are alleged to have treated the venerable evangelist roughly, succeeded in ejecting him from the premises where he was later arrested for violating a police regulation governing the scattering of literature in city streets.

The Rev. Mr. Cuddy two years ago, then wearing a flowing white beard, was ejected from a Pastor Russell meeting here for putting a question to the pastor at the conclusion of his sermon. It was for this, he declares, that he shaved off his beard before going to the meeting yesterday in order that he might not be recognized before he had a chance to ask his question. He passed into the gallery and declares that the loss of his beard was no avail, for he was recognized and was closely watched during the sermon. He had hardly risen to his feet to ask his question before he was set upon by three men.

Cuddy Sought to Question Russell's Faith.

The question which Mr. Cuddy attempted to put to Pastor Russell and which was the cause of the disturbance, he declares, to be only a challenge to the Brooklyn pastor in regard to the faith which he preaches. The charge upon which he was placed under arrest was a violation of the law of Washington prohibiting the distribution of copies of a pamphlet, which he had prepared in anticipation of Pastor Russell's sermon here.

No complaint being made by the attendants of the theater in police court this morning he was found guilty on this charge and the court accepted Mr. Cuddy's personal bond to refrain from the distribution of circulars in the future. He was represented by Attorney Louis M. Bernstein.

Mr. Sidersky, who was sitting well forward in the orchestra, knew of Mr. Cuddy's presence in the gallery. He says that when he saw that the evangelist was being treated roughly, he jumped to his feet and shouted the warning. He declares that though he asked that if he had committed an offense the police be summoned and he be placed under arrest, the attendants made no move to call the officers. Several joined in the attempt to eject him, he says, and not wishing to disturb the audience further, for he asserts confusion already reigned, he walked quietly from the building.

His search for Mr. Cuddy outside the building ended at the first precinct police station house, where Mr. Cuddy had been taken and later he raised the necessary collateral for the appearance of the aged evangelist in police court this morning.

To persons who attended the Russell meeting yesterday was handed an open letter from Horace A. Randle of 18 Malden road, Acton, London, England, a former Russellite. In the circular he traces the evolution of Russellism from the worship of God to the worship of Charles Taze Russell.

As an instance of the spirit which dominates Russellism at this time the writer of the open letter mentions the fact that in The Watch Tower of January 1, 1912, avowedly a religious publication, the name of "Pastor" Russell occurs 161 times "and the name of his Master, Jesus Christ—only seven times!"

"Is not that almost a total eclipse?" the writer continues. "I beseech you to cease from your hard quest for dollars, fame and power, which things must surely soon pass away."

The Eagle has received the following letter from a former Brooklynite who is connected with the Y. M. C. A. at Madras, India:

How Russell's Party Secured Auditorium in India for a Mission.

Pastor Russell spoke in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium on the subject, "Parables of the Kingdom." I say he spoke but he did so against our desire. His agent, Driskel, rented the auditorium on the plea that representatives of the International Bible Readers Association wanted to give a Bible reading. When we found it was Pastor Russell and his supposed committee to investigate missions we tried to cancel the appointment, but Driskel had departed and we could not get in touch with Russell's party. It might have led to a lawsuit and, realizing that we had been caught and that he might desire a lawsuit to advertise him at the beginning of his tour in India, we let him speak after the meeting had been dealyed twenty-five minutes, during which time Mr. Ewing, the general secretary, compelled him to agree not to touch upon any doctrinal points. He held out to the last but finally realizing that the audience had waited nearly one-half hour he gave in and consented simply to give a Bible talk. This he did, in part.

The audience was not very large in the Y. M. C. A. and the testimony of Hindus and Christians was that he was most disappointing.

Then, too, what investigation of missions did he or his party do? They came, as one of the printed circulars said, to see if the money which people in America had given was being spent properly. Pastor Russell and party only stopped long enough in a few centers in South India to give one or two addresses and then went on. There was no time in Madras to interview missionaries, government officials or Christians as to the status of missions. They came in Sunday morning, stopped at the Connemara Hotel, the finest hotel in the city, and left Tuesday evening for Calcutta. I spoke with the stationmaster of one of the railways and he told me of the wholesale extravagance. They traveled first-class and then took whole compartments, whether the number filled the compartments full or not.

FINAL REBEL STAND AGAINST FEDERALS

Orozco at Rellano, Where He Has Advantage of Fortifications and Trenches.

LOST 600 MEN IN BATTLE.

Government Also Suffered Heavy Casualties at Conejos—Advance Delayed by Destroyed Bridges.

Admitting that the Government forces are better equipped in artillery, the rebel leader declares he is withdrawing his troops to the vicinity of Rellano so they may have the advantage of the fortifications and trenches from which, three weeks ago, the rebels nearly annihilated the Federal command of General Gonzales Salas, who committed suicide when the battle went against him.

Though rebel casualties in the engagement of yesterday were great, the Liberal leaders declare the government likewise suffered heavily and, except for the loss of important positions at Conejos, they claim an even break in the fighting.

All of the generals and their commands have been ordered to mobilize here where the entire fighting strength of the insurrectos will be thrown against the enemy.

Conejos, Mex., May 13—The rebel advance guard, after the defeat of yesterday at Conejos, fifty-five miles north of Torreon, today was sighted behind Yermo, fourteen miles north of here on the Mexican Central Railroad.

Though skirmishing is expected constantly, another decisive clash probably will not occur for twenty-four hours.

Thus far the advantage has been with the government troops, as they steadily have pushed the rebels northward toward the American border. The superior artillery fire of the government troops, driving the insurrectos so far back that their infantry fire became ineffective, is counted on to force the Orozco army still further northward.

Five bridges spanning wide arroyos, have been destroyed by the insurgents, causing delay to the government troop trains. No fighting was expected today as both sides were occupied with their dead and wounded from yesterday's engagement.

The rebels are believed to have lost six hundred in killed and wounded.

WILL RESUME BANK PROBE.

Hearings in Union Bank Case to Begin Next Monday.

Public hearings in the Union Bank investigation will be resumed next Monday by Assistant District Attorney Louis Goldstein, who is acting as special counsel of the State Banking Department in this case, and by Deputy Superintendent of Banks Edward L. Dodge. It has not yet been decided whether to hold the hearings in the Borough Hall, where District Attorney Cropsey held them last fall, or in the offices of Mr. Dodge in the Temple Bar building.

The public hearings were suspended last fall by direction of the Governor, and early this year as they were about to be resumed, a decision of the Court of Appeals prevented their resumption. Since the decision, the law has been amended, and it is now possible to proceed.

Mr. Goldstein and Mr. Dodge have been hard at work for six weeks looking up various transactions which appear on the books of the closed institution. They expect to have to call some very prominent politicians, it is rumored, to explain "dummy" loans made as far back as 1907 and yet unpaid.

TIGER WOULD BEAT PICTURE ORDINANCE

HOLD CAUCUS TOMORROW.

Fusion Members of Board of Aldermen Sanguine Ordinance Will Pass.

The Fusion majority of the Board of Aldermen will hold a caucus tomorrow at noon on the ordinance drawn by Alderman Ralph Folks and a special committee of the board to regulate moving picture houses in the five boroughs of the city. The caucus has been called, because it has been reported that the powers of the Tammany Wigwam have ordered the Democratic aldermen to prevent the passage of the ordinance. The Tammany leaders are so confident that they will be successful in carrying out these instructions that they are willing to offer odds that the Fusion majority cannot pass the ordinance at the meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Chairman Henry Curran of the Finance Committee made the announcement of the caucus. He said that he was confident that every alderman elected on the Fusion ticket would respond and agree to vote for the adoption of the ordinance. If Mr. Curran's expectations are realized, the Fusion majority will have a few votes to spare on the roll call.

The Tammany contingent in the board seem to believe that Alderman Curran is entirely too optimistic. It is claimed by the opposition to the ordinance that Mr. Curran may find a number of Brooklyn Republicans absent from the caucus. By not attending these, Republicans will not be bound to follow out any instructions the caucus may adopt.

It is the general impression at the City Hall that the idea of the Fusion caucus is to smoke out some of the Brooklyn Republicans, who in the past have been very friendly with Tammany when the Tiger needed their votes.

Civic and Women's Organizations Favor Ordinance.

The majority of the civic organizations in Manhattan and Brooklyn are in favor of the proposed ordinance. The Women's Municipal League oppose it because no provision is made for the appointment of a board of censors to give their approval of the picture films before they are produced in public. The legal experts among the city fathers say that this was purposely left out, because, in their opinion, it would make the ordinance unconstitutional.

The Fusion leaders say that they are willing to take up the question of appointing a board of censors after the Folks ordinance becomes effective.

"We can refer this question to the Corporation Counsel," said Alderman Curran, "and if he decides that such a provision would not invalidate the ordinance, it can be passed later in an amendment."

Folks Discusses the Measure.

Chairman Ralph Folks of the special aldermanic committee discussing the proposed ordinance this afternoon, said among other things:

"A great deal of misunderstanding and some misrepresentation are the causes of some opposition to the proposed ordinance. This measure relates primarily to structural conditions. Its object is to provide proper light, sanitation and fire protection for moving picture shows. There is now no ordinance making definite and certain such requirements. The few opponents to the measure admit that there is immediate and urgent need for such provisions. This ordinance undoubtedly will soon become a law. If by any remote circumstance its passage should be delayed or defeated the opposition will be responsible for any loss of life that may occur. The conditions are serious and need immediate remedy. The price of delay may mean a catastrophe similar to the Asch building fire.

"This ordinance does not omit moral safeguards. It provides for constant inspection of all moving picture theaters by competent inspectors. Isn't it necessary to have such supervision in any event, although there may be censorship prior to exhibition? The administration, maintenance and general conduct of the premises should not be overlooked.

"The question of Sunday opening has recently been raised. If there be exhibitions on Sunday isn't the proper remedy the enforcement of the present law or an amendment to the Sunday law if necessary?

Does Not Approve of Censorship.

"The question of municipal censorship is a very broad one. Such censorship would involve heavy expense to the city. In this connection two questions arise: (1) Are indecent and immoral pictures exhibited in this city? (2) If they are, is municipal censorship the best remedy to prevent such exhibitions?

"In considering the first question, discussion of the functions of the National Board of Censorship is irrelevant; it must be confined to the merits of moving pictures. Hearsay and mere personal whim must be disregarded. Standards of morality, propriety and fitness vary with the individual. It is well to note at this time, however that the Mayor's committee of representative citizens, Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, the National Board of Censorship, the City Club, Citizens Union and hundreds of civic organizations and churches with actual knowledge of conditions have approved the present ordinance without municipal censorship.

"Jail sentences and heavy penalties are now provided. Is it reasonable to suppose that immoral pictures have been or will be exhibited publicly in violation of the penal laws of the State and city? Is an exhibitor likely to run the risk of having his license revoked for the display of an improper picture? Is not the possibility of a jail sentence coupled with financial loss sufficient? Can the manufacturer from a business point of view afford to produce and distribute such pictures in the face of public opinion and inspection by public and private officials? Isn't it the duty of those who demand municipal censorship to produce clear and convincing evidence of unpunished wrongdoing or criminal convictions to establish their case?

"In the event of political influences, one manufacturer might be ruined and another made prosperous. Pictorial events in political life might be released or suppressed according to party influence. Any picture approved, no matter how bad it might be, would bear the badge of official approval. How could it be recalled? Who could be put in jail? Whose license could be revoked?

"The disposition of the question of municipal censorship can be hastened by immediate substantial proof of its necessity. It is to be hoped that those who are interested in this programme will come forward with sufficient proof to warrant such a radical departure as they suggest."

Canon Chase Wants a Censorship.

Churchmen have been asked to unite upon the Folks ordinance concerning motion picture theaters. This ordinance has been approved by the social service committees of both Manhattan and Brooklyn. It provides for a seating capacity in motion picture theaters of 600, instead of 299, as at present; for a better system of exits and ventilation, a set requirement for lighting, the elimination of the vaudeville stage and the concentration of responsibility for licensing in the Mayor's Bureau of Licenses.

Canon William Sheafe Chase has prepared a long statement, in which he advocates the Nicoll ordinance. He says that no objection would have been raised to the Folk ordinance had the Nicoll ordinance been reported first. He says that the Folk ordinances place the responsibility for immoral pictures on the exhibitor and not upon the manufacturers, where it really belongs.

"The method of supervising the morality of the pictures in the Folk ordinance is not the simple, inexpensive and effective way used in Chicago and San Francisco," says the statement.

Brantford, Conn., May 13—Michael Duches, Joseph Kies and Stephen Finta were brought ashore early today by Robert L. Mason in his launch from Taunton Rock, a mile off Indian Neck, where they had been marooned by high seas since early yesterday morning. The men were weak from lack of food.

CIVITAS MEMBERS SEE POLICE COURT

Young Women Seek to Remedy Conditions and Make Inspection Tour.

VISIT GATES AVENUE COURT.

Influential Women's Club Plans to Act on Report of Its Investigators.

Chief Magistrate Kempner and others who have declared that certain of the borough police courts are a "disgrace" to Brooklyn will feel greatly encouraged to learn that the influential woman's organization—the Civitas Club—has set to work in earnest to look into police court conditions here and see what can be done to bring about their improvement, especially with reference to the way unfortunate women are housed.

Two very well gowned and modest young women made an inspection of the Gates Avenue Police Court today. They said that they were both members of the Civitas Club and that they wanted to examine the Gates avenue building first because they had heard it was a model court house. They were especially interested in observing the detention pen for women.

The young women gave their names as Miss C. E. Blankly and Miss M. A. Clement. There was considerable hesitation apparent in their manner and both confessed that they had never witnessed the interior workings of a police court before. They were a bit timid about expressing the nature of their mission "right out in meeting," and a message was sent up to Chief Clerk Charles Nitze, who passed it to Magistrate Nash.

The magistrate smiled and was heard to say "Certainly." Then Court Officer Collins, who is at once the Beau Brummel and Lord Chesterfield of the court squad, was delegated to show the visitors around. Collins accepted his commission with deference and courtesy.

"We understand that the Butler and Adams street courts are perfectly horrible," said the young women. "So we thought we would start in with the best one first and come to Gates avenue." Then they told how interested the Civitas Club was in court conditions and how it meant to urge the erection of new buildings with better accommodations?

The visitors made a thorough inspection, while they were about it, and took many mental notes for future reference at a meeting of the Civitas Club.

It was understood that they were going to the Butler and Adams street courts next.

For those who are interested in the establishment of first-class courthouses in Brooklyn have realized that the Butler street court is little better than an old barn and the Adams street court only a grade or two above that. They are old, unsanitary, greatly overcrowded and not nice to look at. The Butler street court is a ramshackle affair and on some days the atmosphere there is intolerable.

The Flatbush police court is another overcrowded, ancient courtroom in which people are jammed so close together sometimes that it is difficult to move around.

Magistrate Kempner has been very outspoken in the past on the conditions of some of the Brooklyn courts.

There has been a plan on foot which a number of civic organizations have favored to purchase the handsome white building of the Williamsburgh Trust Company at the bridge plaza and use that for courthouse purposes. Magistrate Kempner is said to be in favor of it, and it is understood that the cost would be very moderate.

In the past many of the Brooklyn courts have been situated over saloons, and most of them have out-lived the time for which they were built.

Miss Blankley said this afternoon that there were five members on the committee who have been assigned to the task of inspecting the courts, and that Walter Davis is the chairman. She said that she and Miss Clement found conditions at the Gates avenue court "very good."

Asked what the Civitas Club intended to do, she replied: "We haven't really made any arrangements yet. We will report back at a meeting to be held on May 22, and then it will be decided what to do."

GIRL GOES TO REFORMATORY.

Esther Robbins' Mother Tells Court She Is Uncontrollable.

Esther Robbins, a girl of 17 years, and living at 131 Powell street, was sent to the Bedford Reformatory by Magistrate Voorhees this morning. The girl was brought to the New Jersey avenue court only after repeated promises to reform and after she had been put on probation several times. Her mother, Pauline Robbins, acknowledged that she could not control the girl, and on advice of Probation Officer Mrs. Helen O'Grady, the court determined to send her away.

When Detective Burke went to the girl's home to arrest her she ran to her room and threatened to jump off the fire escape if he came after her. The detective waited in the street below, ready to catch the girl if she put her threat into action. She finally came down and was arrested. The mother said that until two years ago they had lived on and owned a farm in Sullivan County, but upon her husband's death they had moved to Brooklyn. Since then the girl has grown uncontrollable.

BOY THROWN FROM HORSE.

William Ward, a newsboy, 16 years old, of 98 Carlton avenue, was riding a horse across the Manhattan Bridge yesterday morning, when he was thrown to the roadway and sustained concussion of the brain. He was taken to the Brooklyn Hospital by Ambulance Surgeon Herfield.

DR. McAFEE ACCEPTS CALL TO CHICAGO

HIS HEALTH DEMANDS CHANGE

The Rev. Dr. Cleland Boyd McAfee announced to his congregation at the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church at the morning service yesterday that he had decided to accept the call he recently received to the chair of theology in the McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago. Dr. McAfee at the same time asked that a meeting be called to elect commissioners to the next meeting of the presbytery to sever the pastoral relition. That meeting is to be held on May 22. Dr. McAfee's statement to the congregation was in part as follows:

"My Brethren—It is with very mingled feeling that I ask you to agree to my going to Chicago. Let me tell you first some of the general reasons for it. No man who thinks of the church at large as I do could fail to be strongly drawn to so great a work as that of the proposed chair. Its duties are to help young men—half a hundred going out each year—to form a vital, logical, working faith, to clear their thinking and make definite their Christian belief so that they may be teachers who can be trusted and leaders who can be followed.

"Any man might hesitate long before he undertook to be a teacher of men who will preach the gospel in these disturbing and disturbed times, but if it became clear to him that he might hope for the blessing of the Spirit of God and that his brethren trusted him in such a task, he could not minimize the value of it.

"It must be added that teaching has a great fascination for me. I have been twenty-four years a minister of Christ; thirteen of those years have been spent also in a college professor's chair. My father taught me to teach, and I have always known that a call to teach would be hard to resist. I have tried to have a teaching ministry.

"I cannot entirely overlook the fact that so many whom God has made leaders in the Church are urging my acceptance on the ground that the teaching of theology ought to be from the point of view of a pastor. There has been a very fine unanimity in the counsel that I go to this chair.

Regrets to End Happy Eight-Year Pastorate.

"On the other hand, here is our church and here are you, my people. I have had eight years of busy, happy pastorate in which you have shown such kindness to me and mine as could never have been expected. You need not be told that this is a mighty church, and I do not forget its past when I say that it has never been mightier than now. It has never been better worth the best that the best man could do in its leadership. And it is in excellent condition. I shall be glad to have any man come to it knowing that he will find it all here and ready to his hand. You will believe me when I say that I do not count this the outcome of my service. You are the strength of the church and the sacrifice in going will be mine more than yours.

"I would be without faith in God's love if I did not believe that if His will for me is to go away, He must will better leadership for you. There will doubtless come to you a better preacher and a better leader, worthier of you in every way, some one whom you will gladly follow into larger service; but there will never come a pastor to whom you will show more marks of affection than to me nor one who gives you more freely and sincerely his own heart love. Whoever comes, you will always be my people: it will always be one of the honors of my life that I have been for a time in the succession of this pulpit. To be named even as a remote third with Dr. Cuyler and Dr. Gregg will always make me grateful.

Feels He Must Relinquish Physical Load He Carries.

"Feeling all this, how can I go? My brethren, the determining reason is the old one of physical endurance. I say the determining reason, for, of course, the greatest is the exceptional opportunity which opens in the new work. If, however, the opportunities balanced, physical conditions would go far toward determining in favor of the seminary call. I am not broken down, as you well know. But I have plain premonition that I must lighten the load or relinquish it. Physicians have told me that very definitely, but I knew it before they told me, and I know it better than they do. The real load is not pastoral calling, not preaching, nor anything that someone else could do. It is constant, incessant, increasing responsibility. Administration is very irksome to me, but I am not so constituted that I can be indifferent to it, when it affects work for which I am responsible. I cannot be relieved from my place as a pastor without being more burdened than if I took my place. Without doubt, I could go on for some time. I could take long vacations and have much help. You would willingly protect me. But that is no way for me to lead the church. I do not know how to be your pastor if I do not bear your loads with you. I rejoice in the privilege of such fellowship, but I have not the physical foundation to go on with it very long. The seminary requirements are somewhat lighter and more varied. The year is shorter, so that there is a longer summer vacation, and I believe that I can serve the church for more years if I go to the new position. I realize with you how unanswerable that argument is. I may be right or wrong in my estimate of myself, but I can see how you would not be willing to take such a physical risk when our beloved church does not vitally need to have it taken.

Hears God's Call to New Field.

"So I feel I must go. I take these indications as the elements in God's call. The call grows clearer when I face the sheer sacrifice which is involved. Much as I anticipate the new work, I shall have to pay a tremendous price for it. Still, sacrifice is part of the day's work for us who believe in the Christ of the Cross. If my going seems to any of you to call for a sacrifice on the part of our church, I ask you to hear it as you would any sacrifice for the sake of the will of God. I set out toward the new work with a harnessed will. I have no fear of God's blessing upon you or upon myself. We are in His hands and we are safe there. So much do I believe in you that while I know that it will hurt some of you to the very heart you will all bid me godspeed. You will face the future bravely and you will from this hour pray that God may guide you to the farther and better leadership which He has in store for you.

"In my letter to you I have set no date for the close of my pastorate. Certainly I shall preach until the usual vacation time, closing my year's ministry on the 30th of June. During the summer I shall want to be held responsible for all pastoral service which can be rendered from my summer home near the city. But in the early part of September I must begin my work as a teacher, with your kindly consent and that of the Presbytery."

SCHIFF AIDS PREVENTORIUM.

The large waiting list for the Tuberculosis Preventorium for Children makes additions necessary. The administration buildings at Farmingdale, N. J., were designed to provide not only for the four open camps already constructed, but for two more such camps with a capacity of thirty-two beds each. These camps will cost $12,500 each, completely equipped. An investment of $25,000, therefore, will provide for sixty-four additional children, which is about $400 per bed. This includes steam-heated dressing rooms, showers and modern plumbing generally. It also provides for an open-air schoolroom above the dressing rooms.

The president of the Preventorium has just received a subscription of $5,000 towards the construction of these additional camps from Jacob H. Schiff, who has taken a deep interest in this new movement. The gift is contingent upon the early collection of the balance of $20,000 more that is required.

A membership or endowment securing $20,000 a year is also needed to pay for the maintenance of the sixty-four additional children.

The total capacity of the Preventorium will be raised to 236 beds. Membership is $1 to $1,000 a year; $250 a year names a bed annually, $2,500 endows a life bed, $5,000 endows a permanent bed.

Checks may be sent to the treasurer, Alex. S. Webb, or to the president, Marcus M. Marks, Academy of Medicine, 17 west Forty-third street, Manhattan.

BURGLAR ESCAPE ON BICYCLE

East Northport, L. I., May 13—For over ten miles Deputy Sheriff Amzi W. Biggs followed the trail of the bicycle burglar yesterday morning who had left behind him a string of bold depredations in the vicinity of East Northport on Saturday night, but owing to the fact that automobiles had destroyed the tracks left by the outlaw he was forced to give up the chase on reaching Smithtown branch.

The housebreaker appeared to have begun operations upon the garage of Captain George Clark, between East Northport and Commack. After breaking the lock of the door and ransacking the place, he left, taking nothing of value. Then he entered the creamery belonging to Ethelbert Gildersleeve and consumed two quarts of milk. He also entered the home of John Ritzler and took $50 in money and some other articles.

GANGS OF ROWDIES IN FIGHT ON A CAR

Paving Stones Hurled Through Windows; Passengers in a Panic.

ONE WOMAN IS BADLY HURT.

Her Baby Just Missed Injury—Police, Motorman, Conductor and Men Passengers Subdue Fighters.

Two gangs of car rowdies engaged in a pitched battle on a Flatbush avenue car coming from Bergen Beach, at Avenue N, last night, and in the melee, paving stones were torn from the street and hurled through the car windows terrorizing women passengers, showering them with broken glass and injuring many. Frantic with fear lest any of the flying missles strike her year-old baby, which she held in her arms, Mrs. Catherine Gentleman, wife of a contractor, of 174 Fourteenth street, endeavored to alight from the trolley, but found her progress impeded by the fighting roughs. A woman companion succeeding in leaving the car, and Mrs. Gentleman passed the baby to her through one of the car windows. As she did so she was struck with half a paving stone hurled by one of the rowdies in the street, which cut a gash in her fact from chin to ear and knocked her to the floor of the car unconscious.

In the meantime the conductor and moterman of the car, after trying in vain to restore order, with the aid of some of the other male passengers, had endeavored to summon aid by clanging the bell. Just as Mrs. Gentleman was struck, another car, going in the opposite lireection, hove in sight and hearing the distress signals, the motorman made all possible speed to the scene of trouble.

Patrolman Tobias F. Butler of the Sheepshead Bay station, off duty and in plain clothes, was a passenger on this car, and he sprang from it as it came abreast of the other, and made for the rowdies. He and the crews of the two cars and men passengers soon stopped the riot and Butuer placed five men under arrest and they were brought to the Vanderveer Park police station and locked up. They gave their names as John Gallo, 17 years old, of 263 Nassau street, Manhattan; Benjamin Linde of 73 Avenue C, Manhattan, Amedeo Farino, 16, of 9 Hicks street; William Horowitz, 16, of 243 East Third street, Manhattan, and Meyer Marcus, 17, of 307 East Eighth street, Manhattan.

All were arraigned before Magistrate Dodd, in the Flatbush Court, this morning, and pleaded not guilty. They were held in $50 bail for an examination Wednesday.

Mrs. Gentleman, after being attended by Ambulance Surgeon McSweeney from the Kings County Hospital, was removed to her home. The baby was uninjured.

The fight started as the result of a baseball game. Two teams had been playing in the meadows near Bergen Beach and an argument arose between a gang of players and one of non-players. After the game broke up, shortly after 6 o'clock, one gang boarded a car and the other followed. At Avenue N the fight again broke out, and the car was suddenly brought to a stop by one of the rowdies pulling the bell. During the fracas some were pushed from the car and they immediately retaliated by seizing stones from the gutter at a point where the street is being torn up, and hurling them at the car.

WOMAN HIT BY A CAR.

She Escaped Serious Injury—Surgical Aid Refused.

Much excitement was occasioned at 10:30 o'clock this morning among the throngs passing at the junction of Washington, Fulton and Court streets and Myrtle avenue when a Myrtle avenue trolley car, turning east from Fulton street, knocked down a woman.

The car was going slowly, however, and the woman suffered only bruises. She is Mrs. Bridget Harney, 48 years old, of Bay Sixteenth and Eighty-second streets. Traffic Patrolman Stephen Minion came to her aid, but she refused to let him call an ambulance. The car that struck Mrs. Harney is No. 866 of the Myrtle avenue line. It was in charge of Joseph Longenecker, of 140 Wyckoff avenue, motorman, and Martin Walsh, of 334 Hamburg avenue, conductor.

GAYNOR IN PARKS ALL DAY SUNDAY

Saw Recreation Games of Working People and Approves of Them.

RAPS THE SELFISH DRIVERS.

Found Prospect Park, Brooklyn, and Central Park, Manhattan, in Fine Condition.

Mayor Gaynor this afternoon discussed his trip yesterday through Prospect Park in Brooklyn and Central Park in Manhattan. Incidentally the Mayor took occasion to reply to some of the critics of Park Commissioner Stover, who has immediate jurisdiction over Central Park, and made it quite evident that he does not believe there is any justification for these complaints. The Mayor said to the reporters:

"I went through Prospect Park in Brooklyn first, in the forenoon. That park is one of the finest in the world—far finer than Central Park. And it is in good condition. I walked all through it. I even looked at the bears and the raccoons, and also the mongoose. I also saw the adjoining parade ground, and not a soul on it. I looked particularly at that. It was the most lonesome looking place—not a soul on it.

"In the afternoon I went all through Central Park. I took a policeman with me from the Arsenal, to show me the way—to show me the short cuts from one playground to another, especially. I looked at them all. I found children at the merry-go-rounds and swings, and the tennis grounds were covered with players. They were enjoying themselves immensely. The boats on the lake were all out also. Most of these people that were exercising and amusing themselves seemed to be people that are indoors during the week.

"I found the parks in fine condition. Some of the fields had been plowed up and are being seeded down anew. Some people are very much disgusted about that. It is a necessity to do that periodically. Every farmer knows that grass dies out after a number of years, and especially after three or four dry summers like those we have had.

"Yes, I have people write me all sorts of complaints about Central Park. Most of those who write complaints about the park are people who write about what they see as they ride or drive through. They seem to think that the park is just for their special delight, to look at it as they ride of drive through. I invariably write to them that very thing, and ask them to remember that the parks were not made for the special benefit of those who are so fortunate that they can ride or drive through them, but that they are made for all the people. How selfish some people are. They have no one in mind even one minute a day except themselves. The parks are chiefly for the great multitude of people who work all the week and need some place for recreation when they can get a day off.

"Yes, I saw people playing tennis and the like, and that has been going on for years and years. I do not understand it is any more sinful to play tennis in the parks than to row a boat in the parks. I was brought up to be still on Sunday. We worked hard in the fields during the weekdays and were very glad to keep still on Sunday. But I have no quarrel with those who want to take recreation on Sunday.

"When John Knox visited John Calvin at Geneva of a Sunday afternoon he found him out in the fields playing bowls with his neighbors. How is that? But I do think people ought to go to church in the forenoon if they want to go out and take recreation in the afternoon. But there is no 'Sunday question' in all this. We should all observe the Sabbath, but we must respect the honest views of every one on the way of doing it."

BETRAYED BY FINGER PRINTS

Persistent following of a clew obtained by Detective Broslin of the Brooklyn police force, in a Brooklyn pawnshop, led to the arrest early this morning of Molly Clark, a negress, at 39 Sixth avenue, Manhattan, and she was locked up in the West 125th street station on charges of assault and robbery. She is accused of robbing her former mistress, Mrs. Jennie V. Davis, a retired schoolteacher, on March 14 last, in Mrs. Davis' apartment at 531 West 187th street, Manhattan.

According to the police, the Clark woman made a complete confession and returning a quantity of Mrs. Davis' jewelry. The police have also filed a warrant with the Army officials at Fort Slocum for the arrest of William Brassfield, a negro, who is charged with the same crime and who enlisted in the army as William Hicks, a short time after the robbery. He is indicted and is under arrest at the post.

Mrs. Davis engaged the Clark woman as maid ten days before the robbery. At 10 o'clock on the morning of the robbery, according to the woman's confession given out by the police, Brassfield called at the house and he and the maid overpowered Mrs. Davis and bound and gagged her. Then they went through the apartment and took all of the jewelry and valuables they could find.

Mrs. Davis was unconscious and according to the confession of the Clark woman, as told by the police, Brassfield and she believed Mrs. Davis dead.

Detective Broslin of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, in the latter part of April discovered some of the stolen jewelry in a pawnshop in Brooklyn and he also learned that Brassfield had served an enlistment in the Army.

Deputy Commissioner Dougherty wrote to the Adjutant General of the Army at Washington requesting a photograph and description of Brassfield. Word was received in reply to this that Brassfield had re-enlisted at Fort Slocum on April 17 under the name of William Hicks and that his identity had been discovered by means of finger prints.

The army authorities had found that Brassfield had re-enlisted under an assumed name and had placed him under arrest at Fort Slocum where he was in the guardhouse awaiting trial by court martial for fraudulent enlistment.

Detectives from this city watched Brassfield's mail sent from the guard house at Fort Slocum and in this way traced the Clark woman to 30 Sixth avenue, where she was living under the name of Annie Mitchell.

ALL NIGHT IN OPEN BOATS.

Nine Seamen and Woman Reach Shore After Steamer Is Burned.

Watertown, N. Y., May 20—The crew of nine men and a woman cook of the steam coal barge Iona of Montreal have reached Henderson from Stony Point light, where they landed yesterday mornig, after being buffeted about all night in open boats.

Their steamer, coal laden, burned to the water's edge and sank twenty-five miles off Stony Point Saturday night, and the crew took to the boats in a raging sea, leaving all their personal effects behind.

The boat was valued at $15,000 and is fully insured.

MORE SERMON FAKES BY THE "PASTOR"

How His Followers Were Misled by Advertisements of Hongkong Address.

ATTACK FROM NEW QUARTER.

Philip Sidersky Wants to Know About Publishers Rejecting Russell "Sermons."

The Eagle has received a letter from Fred G. White, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Hongkong, calling attention to a fraud practiced by "Pastor" Russell upon his followers in this country in connection with an address delivered by Russell in Hongkong on January 19. This is another case of the publication of fake sermons that were never delivered.

The Russell advertisements in the American newspapers of January 23 stated that the "Pastor" had delivered at Hongkong a sermon "both helpful and encouraging" on the subject of the new Chinese republic. Other Russell advertisements printed in the Hongkong newspapers stated that he would deliver his sermon, "Where Are the Dead?"

Mr. White sends to The Eagle clippings from the Hongkong newspapers which show that the sermon actually delivered and the one which the "Pastor" put out in this country in his paid advertisements were altogether different.

The Eagle has also received a letter from Philip Sidersky of Baltimore, a member of the Board of Directors of the National Federation of Gospel Missions, who is trying to show up the fake features of the "Pastor's" sermons. The Sidersky letter incloses a copy of a communication sent by him to the "Pastor," as follows:

Pastor C. T. Russell, Boston Theater, Boston, Mass.:

Dear Sir—I have before me a copy of the Watch Tower (your official religious paper) of April the 15th, 1912. Most of the matter contained in this issue is composed of attacks on all the Protestant denominations as well as the Catholics. In that same issue you make a claim that more than one thousand newspapers publish your sermons weekly. Will you kindly name, publicly at your meeting in the theater, the thousand newspapers that are publishing your sermons, as that claim has already been discredited.

Isn't it a fact that many of the newspapers have been misled by your press agent and are now finding it out, and as a result many of them are refusing to publish any matter relating to yourself or your movement?

Should you refuse to give the names of the one thousand newspapers that you claim are publishing your sermons it will prove that many of your statements given out to the press in reference to yourself and your movement cannot be relied upon. Yours very truly,

PHILIP SIDERSKY.

"PASTOR" OFFENDS AT BOSTON.

Boston, May 20—"Pastor" Russell made an address at the Boston Theater yesterday afternoon in which he said that three-fourths of the ministers draw their salaries for teaching what they do not and cannot believe. Without calling by name Clarence V. T. Richeson, who is to be electrocuted Tuesday, he classed him among three-fourths of the ministers who do not know where they stand in their belief and have no faith in the Bible. After this statement a number of those in the audience left immediately, although the "Pastor" was not half through his lecture.

CARS IN SMASH ON BRIDGE

As the early morning rush hour was beginning today, a Madison avenue car, in charge of Motorman John Morris of 2734 Eighth avenue, Manhattan, crashed into the rear of an Eighth street car as the two cars approached the Manhattan end of the Williamsburg Bridge. The rear platform of the Eighth street car was torn off and the car thrown from the tracks. There was a panic on both cars, which were crowded with passengers, but no one was seriously injured. Following the accident, hundreds of people climbed from the stalled cars, through the trestle work of the roadway, and continued their way to Manhattan on foot. Conductors fought with the people to prevent them from climbing across the open spaces, where a misstep meant falling to the street below, but there was a rush and the conductors were swept aside.

The Eighth street car had almost reached Manhattan, and the Madison avenue car, trailing several feet behind, struck the down grade that leads to Manhattan, when the brakes refused to work. Morris, the motorman, opened the window to the vestibule of the car, and when the two cars were close together shouted to those on the rear of the Eighth street car to jump. Everyone who was standing on the rear platform leaped inside the car before the crash. The two cars crashed together, and the rear platform of the Eighth street car was torn off. The front vestibule of the Madison avenue car was smashed, but Morris escaped injury. The rear trucks of the forward car were forced off the tracks.

There was a delay of half an hour while the wrecking crew got the Eighth street car back on the tracks. When they finally succeeded, the cars following were strung out across the bridge, and hundreds had to take the roadway.

EAGLE PARIS BUREAU CALLERS.

53 Rue Cambon.

Paris, May 20—Among the visitors at The Eagle Bureau Saturday were the Misses Helen and Mary Ormsbee, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Ormsbee of 435 Macon street, Brooklyn, who are on a vacation trip. They came from England, where they spent a week or more in visiting various points of interest. Before returning home they will go to a number of French cities.

Other Brooklynites who registered were Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Perkins, James A. Smith and Morgan Coakley.

Frederick P. Crane of Manhattan, also was a caller at the bureau.

FOSDICK CAN'T FIND "CHRIS O'DONNELL"

Commissioner of Accounts Has Some Questions He'd Like to Ask Him.

CITY POLICE KNOW HIM WELL.

Those Seeking Retirement Refer to Him as "C. O. D."—Costs $500 or More to Get Retired.

Commissioner of Accounts Raymond B. Fosdick will have a personal interview with the Mayor regarding his report on the work of the Board of Police Surgeons. Mr. Fosdick is morally certain that a large number of men in the department were retired as permanently disabled when they were fit to perform police duty. The reasons which prompted these retirements Mr. Fosdick endeavored to ascertain. Retired policemen, who were subpenaed and asked if they paid a fixed sum to be retired on the ground of physical disability refused to answer, on the ground that it might tend to degrade and incriminate them.

From investigations conducted by Mr. Fosdick's men, suspicion has been cast on at least three members of the Board of Surgeons, but Commissioner Fosdick does not feel that he can make their names public, because he has not been able to secure the necessary confirmatory evidence. Nevertheless, he will probably communicate their names to the Mayor. The other men of the Board of Surgeons Mr. Fosdick found to be above suspicion, and performing their duties conscientiously. This is especially true of the Brooklyn surgeons.

Surgeons "Sold Out," It Is Said.

Another feature of the investigation that Commissioner Fosdick could not clear up satisfactorily, because the witnesses subpenaed evaded answering direct questions, was that certain men at Police Headquarters, in Manhattan, and not connected with the uniformed force, were "selling out", some of the surgeons by pretending that for a cash consideration they could wield the necessary influence to procure a favorable report from the Board of Surgeons that applicants for retirement were not physically fit to perform regular police duty.

The following instances are cited in Commissioner Fosdick's report to the Mayor that there is reason to believe that some of the policemen paid to be retired on physical grounds and were placed on the pension list:

"Every effort was made to determine whether any of the retirements had been accomplished through fraud or dishonesty. Most of the witnesses (one hundred and seven in all) frankly stated that it was commonly believed in the department that a sum of money, generally $500, was the price of retirement, the money to be paid to a police surgeon or his agent. Each of these witnesses, however, insisted that he himself had paid nothing, and that he was not asked to pay anything.

"James McEntee, a patrolman, who was retired in January, 1911, refused to answer the question: "Did you find it necessary to pay?" upon the ground that an answer would degrade and incriminate him.

"Patrick Ryan, who is still a member of the force in the thirty-fifth precinct, testified that he made application for retirement on October 7, 1911; that immediately thereafter he received a communication by mail from William H. Henry & Co., loan agents of 150 Nassau street, inviting him to call; that the following day he called at the address given and interviewed one Rubenstein, who does business under the firm name; that Rubenstein told him that he would secure the retirement of the officer for $500. Ryan refused to pay. When the police surgeons found that he was 'not physically disabled,' Ryan reported the facts to Dr. Palmer, who, with the aid of the detective bureau, endeavored without success to lay a trap for Rubenstein. We endeavored ourselves to subpena Rubenstein, but were unable to do so.

"Chris O'Donnell" Means "Cash on Delivery."

"Louis Buttner, a patrolman attached to the Fifteenth Precinct, made known to the surgeons on March 14, 1912, his intention to apply for retirement. On the evening of the day that he obtained his application blank he was approached on the street by a man whom he knew as 'Chris O'Donnell (a fictitious name used in the Police Department to indicate by its initials 'cash on delivery'). The man told him that retirement would cost him $600. The following morning he again met the man, who told him that the price had gone to $700.

"On the following day Officer Buttner returned the blank, unsigned, to his district surgeon, and refused to apply for retirement on the ground that 'they had raised the ante.' That night 'Chris O'Donnell' called at Buttner's house and warned him to keep his mouth shut. Buttner insisted throughout his testimony that he did not know the identity of 'Chris O'Donnell.' Our efforts to establish his identity were unsuccessful."

FRIENDS SAVE BOYS FROM PRISON TERMS

Jones Must Go Back to Sunday School; Lascano Must Leave Country.

YOUNG GIRL THEIR ACCUSER.

Lawyer Waits in Court to Start Young South American Back Where He Came From.

After spending seven weeks in jail Walter Jones, who had pleaded guilty to a serious charge by a girl of 15, today left the County Court on a suspended sentence. The same leniency was extended to Carlos Lascano, the Pratt Institute student, who had also pleaded guilty to a similar offense in which the same girl was the complaining witness. County Judge Dike, who sentenced Lascano, imposing this condition, however, that the young chemistry student should leave the country immediately, or else he would be sent to Elmira Reformatory.

The case of Jones came before County Judge Fawcett, who made it a condition of a suspended sentence that Jones should go back to his former job, and that he also return to his Sunday school. A large number of friends, as well as Jones' former employer, and the pastor of the church he had attended, had visited the court and entered earnest pleas for mercy in behalf of Jones. The professors at the Pratt Institute who knew Lascano had also interceded for him with Judge Dike.

Lascano is the son of a wealthy planter of Colombia, South America, and Judge Dike said that it might be pleaded in his behalf that the customs of his native country are different from ours, but having accepted the hospitality of the North he ought to observe its manners. The attorney for the boy was waiting in court to put him on a train that will take him on his way back to South America this afternoon.

The complainant against the young men was Margaret J. Sofield of 160 Jefferson avenue, who was located by her father at Hartwood, Pa., after being away two weeks. She said she had met the young men at a private house on Gates avenue, not far from Bedford, and that later she had been enticed to a hotel on Broadway, Brooklyn.

Jones pleaded guilty when first arraigned before Judge Fawcett, while Lascano denied his guilt. Later he changed his mind and when brought before Judge Dike for trial he also pleaded guilty.

A sentence of five days in the Raymond street jail was imposed by Judge Fawcett on Ferdinand Buermeyer, a lawyer, who last week pleaded guilty to forgery and grand larceny. Before imposing this sentence Judge Fawcett explained that it also meant disbarment and loss of citizenship. The judge said he regretted that a lawyer, a man looked up to by others, should have fallen so deep. Buermeyer said that after he gets out he intends to leave Brooklyn and attempt to make a new start elsewhere, and the court wished him success.

A term in Sing Sing of from two to four years was meted out to Harry Insen of 45 Buffalo avenue, who last week pleaded guilty to forging a check for $21.68 on the Corn Exchange Bank.

Charles Callahan, alias Thomas Sturke, a Manhattan burglar with a record, was sent to Sing Sing for four years and eight months.

LESSON OF THE DOG DINNER.

In his sermon yesterday morning in Plymouth Church the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, touched on the episode of eight women giving a dinner to as many Pekinese dogs in the Chinese room of the Hotel Vanderbilt the other day.

Dr. Hillis was talking of the apparent turning of the people of today toward luxury, rich foods and purple garments and equipage. He said:

"Well, that type of character had been staged during the days of degeneracy in Rome. In the very hour when the multitudes are gaining knowledge and virtue there are always some that are losing. Witness Rome before her decline and fall.

"Last Sunday appeals were made for the little children and the sick mothers in the tenement regions of our city, preparatory to sending them to the seashore during the heated days of July and August. But during the very hours when the press was making this appeal for the fresh air fund a few women turned away to give a banquet in a hotel to dogs as guests, until it would seem as if the vices that once crawled like serpents over the floors of the Roman palaces are leaving a little slime on the threshold of the American home."

AUTO AND TROLLEY COLLIDE.

General Shaking Up at Mineola, but No One Hurt.

Mineola, L. I., May 20—A large touring car, owned and driven by J. S. Phillips, who gave his address as 371 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, collided with a trolley car on the Jericho Turnpike, about 300 feet west of Brewi's corner, in this village, last night. The force of the collision overturned the car, which was badly demolished. The occupants were unhurt, other than being badly shaken.

The car was proceeding in a westerly direction, and it was while the driver attempted to cross the tracks that the trolley car bound for Mineola crashed into the automobile. A call was sent to the Nassau Hospital, but when the ambulance arrived it was found that the occupants did not require the ministrations of the surgeons, but went to their Brooklyn home by train.

By the decision of the jury which heard the suit of Mrs. Anna Dealy of Long Island City against Colgate & Co., for damages arising out of injuries she sustained when a wheel of one of the defendant company's motor trucks came off in the street and struck her, she has been awarded $1,000. The sealed verdict left by the jury was opened this morning and allowed Mrs. Dealy that sum. Testimony showed that she had suffered a fracture of one of the pelvic bones.

FLAMES DESTROY AUTO.

An automobile owned and driven by James Rothschild of 31 West Fifty-seventh street, Manhattan, caught fire from a carelessly thrown cigarette butt which fell near the gasoline tank shortly before 1 o'clock this morning and the car was reduced to wreckage in the explosion that followed. It was standing empty near Eighteenth avenue and the Ocean Parkway at the time of the accident. The car was valued at $3,500 and was a total loss.

ERRORS OF RUSSELLISM

An Ordained Clergyman Attacks the Teachings of the Pastor.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

The articles concerning "Pastor" Russell which have appeared from time to time in The Brooklyn Daily Eagle are certainly eyeopeners, and explain to some extent the vagaries of this self-advertising teacher when he treats of theological themes. He now hails from Brooklyn and calls his establishment the "Brooklyn Tabernacle," evidently seeking to mislead the unwary into the belief that he is the successor of the late Dr. Talmage of the real Brooklyn Tabernacle, whose sermons were printed broadcast throughout America. But there is a wide gulf between T. De Witt Talmage and C. T. Russell. The former was a safe and sound theologian, whose sermons contained much meat of the Gospel. The latter, however, is disseminating grave errors, which are so well disguised that many unsuspecting believers are led to swallow the poison unwittingly and find their faith unsettled ere they are aware of it.

The chief doctrines of C. T. Russell, who was never ordained, but calls himself a "pastor," are mainly a rehash of many ancient and modern heresies, decidedly anti-Scriptural, and in some cases even blasphemous. He denies the absolute deity of Jesus Christ and the personality of the Holy Spirit. He teaches that Jesus, prior to His incarnation and during His earthly life, was only a creature, higher than the angels, but like them, a created being. This is Arianism, which was condemned by the Council of Nicea, A.D. 325, and is repudiated by all the evangelical Protestant churches, together with the Roman Catholic. The inspired writer declares: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (John 1:1). Here "the Word" (Greek, logos) means Jesus Christ, and of Him three things are asserted, namely, His eternity, His eternal separate existence, and His deity. So the prophets testify that the coming Messiah was God himself. (See Isaiah ix:6, Jeremiah xxiii:6, Malachi iii:1, etc.)

In denying the twofold nature, human and divine, of Jesus Christ, and making Him only a man during His whole life on earth, Mr. Russell denies the vital doctrine of the incarnation. He also teaches that the atonement of Jesus was in no sense divine, but only that of a mere man, because His death being simply that of a creature, His sacrifice was purely human. All this is contradicted by many passages of Scripture which speak of "the righteousness of God," provided in His Son, Jesus Christ, as the sole ground of the sinner's justification.

He further teaches that we have part in making atonement, for by our consecration we help Christ to make atonement for the world! Thus the one perfect sacrifice of Christ is not sufficient to save the world, as the Bible declares it is.

Mr. Russell denies that the body of Jesus was raised from the tomb. In this he flatly contradicts Paul's teaching in I Corinthians xv, as well as the four Gospels, all of which distinctly affirm the fact of the bodily resurrection of Jesus from the dead. If Christ's body was not raised, then there is no bodily resurrection for Christians.

Mr. Russell holds that as a reward for His obedience Jesus became divine after His death, and dropped entirely His human nature and person. But this is false, not only according to Scripture, but also according to philosophy, for God cannot exalt a creature to become God, as the Divine Essence is incommunicable. When it is said that believers are made partakers of the divine nature, it refers to God's holiness and not His Being. If Jesus has lost His human nature, then "the man Christ Jesus," as the only mediator between God and man, has disappeared altogether, and we have no longer a sympathizing High Priest in heaven who is touched with a feeling of our infirmities, because He has borne them Himself.

Mr. Russell teaches the doctrine of restitution. He holds that "with the exception of a few sinners of a special class all those now unsaved will be raised from the dead at the beginning of the millennium and restored to their former condition." But Paul declares: "For as many as have sinned without law [a divine revelation] shall also perish without law" (Romans ii:12). Mr. Russell says these shall be saved. Paul says they shall perish. Who is the better authority?

Mr. Russell claims that the Lord's advent occurred in some mysterious way in 1874, and that the present order of things will end in 1914. But Jesus himself declares that of that day and hour no man knows, and all who have set a date have miserably failed in their predictions. Furthermore, the apostle, in I Thessalonians iv:13-18, exposes the fallacy that Christ has already returned to this earth.

Russellism may be summed up in the words of the late Frederick W. Grant: "The doctrine of Millennial Dawn is anti-Christian; it does not give us a true Christ, but a false one; subtly introduced, after the mind has been filled with other things in which all the difficulties of God's individual dealings with souls is vaunted to be removed. Only by degrees are you permitted to see how much of Christian faith has to be bartered for this. Scarcely an element of Christianity in fact remains. * * * We have neither a true God nor a true Christ, nor real atonement, nor the truth of eternal judgment, nor of man's nature, nor the saints condition; nothing is left. To compensate for which the old lie of Satan is declared to be the truth more thoroughly than in any system I have ever heard of. Throw yourself, heart and soul, into all this—consecrate your life, your goods, your all—you shall help Christ to make atonement for the world; and you yourselves shall become gods—immortal and so divine."

For a masterly refutation of Russellism the reader is referred to "The Fundamentals, volume 7, chapter 8 (Testimony Publishing Co., 808 La Salle avenue, Chicago; price, 15 cents). This article is by the Rev. Prof. W. G. Moorehead, and will convince any unbiased mind that "Pastor" Russell is a false shepherd, who is preaching "another gospel," and insidiously poisoning the minds of unsuspecting believers.

EDWARD J. YOUNG.

Barlow, Fla.

THE SIDE OF THE CHAUFFEUR.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Every day seems to bring forth a new idea in regard to making laws regulating the use of automobiles. There seems to be a general opinion among the big majority of people (not themselves owners, drivers or users of the automobile) that practically all persons who drive a machine are more or less careless and reckless.

The automobilist's side of the question ought to be clearly pointed out and even agitated.

Anyone driving or riding in an automobile regularly through the city streets knows what a chauffeur has to contend with.

People cross streets at any point, regardless of regular crossings. Wagons and trucks turn off in front of you without any warning or signal, children are left to play in the middle of the streets, dart out from behind wagons or brazenly throw their caps under the wheels of your machine.

People often make no effort or take no thought of looking out for approaching machines. Always it is the driver who must be on the alert and watch out for others' mistakes or confusion, and invariably he is blamed in case of an accident.

Why not a little police regulation in regard to compelling people on foot to use the sidewalks, and crossings and to keep the streets clear for vehicles, which should have the first right there?

This is not 1860. We are living in an age when things move faster than they did. The person crossing a street should take it for granted that a vehicle moving faster than a horse and buggy is approaching and take reasonable precautions.

I think that the greatest aid in lessening the number of accidents that now occur is in educating the people to accustom themselves to the general use of automobiles, as they did the trolley car and bicycle.

Ninety-eight per cent. of the persons operating machines are careful, competent, educated drivers who appreciate the liability of accidents, and have no desire to get hurt themselves, get their cars damaged or be responsible for the injuries to others. More and more men are daily driving their own cars as I do. They take the responsibility of safely piloting their families and friends through the streets and have a considerable sum invested in their machines. It is obvious that owners at least will endeavor themselves or have their chauffeurs use the utmost caution.

Persons whose only knowledge of an automobile is what they see from the streets, cannot realize that a speed of 10 to 20 miles an hour is absolutely safe, in the average street, due to the absolute mechanical control of the car, while speeds up to 35 miles per hour are not reckless on more open thoroughfares.

Last year's report shows that the number of accidents with horse-drawn vehicles, and also surface cars, each exceeded the accidents with automobiles. Isn't the automobile being discriminated against?

Reckless driving is certainly to be condemned, and speed sensibly regulated, but by all means laws regulating the use of automobiles should be investigated and made by men familiar with the use of an automobile.

JULES E. COLLET.

Automobile Licensing.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I read with much interest your editorial in yesteday's Eagle on the subject of automobile speed regulation. To my mind you put the whole thing in a nutshell in saying: "Let it be so ordained that only those who are qualified by natural aptitude and experience to keep out of trouble shall be granted a license, and the rest will take care of itself." Your remarks on the singularity of the New York American's attitude on the subject, in view of the fact that its delivery wagons are always in a hurry are also very striking to me, as I have particularly noted the speed usually maintained by all newspaper deliveries in New York city, and have often remarked upon the readiness with which most of the newspapers charge up accidents to excessive speed. As a matter of fact, by far the greater number of accidents is due to lack of skill on the part of the drivers. Pedestrians as a rule, especially women and children, are too careless on the streets. All drivers realize this, and the skilled driver is usually able to avoid accidents which an unskilled driver under like conditions could not avoid. The idea of regulating motor vehicle traffic by fixing a maximum speed limit is an absurdity for, as Mayor Gaynor remarked some time ago, "even three miles an hour may be too much at certain times and places." He also very truly said that "the regulation of vehicular traffic can and will be left to the police."

I have driven motor vehicles more than 150,000 miles during the past five years, most of it in the city of New York. I know the police to be a body of intelligent men disposed to be entirely fair and reasonable. There are, of course, some exceptions, yet our magistrates are quite able to discriminate between a possible overzealous policeman's statement and that of a driver whom he would know to be skilled by virtue of his license. Perfection cannot be attained and need not be expected or hoped for. The thing we need is the sort of regulation that will best regulate—and my verdict is that you are right—therefore "Let it be so ordained."

INDIGNANT OVER DOG DINNER.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Let me express my gratitude for the editorial of Saturday evening, regarding the luncheon given by women in New York to their pet dogs at the Vanderbilt Hotel. It is such events as this which hasten the movements of Socialism, by which it is expected that foolish hands shall not be permitted to control wealth. Some of us question whether Socialism would gain all the ends that its advocates desire, but certainly something ought to be encouraged which will prevent such exhibitions of folly. With children living on insufficient food in the city and with many movements for good going at a halting gait for lack of money and also for lack of men and women to carry their loads, it seems peculiarly sad for a group of women to plan for and execute such a display. I warmly commend also your strictures on the hotel management for permitting the use of their rooms for this purpose. It will make appeal, however, to certain of our money-spending class to which some hotels find it profitable to cater. By way of contrast it reminds me of the request which was made of an undertaker in this city to provide a fully furnished funeral for a pet dog, which he very wisely declined. Fond as some of us are of our dogs, the way to develop a high regard for human life is not to magnify the value of a pet dog.

Editorial Deserves Thanks.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

The editorial in Saturday's Eagle on "Dogs and Their Mistresses" deserves the thanks of every true and sensible woman, and I wish to express my appreciation of its high-toned sentiments.

A CLUB WOMAN.

Brooklyn, May 28, 1912.

ALARMED OVER CONDITIONS

Fears That the Outcome of Present Republican Politics Is Fraught With Danger.

Playing With Fire.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I think a number of persons who have thoughtfully considered the signs of the times have reached the settled conviction that there are large masses of people in the United States who are not only fretful and restless, but are determined in their opposition to Government.

First and foremost in the creation of this spirit has been the long-continued and flagrantly unjust tariff, established and enforced by the Republican party. Second, the unrestricted and passionate appeals of Socialists, Anarchists, etc., together with other agencies and influences that have inculcated the spirit of hostility to governmental control, leading them on by imperceptible degrees to a condition of mind ripe for revolution, not only in Government, but in society itself, setting up new standards, new powers and new ways for the exercise of absolute authority.

The situation is most grave. Some of the people are determined to play with fire, and what the end may be no man can foresee; but if the conflagration gets fairly started it is possible that the Republic itself may be consumed. Those who are responsible for the start of the French Revolution had no conception of the horror into which it finally developed. As an illustration of the remarkable condition that confronts us we have but to think upon the separate elements that make up this revolutionary combination which as yet are not so intimately related and joined together as to constitute a conspiracy against the Republic, but which could easily be united and are in process of that union under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt has proved himself to be a man in whom the truth does not reside. A man without honor and one sacrificing the highest quality and form of personal friendships and the highest quality and form of human freedom and human government to his insatiable ambition.

All men are liars who oppose his way. Nothing is sacred to his thought or feeling. He is without justice or sense of justice. Constitutions, laws, the courts and all safe and sane precedent he sweeps aside—a mad leader of the madness that has seized upon masses of the people—ungoverned and ungovernable, seeking only his own success.

In the light of the revelution he has made of himself in this preliminary presidential campaign, can any reasonable person imagine for a moment that if he should succeed in being elected to the presidency that that would be a logical and complete end of his ambition and his political career? Is it not perfectly plain, beyond the possibility of contradiction, that his ultimate object, based upon the foundations that he has laid before our very eyes, is that once again in the presidential chair, to overthrow the Republic, and through the bloodiest revolution, if necessary, take possession of the Government as king or emperor? Let us not hastily brush such a thought aside when we consider what he has already done and said; and when we consider also the forces that would be behind him to support him in such an ambition.

He has already shown himself to be the most dangerous character that has arisen in American politics. Benedict Arnold and Aaron Burr are not relatively more than his little fingers when compared to what he undeniably is now doing to subvert the Government, and what he would logically be capable of doing.

The amazing condition that now exists discloses a union of purpose on the part of certain discontented masses and the privileged interests, under his leadership, to place him in the presidential chair.

That such a union of purpose could possibly come about may well give us pause, for it means that the money necessary not only to finance this preliminary campaign but to finance any other step that might be determined upon is ready for the purpose. Should he be elected to the presidency it would also show that he had the necessary votes, if votes were needed, for the next step on the programme, or that he would have the necessary soldiers, if soldiers were needed, for the next step. The question may well arise in the minds of patriots. Is this combination that we see already exists a grave effort against the continuance of the Republic, and is it not a fearful warning to patriotic citizens of all parties that they must unite in this presidential election to save the Republic and protect our land from even a more horrible experience than that of the French Revolution?

The burden of patriotism is so manifestly put upon the Democratic party to select a man for President of such loyalty to our form of Government and of such strength of mind and nobility of character as would draw to him all the voters, not only of the Democratic party, but Republicans as well, and all those of whatever party who love their country above party ties or party affiliations.

There has not been such a threat in our history against the life of the Republic either before or since the Civil War as the present successes of Mr. Roosevelt. We may well stand appalled at what our eyes see today and at the logical results of his election to the presidency. Is there another Lincoln, another Washington or another Jefferson or Jackson in our midst, to whom all hearts and minds may turn to lead us to a great victory in this day of utmost peril?

Rule of the People.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Years ago it was prophesied that the United States of America would find that the rule of the people would be found impracticable in time; that the lower classes, once they recognized their power, would be uncontrollable; that legislation would be passed that would bring the masses into power and control, and that when such a state of affairs should have arrived that it would eventually have to be controlled by some strong Caesar or dictator—then would follow a dictatorship, later a king, or an emperor, or a czar.

Are we on such a threshold now? Do we need something stronger than our present law system to curb the "Workers of the World," the lawless dynamiters, those who spit on the American flag, the blackhanders, the criminal element, the political bosses who control primaries, some of our judges, our aldermen, etc.?

The question is up to all. What are we going to do about it? Sedition is at work and the lawless element is sleepless.

Why He Favors Roosevelt.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I am for Mr. Roosevelt because he is the friend of the people, the promoter of progress and the square deal; his policies are the whole people have the right to rule and are competent to do so, not a representative few, and because a great many of the daily papers and political grafters are calling him demagogue, destroyer, tyrant, usurper, corruptionist and neurotic. No name is too bad for him, but the people have known Mr. Roosevelt long enough to be quite sure that he is none of those things. No public man is nearer to the hearts of the American people than Mr. Roosevelt is; he has lived his whole life among the common people and his every act has been done in the open light of publicity.

What he is and does and intends, the people know and they refuse to take the slimy advice offered daily by a bunch of grafters and their allies. The American people's judgment will be for Teddy, the man who is too strong and fair to be vilified.

The Americans are not insane by any means, and I think they will be found wise and strong and just as contemptuous of the slander of an honest, upright man as they were when the bosses and some of the daily papers were describing Lincoln as a gorilla and denouncing him as the disrupter of the country.

I am against Mr. Taft because his policies are as he states: "I have tried the dangerous task of Abraham Lincoln, who said, this is a government of the people, by the people, for the people. I find that this government ought to be a government of the people by a representative few of the people." I disagree with Mr. Taft and believe in what Mr. Roosevelt states: "The whole American people ought to rule, not a few political barking foxes backed up by some subsidized daily papers."

Sad Lessen to Be Drawn.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Next to his nauseating egotism, the chief characteristic of Theodore Roosevelt is the entire absence of anything resembling a sense of justice in his makeup.

"Like loves like," and, if a majority of the American people by their votes support Mr. Roosevelt in his selfish crusade, it will mean that they, too, are lacking in a sense of justice. That would be the saddest lesson to be drawn from a Roosevelt victory.

OBJECTS TO EAGLE CRITICISM.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Will you kindly grant me space to protest, simply as an impartial and disinterested citizen of Brooklyn, against the tone and intention of the edioral entitled "Bad Nursery Conditions," in your issue of May 25?

You state that "The Brooklyn Nursery and Infants Hospital has been for forty-one years a charitable enterprise, of which Brooklyn has been proud," also that you are satisfied that the purposes of the good women who have taken part in the support and management of the nursery have been worthy and their motives high.

If you are sincere in these statements, how is it possible that you should wish to be among the first to throw stones at this institution, which is now the sufferer from a terrible accident, such as you know to be possible any day in any of our finest institutions, public or private, especially possible and daily threatening in our city hospitals, where the burden of the work is carried, not by graduate nurses, but by young, inexperienced nurses in training, and low grade, low paid helpers, constantly changing.

I have no personal interest in or connection with the nursery, but in the name of fair play, justice and consideration of the forty-one years of splendid service given freely to the Brooklyn public by these best citizens and physicians of high standing in our community, I ask would it not better become our leading paper to avoid prejudicing a too impressionable public against them at such a time, and give them at least the right hand of fellowship in time of trouble.

ONE CAUSE OF HIGH TAXES.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

After looking into the cause for the periodical increase of taxes I can find but one solution, i. e., the increase on prices for street work. I have learned that a batch of repaving contracts amounting to about $400,000 worth of work was bid for at a letting on Wednesday, May 22, the lowest prices far too high as compared to prices for the same work during the past few years. These prices show evidence of truth in the rumors afloat that the five asphalt companies in Brooklyn are in a combination to boost the prices and keep them up. Is it possible that a few contractors can take advantage of our Borough administration in this way and also make the taxpayers pay about forty or fifty per cent. more for pavements this year than they have previous years?

SPIRITUALIST CHURCHES.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

In your issue of May 9 in an article giving an account of the erection of the new Church of the Divine Light, the impression is conveyed that it is the only church building erected by Spiritualists in New York State. Allow me to correct this statement by stating that another has recently been built at East Aurora, the town from which Elbert Hubbard sends forth his publications.

In the issue of May 20, in giving a report of the opening services, the statement is again made and even made to include the whole United States. This is a gross error, for the cause of modern Spiritualism has churches and temples from coast to coast.

In the leading Spiritualist Journal, the Progressive Thinker of Chicago of this week the editor mentions the receipt of a photograph of the magnificent First Spiritualist Temple of Boston, Mass., erected by the munificence of Marcellus Ayer at a cost of more than $250,000, while its furnishings cost $50,000 more, thus giving to Boston an edifice for the services of Spiritualism not equaled in any city in the world. The editor, Mrs. Cadwallader, further says that the receipt of the photo "makes us realize the necessity of taking account of the property which is now owned by Spiritualists, and which for some reason we seldom hear mentioned," and in the same issue sends out a call for particulars regarding all churches and temples owned by Spiritualists.

TO ENTERTAIN IS NOT TO ESPOUSE.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

A while ago The Eagle very kindly invited any of its women readers to state whether they were for or against "woman suffrage." While others availed themselves of the chance for a testimony, the time flew by, but even now it may not be too late to say what a pleasing experience it was to find that The Eagle, whom one supposed to have been decidedly against suffrage, was now so graciously espousing its cause. Surely the energetic readers of this forward move must feel greatly encouraged to have found in The Eagle so helpful and able a friend. The suffrage page which presented to The Eagle readers the photos so expressive of earnestness and good sense one could not very well withstand, and the word "victory" was written all over and between the lines, making it clear that the crowning time of the suffrage endeavor was not far away. Moreover, the conviction is clear that this fast-growing new order will not mean an encroachment on the exclusive rights of man, but rather will it be "man" enlarging [illegible] preparing for larger achievements, because of his so suitably adapted and acknowledged woman partner.

As for the President and the ex-President, even if they do get excited over who shall be elected next November, they are still at heart American gentlemen and would not for any price act unkindly toward the women suffragettes of the United States, but would rather help them along to gain the desired power to vote.

A FUTURE VOTER.

HARKS BACK TO OLD METHODS.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

The direct primary idea has proven expensive, faulty, and farcical in practice. I am converted to the old methods and systems. Under the direct primary the bosses have greater control than ever. The great mass of the people have not sense enough to be left to their own devices. Look at the faulty ballots cast every election by so-called intelligent men. That's proof enough of the folly of letting them have their heads at elections of any kind.

A NEGLECTED SECTION.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I have been wondering if, through your paper, you could draw attention from the proper authorities to the fact that one section of Brooklyn appears to be neglected sadly. From Tompkins Park at Greene avenue and Tompkins, all the way over to the Williamsburg Bridge, there is not a spot of grass or even a few trees for the children to play under. A park is needed badly, for, from Myrtle avenue over to Heyward street, at a quick reckoning, the neighborhood is more than thickly populated and the children are of the poor who depend on parks for their fresh air. In thinking of the money to be spent on improving the Bridge Plaza, and no play park, it seems to me like feeding men with good things and starving the little ones.

THE HIGH STEP QUESTION.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

FAITH IN MENTAL HEALING.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

The photograph in Saturday's Eagle of some of the Surinam lepers was an impressive one and brought to mind a case so simply and effectually cured. Here is the report of it: "Behold, there came a leper saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And Jesus put forth his hand and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed. And Jesus saith unto him, see thou tell no man." Keep out of the way of unbelievers, for unbelief never cured anything. Can we never find out how the Master cured that leper? It is as easy as a, b, c. The body without the assistance of the mind is positively a dead thing, unable to conjure up a single disease, so that our one thousand ailments are first in thought created, and then in thought confirmed, and, when we look upon a group of these ailing ones with the conviction that they can never be cured, we bring to them our doubts and our fears. It is "weakness to weakness," and although unbelief does not show itself in the same kind of spots it is really just as virile a disease. Christ was not a magician that did tricks to surprise the people. His way was a natural one of cause and effect. When a trusting, helpless soul looked to Him for help His deeply sympathetic nature would in the strength of love take upon itself their condition, bring mind and thought to the ailing one, while their particular affliction was dissolved and scattered to the winds. A wonderful physician was Christ. Some of the people had the good sense to appreciate His ability and prove His power. The art of healing, of mental healing, ought to be more generally acknowledged, and especially among those whose life work it is to heal the sick. Is the disease strong? Let the thought of overcoming it be stronger. Christ never told any of His patients that they could only live so "many days or so many hours. Oh, ye of little faith."

AGAINST MAJOR BELL.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Replying to the statement made by Major Bell to the effect that the opposition to his candidacy for renomination was caused by his refusal to do the bidding of those now attacking him, I beg to say that this statement is wholly untrue and without foundation.

The true reason for the determined effort which is being made by the progressive Republicans of the Fourth Assembly District of Queens to prevent the return of Major Bell to the Assembly next year is as follows:

Bell in conducting his campaign last year denounced the "bosses," and promised to further the direct primary cause and other reform measures to such an extent that he succeeded in getting the independent vote as well as the Independence League indorsement. But immediately after his election Bell, accompanied by Peter L. Meninger, the Fourth Assembly District leader, and H. Homer Moore, "the former Queens County boss," visited "Boss" Barnes, willingly took the customary "oath of allegiance," and promised to support only such measures as received the approbation of the machine. As a reward for his complacent attitude, Bell was placed on the Cities Committee, where he made a reputation as an automaton.

Nothing was done by Bell towards the passage of a real direct primary bill; in fact, he did nothing whatever towards redeeming his pre-election pledges. He did, however, introduce the Volunteer Firemen's Compensation bill, which he himself strangled in committee. Another of his foolish bills was bill No. 787, directed principally against the Bank of Long Island, a competitor of the Hillside Bank of Richmond Hill, of which Bell is a director. This bill also failed of passage.

Bell's entire time in Albany was spent in being agreeable to "the bosses," and as a result of his willingness to do the bidding of others he was nicknamed by the other legislators "The Joke from Queens."

The Progressives have already served their ultimatum on the "bosses," and if Bell is nominated they will bolt and place a third ticket in the field.

BEWARE, PICKPOCKETS.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

Your paper reaches very many people and I therefore thought it of importance for you to announce to your readers that there is a great danger again in traveling to and from such crowded places as Coney Island, because of the collection of shrewd pickpockets that operate upon trolley cars and trains going to such places. It would therefore be wise to caution your readers to be a little more careful and if possible, in each case, they should have a hook or button properly closing their right-hand side pocket from the inside. This will disappoint a great many crooks, who usually find these pockets free and wide open.

MOTION PICTURES

Opposing Opinions as to the Aldermanic Ordinance Regulating Them.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

As rector of a large parish of plain people, having very many adults and young children, to both of whom the moving picture theaters are of much importance, constituting their main source of recreation and instruction, I am naturally greatly interested in the proper regulation and control of those shows.

I urge the passage of the Folks ordinance, which will provide for the proper control and policing of the buildings in which moving picture shows are held. It will permit the construction of adequate and sanitary buildings, insure proper sanitary and other conditions within those buildings, give a proper control of the conduct of shows, giving the Mayor an effective veto, so to speak, in the power to revoke licenses. This will be an immense step forward.

We have, at the present moment, a National Censorship of films, which, as far as it goes, is quite satisfactory. It is undesirable to endanger the Folks bill by attaching to it a proposition for local governmental censorship, as proposed by the Nicoll ordinance, which would almost certainly result in the loss of the bill.

It is desirable that all who are interested in improving conditions in moving picture shows (and all should realize that these have become a very important institution in the city and possess a great potentiality for good) should unite in securing the passage of this Folks ordinance. Let the other matter wait for future consideration. We shall be better able to handle it after we have secured the passage of an ordinance that will control the construction, the sanitation and the policing of all moving picture theaters.

JOHN P. PETERS.

New York, May 24, 1912.

Opposes Folks Ordinance.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

If the writer of the editorial "To Regulate Moving Pictures Theaters," which appeared in The Brooklyn Eagle on May 13, 1912, will carefully read the Folks ordinance he will see that its requirements as to fireproof conditions in relation to courts and exits, auditorium rooms and adjoining rooms, balconies, fire escapes, basements and a number of other things in connection with moving picture theater buildings do not apply to the present moving picture theaters seating less than 300, nor does it affect them in any way as to these necessary particulars.

It is not claimed by the suggestors of the ordinance or by its most ardent supporters that the Folks ordinance will compel any of the present moving picture theates to close up, save by the indirect method of providing for the erection of larger houses. The Folks ordinance allows larger buildings to be erected, but does not compel the erection of these larger buildings, and these larger buildings which are to be built in the future are not required to be erected under the requirements of the present building code, but need only approach a greatly diminished standard of building requirement. Hence we are not getting in the Folks ordinance for the public safety all that some good people think is in it.

It is true that the Folks ordinance requires that where vaudeville is given in connection with moving pictures the building must come up to the requirements of the building code. The sponsors for the bill give as a reason for this that the vaudeville performance is oftentimes inartistic and obscene, but will it be any less so if shifted from a non-fireproof building to a fireproof one?

A good many people who attend these moving picture theaters will tell you that the vaudeville performance is only surpassed in inartistic merit, suggestive relationship of sexes and performance of criminal acts by the motion pictures which go to make up the most of the programme. Hence some of the good readers of your paper and the citizens of this city are wondering why Alderman Folks in his attempt to improve these motion picture theaters did not also provide for a municipal control of the pictures.

The present moving picture shows are a menace to the children who attend them, not so much because of their physical condition, but because of the picturing of all kinds of crime, including burglary, house breaking, assaults, arson, abduction and seduction.

Our educators, both secular and religious, tell us that the pictured thought and illustrated act are much more influential upon the characters of the young than spoken words.

It certainly follows, therefore, that such an influence as the motion pictures, which are observed by so many of our youth every day, should be placed under the censorship of the Board of Education, or some like competent body. It also follows that the censorship cannot be made effective unless done before the pictures are exhibited, for the pictures are displayed in one building today and in another, one tomorrow, not stopping in any one place long enough to admit of bringing the slow moving process of the court to bear upon them, when their influence and tendency are bad.

Why not, therefore, provide for the municipal control of the pictures, as well as the buildings, as is done in a number of American cities?

The passage of the Folks ordinance as it now stands would be an incomplete act and should not be enacted into law, unless provision is made in it for the control and censoring of motion pictures exhibited in public places.

INFORM THE POLICE.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

On Sunday, May 19, between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, my sister, an elderly lady, was standing on the corner of Nostrand avenue and Malbone street, waiting for a car, when a horse and rider knocked her down and seriously injured her.

The horse got on the sidewalk and struck her head and back with his hoofs. She was shocked and stunned to an alarming degree. Kind residents of a nearby house brought her to the open hallway and ministered to her needs, and when she was able to be moved brought her home. The young man, the rider of the horse, who was well dressed in leather riding boots and gauntlets and a cloth cap drawn over his eyes, made no offer of assistance to take her home or call a cab or do anything whatever, and saying that he would write, call and telephone to inquire how she was, mounted his horse and rode off. He left his name, address and telephone number with my sister, and a bystander said that he belonged to Troop C.

Next day, Monday, my nephew made inquiries and found there no number as given—that the address was false, the place being an open lot. The doctor says the contusions are very severe and may develop seriously, perhaps cause lameness for life, which will make great expense, besides loss of strength and time.

Now I ask what redress have we? There was no policeman in sight, nor was the crowd large then and there. My sister was standing quietly on the curb and is very cautious. Up to the present moment no word or message of any description has been received from the rider, although he has my sister's name and address.

Are the days of chivalry gone by? In my youthful days a man on horseback was connected in my mind with knighthood, with deeds of sympathy and protection for the weak and powerless. But such coldblooded indifference and brutal neglect must be shown up, and also the utter carelessness and inability to properly control a horse while riding on public streets.

CARE OF THE BLIND

An Opposition Alleged to Have Worked a Great Harm.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I wish to correctly set forth the facts in regard to the recent defeat of the Burd bill.

This bill, introduced in the last Legislature by Senator Burd of Buffalo, provided that the Governor should appoint a commission of five members, whose duty it would be to look after the interests in general of the blind of the State. No salary was to be paid to any of the commissioners, but an appropriation of $25,000 a year was made which was to be used by the commission in helping the blind, the intention being that it would be devoted mainly in helping the adult blind who constitute more than three-fourths of the blind. The children are already very well provided for by the schools, etc., in this State, but the State has done practically nothing for its adult blind, and it was believed that this commission would devise ways and means for helping the blind to help themselves. This was to be accomplished by teaching them trades, by buying for them at low rates raw materials with which they could do their work, by teaching the blind in their homes various lines of work in which they could engage there, by finding out what articles those who acted as salesmen could best sell, etc.

A number of other States have such commissions that are doing good work. Massachuetts has for some years given to its commission $40,000 for expenses. Ohio, in addition to giving pensions to its dependent blind, appropriates nearly $60,000 for the expenses of its commission. New Jersey and Maryland have commissions. The last named State, through its commission, has established a workshop where fifty to one hundred blind men and women do successful work in broom making, chair caning, rug weaving, mattress making, piano tuning, etc.

In this State it was not thought that there would be any opposition to such a splendid measure as the Burd bill. The 7,000 blind of the State seemed almost a unit for it, as well as did most of the various organizations working for the blind in the State. Included in the number were the Home for the Blind at 104th street and Amsterdam avenue, Manhattan, where a hundred inmates are cared for—those able to work are given employment by means of which they can earn necessary expense money; a home for blind women at 550 Washington avenue, Brooklyn, wehre the women are always busily employed; the two State schools for the blind; the Catholic schools for the blind; the Industrial Home for the Blind at 516 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, where thirty to forty men find work and about half of that number are given a home there; the Matilda Ziegler Magazine for the Blind; the two libraries for the blind in Brooklyn and Manhattan; the Buffalo Association for the Blind; the Albany Association for the Blind, and the Sunshine Society, which provided funds for caring for blind babies in the State. They were all in favor of the establishment of a commission.

As the bill progressed in the Legislature it was discovered that there was some secret opposition to it, but in spite of this the bill passed both Houses. After this, while the bill was awaiting the Governor's action, it was learned that the opposition came from Miss Holt and friends of the New York Association for the Blind. They opposed the measure on the ground that it interfered with and duplicated the work of that association. It then became necessary for the friends of the bill to show that the New York Association was but one of the organizations working for the blind in the State; that it was by no means covering the field of Greater New York, and scarcely doing anything for the nearly 4,000 blind outside the city, and that many of the claims which that organization had been making were greatly exaggerated. The friends of the New York Association were able to get Governor Dix to veto the measure, and thereby deprive the blind of the State of $25,000 a year, which the Legislature had voted to be spent for their good, and hence the blind are rightly up in arms against the New York Association.

The newspapers of New York seem to have been deceived along with others of the public, for many columns were given to tell the work of the New York Association, and scarcely any mention was made of other organizations, some of which are doing a bigger and better work for the blind. But the newspapers in other parts of the State have been very bitter in their articles against the action of the New York Association. The Buffalo Inquirer said editorially: "The only opposition presented to the Governor came from a small clique in New York City which presumes to extend its usefulness beyond the metropolis, but with little or no success, while a great majority of prominent men and women who understand conditions of the blind in the State, made every effort to have the Governor sign the bill."

In my opinion, the New York Association for the Blind misleads the public and raises false hopes in the blind. I heartily wish that they would ponder over our club motto, "To be and not to seem."

COMPLAIN OF SERVICE.

Editor Brooklyn Daily Eagle:

I noticed a communication the other day in your paper signed "Citizen," who complains of the lack of service on Wyckoff avenue, between Halsey street and the Ridgewood depot. If the Public Service Commission was to do its duty it would force the B. R. T. to continue its Halsey street line along Wyckoff avenue to the corner of Myrtle avenue, making that point the terminal of the line. The tracks are there and three or four minutes would be the extra time consumed. But think of the big convenience to the public.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD FOR CHILD'S MURDER

WILL FACE THEM LATE TODAY.

Clews Found by Detectives Are Few and Not Positive—Hunt for Evidence Continues.

A large corps of detectives worked all last night and this morning in the neighborhood of 3968 Third avenue, Manhattan, where Julia Conners, 12 years old, was attacked and stabbed some time on Saturday night, without unearthing any clue of importance. If they had anything more to substantiate their suspicions in regard to the two men now held on suspicion, they kept it dark.

The girl who may be able to aid the police in their search for the murderer, Florence Molz of 3538 Third avenue, who said yesterday that she saw one of the two men held temporarily, lure Julia Connors into the flat house, 3940 Third avenue, was brought up to the Morrisinia Court this morning. She has been in the custody of the Children's Society since last night. Agent Sweeney of the Children's Society brought her up in court under the impression that the two prisoners, Giovanni Gerissi of 3970 Third avenue, and Jefferson Kelly, 74 East 120th street, would be arraigned.

Instead, the police decided to hold the men in the police station until this afternoon, when Coroner Shongut will make a preliminary examination. The Molz girl will then be brought face to face with Gerissi, the man she claims to identify.

The Molz girl has been detained as a material witness. At present she is in the custody of Detective Kennedy of the Tremont station.

Seems Impossible for Murderer to Have Lowered Body From Housetop.

In order to trace the movements of the murderer, the detectives went to the roof of the apartment house in which the murder was committed and tried to find if it was possible for anyone to have lowered the girl's body from the roof to the vacant lot where she was discovered in a dying condition. The girl was found ten or fifteen feet from the building line, and it did not look as if she had been removed from the house in that manner, although it is possible that she had been swung free of the wall.

The murderer is still believed to have carried his victim down the stairs from the apartment on the third floor. The box in which the girl was found was at first expected to afford the police a clew. It was marked: "100 cans. The Dirt Cleaner. Bestine. Domestic Mfg. Co., L I. City."

Julius Weinberg, who keeps a delicatessen store in the house where the child was attacked, put a damper on the activity of the detectives in that direction by saying he had a box exactly like theirs four months ago and disposed of it, to the best of his recollection, by throwing it out to be picked up by the street cleaners. He said that other delicatessen men have similar boxes, and that there must be scores in the neighborhood.

Father Barred From Scene of Crime.

Detective Barry of the Tremont station guarded the door of the vacant apartment where the girl was attacked and would let no one enter until the fingerprint experts from Police Headquarters have made an examination of the blood marks on the walls of the bathroom. When Edward J. Connors, father of the murdered girl, who has been in a distracted state ever since the body was found, rushed up the stairs and tried to get into the apartment so that he could look around, Barry barred the way.

When the murderer had finished hacking the girl's body he washed it in the bathtub, the detectives say. So far their investigation has resulted in negative or fruitless discoveries.

For instance, after going through the apartment house No. 3968, and the adjoining building, No. 3970, and questioning all the tenants, the detectives could find no one who heard any suspicious noises on Saturday night. Charles Rosell, the windows of whose apartment on the fourth floor of No. 3970 overlook the apartment on the third floor of No. 3968, in which the girl was attacked, did not have his attention drawn to the house opposite during the time in which the girl was there. The apartment above the third floor of No. 3968 is without an occupant, and the murderer was secure from interference from that quarter.

Murderer Worked Noiselessly; His Victim Drugged.

But the flat underneath is occupied by Moses Stern, owner of the building. The landlord's wife, kept awake Saturday night by the heat and by the necessity of nursing her sick mother, heard nothing stirring in the apartment overhead. There is no doubt that the murderer worked noiselessly, having drugged his victim, so the detectives were not surprised that the suspicions of the tenants had not been aroused on Saturday night.

The oilcloth in which the clothing of the victim was found in the vacant lot, matches that in the kitchen of the vacant flat. The coverin was left by Mrs. Troy, the former occupant, who now lives in Fulton avenue, when she moved a week ago Friday last.

In their anxiety to find the murderer and help Connors, many persons in the neighborhood worked yesterday and today without accomplishing anything much except interfering with the police. But a small boy who had been prowling around in Gerissi's coal and wood cellar in 3970 Third avenue, picked up a derby hat, dented in at the top and broken in the rim, which he carried to Detective Barry. In this hat was the initial "P," in gilt paper. The hat was sent along to the Tremont station.

MARRIED AT NUPTIAL MASS.

Miss Kathleen Klingler Becomes Mrs. Daniel G. Scheurerer.

Miss Kathleen Klingler and Daniel G. Scheurerer were married this morning by the Rev. G. H. Andreas in St. Barbara's Roman Catholic Church, Bleecker street and Central avenue. The bride was given away by her brother, Henry Klingler.

Miss Klingler was attended by Miss Rose Grobe as bridesmaid, and John Scheurerer, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Anca Reich was flower girl, and the ushers were Bernard Scheurerer and Joseph Klingler. During the nuptial mass the Ave Maria was sung by Miss Anna Gerhinger and Mrs. C. Mindel.

After the ceremony the guests, numbering 150, assembled at the Klingler home, 894 Bushwick avenue, where a wedding breakfast was served. The house was beautifully decorated with ferns, white roses and orange blossoms. Among the guests were relatives of the bride from Rochester and several Pennsylvania towns.

The couple will leave tonight for an extended honeymoon at Niagara Falls and Canada.

FLAMES SWEEP TONOPAH.

Tonopah, Nev., July 8—Two blocks in the business district of Tonopah were destroyed by fire early today. Scores of volunteers joined in the fight against the flames. Several office buildings were destroyed.

ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET.

The dead body of a man about 35 years old, and with the left hand missing, was found today in a vacant lot near 137th street and the Union Railroad car barns, in the Bronx. There was a bullet hole in the right temple and a .38 caliber revolver, with four loaded shells and one discharged one, was discovered beside the body. The police of the Alexander avenue station, who found the body, claim that it is a case of suicide.

The dead man was clothed in a suit of blue serge, and his hair and mustache were sandy in color. The left hand was probably lost in some accident, the police believe.

The body was removed to the morgue, after Dr. Eddy of Lincoln Hospital had viewed it. The physician said he thought the man had been dead a number of hours at least. The police have no clew to the man's identity.

GENI'S CREW WAS NEAR DEATH

Fifteen Sailors on Wave-Washed Bark That Was Pounding to Pieces.

The crew of the wrecked Italian bark Geni which went to pieces off Iangua, in the Bahama Islands, arrived here today on board the Hamburg-American liner Allemania. There were fifteen members of the crew, and all were saved, having reached the shore from the wrecked vessel after a long pull in the ship's small boat. Captain Joseph Capello told a thrilling story of having been battened down in the hold of the ship for twenty-four hours, the men not deserting, in the hope that they might be able to save the cargo, but the storm which drove them ashore increased in violence and the men finally had to leave the ship.

The captain said it was just at day break on June 22, that the vessel struck the rocks, the bow grinding on with a jar that brought the captain, who was below up from his cabin. The men worked hard to get the ship into a sheltered position but could not and finally had to take to the cabin. During the afternoon the storm abated somewhat and the men again went on deck. But the waves washed over them and several times it appeared that the ship would go to pieces with the men still on board. Frantically they tried to get her clear of the rocks, but with the coming of night the storm again set in and the men took refuge in the cabin. The water here was up to their knees, and there was no way to pump the vessel clear. Finally after they had been on board twenty-four hours, with the ship pounding to pieces, they decided to launch a small boat. The fifteen men piled into the craft and then started for shore. They were somewhat sheltered when the boat started and succeeded in getting to land safely. The vessel was a total loss.

MAD DOG BITES LITTLE GIRL.

Animal Crazed by Heat Nips Little Verisa Sipi's Leg.

There was a panic among children at Fort Hamilton Parkway and Ninety-seventh street shortly after 1 o'clock today, when a dog suddenly became mad from the heat. The canine only succeeded in injuring one child, it being lassoed by a policeman before it could do further damage.

Verisa Sipi, 2 years old, was the victim. She was playing in front of her home at 9704 Fort Hamilton Parkway when her attention was attracted by the screams of her playmates. She looked up just as the dog made a leap at her. The little girl evaded the first attack but before she could reach her home, the animal sunk its teeth in her right leg.

The child's mother rushed from the house carrying a broom and managed to beat the dog off. By that time the entire neighborhood was aroused and men, women and children stoned the animal. A policeman from the Fort Hamilton station arrived and after cornering the dog secured it with a rope.

A physician in the neighborhood cauterized the wound in little Verisa's leg and told the mother to take the child to the Pasteur Institute for further treatment. The dog, which is said to be the property of Louis Capell of Ninety-seventh street, is held at the Fort Hamilton station awaiting the arrival of a representative of the Health Department.

WALLET STOLEN AT CONEY.

Robert Harris, 27 years old, of 93 West Sixteenth street, and John Keller, 28 years old, of 2921 West Sixteenth street, Coney Island, were held by Magistrate Geismar, in the Coney Island police court, today, in $1,000 bail each, for examination on July 11, on a charge of larceny from the person.

The complainant was Rene Montoes, 21 years old, of 64 Columbia place, who alleges that last night, while he was standing in front of one of the Coney Island attractions, Harris took a wallet containing $98 from his pocket. Montoes alleges that he caught Harris in the act, and he called a policeman, but before the latter arrived he claims that Harris had passed the wallet to Keller, who disappeared.

In the station house Harris protested his innocence and asked the right to furnish a witness. The witness proved to be Keller, who was identified by Montoes as one of the alleged pickpockets.

LAD TUMBLES FROM SWING.

First Accident Since the Opening of Flatbush Playground.

The first accident since the opening of the public playgrounds in Flatbush occurred today, shortly before noon, when Stanley Snyder, 2½ years old, of 323 Hawthorne street, fell out of a swing in Playground No. 3, New York avenue and Robinson street. This playground was opened on July 4.

The boy was being swung by one of his companions when he lost his hold and tumbled backward, striking on his head. His mother witnessed the fall and fainted. Ambulance Surgeon Brockway revived the mother and hurried the boy to the Kings County Hospital. The lad is suffering from concussion of the brain.

ACCUSED WIFE DENIES WRONG.

Emma L. Dutot was today awarded $75 counsel fee by Justice Benedict in the Special Term of the Supreme Court, in the suit for an absolute divorce brought against her by Sherman S. Dutot, an employe of the New York Telephone Company, of 507 Jefferson avenue. Lawyer Burt L. Rich represented Mrs. Dutot, who insists that the charges contained in her husband's complaint are untrue. Ex-Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Roy represented the husband and told the court that the charges were based upon discovery made by his client which implicated a Red Bank business man. In reply the wife insists that the implication was wrong and that she had a good defense to the suit.

NO TRACE OF WITSON INSIDE THE TOMBS

MAY HAVE HAD CONFEDERATE.

Armed Guards Continue Their Hunt Cautiously, in Fear of Bullets.

After a night's vain search for a Tombs prisoner, George Witson, who made a desperate attempt to gain his liberty, yesterday, the opinion grew into almost certain conviction today that Witson had made good his escape.

Those engaged in the man hunt are at a loss to know how Witson could have got away. A fifteen foot wall surrounds the prison yard of the Tombs in Manhattan. In his endeavor to get free the man knocked down an armed guard who fired a shot at him. After that police patrols were posted about the prison and it was considered practically impossible for Witson to get free of the prison grounds.

The impression that the man had escaped grew as the morning passed and it was rumored that he had been seen on the Franklin street wall and was watched as he walked along the top of it to the Centre street side, where the wall is lower. There he jumped, it was said. Rumor had it that he was seen by three boys and that he snatched the hat from the head of one. This could not be verified but there was no trace of the man in any of the numerous hiding places about the jail.

Search Slow and Careful, as Witson Has a Gun.

Every available keeper of both the day and night force was on duty this morning slowly and systematically searching every nook and corner of the Tombs prison seeking Witson. He was committed to the prison on a charge of robbery and had been at large in the prison since yesterday.

The searchers' proceeded very slowly and carefully for Witson was armed with a heavy .38 caliber revolver which he took from one of the keepers yesterday. With this gun Witson fired a shot at the keeper and then after an exchange of shots which threw the 687 other prisoners in the prison into a panic, he disappeared. No trace of the man has since been discovered. He had four shots left in the gun and on account of his former record and from their acquaintance with him, the searchers were cautious in their search.

The night force of keepers under Deputy Warden Jones kept up the search until about 2 o'clock this morning and then leavin sufficient guard of keepers and police from the Elizabeth street station, the quest was discontinued until daylight when it was again taken up.

At 6 o'clock the day force of keepers under Deputy Warden Hanley arrived and reinforced the night force. The police under Sergeant Beatty who had been stationed on the streets surrounding the Tombs were then relieved by the keepers and were withdrawn.

Crawled Through Maze of Pipes to Engine Room.

Several years ago, the deputy warden explained, one of the prisoners got away in a similar manner, and it was twenty-four hours before he was located hiding in a corner of the carpenter shop. This man, however, did not have a revolver with four cartridges in it, and the searchers could proceed faster.

It was learned today that Witson was not a "trusty," as at first reported, but was a prisoner charged with a felony, which would prevent his being given any liberty. The man's cell was on the eighth floor, and it is the belief of the police that the man got away in the pipe court, a square inclosure inside the building, through which the ventilation pipes and steam pipes run to the various floors. Through this maze of pipes, probably he made his way to the engine room, where he was first seen. From the engine room, whose occupants he aroused, and who endeavored to catch the man, he made his way to the yard, and then the struggle with O'Houlihan, one of the guards, followed. He fired one shot, and, if the man succeeded in getting free from the prison walls, it was this shot that served as a signal, for there was only a short time before the prison walls were guarded by policemen. The police believe that if the man escaped, when the shot was fired, an accomplice on the Franklin street side of the building tossed a rope upon the wall to him. Up to this rope Witson may have climbed, and over the wall to liberty.

MAC VEAGH STARTS INQUIRY.

Will Take Up Charges Made by Andrew in His Letter.

Washington, July 8—Secretary MacVeagh returned to Washington today and will undertake to learn immediately the exact conditions among the officials of the Treasury Department.

There will be no formal investigation, but the Secretary intends to learn whether any of the high officials mentioned in A. Platt Andrew's letter of resignation are dissatisfied or lacking in co-operation. He does not anticipate any further resignations.

Most of the officials mentioned by Mr. Andrew have made declarations of their cordial support. Secretary MacVeagh would not indicate who, if any, of the officials had not made such a statement.

A successor to Mr. Andrew has been selected.

A POTENTIAL PARANOIAC.

Thaw Was Born So, Declares Dr. Macdonald at Hearing.

White Plains, July 8—Dr. Carlos F. Macdonald, testifying for the State, for the fourth successive day, swore at the Thaw insanity proceedings today that, in his opinion, Harry K. Thaw was "born a potential paranoiac and has never arrived at a normal mental status."

Under cross-examination by Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for Thaw, he admitted that he had received about $10,000 for services rendered to the State in Thaw's two trials.

Thaw's alienists were expected to take the witness stand today or tomorrow and it is not unlikely that this week will see a conclusion of the hearing.

BATTLESHIP DEADLOCK LIKELY

House Conferees Expected to Oppose Senate Changes in Bill.

Washington, July 8—Indicating that the House would not agree to the naval appropriation bill as amended by the Senate to carry two battleships, Representative Padgett, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, announced today that he would refuse to accede to any of the Senate changes which have increased the bill by $15,000,000.

It is believed there will be a deadlock on the measure.

ONE ETIQUETTE LESSON, $10.

Magistrate Naumer Gives It to Man Who Crossed Feet in Car Aisle.

Magistrate Naumer in the Gates avenue court today held that no gentleman ever crosses his feet in a public conveyance. So doing, he read Richard Jacques of 81 Jefferson street out of the pale of the elite, for the latter was before him charged with that and a few other things also.

The complainant was Mrs. Anna Bromberg of 23 East 107th street, Manhattan. She said that she got on a car and saw Jacques on it, gracefully reclining over a couple of seats, and with his legs crossed in the aisle. She said that she asked him to make room for her and that he refused, but that she sat down beside him anyway. Jacques then, she said, made no effort to prevent his shoe from swinging against and soiling her dress. When she remonstrated with him, she added, he used insulting language to her.

Then the magistrate read Jacques a lecture and fined him $10.

FUNERAL OF LEWIS M. GIBB

Bay Shore, July 8—The funeral of Lewis Mills Gibb, the junior partner in the firm of Fredrick Loeser & Co., who died here suddenly Saturday morning, was held from his country home in Bay Shore this afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. William H. Garth, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Islip, and the boy choir of the church chanted the burial service.

The late home of Mr. Gibb was crowded with a host of friends and business associates and by a number of the employes of the Loeser and Mills & Gibb firms. Most of these came out to the service on a special train that left the Flatbush avenue station of the Long Island Railroad at 12:45 p.m, the funeral being held shortly after their arrival.

A number of Mr. Gibb's personal friends also came out on the special train. Among them were Charles W. Osborne, the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar, pastor of the First Reformed Church, Brooklyn, and Mrs. John Roberts. Those from Frederick Loeser & Co.'s included buyers and executives, heads of departments, and employes representing all departments of the store. There were similar representatives of Mills & Gibb. There were a few more than a hundred people on the train. It arrived here about 2 o'clock, and its passengers were taken at once to the Gibb home.

The pallbearers were Ira Richards, jr.; Briton N. Busch, W. Sterling Peters, Warren B. Nash, Robert Low Pierrepont, James Pierce, Howard F. Whitney, Alexander M. White, jr.; Josiah Orme Low, Clarence H. Robbins and David Stuart.

After the short service here, Mr. Gibb's body was taken on a special train to Brooklyn, for interment in the John Gibb plot in Greenwood Cemetery.

DETECTIVE ATTACKED BY CAT

Encountered Belligerent Feline Instead of a Burglar in Vacant Building.

A big gray cat, apparently mad from hunger and heat, in a two story and basement house at 172 Taylor street, recently acquired by the city for the Roebling street widening, attacked Detective Brown of the Clymer street station when he entered the building, yesterday, to investigate a burglar scare.

Neighbors had heard strange noises in the building for several days last week, and finally they notified the police. Brown forced a front basement window and was stepping inside the room when the cat sprang at him and began to claw his face. The room was dark and the detective was at a loss to know what sort of an animal he had encountered. He shouted for help, and men outside who heard the tumult went to his assistance.

Meanwhile Brown had got a grip on the throat of the cat and choked it. Investigation showed that the cat had been the cause of the neighborhood scare and it paid the penalty with its life.

FOGBOUND SHIPS COME IN.

Opera Singers From London Arrive on the St. Louis.

Held at Sandy Hook for twenty-four hours, the steamship St. Louis of the American line, came into her dock this morning from Southampton, bringing with her a cabin list of sixty-five passengers, among them being seven opera singers who have been with Oscar Hammerstein at his London opera house. The singers, who have been engaged for various productions here for the coming season, are Arthur Philips, Mrs. E. D. Paine and Miss Emma Paine, who has been away for three years, singing in all the European capitals; Miss Estelle Johns, Roydon Keith, Miss E. C. Chaplin and Miss Josephine Dowler.

A. A. Adee, Assistant Secretary of State under the administrations of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt, returned from a tour of Europe. Others aboard the ship were Mr. and Mrs. George Allan, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Guttman, S. W. Lawrence, Dr. Fabro Regotto, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sherman and Mrs. E. F. Wishard and the Misses Wishard.

Bringing over twenty-five saloon and 132 second cabin passengers and 1,100 bags of mail that had been booked for the Cunader Lusitania, the Anchor line steamship California came in today from Glasgow via Liverpool. Her total passenger list in the two cabins was 535. The Lusitania's passengers were, when it was determined to hold the ship because of the labor troubles on the other side, distributed among several ships. The California left Liverpool on Saturday, June 29, the day set for the departure of the Lusitania.

SHOT WATCHING A FIGHT.

Loerch Left Hospital, but Had to Go to Another.

The telephone rang in the German Hospital this morning and a voice asked that an ambulance be sent to 649 Central avenue to convey Alfred Loerch to that institution. The message came from Loerch's relatives after he had refused to stay in the Bushwick Hospital last night.

Sometime ago Loerch was shot while watching a gun fight at Meserole and Leonard streets. A bullet struck him in the knee. The wound never healed and last night Loerch collapsed near his home. He was taken by Dr. Mangold to the Bushwick Hospital, but persisted in going to his home after being treated.

His condition became so alarming this morning that his people had him sent to the German Hospital.

WILSON ENTERTAINS JERSEY DELEGATES

Says He Invited All, but Senator Smith Fails to Appear.

GORE A VISITOR, ALSO.

Committeeman Hudspeth Will Represent the Nominee at Meeting of National Body.

Sea Girt, N. J., July 8—Governor Wilson this afternoon gave a luncheon to a score or more of Jerseymen who had gone to Baltimore to fight for him either as delegates or from the gallery. They were sitting round the Governor on his porch, telling stories of the convention and the campaign, when Senator Gore reached the cottage. Governor Wilson saw him before his automobile stopped and stepped rapidly down the walk to meet him.

"I have been wanting to see you ever since the convention," the Governor said, "and two or three times I have been on the point of wiring you to come. I feared that you could not get here today because you might feel you were needed in Washington on the Lorimer situation."

"Never fear," Senator Gore said, "I'll be back there in time to cast one vote."

Judge W. O. Wescott of Camden and Representative Murray of Massachusetts were welcomed by the Governor at the curb.

"I am honored to meet my personal representative at Baltimore" the Governor said. "I have heard so many fine reports about your great speech."

Word reached the Governor during the forenoon that former Senator Smith would not come to Sea Girt with the other New Jersey delegates. The Governor was told that Mr. Smith had said he had not received an invitation and that he knew nothing more of the matter than he had read in the newspapers.

To this the Governor replied that he had asked E. E. Grosscup, chairman of the delegation, to invite every delegate, and he was under the impression that Mr. Grosscup had told him he had done so.

Governor Wilson amended his declaration of last night that he "probably would not go" to Chicago to attend the meeting of the Democratic National Committee with a positive statement that he would not make the trip.

"I shan't go," he said. "I find that it is not customary and I shall remain away. Judge Hudspeth will be my representative at the meeting."

Judge Hudspeth is the national committeeman from New Jersey.

The Governor has an appointment today with William F. McCombs, his campaign manager. The nominee said that he intended to consult with as many party leaders as he could before deciding upon a man for the national chairmanship.

The Essex delegation, headed by James R. Nugent, arrived at 1:35 p.m., after the other guests were being served. They were met on the lawn by Congressman Hughes of New Jersey, and ushered into the reception room, where they passed in line before the Governor and Mrs. Wilson.

As Nugent approached the man whom a year ago he denounced as "an ingrate and a liar" he held out his big hand and said good-naturedly: "I am glad to see you, Governor."

"I am glad to see you, Mr. Nugent," was the Governor's answer.

With Nugent arrived Harry Backus and Mayor Arthur Seymour, who with ex-Senator James Smith comprised the four Essex County delegates who voted to the last against Wilson's nomination. Smith was not present. In his place came Judge Simon Hahn, Smith's alternate.

BOXING CASE POSTPONED

Application of National Sporting Club Will Be Heard on Wednesday Next.

Justice Gavegan today adjourned till Wednesday next the argument in the application brought by the National Sporting Club of America asking for a stay restraining the State Boxing Commission from revoking the club's license until the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court shall review and pass on the legality of the action of the Boxing Commission in revoking the license.

The club had been already granted a writ of certiorari, which directs that the action of the Boxing Commission shall be reviewed by the Appellate Division. This review by the Appellate Division, however, cannot be had until the fall term of that court. The club is asking this stay of the revoking of the license until the fall term in order that it may put on boxing exhibitions during the summer.

Commissioner Neil of the State Boxing Commission is out of town; and the Justice granted the adjournment in order to allow the Commissioner to be present at the argument.

The club's license was revoked by the Commission upon the allegation that Referee Haley, at the club, gave a decision at the end of a boxing exhibition. The Commission maintained that this giving of the decision was in violation of the so-called Frawley law which governs such matters.

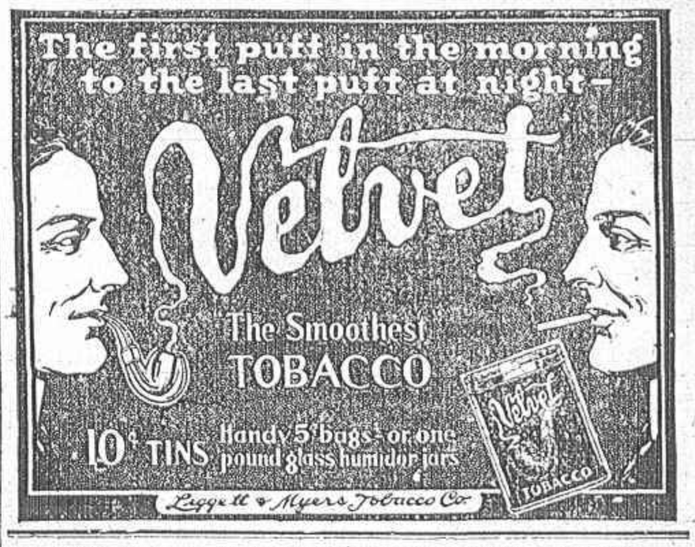

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Contrary to expectations, the Long Island championship doubles final was not played yesterday on the courts of the Kings County Tennis Club. It had been arranged first to play off the deciding sets, but owing to the inability of the players to get to the courts, the match was postponed again. There is a strong possibility of the men crossing rackets today. It rests with Voshell and Baggs to win only another set in order to annex the title, for they, at present, have two sets to their credit. Phillips and Rosenbaum, the opposing pair, won the first set at 6—3, but the winner of the singles fixtures and his speedy partner Raggs took the next two at 9—7, 10—8. If Phillips and Rosenbaum are in their usual form, Voshell and Baggs will be forced to extend themselves to take the match with the playing of one set.

Johnson Wins Middle States Title.

Playing the best game of his long career, Wallace M. Johnson yesterday defeated Walter Merril Hall in the challenge round of the Middle States championship on the turf courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club at Mountain Station, N. J., at 10—12, 1—6, 7—5, 6—1, 6—3. The former University of Pennsylvania intercollegiate champion played a game in which court generalship and skillful handling of the racket were nicely blended. Never before in his career has he displayed such masterful control of the ball and he rose superior to Hall's greatest flights of brilliancy. The final round of the mixed doubles was also decided, Mrs. B. C. Edgar and Lindley Dunham defeating Mrs. R. B. Neff and Spencer Miller, jr., at 6—3, 3—5, 6—4.

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

CONSIDER B. R. T. CONTRACTS

Public Service Commission Not Giving Interborough Preference in Subway Matters.

Consideration by the Public Service Commission today of the contract between the city and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for the new subway, brought the announcement from George S. Coleman that the Commission would probably take up the similar contract with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company in a few days. It has not been fully completed, the chief counsel said, because the routes which it concerns are more involved than those given to the Interborough and more time is consequently required for its preparation.

Mr. Coleman and the Public Service Commissioners scouted any idea that the Interborough was being given any preference in the preparation of the contracts. It was pointed out that its contract fills 125 printed pages and that the B. R. T. contract will be even longer. As the simpler of the two, the Interborough contract was finished first. It is in two parts, one concerning the new subway routes and the other detailing the extension and third-tracking of the elevated railroad lines in Manhattan and The Bronx.

It is probable that Leroy T. Harkness, assistant counsel for the Commission, will finish the draft of the B. R. T. contracet by Wednesday. It will then receive the same consideration, said Commissioner Willcox, that was begun in the case of the Interborough today. No date has been set for the execution of the two contracts, but this formal procedure is to be done at the same time for both Interborough and the B. R. T. The Board of Estimate, its members say, will pass on both contracts simultaneously.

MRS. SAGE'S GIFT OF $5,000

Mrs. Russell Sage has contributed $5,000 to the pension fund of the Street Cleaning Department. Mayor Gaynor was apprised today of Mrs. Sage's generosity in a letter from "Big Bill" Edwards, the Street Cleaning Commissioner. The Commissioner expresses the hope that other philanthropic citizens will follow Mrs. Sage's example.

"Dear Mrs. Sage—We all thank you exceedingly for your generous contribution of $5,000 to the pension fund of the Department of Street Cleaning. The men of the department will all hold you in grateful remembrance. They have to work hard, and in addition to being well paid it is just that they should be able in the end to retire on a fair pension to support them in their old days. Sincerely yours,

"W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor."

Since the pension fund has been established a number of the "White Wings" have been retired by Commissioner Edwards.

TO RETIRE HAVEMEYER STOCK

Court Orders Action in $10,000,000 Sugar Common Held by Heirs.

Recognizing as actually outstanding the $10,000,000 of common stock held by the heirs of Henry O. Havemeyer in the National Sugar Refining Company of New Jersey, an opinion filed in the Court of Chancery today by Vice Chancellor Stevens, ordered that this stock be retired in the manner prescribed by law. The decision of the vice chancellor enjoins the holders from voting the stock and gives the defendants leave to argue on the form which the decree of the court shall take as to how the stock shall be retired. The decision of the court was in the litigation brought by Norman B. Tooker and others against the executor and children of Henry O. Havemeyer to require them to surrender the certificates for 100,000 of the common stock of the National Sugar Refining Company.

WILDING, TENNIS CHAMPION.

Wimbledon, England, July 8—A. F. Wilding of New Zealand regained the lawn tennis championship of Great Britain, today, by defeating A. W. Gore, the English player, by three sets to one. The score was 6—4, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

JUDGMENT DEBTOR TO STAY IN JAIL

USED HIS MONEY FOR LAWYERS

Plaintiff Willing to Settle at a Large Loss, but Firestone Pays for Appeals.

Supreme Court Justice Benedict today declared that the law should not be used, if he could help it, in delaying the payment of an honest judgment against a litigant. Consequently, when it was shown to him that a judgment debtor was spending his money to hire lawyers to wiggle out, if possible, of paying up, rather than using the money on account of the judgment, he wouldn't raise a finger to get the man out of jail.

Adolph Firestone is in Raymond street jail under a commitment, having disobeyed an order of the court. There is a judgment of $2,790.96 against him for a breach of trust in which he was charged with having misappropriated money intrusted to his care, and Sheriff Law took him down to jail. He had an attorney ask Justice Benedict to order his release. He says he cannot pay the judgment. Justice Benedict looked over the affidavits and then refused to help Firestone out, saying:

"This case furnishes a very remarkable illustration and commentary upon the law's delays which are available to a defendant who is able and willing to employ astute counsel to enable him to avoid the discharge of legal obligations. The counsel for the plaintiff in his affidavit summarizes the efforts of this defendant to escape the consequences of his wrongdoing as follows: 'The affidavit of Seaman Frank, the plaintiff herein, correctly, if briefly, states the course of this wondrous litigation. There have been three appeals to the Appellate Division; there were examinations before trial; there have been seven motions made in Special Term since judgment and seven motions in the Appellate Division.' During the period which has elapsed since the recovery of the judgment in 1908 the defendant has been represented by five different attorneys or firms in succession, and it is a fair inference that if the money thus fruitlessly expended had been offered to the plaintiff in settlement of his claim it would have been accepted in settlement.

"As the attorney for the plaintiff states in his affidavit: 'If the defendant had shown any disposition to settle this case at any time the plaintiff would have been only too glad to accept, even at a large loss, since the only apparent result of all this litigation would be to have the defendant confined for a short time in Raymond Street Jail. The plaintiff or his attorney have no desire to have the defendant confined under this order if any offer of settlement was sincerely made. Section 776 of the judiciary law provides as follows: 'Where an offender, imprisoned as prescribed in this article, is unable to endure the imprisonment or to pay the sum or perform the act or duty required to be paid or performed in order to entitle him to be released, the court, judge or referee, or where the commitment was made as prescribed in section 2457 of the code of civil procedure, the court out of which the execution was issued may, in its or his discretion, and upon such terms as justice requires, make an order directing him to be discharged from the imprisonment.' It is plain from this provision that the power herein conferred rests in the sound discretion of the court and should only be exercised to promote the ends of justice. The present application does not contain a single feature which would justify the court in extending clemency to this offender. Motion denied. No costs."

AGAINST PASTOR RUSSELL.

Toronto, Ont., July 8—A successful anti-Pastor Russell meeting was held on the lawn of the Christie Street Baptist Church here yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance at the services at which the speakers were the Rev. Harry Nobles, pastor of the church, and Philip Sidersky.

Pastor Nobles quoted extensively from The Eagle concerning Pastor Russell's doctrines, and an open letter to Pastor Russell attacking the pastor and his methods was read by Sidersky.

On Saturday night, Frank Manton, a Russellite, had forewarned Nobles by telephone against Sidersky. Nobles then got into communication with both of the parties and found that the attack on Sidersky was groundless. Manton attended the meeting and, when Sidersky attacked him, he asked for a hearing to defend his name. He spoke for a few minutes, denying everything, but it was evident that the sympathies of the crowd were with Sidersky and Nobles.

IN MEMORIAM.

CONNORS—In memory of JOHN F. CONNORS, who died July 15, 1911.—His wife, Mary F. Connors, and daughter, May F. Exner.

DIED WITHIN THREE HOURS.

Mrs. Lysaght Didn't Know of Death of Her Son.

At their summer home in Hollywood avenue, Far Rockaway, yesterday, Mrs. Mary Lysaght, 77 years old, and Walter F. Lysaght, 37 years old, her son, died within three hours of each other. The son died at 6 o'clock in the morning from tuberculosis, with which he had been afflicted for several years. His mother died three hours later from heart trouble, without knowing of her son's death.

Mrs. Lysaght was the widow of the late Patrick Lysaght, at one time Alderman of the Sixth Ward, Manhattan. The funeral will take place on Wednesday from the Church of St. Mary's Star of the Sea, Far Rockaway, with the Very Rev. Herbert F. Farrell officiating. The interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

TUMBRIDGE PLANS MANY REFORMS

New Superintendent of Highways Rearrange Inspection Districts.

MORE OIL FOR THE STREETS.

Major John W. Tumbridge, Brooklyn new superintendent of highways, and Chief Engineer H. H. Schmidt are working on a plan to rearrange the districts covered by the highway and encumbrance inspectors. At present the borough is divided to that there are ten inspectors of highways and five of encumbrances, but when the new system is completed there will be fifteen districts all coming under the same classification. By so arranging the districts the superintendent believes that he will be able to get better results and more quickly. The districts will be much smaller, thus making it possible for the inspectors to get around in less time.

As it is now, an encumbrance inspector does not report to the superintendent any defects he might notice in a street, but confines his inspection to his own department. And in the same manner the highways inspector carries out his work. When the districts are smaller the fifteen inspectors will be held responsible for everything relating to highways within their district.

Since he took office, just a week ago, Superintendent Tumbridge has devoted several hours a day touring the borough in his automobile, making personal inspections. There are several matters that he has taken for consideration which he believes should be changed for the good of the taxpayers, but he will not make them known for several days.

The dusty condition of many streets is a thing that Major Tumbridge will make an effort to remedy and he has made it known that next year he intends to ask the Budget Committee for double the usual appropriation for oil.

"There is no reason why all of the streets should not be oiled, instead of watered," said the superintendent. "It is just as cheap to distribute oil, and the results are far better. An oiled street will not show dust for many weeks, while a street dampened with water gets in a bad condition in a few hours after the water has been spread. I see no reason why the necessary funds to carry out this plan cannot be had, but I ask all of the residents of the outlying districts to join in and do whatever they can to get the appropriation."

In speaking of the inspection of the highways last week, Superintendent Tumbridge said that he was well satisfied in nearly every case. The only really bad conditions in streets noticed were found between car tracks, and that is up to the railroad companies to make repairs.

"JEWEL" SERVANT IN COURT.

Mary Dougherty Admits She Stole Cut Glass, Laces, Etc.

Harry O. Wolff of 1961 Prospect place is going to be very careful in the future about the servants he employs, no matter how well recommended they come to him. A couple of months ago a Mary Dougherty, 19 years old, was engaged, and she came with the best of references, too. She proved to be an excellent servant, but for all that it wasn't a profitable venture for Wolff.

The trouble started soon after the girl was employed, when things about the house began to disappear—cut glass and laces and little knick-knacks. No one suspected Mary, because she was such a "jewel," but she was called in to help explain the mystery. She suggested that the washerwoman might be the thief. This sounded promising, but the latter was able to prove that she wasn't guilty, so the thing wasn't cleared up yet. But last week one of the other servants employed in the house found that something of hers had been taken, and she managed to locate it in Mary's room. This led to a more thorough search of the place, and in the same room were found some valuable laces, much of the missing cut glass, a gold pen and a couple of parasols. Mary confessed that she had taken those things, and said that she had given other things she had stolen to her relatives. These were recovered, and then Detective Connor was called, who arrested the girl.

In the Gates avenue court today, before Magistrate Naumer, Mary admitted that she had taken the things. She said that pretty things fascinated her, and that, besides, she had a passion for giving presents. She was held without bail for the Grand Jury.

YOUNG PARK ROWDY FINED.

Morris J. Haut's Enjoyment in Tompkins Park Cost Him $10.

Policeman Rooney arrested Morris J. Haut, one of several boys who were skylarking last night in Tompkins Park. In the Gates avenue court today the boy gave his age as 17 years, and his address as 436 Hart street. He was well dressed, was represented by a lawyer and had as witnesses three companions of last night. He said that he had gone into the park to get a drink of water, and had sat down on a bench and been arrested for nothing at all.

But the story that Policeman Rooney told was different. He said that the boys had been upsetting benches and creating a general disturbance, and that they had ended by forming a circle about two little girls and dancing about them, and finally tripping them up. Magistrate Naumer gave young Haut his choice of ten days in jail or a $10 fine. Haut paid the fine.

COTTON OPERATIVES STRIKE.

Twelve Mills, Employing 13,000, Partly Tied Up in New Bedford.

New Bedford, Mass., July 15—The operatives in twelve cotton cloth mills in this city struck today to enforce the demand of the weavers for the abolishment of the grading fines system of wages. The strikers gathered about the gates of the mills and made a noisy demonstration, but offered no violence of any kind during the first few hours of the strike.

The corporations affected by the strike are the Acushnet, Booth, Bristol, Dartmouth, Gosnold, Grinnell, Hathaway, Pierce Brothers, Ltd.; Pierce Manufacturing Company, the Page Manufacturing Company, Potomska and Wamsutta. These corporations employ an aggregate of about 13,000 operatives. It was estimated by observers at the mill gates that more than half of the operatives remained away from the mills. Some of the unions are waiting official sanction from their national organizations before quitting work.

The machinery in the mills was started at the usual time today, and many of the weavers and the loom fixers whose work is dependent upon the operation of the loom, were on hand when the gates opened. When they found that the notices announcing the establishment of the grading system had not been removed, they promptly left their looms.

With the single exception of the weavers' union, which is an independent organization, all of the craft organizations represented in the mills are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. There are also about 1,200 operatives who are members of the Industrial Workers of the World.

FIVE MEN IN RIOT CAUSED BY A GIRL

3 MEN IN STABBING AFFRAY.

Woman Also Cause of Trouble Between Gordon and Two Others. One Man Arrested.

The reserves of the Glendale station, under Captain Barnes, were called out early Sunday morning to stop a free-for-all fight in front of Ridgewood Grove at Cypress avenue and George street, to subdue five young men who were fighting over a 17-year-old girl.

As a result of the fight, Mathew Tighe of 81 Emerson place was treated by Ambulance Surgeon Moore of the German Hospital for a knife wound in the left leg, and then was allowed to go home; Patrolman Hemerick was treated by the same doctor for a scalp wound inflicted by an empty beer glass, and Thomas Dugan, 20 years old, of 335 Degraw street, was arrested on the charge of felonious assault.

Alice Quinn of 19 Columbia Heights, the cause of the trouble, was arrested for throwing the beer glass that struck the officer; Arnold Ward, 22 years old, of 34 Poplar street, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct; Edward McFadden, 22 years old, of 34 Popular street, charged with interfering with an officer and John May, 21 years old, of 21 Floyd street, on the same charge.

The four young men and the girl were arraigned in the Flushing court yesterday morning and Dugan was held in $1,000 bail for examination July 17; Alice was held in $500 bail for examination today; Ward was held in $500 bail for examination July 18; McFadden was held in $500 for examination on the same day, and May pleaded guilty and Magistrate Leach suspended sentence.

The fight started, according to the men arrested, as the result of the attentions Tighe, who was there alone, was paying to the 17-year-old girl. Dugan took exception to these attentions because Tighe had not been properly introduced to the girl.

Stabbing Affray Over a Girl.

Fighting over a girl with two other men yesterday, George Gordon, 23 years old, of 301 Wythe avenue, was stabbed and then left in front of the Eastern District Hospital by his assailants, who hurried away. Gordon was too weak to stand, and he was carried inside. Today, while his condition is still unchanged, Gordon is not inclined to give much information concerning the trouble.

Detective Comisky of the Clymer street station, was last night sent to the hospital. He told Gordon that he might die and all the information the young man would give was that he had been with a party of men at South Eleventh street and Wythe avenue, when a dispute started about a girl. Gordon said that a free-for-all fight with knives ensued and that at least six men were hurt.

Comisky immediately went to Wythe avenue and South Eleventh street and found the sidewalk covered with blood stains. Neighbors whom he questioned said that while it lasted the battle had been fierce and that several of the participants were hurt. The detective then returned to the hospital and was putting more questions to Gordon when he was told that another man who had been stabbed was staggering into the institution for treatment.

Seeing the detective, the stranger tried to escape through a window, but the officer seized him and learned that he was George Dillon, a driver, 42 years old, of 32 Division avenue. He had been stabbed in the forehead and left eye, as well as on the back of his head and on his chest.

Gordon afterward identified Dillon as his assailant. The latter was arrested and today in the Manhattan avenue court he was arraigned before Magistrate Hylan and held for felonious assault to await the outcome of Gordon's wounds.

QUARRELED WITH AN INDIAN.

Red Man Was of Wood and Couldn't Fight Back.

A wooden Indian aggravated one Hugo Sanger, of 92 Kent avenue, last night. The Indian was peaceful enough, but Sanzer was very loquacious. Neighbors heard the discourse which Sanzer was delivering to the image of the aborigine, as it stood on the corner of North Tenth street and Kent avenue, in front of a cigar store.

A peace-loving citizen went to the Bedford avenue station house and told Lieutenant Greene. Policeman Seidenberg was sent to the scene of conflict but not until Policeman Snediker had arrived. The two officers had considerable difficulty in persuading Sanzer to leave the Indian, and it was not y ersistent application of a night stick that the man finally consented to move on.

Sanzer was treated by Dr. Strahl of the Williamsburg Hospital, and in the Manhattan avenue court today he was charged with disorderly conduct.

DOCK STRIKERS DESPERATE.

English Workingmen Starving—Irish Troops Sent to Prevent Bloodshed.

London, July 15—For the first time since the dockers strike was declared nine weeks ago troops have been called out today to preserve order.

The strikers, many thousands of whom with their families are on the verge of starvation in the East End of London, are approaching the point of desperation, and the authorities, who have been advised of the situation and the necessity for additional precautions to prevent threatened bloody reprisals on the nonunionist workingmen who have taken the places of the strikers, this morning ordered several companies of the Irish Guards to march into the disturbed district.

JEWEL BOX IN A DUMP HEAP.

Aubery Partridge Is Charged With Robbing His Landlady.

Hidden in a hole in a dump heap on First avenue, between Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth streets, Detectives Henne and Dwyer of the Fort Hamilton station yesterday found a box of jewelry which had been stolen on Saturday from Mrs. Amelia Patterson, who keeps a boarding house at 155 Senator street, Bay Ridge.

Aubrey Partridge, 27 years old, an electrician, who boards with Mrs. Patterson, who, the detectives say, confessed to stealing the jewelry, and led them to the strange hiding place, was arrested and taken to the Fifth avenue court today. Partridge pleaded not guilty to the charge of grand larceny, and was held by Magistrate Reynolds in $1,000 bail for an examination on July 18.

SLEEPWALKER'S FALL FATAL.

Meyer Gurech, 31 years old, of 78 North Eighth street, died in the Eastern District Hospital today from a fall which he had on Saturday night. He was found Sunday morning unconscious on the sidewalk underneath his window, on the fourth floor.

The man was clad in his nightshirt and he must have, in a fit of sleep-walking, fallen from the window.

NO TRACE IS FOUND OF STOLEN MINIATURE

HE THINKS 'THERE'S A REASON'

But Mrs. Whittaker Scoffs at Theory That Young Girl in Love With Original Is Guilty.

Professor J. B. Whittaker, head of the Art School of the Adelphi College, was visited this morning at his home, 496 McDonough street, by an Eagle reporter. Although the artist works nine months of the year at the college, he does not take a vacation in the summer months, but has several vancases under way.

Mrs. Whittaker is also busy and has charge of an outdoor sketch club. Professor Whittaker was asked if he had heard anything of the rumor that the miniature of him, stolen at the time of the Adelphi art exhibit, had been returned to its owner, an artist.

He recalled the fact that this miniature, painted by Mrs. Alexandrina Harris of Clifton place, was the second one of him that was stolen. The other was painted by Vernon Dwelle and disappeared at an exhibit four years ago. "I can't see what use the miniatures are to any one," he said. "There has been so much publicity given the theft of the last one through The Eagle that if any one had it they would not dare to show it, and, still, if it was taken in a spirit of mischief, it would have been returned by now. I'm trying to pursuade my wife, but she scoffs at the idea, that they both were taken by some young girl who is in love with me."

The professor explained how he heard of the theft of the last picture, which was printed in The Eagle, and then, dropping the subject of the miniature, told of his coming birthday on August 16. The birthday, which is his 76th one, is to be celebrated quietly as far as the professor knows, but one of his children, of which he has seven, is planning a surprise. Of the children but one will be able to be with his father on his birthday. One is in Europe, three at Lake Winnepesaukee, and two in New Jersey.

The second floor of the artist's house is given over to his studio. This is lined with his work, and there are several canvases half finished. Besides being an artist, the professor is something of a gardener and a farmer as well. Every foot of ground in the back of the house is cared for by him.

In the studio is a portrait of his father, painted over a half a century ago, when the artist was a young man and had not gone in for art in earnest. All the studies are from nature.

The reporter asked Professor Whittaker why he painted instead of taking a vacation, and he said: "For pleasure; there is nothing out of which I get so much solid enjoyment as my brushes."

3 DROWNED IN JAMAICA BAY

While attempting to rescue three men from drowning off Ruffle Bar, Jamaica Bay, yesterday morning, Hjilmar Palmroad, of 834 Forty-first street, Brooklyn, lost his 8-year-old son, Hjilmar, jr., who had followed his father out to the drowning men.

Yesterday morning Harry Brooks of East Eighty-seventh street and Church lane, Canarsie; William Lorenz of 89 Harrison avenue and Joseph Seldon of Canarsie, all of whom are spending their vacation, with their families, at Canarsie, started to row to Ruffle Bar, an island of about eighty acres off Rockaway Point. When they reached that place their boat was beached and the three men put on their bathing suits and entered the water.

When they were about 300 feet from shore all three stepped off the beach into the channel at the same time, and immediately started to cry for help.

Hjilmar Palmroad, who was bathing on the beach at the time and heard their cries, started out to their rescue, followed by his 8-year-old son of the same name. It was not until Palmroad was a long distance out that he discovered that his son was swimming after him.

"Go back at once," he shouted. "The men are too far out. You won't be of any help."

With that Palmroad gave his attention to the drowning men, never thinking for an instant that his son had not obeyed him, and had gone back to the beach.

When he reached the spot from where the shouts had come, he found only Seldon still afloat. Brooks and Lorenz had become exhausted and sunk. Palmroad grabbed Seldon by the hair and towed him ashore.

When Palmroad, by the application of first-aid methods, had succeeded in bringing Seldon back to consciousness, he turned to his wife.

"What's become of Hjilmar?" he asked.

"Why, I thought he swam out with you," she replied.

"He did, but I sent him back long ago," Palmroad replied.

A quick search failed to reveal any trace of the boy, and the parents were confronted with the awful possibility that he, too, had been lost in the midst of the excitement. Everybody had seen little Hjilmar swim out with his father, but no one remembered seeing him swim ashore again. The child had become exhausted and drowned, with his father a short distance away, saving another man.

Seldon said that Lorenz had been seized with a cramp and that he and Brooks had become exhausted trying to save him. The channel was dragged all yesterday afternoon for the bodies of the two men and the boy, but with no result. Today the police of the Harbor Squad will take up the search.

STRUCK ON HEAD BY STONE.

Louis Radel, 33 years old of 208 Delancey street, Manhattan, was struck on the head today by a stone thrown by an unknown person, while he was sitting on a bench in Washerberger's Park, on Mandeville avenue, near Elmier, Maspeth, L. I. He received a scalp wound.

WORLD SOON TO END, CRY 7 EVANGELISTS

"Last Message" Delivered Under Tents by Preachers of New Sect.

FIERY LAKE FOR WICKED.

Creed Attracting Many Followers in Brooklyn Is Like Seventh Day Adventism.

In tents, completely equipped, new and waterproof, in as many places in Brooklyn and Manhattan, seven evangelists and their assistants are preaching what they claim to be the "last message of salvation" to a lost world. It is not a very comforting gospel that they preach, at least on the face of it, but one that is rather calculated to bring about what is called "a turning to the Lord in fear and trembling."

Evangelists Preach "Last Message of Salvation."

This "last message of salvation" is "that Christ will return to the earth in this generation." These evangelists are declaring, among other things, "that with the return of Christ, which will occur within the lifetime of many now upon the earth, the righteous dead will be resurrected, the living righteous will be translated and the wicked will be destroyed at the brightness of the Lord's coming."

Not only are these preachers saying that Christ is on the verge of returning to the earth, but they declare that all buildings will be thrown down; in fact, the earth will be entirely transformed. They are also telling that during the Millennium the earth will be in darkness, a void, waste place, and that the devil and his host of angels that were cast out of Heaven will be found with a chain of circumstances during this millennial period.

"At the close of this period," these evangelists are telling audiences which seem to be daily increasing, "Christ and all the hosts of Heaven will return to the earth, the devil, his angels and all the wicked from the beginning of the world, who will be resurrected, will be cast into a lake of fire, and the earth will be the dwelling place for the righteous ever afterward."

This doctrine is even a little more violent than that of "Pastor" Russell, who has a scheme of "Millennial Dawnism," but he preaches against "a lake of fire,' although he has the wicked annihilated, but in his preachments there is no future punishment at all. It would appear that the doctrine now being promulgated in seven places is under the auspices of the Greater New York Tract Society, 32 Union Square, Manhattan, where R. D. Quinn and F. M. Dana have headquarters for the information of the "faithful ones," who are adding the promulgation of "the last message" as best they may.

New Doctrine Like That of Second Adventists.

This new doctrine seems to be a sort of Second Adventist faith. According to dispatches from Washington, which give a synopsis of the annual statistical report made public there today by Secretary A. Edson Rogers, the Seventh Day Adventists number 108,975, of whom 60 per cent. are in the United States. The denomination owned 242 institutions valued at approximately $11,000,000, of which $8,000,000 worth were in the United States, at the close of the year 1911.

The report showed a general gain in various respects for the year as compared with previous years. The net gain of Seventh Day communicants throughout the world was 4,449, or more than 4 per cent. The world's contributions for all lines of Seventh Day evangelistic work aggregated $2,363,008, a net gain of more than 6 per cent., of which the United States contributed $1,679,544, or 71 per cent.

The contributions to foreign missions, a recordbreaker, reached $510,430, a per capita of $7.82; contributions for the support and extension of Seventh Day Adventist principles amounted to $21.68 per capita. The denominational literature sales aggregated $1,627,457.83; there were 613 primary schools with an enrollment of 15,498, and 89 colleges and academies with an enrollment of 7,500; the church conducted 75 sanitariums and 40 treatment rooms; the total valuation of 242 institutions conducted by the Adventists was approximately $11,000,000, and the total force of evangelistic and institutional workers was 8,877.

AUTOS CRASH AT CONEY.

Five Persons Are Hurt—Car Doing the Damage Speeds Away.

The police of the Coney Island station are today looking for the owners of an unidentified automobile, which figured prominently in an accident at the corner of Ocean Parkway and Neptune avenue at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, in which three persons were injured and a car owned by John McConaphy of 816 Tinton avenue was badly smashed. The machine for which the police are on the watch is said to carry the number "28523."

McConaphy was going north along the parkway when a big touring car, containing a party of three men and three women, came up from the rear. In attempting to pass him the chauffeur of the rear car struck in too close and knocked off both of the wheels on the left side of McConaphy's car. Two of the occupants of the unknown machine, which had been going at a very high speed, were hurled to the ground. Without waiting for explanations, the companions of the injured picked them up and placed them in the tonneau, and in a moment the car was out of sight. McConaphy was only cut and bruised about the face and hands, but it is feared that the injuries of the other two persons in the car are more serious.

A few moments after the collision, a car driven by Solomon Garbino of Coney Island and Church avenues arrived on the scene. Garbino saw the automobile with the injured persons in it proceeding down the parkway, and he affirms that the number is "28523." Mounted Officer Cody of the Coney Island precinct pursued the unknown car in Garbino's machine, but the search was futile.

Nothing has as yet been learned regarding the identity of the machine or of the passengers who were injured.

According to the automobile register, No. 28523 is a 40-horsepower Packard, owned by Julius C. Musson of 2 East Ninth street, Manhattan.

PASTOR BENSCHER SURPRISED.

The Young People's Alliance tendered a surprise party to Pastor Frank Benscher of the German Evangelical Church of Peace, Ridgewood and Nichols avenues, Cypress Hills. It was held last Friday evening, in honor of his birthday. Mr. Harry Pape, vice president of the Alliance, delivered a short address, and in behalf of the young people presented a beautiful bouquet to the pastor.

WELLS CHURCH GETS PRESENT OF $5,000

OLD CHAPEL IS SOLD.

Gift in Memory of Dr. Wells Made by Anonymous Philanthropist.

The Wells Memorial Presbyterian Church, Foster avenue and East Thirteenth street, of which the Rev. William Bishop Gates is pastor, has just received a gift from a man of Brooklyn, who prefers not to have his name mentioned, though he is well-known throughout New York City for his philanthropic gifts in many directions.

This gift is made in honor of the memory of the late Rev. Dr. John D. Wells, who for fifty-four years was pastor of the South Third Street Presbyterian Church in the Eastern District, "the mother of churches," and for whom the

Wells Memorial Church is named. Dr. Wells was contemporaneous with the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, Father Sylvester Malone, the Rev. Dr. Richard Salter Storrs, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Haskins, the Rev. Dr. T. De Witt Talmage and others in that line of long-time preachers in Brooklyn who helped to make the then city known as "the City of Churches."

Some time ago the promise of this gift was made on the condition that the young Wells Memorial Church should itself secure an additional $10,000. This condition has been met by the church, which now secures this substantial toward its building fund.

Wells Memorial Church was organized some six years ago by the Presbytery of Brooklyn, and at the end of the first year of its existence became self-supporting and has besides been a regular contributor to all the benevolent boards of the Presbyterian Church.

At the time of the organization of the church the gift of a plot 100 by 100 feet for building was made by the late R. S. Stokes, and this will soon be put to use, as the site for the new building at Glenwood and Argyle roads. The plot is valued at about $12,000, is owned free and clear by the church, and is situated in a beautiful part of Flatbush, which is limited to a strictly residential section.

This gift of $5,000 has made it possible for this youngest Presbyterian church of Brooklyn to plan for building immediately. The portable chapel which has temporarily housed the congregation for the past five years has been sold and will be used by another church in Brooklyn for its rapidly growing work.

The building committee for the new Wells Memorial Church has the following officers:

President, Herman Oehlinger; vice president, W. E. Brush, secretary, W. J. Rice; treasurer, L. G. Leverich. The committee is composed of all the officers of the church. C. E. Chittenden is president of the board of trustees.

FOUND BURGLAR IN HIS FLAT

Henry Steer's Forgotten Purse Led to Capture of Hyman Zimmerman.

Because Henry Steer forgot his pocketbook when he left his home at 118 McKibbin street, shortly before 8 o'clock this morning, for business, and returned unexpectedly to his apartment, a burglar was caught red-handed. Of course, the burglar fled, and, naturally, Mr. Steer chased him.

Mr. Steer's lack of sprinting ability brought Patrolman Dehler, of the Stagg street station, into the chase. Dehler was speedier than the burglar; and now Hyman Zimmerman, 21 years old, who said he lives at 101 Leonard street, is held without bail to await trial on a charge of burglary.

Mr. Steer has been home alone for some weeks, while his family is at a summer resort, and he was particular to lock the door when he left the house this morning. But when he remembered the pocketbook and returned for it, he found the door to his apartment open. As he walked in a man's form dashed past him. The man and Mr. Steer sped along McKibbin street to Manhattan avenue. There Patrolman Dehler joined the chase. The officer saw the stranger hand something to a lad at Boerum street, but he didn't leave his pursuit, and at Montrose and Manhattan avenues the stranger was overtaken.

The two fought all over the sidewalk, but the policeman proved the better man. He subdued his prisoner largely because Max Tobias, 12 years old, of 81 Manhattan avenue, came up during the fight and said he had been handed "this" by the stranger. "This," proved to be an eighteen-inch jimmy, and Dehler used it with telling effect on his man. Afterwards they found a bunch of skeleton keys and a complete burglar's outfit on Zimmerman.

Detective Comiskey was present when Zimmerman was arraigned before Magistrate Hyland in the Manhattan avenue police court, and he said the prisoner had been in similar trouble formerly. According to Comiskey, Zimmerman was a "pal" of Jake Frey's, who is now serving a nine-year term in prison for burglary.

RICH YOUTH A DECKHAND.

City of Atlanta's Passengers Couldn't Learn His Identity.

When the City of Atlanta got in yesterday the passengers had a weird story to tell about a young fellow of one of the wealthiest families of this city who, on a wager, was making the trip as a deck hand. No one seemed to know his name, or if anyone did it was not revealed, but at any rate the young man was not forced to "bunk" with the rest of the crew, as he was put up in the officers' quarters. He was very popular with the passengers, but he never offered to tell who he was.

But he was not the only interesting feature of the crew. Because of the strike the boat had to take on a rather makeshift lot of men, and some of them were pretty good sailors in their way, but not very much at the English language. One of the passengers tells how he came upon the quartermaster surrounded by a crowd of them, who were doing their best to explain their troubles to him in Yiddish. "What are these men saying?" asked the passenger. "I don't know," returned the other, wearily. "I haven't understood them since we started."

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The person or persons making a bid or estimate for any services, work, materials or supplies for The City of New York, or for any of its departments, bureaus or offices shall furnish the same in a sealed envelope, indorsed with the title of the supplies, materials, work or services for which the bid or estimate is made, with his or their name or names and the date of the presentation to the president, or board, or to the head of the department at his or its office, on or before the date and hour named in the advertisement for the same, at which time and place the estimates received will be publicly opened by the president or board or head of said department and read, and the award of the contract made according to law as soon thereafter as practicable.

Each bid or estimate shall contain the name and place of residence of the person making the same, and names of all persons interested with him therein, and if no other person be so interested, it shall distinctly state that fact; also that it is made without any connection with any other person making an estimate for the same purpose, and is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud, and that no member of the Board of Aldermen, head of a department, chief of a bureau, deputy thereof or clerk therein, or other officer of The City of New York is, shall be or become interested, directly or indirectly, as contracting party, partner, stockholder, surety or otherwise, in or in the performance of the contract, or in the supplies, work or business to which it relates, or in any portion of the profits thereof. The bid or estimate must be verified by the oath, in writing, of the party or parties making the estimate that the several matters stated therein are in all respects true.

Each bid or estimate shall be accompanied by the consent, in writing, of two householders or freeholders in The City of New York, or of a guaranty or surety company duly authorized by law to act as surety, and shall contain the matters set forth in the blank forms mentioned below. No bid or estimate will be considered unless, as a condition precedent to the reception or consideration of any proposal, it be accompanied by a certified check upon one of the state or national banks of The City of New York, drawn to the order of the Comptroller, or money or corporate stock or certificates of indebtedness of any nature issued by The City of New York, which the Com

PATROLMEN 'ON THE CARPET.'

Three Accused of Being Off Post. All Say: "Not Guilty."

Three patrolmen were on trial this morning at local police headquarters, charged with not being on post on the evening of July 16. They were Patrolmen John J. Donnelly, John McEwen, of the Bergen street station, and Andrew Wisland of the Amity street precinct.

Chief Inspector Schmittberger brought the charges, and testified before Commissioner John J. Walsh that he had traveled about the lower part of the city on July 16 in an automobile and failed to find these three men on duty.

They all pleaded not guilty, and in the cases of Donnelly and McEwen, Commissioner Walsh reserved decision, but Wisland was found guilty, and the Commissioner will make recommendations later for the disposal of his case.

Woodruff Is Chosen Head Of Brooklyn "Bull Moose"

Formal Organization of Local Progressives Enthusiastically Perfected — Sixty Women Suffragists Present Demand Woman Suffrage Plank — Delegates and Alternates Selected for National Convention.

Bull Moose from all corners of Kings County crowded the main floor and galleries of the hall in the Johnston Building last night and amid the wildest enthusiasm elected Timothy L. Woodruff to the leadership of the party in this county, selected sixteen delegates and as many alternates to the Bull Moose national convention in Chicago, and elected a committee of sixty-nine to act as the executive committee of the organization here.

The meeting was interrupted time and again with spasmodic outbursts of enthusiasm. The unveiling of a portrait of Colonel Roosevelt in the front of the hall brought forth the first outbreak. Tim Woodruff's selection as chairman brought another and the meeting went wild when Controller William A. Prendergast stood up for the purpose of putting a simple motion. He had not been seen generally about the hall before that time, and he had no sooner begun to speak than some one yelled: "What's the matter with the next Governor." It was five minutes before the chair could restore order.

A delegation of sixty women, headed by Mrs. R. C. Talbot-Perkins, Mrs. Robert H. Elder and Mrs. W. W. Suffren, were seated at the right of the platform, and while some of the sub-committees were at work and the main body of the meeting was awaiting their action, speeches were made by Mrs. Elder, Mrs. Talbot-Perkins, Mrs. Suffren and Miss Amy Wren.

Mrs. Talbot-Perkins Asks for Woman Suffrage Plank.

Mrs. Talbot-Perkins during her speech in favor of the women's suffrage movement made a direct appeal to the Bull Moosers to insert a woman's vote plank in their platform. "I am here to ask you for a square deal for the women of Kings County," she said. "We have to obey the law and pay our taxes and I believe we ought to have the right to vote. I ask you to instruct your delegates to vote for a plank in your platform that will give the women of the country the right to vote."

Mrs. Robert H. Elder made it plain to the Bull Moose men that even if they did take such action the suffragists would not indorse their ticket. Mrs. Suffren announced herself as "a muzzled Republican with progressive tendencies." She followed in the vein of Mrs. Talbot-Perkins, pleading for the enfranchisement of women and was greeted with a rousing three-times-three by the men.

As soon as the meeting had been called to order and its purpose stated by Chairman Woodruff, John Pullman, one of the oldest real estate men in Brooklyn, nominated the former Lieutenant Governor as chairman of the county organization. He was elected unanimously and the other officers were named as follows: Controller William A. Prendergast, treasurer; Alfred D. Thompson, secretary, and Mark Reardon, assistant secretary.

In accepting the chairmanship Mr. Woodruff said: "I have served in the Republican ranks for thirty-two years, but I have never been so appreciative of any honor bestowed upon me as I am of this, which you offer me tonight."

Scheme Presented for Permanent Organization of Moose.

Following the election of officers Charles S. Aronstam presented a plan for permanent organization. As told in yesterday's Eagle it provided for an organization based upon the election district as a unit. Four men from each election district is to compose the Assembly District Committee and one of the four is to be chosen a county committeeman. Then the Assembly District committee is to elect three men to compose a committee of sixty-nine that shall act as the executive committee and also as a campaign committee. The Assembly District committee is also to be the body that shall choose the members of the State committee, one from each Assembly District.

Only one of the ten paragraphs of the plan of organization met with disapproval. That paragraph provided that the provisional committee of sixty-nine elected last night should have the power of judging the qualifications of the Assembly District organizations and their members until the party should be permanently organized, by the meeting to be held on August 22. This raised a storm of protest that for a moment threatened to wreck the meeting. It was evidently the undrstanding of the protestants that this committee was to continue indefinitely to exercise the power of discretion over the Assembly District organizations, and there were howls of rage from various committeemen. Then former Assemblyman George A. Green explained that the power thus given the committee of sixty-nine was only temporary and would cease when the permanent organization had been effected. This quieted the storm and the plan was passed unanimously.

Selection of Committee of Sixty-Nine Taken Up.

Chairman Woodruff then announced that the next business would be the election of the provisional committee of sixty-nine. A resolution was moved and passed referring any disputes that might arise over these selections to the committee of sixty-nine, with power to settle them.

During the selection of the committee disputes came to light in four districts—the Second, Fifth, Sixth and Twenty-first. The fight in the Second was settled by the committeemen themselves, who retired from the hall and held a meeting. The other disputes were sent to the committee of sixty-nine, and Chairman Woodruff announced that that body would hold its first meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the local headquarters, 200 Montague street. The disputes, he said, would be settled at that meeting.

The sixteen delegates and the alternates to the national convention were elected last. These were named by a committee of nine, appointed by the chair, who selected the thirty-two men from fifty-one nominations made by the Assembly district provisional committees.

Delegates to the National Bull Moose Convention.

Alternates, George A. Green, Lawrence F. Lee, Edward W. Allen, W. Stanley Miller, J. F. Schmadeke, Harry Colton, William T. McRoberts, John Pullman, Edward T. Curran, Christopher Larkin, Louis M. Koster, Frank J. Partridge, George A. Hann, Sidney W. Fry, Carl Bruhn and John J. McDonald.

The committee of nine appointed by Woodruff, who selected the delegates, was as follows: A. L. Adams, H. S. Berger, Hector McNeile, E. A. Dockam, F. D. Condit, Benjamin Allen, Harry Stein and Percy Osborne.

Chairman Woodruff announced that the Sixty-nine, according to Assembly districts, are as follows:

First District—Dr. William K. Ward, Edward T. Curran and Charles S. Guthrie.
Third District—C. J. Teehan, J. F. Foran and James Bennett.

WAS ALMOST 94 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Catherine Geary of 312 Sixteenth street died on Monday, within three months of being 94 years old. She was a woman of remarkable physique, and until a month before her death was in perfect health; did all her housekeeping and went about freely, her last trip, four weeks ago, having been to Coney Island, where she went to all the amusement places as had been her custom for some years.

A few days before her death her daughter returned home to find that the aged woman had thoroughly cleaned her house.

Mrs. Geary was born near Limerick, Ireland, 93 years and 7 months ago, and in 1847 came to Brooklyn with her husband, David Geary. They settled in Red Hook Point, then a rural district, where Mrs. Geary for many years had a dairy, milking her own cows and carrying the milk upon her own shoulders to the people living in the Point.

She was the oldest living member of the Roman Catholic Church of the Visitation. For some years she had lived in the Park Slope section. She was able to sew and read without using glasses, and she ascribed her perfect physical condition to the fact that she had always lived abstemiously and mostly in the open air.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Kate McNulty; a son, Patrick, who is 64 years old; four grandchildren, David, Mary and Catherine Geary, and Lester McNulty, and a great-granddaughter, Frances Geary.

The funeral is to be held tomorrow morning, with interment in Holy Cross Cemetery.

OPPOSES ELECTORAL REFORM

Paris, July 24—Senator Georges Clemenceau, formerly premier, today opened the senatorial opposition to the electoral reform bill adopted by the Chamber of Deputies on July 10 by a vote of 339 to 217. M. Clemenceau's first move against the government takes the form of a somewhat sensational open letter addressed to Premier Raymond Poincare, attacking his attitude in carrying the bill through the lower House of Parliament.

The bill provides for the abolition of the system of small constituencies established in 1876, whereby each elector votes for one deputy only and substitutes for it the system of list voting by which each elector votes for as many deputies as the entire department has to elect.

M. Clemenceau, who is the leading opponent of the plan to extend representation to the minority party in the election of deputies, argues that Premier Poincare carried the bill in the Chamber of Deputies not only by the normal Republican majority, but with the help of the votes of reactionaries and revolutionists. He contends that the majority rule made the French Revolution, is the foundation of the French republic and is the surest guarantee for the future, and any abandonment of it will be a "disastrous mistake."

WOULD TAX PROPERTY OF 'PASTOR' RUSSELL

AN AFFIDAVIT IS ASKED.

Lawson Purdy Requests Additional Information as to Use to Which Property It Put.

Tax Commissioner Lawson Purdy has requested Pastor Russell to file a supplementary affidavit showing that the new building erected in the rear of the property at Columbia Heights and Orange street is entitled to exemption under the law affecting religious corporations.

The assessed value of the land on which Pastor Russell has erected the building is $31,000. The value of the entire property, including the houses on Columbia Heights and the new building in the rear, is $100,000. The tax on the whole, if it were taxed, would be $1,870 under the 1.87 tax rate for 1912.

Commissioner Purdy stated today that the request by the city for the additional affidavit did not mean that the city took the ground the new property should be subject to taxation.

"A complaint has been made to this office," the Commissioner said, "and in compliance with our duty we have asked for additional information which would establish our position beyond question. Ordinarily the new building would be automatically exempted, for it is upon property that is exempted. Since the question is raised, however, we have asked for full information as to the purposes for which the building is used.

"We have on file here an affidavit made by the religious association which seems to make it clear that under the law the original property was entitled to exemption. We furthermore have the report of one of our oldest inspectors, who was sent down to look into Pastor Russell's association. He reported that the original exemption was perfectly proper."

Commissioner Purdy seemed to feel today that the request for the new affidavit was merely a formality which would not be likely to produce anything startling.

Pastor Russell's people had nothing to say this morning about the complaint or about the affidavit they were to make out. The manager was away, and his secretary had a delightfully vague idea of the business. Pastor Russell is abroad. It was said that the addition was the Bible and sermon department.

BARTENDER A STUDENT.

Chicago, July 24—John Larsen, 19 years old, employed in his father's saloon as a bartender, has been selected by the Princeton Club of Chicago for a scholarship and will have his expenses paid for four years at the university by the club.

Larsen was graduated from the Evanston Academy in June, paying his expenses out of his own earnings. It was his habit to study after the saloon was closed at 1 o'clock in the morning.

The will of Marcus Schwarz, late of Far Rockaway, in which he leaves a large estate to relatives, was filed for probate yesterday with Surrogate Noble of Queens County, in his court at Jamaica. The will was executed on February 16, 1911. Schwarz died last Friday. His estate is valued in the will at $20,000 in personal property and $10,000 in real property.

The will directs the executors to establish two trust funds of $40,000 each. The income of one of them is to be paid to his daughter, Flora Plechner, and the other to another daughter, Daisy Schwarz. When the latter dies or marries, the will provides that her fund is to be reduced to $25,000, the balance to be divided between the decedent's other children. Trust funds of $25,000 each are to be established for the benefit of Sadie Klein and Tillie Wile, daughters, while the income from a fund of $15,000 is to be paid to Florence Schwarz, daughter of the testator's deceased son, Edward. At her death or remarriage the fund is to go to her son, Burton Schwarz.

It is provided in the will that, should Sadie Klein, one of the testator's daughters, wish to acquire her father's property any time within the next two years, she may be permitted to do so for $15,000.

Two sisters, Clara Falk and Fannie Bernstein, are left $1,000 each, and similar bequests are made to six grandchildren and four other relatives. The remainder of the estate, it is ordered in the will, shall be divided between the four daughters.

AUTOMOBILE CAUGHT FIRE.

A back fire in the carburetor caused a blaze that practically destroyed the large automobile of John W. Wells of 233 East Fifth street, Brooklyn, as it was being driven through Richmond Hill at an early hour this morning. The car was at Metropolitan avenue and Park Drive when the fire occurred and the car burst into flames.

The car was damaged to the extent of $2,000.

ARCTIC STEAMER ROOSEVELT SOLD

Was Included in the Arbuckle Wrecking Fleet Auctioned This Morning.

IT BROUGHT ONLY $35,000.

Six Boats of the Entire Fleet Sold for $76,850, Including Fine Steam Yacht.

There was a slaughter sale of marine property today, when the late John Arbuckle's wrecking fleet was sold at auction at the Empire Stores. There were not 100 persons present, but a few of them represented a lot of money and some big maritime concerns. The sale, advertised for 10:30 o'clock, did not begin until nearly 11 o'clock. The vessels sold, with their dimensions, are as follows, and their sale was the largest one of the kind held in this port in many years:

Roosevelt—654 gross tons; length, 162.0; beam, 35.5; depth, 16.2; horsepower, 1,200; built at Verona, Me., 1905.

North America—289 gross tons; length, 130.6; beam, 28.2; depth, 14.0; horsepower, 750; built at Camden, N. J., 1875.

Helen M. Field—321 gross tons; length, 13.8; beam, 28.3; depth, 12.8; horsepower, 700; built at Essex, Mass., 1901.

Lottie—219 gross tons; length, 109.8; beam, 28.5; depth, 8.4.

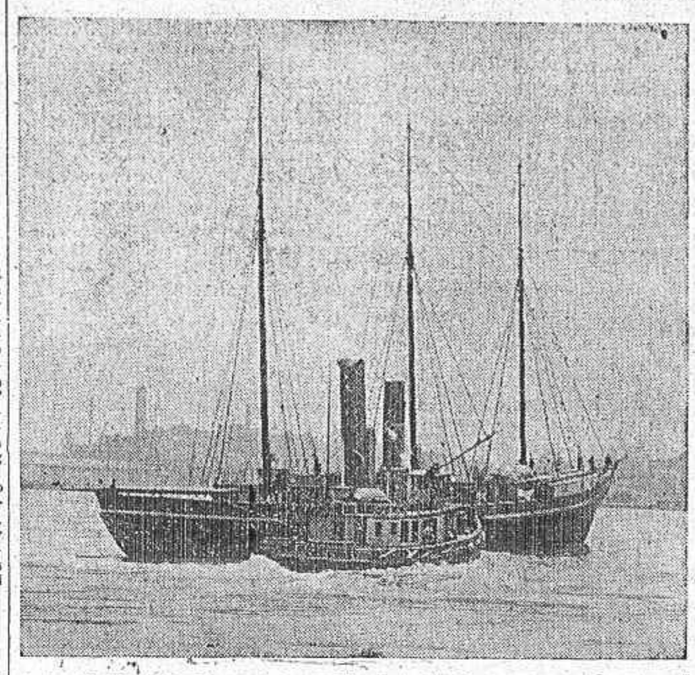

The Lottie, a steam, schooner-rigged barge, was the first put up, and started with a $1 bid. She was ultimately sold to W. F. Yatman for $250, and is cheap at that. The tugboat John Harlin was started at $100, and the bids gradually advanced to $1,500, at which she went to James McAllister, the well-known Greenpoint shipping man, and formerly manager of the Arbuckle wrecking outfit. This boat cost $11,000. The tugboat North America was started at $5,000, and the bids jumped rapidly to $15,700, at which she went to a young man who gave his name as H. E. J. McDermott, and said he represented an outside concern. The boat is said to have cost Mr. Arbuckle $25,000. The Helen M. Field, a remarkably fine, new towboat, only 6 years old and built especially for Mr. Arbuckle, was put up at $20,000 and advanced rapidly to $24,200, at which she went to McDermott. Next came the steam schooner yacht Allegheny, owned by William A. Jamison, Mr. Arbuckle's nephew and heir. She started at $100 and went slowly to $2,000, at which price McDermott got it. A feature of her sale is that her name must be changed, Mr. Jamison reserving this.

Last of all came Peary's Arctic exploration steamer Roosevelt. There was some confusion about her, as it was announced that the costly wrecking plant on board, the searchlight and wireless, would not go with the ship, but merely her equipment as a navigable vessel. This caused some delay and discussion, but finally she was started at $10,000. The price advanced by thousands to $35,000, when there was a long pause, a couple of $100 bids and she, too, went to McDermott for $35,200. This made a total of only $76,850 for the wrecking fleet. It is more than probable that to purchase and fit out the Roosevelt alone cost pretty nearly that amount, but, as one would-be buyer remarked to The Eagle reporter:

Mr. Arbuckle is believed to have paid nearly $40,000 for the Roosevelt as she stood, after her return from the Arctic expedition, and then spent a large sum on her wrecking equipment. Her original cost was stated at $125,000, owing to the great cost of staying the hull to meet the ice pressure.

PEARY'S SHIP "ROOSEVELT" SOLD TODAY AT AUCTION.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The person or persons making a bid or estimate for any services, work, materials or supplies for The City of New York, or for any of its departments, bureaus or offices shall furnish the same in a sealed envelope, indorsed with the title of the supplies, materials, work or services for which the bid or estimate is made, with his or their name or names and the date of the presentation to the president, or board, or to the head of the department at his or its office, on or before the date and hour named in the advertisement for the same, at which time and place the estimates received will be publicly opened by the president or board or head of said department and read, and the award of the contract made according to law as soon thereafter as practicable.

Each bid or estimate shall contain the name and place of residence of the person making the same, and names of all persons interested with him therein, and if no other person be so interested, it shall distinctly state that fact; also that it is made without any connection with any other person making an estimate for the same purpose, and is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud, and that no member of the Board of Aldermen, head of a department, chief of a bureau, deputy thereof or clerk therein, or other officer of The City of New York is, shall be or become interested, directly or indirectly, as contracting party, partner, stockholder, surety or otherwise, in or in the performance of the contract, or in the supplies, work or business to which it relates, or in any portion of the profits thereof. The bid or estimate must be verified by the oath, in writing, of the party or parties making the estimate that the several matters stated therein are in all respects true.

Each bid or estimate shall be accompanied by the consent, in writing, of two householders or freeholders in The City of New York, or of a guaranty or surety company duly authorized by law to act as surety, and shall contain the matters set forth in the blank forms mentioned below.

No bid or estimate will be considered unless, as a condition precedent to the reception or consideration of any proposal, it be accompanied by a certified check upon one of the state or national banks of The City of New York, drawn to the order of the Comptroller, or money or corporate stock or certificates of indebtedness of any nature issued by The City of New York, which the Comptroller shall approve as of equal value with the security required in the advertisements, to the amount of not less than three nor more than five per centum of the amount of the bond required, as provided in section 420 of the Greater New York Charter.

The certified check or money should not be inclosed in the envelope containing the bid or estimate, but should be either inclosed in a separate envelope addressed to the head of the department, president or board or submitted personally upon the presentation of the bid or estimate.

For particulars as to the quantity and quality of the supplies or the nature and extent of the work, reference must be made to the specifications, schedules, plans, etc., on file in the said office of the president, board or department.

No bid shall be accepted from or contract awarded to any person who is in arrears to The City of New York upon debt or contract, or who is a defaulter as surety or otherwise upon any obligation to the city.

The contracts must be bid for separately.

The right is reserved in each case to reject all bids or estimates if it is deemed to be for the interest of the city so to do.

Bidders will write out the amount of their bids or estimates in addition to inserting the same in figures.

Bidders are requested to make their bids or estimates upon the blank forms prepared and furnished by the city, a copy of which, with the proper envelope in which to inclose the bid, together with a copy of the contract, including the specifications in the form approved by the corporation counsel, can be obtained by application therefor at the office of the department for which the work is to be done.

Plans and drawings of construction work will also be seen there

BOARDWALK BOOMED IN BIG SUNDAY CROWD

Coney Island Improvement League Circulates Its Newspapers Among Visitors.

CAMPAIGN GETS GOOD START.

Runaway Horse Injures Three on Surf Avenue—Girl Saved From Drowning.

Did you go to Coney Island yesterday? Then you learned all about the city-owned boardwalk which Coney Islanders are projecting. As you came out of the depot or alighted from the trolley, a man rushing here and there thrust into your hands a paper, which you might have thought was full of Pastor Russell's sermons, but which, when you looked at it, you found to be "The Coney Island Boardwalk News," the first isue of the new paper which Coney Island's West End Improvement League is going to publish every week to boost the boardwalk all public spirited citizens desire.

Yesterday marked the inauguration of a strenuous campaign to convert the dream of the residents of Coney into a reality; 50,000 copies of the paper were printed and given away at the trolley and "L" terminals on Ocean Parkway and on all the beaches, 12,000 postal cards, addressed to the members of the Board of Aldermen, President Mitchel and Controller Prendergast and calling upon them to act in favor of the proposed promenade, were signed by residents from every part of the Greater City and will be mailed today.

The paper distributed was a most interesting document; it explained in detail the proposed walk and told how it could be obtained; it gave a history of the fight for it to date; it gave the names and addresses of all the members of the Board of Aldermen; it stated a petition in favor of the walk which it urged all readers to sign; but most convincing of all it showed a number of photographs taken at low tide, of the crowded beach with buildings jutting out on the public property here and there, and shutting out at many points the people from free passage on their own beach.

The matter has been before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for a long time and at present is in the hands of a special committee consisting of Borough President Steers, Controller Prendergast and President of the Board of Aldermen Mitchel. It is understood that Mr. Steers and Mr. Mitchel are in favor of having the city buy up the property necessary for the project, while Mr. Prendergast is believed to be in favor of having the cost evenly divided between the city at large and the residents of Coney. The purpose of the agitation of yesterday and the coming Sundays is to have a deluge of appeal for the walk pour in upon the Board and the Aldermen from all parts of the Greater City. From the favorable manner in which the campaign was received yesterday the West Enders are jubilant and they predict that success is certain.

The public-spirited women were in the public eye as well as the men yesterday. At about 5 o'clock ten young women, members of the Ladies Boosters Club of Coney Island were in the good sloop Sarah Bendell, about 500 yards off the Oriental Hotel, returning from an outing to the Atlantic Highlands; the only man aboard was the skipper. Suddenly a scream was heard and then a splash. Miss Catherine Howard of 2919 West Sixteenth street, Coney Island, who had been standing up, had pitched into the water as an extra large wave had struck against the side of the boat. Excitement reigned aboard; Miss Howard could not swim. Seeing her going down Miss Ethel Jones of Surf avenue and West Sixteenth street dove over the side and grasp her companion by the hair. She managed to keep her afloat until the boat had come alongside and both could be hauled aboard.

Wittenstein had driven to the island with his wife and four children and had gone in bathing, leaving the horse standing at the foot of West Tenth street. Something startled the horse and it bolted up West Tenth street and westward down Surf avenue, knocking persons right and left as it plunged down the crowded thoroughfare. As it turned into Surf avenue Stall saw it and spurred after, overtaking it after a hard run of six blocks.

Three of the persons knocked down were badly hurt. The ambulance was summoned from the Coney Island Hospital and Surgeon Cavanagh found Frank C. Abbott, 27 years old, of 145 Thirteenth avenue, Long Island City, suffering from a fractured skull and three broken ribs. May Abbott, his wife, was badly hurt about the head and shoulders. Both Mr. and Mrs. Abbott were removed to the hospital. Farron Green, 54 years old, of 302 East Sixteenth street, Manhattan, was bruised about the head and face and sent home after being patched up by Dr. Cavanagh. Officer Stall served Wittenstein with a summons to appear in the Coney Island court this morning.

SEE SIGHTS AT WIESBADEN

Wiesbaden, August 5—The Brooklyn singers spent the greater part of the day here yesterday in visiting the various points of interest in the environs of the city. In the morning several members of the party climbed the Neroberg, under the guidance of members of the Wiesbaden singing societies. The beautiful view of the city and the distant Rhine from the summit proved to be well worth the trip.

One of the most interesting sights was the Greek Chapel, which with its exotic style of architecture would naturally be expected to attract considerable attention in the midst of a landscape otherwise typically German. This chapel was built in 1845 as a mausolem for the Duchess Elizabeth Michailowna, a Russian Princess.

In the evening the Brooklynites gave a concert in the Kurhouse that was a defiance to the miserable weather outdoors. The audience was very enthusiastic and demanded several encores. At the conclusion of the programme Director Frederick Albeke was presented with a splendid baton as a souvenir of his memorable tour with the Brooklyn singers, which is so rapidly drawing to a close.

MISS WILCOX DROWNED.

Head of the Sociological Department at Packer Institute.

The faculty and students of the Packer Institute are mourning the death by drowning of Miss Ethel Dodge Wilcox, the head of the department of sociology, which she organized two years ago. Miss Wilcox, whose home was at Pelham Heights, the Bronx, was chaperoning a party of girls at Silver Lake, N. Y. On Thursday last she attempted to cross a moss-covered ledge at High Falls, on Saranac River, just below the falls, and was last seen alive as she rounded a bend in the ledge. The body was recovered late on Saturday.

Miss Wilcox was 32 years od, and lived with her parents at 155 Nyack avenue, Pelham Heights. She was graduated from Barnard College in 1903, and received her A. M. from Columbia University in 1905. She taught in two private schools before coming to Packer.

AFRO-AMERICAN NOTES.

The Rev. Dr. William M. Moss, pastor of Concord Baptist Church of Christ, starts on his vacation today. In his church yesterday he conducted covenant meeting at 10:30 o'clock, holy communion at 3 p.m., and delivered an able sermon to a large audience last evening.

Secretary R. M. Maroney spoke to a large gathering of men at the Carlton Avenue Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4 o'clock yesterday.

The meeting at the Young Women's Christian Association in West Fifty-third street yesterday afternoon was one of the largest that has been held this summer. Every chair was occupied. Miss James, the secretary, presided. Delegates and educators, including prominent men visitors from several Western and Southern States, took part in the programme, consisting of brief speeches, papers and music. Mrs. A. L. De Mong of Charleston, S. C., read an excellent paper on "The American Woman," showing the high standard to be for the white, the black, the rich and the poor alike. Mrs. Ida A. Walker of St. Joseph, Mo., told in an interesting way what colored women are trying to do for the colored youth in her State. Mrs. Lillian Turner of St. Paul, Minn., a Bible teacher in that city, gave echoes from the eighth biennial convention of the N. A. C. W. at Hampton. Mrs. Sylvania Williams, the principal of the Thomy Lafon public school, in New Orleans, for the past forty years, made an address, telling the women to be as careful in the training of boys as of girls, that they may make good husbands. Thomas H. Reynolds, instructor in music of the Sumpter High School, in Kansas City, Kan., sang a solo. Mme. V. E. Scott sang. Other speakers were Mrs. Lydia C. Smith and Mrs. Helen Curtis, vice presidents of the Y. W. C. A.

MORE TOTS FOR NEW PALTZ.

A third party of forty children left the Fifth Ward on Friday afternoon for a two weeks outing at John and Mary Arbuckle's farm, New Paltz. They went in charge of Miss Annie Curtis and Franklin A. Higgins, superintendent of the Arbuckle Building by way of the West Shore road. On their return a fourth lot will be taken to the farm and brought home on September 3, in time for the school opening.

Miss Anna M. Orr of 869 St. John's place, is spending a few weeks at Ellenville, Ulster Heights, N. Y.

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES AT ROCKAWAY BEACH

RELIGIOUS SERVICES HELD.

Two Hundred Young Men Participate in Exercises at St. Camillus Church.

The annual mid-summer outing of the Diocesan Union of Catholic Young Men's Societies of Brooklyn was held yesterday at Rockaway Beach, and was the most successful held by the union. Over 200 of the members left in special cars attached to the 10:15 o'clock train leaving the Flatbush avenue depot of the Long Island Railroad.

The party left the train at Seaside and the always inviting waves at Rockaway first claimed the attention of the young men. After disporting themselves in the water for an hour or more, they reassembled at the New York Hotel, where they upheld Brooklyn's reputation for evidencing due appreciation of a good dinner.

Following the repast the party adjourned to the parish hall of the Church of St. Camillus, on the Boulevard at Seaside, where short addresses were made by the Rev. Thomas J. Leonard, assistant priest of St. Joseph's Church, who is also the spiritual director of the union, and by John C. Judge.

Father Leonard congratulated the boys upon the splendid showing they made at the outing and again, as he has so often done, urged them to continue the good work they were engaged in, the union ow young men's clubs, the success of which movement, he said, meant so much both for the church and country.

At the close of the short exercises a picture of the gathering was taken, and it then dispersed until 4 o'clock, when it met in the church to listen to a scholarly discourse by the Rev. Joseph F. Murphy, an assistant priest of the Church of St. Ambrose, Tompkins and DeKalb avenues. There were many thousand of Brooklyn people at Rockaway yesterday, and the announcement in The Eagle a few days ago that Father Murphy was to be the preacher at yesterday's services incident to the outing, brought a large number to St. Camillus' to hear the young priest.

The Rev. Joseph P. Brady, rector of the Church of St. Camillus, extended to the visitors a hearty welcome. He said, too, that the praiseworthy example of the young men in leaving the pleasures they were indulging in to spend an hour in worship, would have a most edifying effect upon the great throng which knew of their act.

Father Brady commended the work of the union, and he was warm in his praise of Father Leonard, its spiritual head. "We have been close friends since boyhood; he and I were altar boys of St. Vincent de Paul's. As a boy he was loved among boys, and today Father Leonard is a most loved man among men, both in the priesthood and in the laity," said Father Brady.

Father Murphy drew from the life of Christ many lessons from which he said the young men of the union of Catholic societies could adopt for the service expected of them. The service the Saviour rendered to the rich, the poor, the afflicted and the weak, all can be typified in our daily lives, Father Murphy maintained.

The home, politics, workshops, and in fact every field of human endeavor, furnish abundant opportunities for everyone to give service akin to that seen in the daily work of our Lord, he said. The world today is crying for men who are worth the while; men who live not solely for themselves, but those who strive to bestow upon their fellow men some of the fruits of the gifts the Almighty has favored them with. Such men, Father Murphy said, are to be found in organizations of the character such as he was addressing.

Benediction of the most blessed sacrament, which was offered by Father Leonard, with the members of the union effectively singing the "Tantum Ergo," brought to a close the service. Later, supper was served, and the gathering left for the city.

The clubs and parish societies represented at yesterday's outing were: St. Joseph's Young Men's Union, which had the largest delegation; St. Patrick's Catholic Club, Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish Club, Our Lady of Lourdes Parish Club, St. Peter's Catholic Literary Association, St. Alphonsus' Association, St. James' Catholic Club, the Catholic Club, the Young Men's Catholic Club, Assumption Dramatic Society, All Saints, St. Paul's, St. Michael's (Fourth Avenue), St. Anne's, Holy Trinity, Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary and Visitation Lyceums.

The committee in charge of the affair was made up of John J. Sullivan, chairman; John J. Doyle, secretary; Frank Moore, James Mooney and Joseph A. McNamara. In addition to the priests previously mentioned, the Rev. P. J. Tuigg, chaplain of St. Malachy's Home at Rockaway Park; Rev. James B. Albert, S. S. J., and the Rev. T. J. Coyne attended the dinner and services. Jere J. Foley, president of the Holy Name Society of St. Rose of Lima Church, Rockaway Beach, represented the Catholic societies of that section at the affair.

THREE DAYS MARDI GRAS.

August 31, September 1 and 2 Gala Times at Old Mill.

The Old Mill Mardi Gras will be held on Saturday, August 31, Sunday, September 1 and Monday, Labor Day, September 2. The contest for king and queen is now open and ballots can be had of any of the members of the association. Ballot boxes have been placed in all the stores and hotels at the Old Mill. The coronation will take place on Saturday, August 31, and dancing and cabaret shows have been arranged in all the hotels there.

On Sunday, September 1, there will be a naval parade of all the boats of the Old Mill, and the racing yacht Cornelia, commanded by Captain David Van Wicklen, will have the king and queen on board.

On Monday, Labor Day, will be held the regular Mardi Gras parade, in which the Pleasant Point Volunteer Pump and Hose Company, the U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corps, the Old Mill Yacht Club, the Diana Boat Club, the Kendleville Association and many other clubs about the Old Mill will participate.

The officers of the Mardi Gras Association for 1912 are: President, Frederick Gunderman; vice president, Thomas N. Sherlock; secretary, John G. Torborg; treasurer, John Derringer; executive committee, David S. Van Wicklen, Henry Kerner, John Wellman, Frank Gunderman, William Knaack, William Poehner, Howard Gunderman.

FOLLOWS SISTER IN DEATH.

Miss Viola Cecelia Weldon, who was taken ill the day after the funeral of her sister Catherine, who died nine weeks ago, died on Saturday from nervous prostration at her home, 192 Union street.

Miss Catherine Weldon's death was the first in the family. She and her sister Viola were inseparable companions, and were of about the same age.

Miss Weldon was born in the Sixth Ward, where her family is well known. She was a graduate of St. Francis Xavier Academy.

Her father is a retired police patrolman, who was for many years stationed in the Brooklyn Tax Office. She also leaves her mother, a brother, John J., who is a detective sergeant; and four sisters, Loretta and Blanche, Mrs. Charles F. Brown and Mrs. Charles Logan. A requiem mass will be offered tomorrow morning in St. Stephen's Church for the repose of Miss Weldon's soul, and the interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

LABOR MEN ARRANGE DINNER TO MAHER

Representative to Be the Guest of Brooklyn Friends at Dollar Banquet.

SULZER TO BE TOASTMASTER.

C. L. U. Names Committees—Well-Known Men on the List of Speakers.

The dollar dinner to be given to Congressman James P. Maher of the United Hatters, the only labor union Congressman from this State, by delegates of the Central Labor Union, through the allied pressmen's unions, on Sunday evening, August 18, at the Labor Lyceum, is assuming the proportions of an epoch-making event in politico-labor circles hereabout. Yesterday's meeting of the C. L. U., after the transaction of routine business, was adjourned to immediately meet with the conference having in charge the Maher dinner, and the latter meeting was characterized by plenty of enthusiasm and many apropos speeches.

Congressman William Sulzer, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the House, will be the toastmaster at the dinner, and Congressmen John J. Fitzgerald and Francis Burton Harrison and former Sheriff Julius Harburger of Manhattan and Colonel John I. Martin of the Democratic National Committee will be some of the speakers. It is expected that Senator O'Gorman of this State and possibly Senator Gore of Oklahoma will be added to the list in the course of the present week. The officers and committees of the dinner conference are as follows:

Dinner Committee—Maurice De Young, chairman; Rudolph Hantusch, M. Shea, J. Wylie, Arthur Mueller, William Probert, J. Kane, Robert Hughes, Paul Tuchsen, Frank Dowling, Fred Wagner, M. Klug, John H. Cummings, John Sullivan, David Simons, George Behrens, Frank Schnitz, F. Gratten, N. Lawlor, Con Shea.

Press Committee—Peter T. Quinn, W. F. Erhardt, George P. Christie.

In its report respecting the Medford Sanatorium, proposed to be built on the land of the Central Labor Union in Suffolk County, the tuberculosis committee stated, through Chairman George J. Phillips, that the institution had now been incorporated and that everything was ready to transfer the property to the incorporators as soon as the consent of the C. L. U. had been obtained. Such consent was forthcoming, and tangible results will doubtless soon be noticed. Walter Shaw Brewster, James J. Jenkins, Jr., Maurice De Young, William Picard and Frank S. Tomlin are the incorporators. The institution will be titled "Medford Sanatorium for Workingmen and Women," and it will derive its maintenance from the rank and file of labor hereabouts.

The Musical Mutual Protective Union's delegate reported that a settlement of their scale had been reached with all the managers except those of moving picture places.

Organizer George F. Kenny of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union gave a resume of the Chicago newspaper pressmen's strike, and on motion of Delegate Mines, seconded by Vice President Quinn, Mr. Kenny was given credentials to visit the unions affiliated with the C. L. U. It was stated that Local No. 51 (flat-bed pressmen) of this city had contributed $2,000 and the Franklin Association (feeders) another $2,000 to aid the Chicago strikers, those needing the greatest aid being the newsboys.

Owing to the inclement weather the picnic of Steam Engineers Union No. 56 was postponed from July 21 to August 11, and invitations were extended to the delegates to attend.

The delegate of the Ironmolders reported that the Ironmolders Conference Board had elected Jerome B. Keating assistant business agent of Local No. 25 to succeed James Flannagan, deceased.

Letters from each one of the Brooklyn delegation in Congress in reply to a C. L. U. protest, originating with the State Allied Printing Trades, against the so-called "Bourne Parcels Post Bill," were read. It is claimed that this bill will cause much injury to the printing industry, hence the labor organizations seek its defeat. Each Congressman promised to give the objections to the measure due consideration and weight.

DEMBAR—ROSENSTEIN.

A pretty wedding ceremony was performed last night at the Knapp Mansion, 551 Bedford avenue, when Miss Rose Rosenstein, daughter of I. J. Rosenstein, was married to Abraham Dembar, the Rev. Dr. Leventhal of the Ninth street temple officiating.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in the parlors of the mansion, which were prettily decorated with flowers and banked with palms, the color scheme being pink and white. A caterer served supper. The toastmaster of the evening was Sidney M. Gottesman. He read several congratulatory telegrams. Others who made speeches were Walter Kraslow, George Rosenstein, Mr. DeRayman, Dr. Leventhal and John O. Ball.

The bride was attended by the Misses Frances Rosenstein and Rebecca Hornstein, as bridesmaids, by Sophie Rosenstein and Rebecca Rosenstein as flower girls, and Joseph G. Rosenstein as best man.

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse, made with pannier effect and trimmed with chantilly lace. She wore a tulle veil caught up with lilies-of-the-valley, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bridesmaids both carried arm bouquets of pink roses and the little flower girls large baskets of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosenstein will go to Atlantic City on their wedding trip and will then reside at Eighth avenue and Ninth street, Brooklyn.

ITALIAN PROGRESSIVES.

The Italian-American Progressive Club has been organized among the Italians of the Nineteenth Assembly District. They organized on last Thursday night, and passed resolutions indorsing the Bull Moose party. Officers were elected as follows: F. V. Spavacino, president; B. Rotolo, vice president; S. Palma, corresponding secretary; C. Rotolo, financial secretary; S. Azzarra, treasurer; G. Castrogiovanni, S. Audolfe and F. Ganci, trustees.

PREACHER DEMANDS RIGHTS FOR NEGRO

TELLS HIS MEN HOW TO VOTE.

Says Northern Negroes Should Lift Shackles Off Their Southern Brothers.

The Rev. Dr. G. W. Johnson, pastor of the Fleet Street Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church, one of the largest in seating capacity and in influence of the churches for colored people in Brooklyn, just prior to the close of the evening service yesterday and after preaching a forceful and inspiring sermon on "Faith," said that, while he was not a politician, he generally said what he had to say on issues affecting his people.

Dr. Johnson has felt that the Progressive party would be the right party for the negro and was ready to fall in line with its strongest supporters, but the declaration of ex-President Roosevelt, published throughout the country on Saturday, to the effect that negroes in Southern States should be deprived of taking any part in the Progressive convention, aroused the preacher's ire. Dr. Johnson yesterday said:

"The conditions as they exist now in this country are perplexing to us as a race. We have been steady supporters of the Republican party until recent years when some men have gone into the Democratic ranks. We had thought that the new party would at least have some principles by which the negroes would get their rights. Now the new party says that only the negro of the North is to affiliate. I have been agitating all along for the new party, but the negro in the South is the brother or very near kinsman of the negro of the North, and if the negro of the South is to be so discriminated against because of his locality, it is our duty, as the balance of power in the North, to raise the shackles off the brother in the South.

"We must stop and think. We ought to come together in a meeting and decide to cast our lot only with the party which will make provisions for us. We are tired of being tools. If none of the three is willing to accord justice to us, then we ought to form a party of our own."

Dr. Johnson is the new pastor of the Fleet Street A. M. E. Zion Church. He was robbed in a street car last week of his wallet, containing about $200 and a diamond. The pickpockets were seen by passengers, but got away. Now Dr. Johnson asks that they will mail to him at 473 Carlton avenue, some papers which were in the wallet and which are of great value only to him. The robbery occurred in broad daylight in Madison avenue, Manhattan.

"PASTOR" RUSSELL IS GROWING MODEST

His Name and Portrait Eliminated From Advertising Matter of His Followers.

NEWSPAPERS WERE FOOLED.

Did Not Recognize "International Bible Students Association" as a Russell Corporation.

"Pastor" Russell, whose name and face have always been a prominent feature of the advertising matter put out by his various corporations, is suddenly becoming more modest.

At a recent convention of his followers in Washington, his name was eliminated from all advertising matter which was given out. Instead, the International Bible Students Association, which is one of the many corporations used by "Pastor" Russell in carrying on his business, was featured.

The Baltimore Sun, in a recent issue, cites various instances of the success of the new method. The following paragraph is taken from a long article exposing the "Pastor's" system:

"A statement upon hell-fire was sent out from the convention of Russellites in Washington, last week, disavowing belief in any such doctrine. This seems good warm weather news, and many of the greatest dailies in the country printed it. The press associations were led to believe, by the phrasing of the text, that the convention was a gathering of theologians and religious leaders, and so the editorial paragraphers have subsequently been treating the dispatch. None of these detected in the name 'International Bible Students Association' a cloak for the docile followers of 'Pastor' Russell."

The Daily Mail and Empire of Toronto, Canada, has also taken the pains recently to tell its readers the truth about Russell. Since his methods have become better known in the United States, the "Pastor" has been devoting much of his time to Canada and England. According to his published plans, it will be some time before he will deliver any more public lectures in Brooklyn to increase the circulation of his books, in which he expounds his theory that the crack of doom is due in October, 1914. "Pastor" Russell is distributing a new puzzle. The latest issue of the Watch Tower, his official publication, advertises these key puzzles as follows:

"We have some key puzzles, which, so long as they last, will be sent out to Watch Tower subscribers who have opportunity for using them. They are intended to advertise Volume I, 'Studies on the Scriptures.' Of course, they are of no special use to the friends in the Truth, but intended merely to attract the attention of the public. We rely upon our subscribers to put them into circulation in all parts of the country—one puzzle laid in each hotel parlor of your town or in the readingroom of the Y. M. C. A., or any such place, would be the thought. One puzzle for each hotel is plenty, as it can be used over and over again by different parties. Order as many as you can use judiciously up to a dozen—free."

AGED GATEMAN ASSAULTED.

Patrick Johnson, a gateman employed by the Long Island Railroad at the Madison avenue crossing, Winfield, was brutally assaulted Saturday night by two men with blackjacks. The man was found lying unconscious alongside of the gates which he was watching by John Pfeiffer, who notified the Newtown police. The reserves were sent to the scene where the man was assaulted but the men had made good their escape when they arrived.

Johnson is said to be in a critical condition. He is 70 years old and has been in the employ of the railroad for some time.

ITALIANS HAD PICNIC.

Queens Fourth Warders Plan Borough-Wide Organization.

For the purpose of uniting all the Italian voters of Queens County, the Italo-American Citizens Association of the Fourth Assembly District held a picnic yesterday at Repaci's Park, Cedar Manor, south of Jamaica. The object of the gathering really was to sound the sentiment of the Italians of Queens and to prepare for a borough-wide organization.

Judge John J. Freschi of Manhattan was to have been present and preside at the gathering yesterday, but he was unable to attend. Six hundred were at the outing.

BROOKLYN WOMAN HURT.

Mrs. Susan Gundrum, 29 years old, wife of Edward Gundrum of 1101 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, was thrown out of an automobile in a head-on collision with another car, last evening, at Hillside avenue and Queens road, Queens.

Mrs. Gundrum was in her husband's auto with her husband and their chauffeur, Harry Johnson. They were headed west when another auto, which had been hidden from view by a hay wagon, going east, suddenly darted out, it is claimed, and tried to pass the hay wagon on the wrong side of the roadway.

The other automobile was owned by Max Bernstein of 273 West 125th street, Manhattan, and operated by Edward Scogison of 23 West 125th street, Manhattan.

RAN AUTO INTO BAND.

Manhattan Chauffeur Causes Excitement at College Point Picnic.

William H. Schultz, 29 years old, of 150 East Eighty-fourth street, Manhattan, was arrested at Witzel's Point View Grove, College Point, yesterday afternoon. He was in charge of an automobile said to be the property of Frederick Crumm of 447 West Forty-eighth street, Manhattan.

Schultz brought a party of men to the grove and after leaving them at the club house started into the grove. Before his machine was stopped it ran over several benches and into a crowd of men and women.

They all managed to escape injuries, except Isaac Rosenberg, of Brooklyn. He was knocked down and cut about the face. Rosenberg, who was playing with a band engaged by one of the organizations holding an outing at the grove, claimed that his baritone horn was smashed.

Schultz was arrested by Mounted Policeman Martin Clair and taken to the College Point station house. Rosenberg made a charge of felonious assault against him, while Clair charged him with wreckless driving and intoxication.

PARTOLA GIVES RELIEF HEALTH

That is the new order of things, the running down of the body being speedily built up again by Partola, the peppermint candy laxative blood purifier, that has caused over 2,000 people to send letters to the Partola Co., expressing gratitude for relief obtained from the use of Partola. Over four million boxes of Partola have been sold in three years, because it is a remedy that restores health to sufferers from indigestion, constipation, rheumatism and the many other troublesome relatives of those unpleasant conditions of the body that result in more serious conditions when they are left neglected.

Partola is the modern sure road to health. Use the gentle, quiet Partola—the pleasant, certain Partola, that starts sufferers from indigestion, constipation and the serious ills that come from such conditions on the way to the quick relief that leads to the wide, well-paved road of perfect health. Druggists who have conscientious desire to serve their patrons sell Partola. It comes in 25c, 50c and $1 boxes. A one-dollar box keeps a large family in good health for three months. NAISMITH MAKES GREAT GAINS

His Total Was the Feature of Over Sunday Balloting—Renewed Interest in Contest.

The feature of the over-Sunday balloting in The Eagle's fifth Grand Opera Contest was the large total reached by Robert Naismith, the leader in the race. After being deposed from his position by the Caledonian Hospital a few days ago he "came back" with vigor, rolling up huge totals.

Yesterday he continued his good work, getting an even thousand and increasing his lead considerably over the Royal Arcanum Hospital Association and the Caledonian Hospital, the institutions which are second and third, respectively.

Miss Lillian La Forge, whose picture appeared in yesterday's Eagle, was evidently encouraged by that fact, for she advanced from forty-seventh to forty-fourth. George V. Ellery, whose picture appeared in The Eagle several Sundays ago, seemed still to feel that stimulus, for he made a big leap forward, coming up from second in the "next twenty-five" to fifty-third among the "sixty leaders."

A RECIPROCITY WITHOUT FOES.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

Cornell University, which is a leader in several lines of public activity now, seems destined to take a foremost place in international relations that link the United States with Canada. Goldwin Smith, whose life was lived under both British and American flags, spent most of his later days in Toronto but he left his heart in Ithaca apparently, for it was to Cornell that he bequeathed the bulk of his fortune and it was to that college of his earlier associations that he looked for closer intimacy of the two neighboring peoples.

The President of the United States has now marked still more emphatically this fact that Cornell is a connecting link between the countries by appointing its president, who is a Canadian by birth, to be Minister to Greece. Dr. Schurman will represent his adopted country well. He is possessed of unusual gifts for the public service, and if his lines had not been cast in educational ways he would have made a statesman long before this. He has impressed the leaders of both countries, for Sir John A. Macdonald tried to get him into the Canadian Cabinet while he was still a resident of Canada and President Taft's predecessor, William McKinley, admired him warmly and persuaded him to go once to the Philippines on a public mission.

Cornell is giving up the kind of reciprocity between the United States and Canada to which not even the fiercest partisan will take exception.

"I guess perhaps I'd better not;
But then, again, I may—
I haven't quite decided. What Does Charley Murphy say?

"I think I shall—it may be so—
I won't—I can't—I will—
I might say Yes—I might say No—
I think I'll sign the bill.

"I haven't yet consulted with
The leaders of the Party—
I might name Brown, or maybe Smith,
Or Finch again, McCarty.

"I want to do whatever's right,
The State to benefit—
I like this bill—but Murphy might
Not think so well of it.

"It seems to me, on second thought—
I can't be sure until—
I wonder if I really ought—
Perhaps—and yet—but still—"

HOME FOR NORTH GERMANS

A special meeting of the executive committee of the twenty-ninth Plattdeutsche Volksfest, held at Fidelity Hall, yesterday afternoon, resulted in the organization of the Altenheimgesellschaft, a society with the purpose of prosecuting an energetic campaign for the building fund of the Home of the Aged North Germans. Although the net proceeds of the Plattdeutsche Volksfest have exceeded the amount of $2,000, and $5,000 were signed previous to the festival, the funds on hand are not sufficient for the complete erection of the building, and it was decided yesterday that an aid society would be the best means of helping the project along. President Herman C. Hencke appointed the following delegates to a committee, which is to form the constitution and bylaws of the new organization: Henry Behrens, Henry M. Renkem, William Neumann and Christian Elmer. The committee will also have to co-operate with Honorary President Fred Winter, who is chairman of the Altenheim building committee.

Alex Wuelfing, chairman of the festival committee, gave a detailed list of the proceeds of the twenty-ninth volksfest. According to his statement, the bowling committee turned over to the central committee $471.35; the gate committee, $1,621; the women's shooting committee, $158.50; men's shooting committee, $191, and the contest committee $897.67. With the piano contest committee and the committee in charge of the official festival journal and programme to be heard from, the net proceeds of the festival amount to more than $2,300, which amount far surpassed the surplus of last year's celebration, in spite of the fact that the main day of the festival, the opening Sunday, was spoiled by a heavy downpour of rain.

A motion, offered by the delegates of the Bremervoerder Maennerchor, calling for a concert to be given by the North German societies, was accepted, half of the proceeds of the affair to be turned over to the building fund of the Altenheim. Honorary President Fred Winter, Albert Hustedt, Alex Wuelfing, Rudolph Schumacher, G. A. Kaemper and Charles Sander were selected to take charge of the arrangements of the concert, which is to be given in the near future. The society will next week visit the volksfest of the Manhattan Plattdeutsche Volksfest Verein, at Union Hill Park, N. J., and on September 8 the members will be seen at the thirty-sixth Cannstatetter Volksfest of the local Schwaebischer Volksfest Verein.

Treasurer Charles H. Behrens and Delegate Dick Mink, who solicited most of the advertisements for the programme and the journal of the festival, were awarded with the prizes offered for that purpose.

POPE DID NOT LEAVE VATICAN.

Pontiff's Sister Not as Ill as Had Been Reported.

Rome, August 19—A statement circulated in the press here that the Pope went out of the Vatican to visit his sister Rosa, who was said to have been stricken with paralysis was officially denied at the Vatican today.

The officials declare that the stroke of paralysis suffered by the Pope's sister occurred as far back as June and was of such a slight nature that it never caused any serious anxiety, which is proved by the fact that another sister and a niece of the Pope who were caring for his sister Rosa have left Rome and that Rosa has almost entirely recovered.

Senate Amends Post Office Bill on That Point.

THEN PASSES MEASURE

New Parcels Post Plan Is Included and Now Goes to Conference.

WASHINGTON, August 19—The annual Post Office appropriation bill passed the Senate to-night after two days' sharp fighting over the provision relating to parcels post, postal improvement and the affiliation of postal employes with labor organizations. It goes back to the House with some restrictions on the right of postal employes to join outside organizations and an entirely new system of parcels post, based on the zone system, with varying rates for various distances.

The measure was passed by a vote of 44 to 21, with many important changes remaining to be settled in conference. It provided that no person in the postal service should be discharged or removed for the reason of having for its object the improvement of the condition of postal employes. After a fight the Government ownership plan was defeated in the Senate to-day, the Senate not providing that postal employes should not join an organization with an obligation to strike or resist in any way the United States." In the form as it passed the Senate it provides a right to postal employes to strike. The Senate system, which provides for the fixing by the Postmaster General of rates for distances not exceeding fifty to one hundred miles, graduated from one cent per pound for the first 11 pounds to five cents per pound for the first pound in the second zone, city delivery to be free.

Instead of the Senate provision for the service in the cities, that the Postmaster General, Secretary Bryan's arbitration plan, and the employe would be paid in "cash" within 30 days.

Senator La Follette moved to strike out the section providing for the publication of periodicals at less frequent intervals than weekly, at second-class rates of postage of one cent a pound, and to restore the rate of two cents a pound. This was defeated by a vote of 39 to 26.

Senator La Follette got into a controversy with Senator Root as to whether La Follette had introduced an amendment which would have prohibited any government employe from belonging to any labor organization. La Follette declared that he had introduced an amendment to that effect, but that Root had "refused to be satisfied with it." Root, in reply, declared that La Follette had told him that he would modify it, and that he had not done so.

"It is offensive," said Senator Root. "I have asked the Senator a direct question in regard to it, and he refuses to answer it. He says that he will not say whether he will modify it or not. I do not believe that any amendment would in any way affect the right of postal employes to organize, and the assumption that Senators remarked that it had been rejected."

FAIR ONES SO ALIKE, TAKES WRONG GIRL

THEN FISTS BEGIN TO FLY.

Sweeney Really Didn't Know He Had McGalley's Charmer Till Punch Landed.

William Shakspeare was sipping a cordial with Sir Walter Scott on the upper deck of the houseboat on the Styx.

"Walt, old man," he said, "let us put our brains together and devise some pleasing joke for those that dwell upon the earth."

"Sure thing," said Sir Walter, draining his glass.

Last night James McGalley, 29 years old, of 671 Jefferson avenue, dined wisely and well with a young lady friend in the garden of a hotel at Surf avenue and West Eighth street, Coney Island. The supper was good, the music soothing, and the most delightful of cool breezes swept in from the ocean.

At a nearby table, so the story goes, sat James Sweeney, a lumber dealer, who lives at 179 Prospect Park West. According to those who were present, Sweeney was surrounded by a veritable Florodora sextet of bewilderingly pretty maidens.

Shakspeare and Sir Walter permitted them to finish their dinner in peace, but as soon as they rose to go, the trouble started.

Although no one had noticed it, McGalley's girl and one of the Sweeney six were as alike as two raindrops. From the very tip of their tiny white pumps to the mass of golden hair that peered coyly from under their picture hats, they were the same.

Hence very naturally, it is said, Sweeney rose from the table just as McGalley got up, and all unsuspecting took McGalley's girl by the arm. She with Cowardly eyes, never dreamed for a moment that her arm rested on any but that of the mighty McGalley, so off she started with Sweeney.

McGalley stood for one second in utter amazement. Then his manhood reasserted itself, and it is alleged, with one mighty swing, he struck Sweeney full in the nose.

Bricks from the sextet! Uproar in the hotel! The sound of a policeman's whistle!

In a few moments Patrolman Joseph McDonald arrived on the scene, and on the complaint of Sweeney, placed McGalley under arrest. The whole party, including McGalley, Sweeney, the twins, and the sextet, started off for the station house. It is said, to witness the outcome.

When they arrived, the sergeant at the desk put his feet on the floor, straightened his crayat, and looked serious.

"Ladies, ladies," he said, "what in the world has happened?"

McGalley mashed him in the map!" said one.

"He also please don't lock him up," chirped another.

And so they all related how the entire affair had been an accident, and Sweeney decided to withdraw the charge.

But the charge had already been made, the sergeant said, and would consequently have to stand.

Thereupon, Sweeney, who a few minutes before had charged McGalley with slapping him in the nose, asked if it would be possible for him to go bail.

MUSTANGS TO CARRY THIS COUPLE FROM BROOKLYN TO SAN FRANCISCO

Leaving the Borough Hall at ten minutes after 10 this morning, Jasdon M. Ridgely and his young wife, Cleo, started out on a 3,000-mile horseback ride, their destination being San Francisco, Cal. Before starting, Borough President Steers walked down the steps to wish them "God Speed" and handed them a letter of introduction to the Mayor of San Francisco.

Ridgely and his wife are both Westerners and are experts in riding and managing a horse. They propose to make the entire trip on the same animals and if all goes well they will be in San Francisco on January 1, 1913. Their first stop will be at Newark, N. J. From there they will go to Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Trenton, Mt. Holly, Camden and Philadelphia. Both are motion picture actors and at the various towns they pass through will declare on their experiences. They are traveling under the direction of a motion picture magazine.

After passing through New Jersey and Pennsylvania the travelers will strike Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. The first part of the trip will be made in daily short rides, but when the Western States are reached the couple will ride forty to fifty miles a day.

The animals that are being ridden on this long trip are sturdy little mustangs. Both are young and only partly broken. Automobiles and trolley cars were new to them and as they left the Borough Hall a tight rein had to be kept on them to keep them from prancing about in the crown that had gathered to see the couple off. When not on the road the couple make their home at 12 West 103th street, Manhattan.

Both have ridden across states before, but they never undertook a trip of this character before. In Texas they expect to make fifty or sixty miles a day. In some places the riding will have to be done at night because of the excessive heat. They carry no luggage with them and both are looking forward to the excitement of landing at the various towns along the route where they will have to hunt up lodgings for the night.

Ridgely was born at Cody, Wyoming, and early in his life learned to ride horseback. His wife was born and brought up in Wisconsin and she, too, became an expert horseback rider when a child.

WEATHER FORECAST

Persons desiring information concerning the weather, temperature or other information can secure it by using telephone No. 671 Main, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. week days. Nights and Sundays, 6000 Main.

Indications Until 8 P. M. Tomorrow.

Washington, August 26—For Eastern New York: Showers this afternoon or tonight; cooler north portion tonight; Tuesday, fair and cooler; brisk south to southwest winds.

Local Probabilities.

Probably local showers this afternoon or tonight; Tuesday, fair and cooler; brisk southwest winds, becoming westerly Tuesday.

General Weather Conditions.

With a pronounced area of high pressure over the Southeastern States and a succession of low areas moving eastward along the northern boundary of the country, a warm wave has developed over the Northwest, east of the Mississippi River. Western storms have caused local showers in the Middle Atlantic States and the Ohio Valley, but generally fair weather prevails throughout the eastern states. A barometric depression 30 inches is off Lake Huron and one area of high pressure and fair and cooler weather is spreading over the Middle Atlantic States. The continued warm weather will continue in this section and probably on Tuesday. The following temperatures this afternoon will be near the 90 degree mark. The wind will be moderate westerly.

MILLIONS READY FOR FT. POND BAY PLAN

BREAKWATER IS ADVOCATED.

Eagle Bureau,
Washington, August 26—E. C. Fitzgerald, representing the Montauk Harbor Improvement Company and C. L. Adelberg, assistant to President Peters of the Long Island Railroad Company, appeared before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee for Rivers and Harbors, today, and argued that a favorable report be made to Congress for the construction of a breakwater in Fort Pond Bay. Colonel Chandler, in charge of the New York district of Engineers, recently made a report on this matter, which was unfavorable to building such a breakwater at the present time.

Mr. Fitzgerald showed the board a cablegram which he had just received, stating that one of his directors had interested some foreign capitalists in the proposition to make Montauk Point a terminus for transatlantic liners.

"One of our directors," he said, "has just cabled me that he has raised $10,000,000 for the improvements in the way of building docks, bulkheads, etc. The Long Island Railroad Company is going to spend several million dollars on the private transportation." Although Mr. Fitzgerald did not care to name the foreign capitalist interested, it is understood in Washington that the Hamburg-American Line is thinking seriously of building piers at Fort Pond Bay.

"I propose to have a bill presented in Congress," Mr. Fitzgerald continued, "to make Fort Pond Bay a port of entry. To have passengers landed from transatlantic ships to the trains, which will not stop until they arrive at the Pennsylvania station, where the customs officers will examine the passengers, baggage, freight, etc. This will avoid going to Hoboken.

"I am of the opinion that in about twenty years New York City will extend to Montauk Point. This will be the gateway. Long Island is building up so rapidly, especially since the new tubes have been opened, steamships landing at Fort Pond Bay will help this growth considerably and build up the island solidly.

"The Secretary of War only granted the extension of Chelsea pier for eighteen months, as you know, and that time has practically elapsed. The pier at this point is so narrow, and especially with the Hamburg-American line, and their boats are now being constructed to feel longer than the present ones, which will make it impossible to dock in the New York Harbor.

"The action of the board the long Island Railroad Company was ready to do its part by providing the dockage and equipment to Fort Pond Bay."

Colonel Chandler, Colonel Reed's predecessor, will make to Congress in the report on the proposition a bad standing there, and which although favorable, will not think a breakwater at Fort Pond Bay was now necessary, but the time was not too distant when it would be necessary. Colonel Chandler's report favors the government refuse to build the breakwater the foreign capitalists interested in the Montauk project likely to construct it themselves.

The board will not take any action in the matter for some time. There is likely to be a delay of several days before the date of which has not yet been definitely decided.

SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

TRADE E. & W. MARK

Greatly Beloved by Thousands, His Parish Mourn Their Loss—Funeral Arrangements Not Complete.

The tolling of the bells in the spire of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Louis, on Ellery street, near Nostrand avenue, this morning announced the death of the aged rector of the parish, the Rev. Jules Jollon, who had been lying at death's door for several weeks. Last night it became apparent to his physician that the clergyman would not live many hours longer, and so the members of the household and relatives watched around the bed. It was shortly after 6 o'clock this morning when it was seen that the aged man's time of life was very short, and after the assistant rector, the Rev. Father Farrenkopf, had administered the last rites of the church to him, he expired.

Father Jollon's condition had been serious for many months. He celebrated his golden jubilee of ordination to the priesthood in July of last year, and at the large meeting arranged in his honor he said that he felt that he would not live much longer, possibly not more than a year. He was then 79 years of age, and was already in feeble health. Early in July of this year, however, he took to his bed ,and it soon became evident that his life was but a matter of a few weeks at the longest.

Father Jollon was greatly beloved by all sorts and conditions of men. He was born at Belle, France, on August 16, 1833, and he pursued his studies in his native town. In 1861 he was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Lingherle. He remained in France for several years, and finally came to America, where he met the late Bishop Jean Loughlin, then head of the newly created Roman Catholic Diocese of Brooklyn. He and the Bishop immediately became fast friends, and the Frenchman was persuaded to remain here and found a church for his compatriots. This he did, and the church he established on Sedgwick street prospered for several years. However, owing to changes of population, Father Jollon decided that a removal was necessary, and in 1889 the corner-stone of the present church of St. Louis was laid on Ellery street. At that time the parish was made up mostly of French Roman Catholics, but in late the administrative forces of the parish has changed ,and it is now a cosmopolitan congregation.

The present church has seating capacity for 1,700 persons, and of late years the administrative force o the parish has consisted of Father Jollon and Father Farrenkopf.

Details of the aged clergyman's funeral are not yet completed, but it is probable that the final services will not take place until Saturday morning. During all the time that the services was going on, Father John Riemer appointed himself a committee of one to keep the public informed as to his condition, and anyone calling at his place of business was given a bulletin of the clergyman's condition.

Father Jollon was a typical "gentleman of the old school." Walking in his cassock hat and frock coat, and accompanied by his big dog, he was a familiar figure about the neighborhood. He was very old-fashioned, and did not take to modern improvements, such as the telephone.

OHIO SPECIAL ELECTION.

People to Vote on 41 Amendments to Constitution.

Columbus, O., August 26—Woman's suffrage, the initiative and referendum, good roads, the eight-hour minimum wage and a change in the judicial system, are among the things which have been included in the proposed amendments to Ohio's constitution, and which will be voted upon by the people of the State at a special election on September 3.

The forty-one amendments which will be presented to the voters are the result of activity of problems from the regular session of the legislature, a special two days' session of the legislature and a constitutional convention which consumed six months at an expense of more than $400,000.

Ohio's present constitution was framed by a convention in 1851, a constitutional convention was held, but its work was rejected by the people.

The amendments are being heldd over the State by ministers, professors, lawyers and others who have studied them, and are debating the effects which the various amendments will have on the future welfare of the State.

The initiative and referendum proposal, as adopted by the constitutional convention in the latter part of the summer of this year if ratified, while the other proposals would not be effective until January 1.

The proposed initiative and referendum provides that 10 per cent of the voters may petition for the laws to be considered, and the indirect initiative upon legislative questions.

"PASTOR" POSTPONES THE FINAL SMASH

According to Russell's Latest Figures, End of All Things Comes in 1915.

HAD IT FIXED FOR OCT., 1914.

William T. Ellis' Estimate of the "Pastor"—Sought a Prophet; Found Shrewd Old Man.

"Pastor" Russell has apparently sent word to his staff to postpone the end of the world from October 1, 1914, to 1915. He has frequently told his followers that "they should get in on the ground floor and give up their worldly possessions into his keeping while they have time, for the end draweth near." He had set the date of the "end of the gentiles for 1914," but in the latest issue of "Everybody's Paper," under the heading of "Do You Know?" in which he propounds thirty-four questions, he postpones it a year, until 1915. He asks:

"Do you know that according to the Scriptures 'the time of the end' began in A. D. 1799, and will continue until A. D. 1915?

"Do you know that the time is short in which the consecrated can make their calling and election sure and so run as to obtain the great prize of this gospel age?"

In the current issue of the Continent, the National Presbyterian Weekly, William T. Ellis, who has made a careful investigation of the "Pastor's" methods, particularly of this widely advertised tour of mission lands and his propaganda of publicity, writes:

"I sought a prohpet and I found a business man! Instead of a humble seeker after truth, I found the cleverest propagandist of the age—a man before whom John Alexander Dowie, Mary Baker Eddy, Madame Blavatsky, Abbas Effendi, 'Elijah' Sanford and Joseph Smith pale into puerile ineffectiveness.

"A full-page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post, proclaiming that 'Pastor' Charles Taze Russell and a delegation of the 'International Bible Students Association' had toured the world and made a first-hand study of foreign missions, with results decidedly discreditable to the missionaries, set me on the trail of this man, whose name and activities had, in a general fashion, been known to most newspaper readers for a long time.

"I found not a blazing zealot and a fearless proponent of a peculiar school of Biblical interpretation, but a shrewd old man, who probably could not hold a job for a week on the average newspaper—although his writings are said to have a greater newspaper circulation every week than those of any other living man, and greater, doubtless, than the combined circulation of the writings of all the priests and preachers in North America; greater even, than the work of Arthur Brisbane, Norman Hapgood, George Horace Lorimer, Dr. Frank Crane, Frederick Haskin and a dozen other of the best known editors and syndicate writers put together.

"Russell's people do not go out into the field of evangelism, reclaiming the unchurched. One searches his record in vain for anything about the rescue of the outcast and the sinning. Neither is there any trace of interest in the thronging social problems of our time. Ministry to the poor, visitation of the sick, care for the orphaned—these are outside of the pale of Russellite activities. The limit of his benovicnces is to send his literature free to 'the Lord's poor.'

Sees Himself Indicated in Scripture.

"The kind of persons who follow Russell are usually ready to accord him a peculiar place in the divine plan of the ages, and with his help they can get plenty of warrant in the Scripture for his position. There is apparently nothing incongruous in their eyes in regarding him as one to whom the prophecies of the Old Testament and the words of Jesus Himself point. Thus Russell has set forth the view that he alone is meant by the passage from the twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew: 'Who then is the faithful and wise servant whom his Lord hath set over his household to give them their food in due season? Blessed is that servant whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Verily I say unto you that he will set him over all that he hath.' The acceptance of Russell as 'that servant' was made a test of fellowship among his followers, we are told, by the written statement of some who had been of that number, but who subsequently joined the large procession that is steadily falling away from 'Pastor' Russell.

"The 'pastor' makes much of dates. Here, for instance, is his serious statement of 'Things all want to know as Christian Bible students':

"'Six thousand years from Adam ended in A. D. 1872.' 'The date of our Lord's birth was October, B. C. 2.' 'The date of annunciation to Mary, December 25, B. C. 3.' 'The date of our Lord's baptism was October, A. D. 29.' 'The date of our Lord's crucifixion April, A. D. 33. 'The "seventy weeks" of Israel's favor ended A. D. 36.' 'The Jewish age "harvest" was forty years, A. D. 30-70.' 'The Christian age "harvest" was forty years, A. D. 1874-1914.' 'The "times of the Gentiles" will end with A. D. 1914.'

"The official report of Russell's work for the year 1911 shows an expenditure of $191,650.16, exclusively for the propagation of his teachings. The critics who charge that the entire enterprise is merely an advertising scheme for Russell's books are aside from the mark. The money has been raised otherwise.

"When it comes to raising money most pastors, board secretaries and financial representatives of benevolent causes can sit at Russell's feet. Russell may know nothing theoretically about the science of psychology, but he is a past master of the thing itself. He might say, if he were utterly candid, 'The longest way round is often the shortest way home.' It is better to put an idea into people's heads than will constrain them to give of what they suppose is their own volition, than to extract money by urgency."

BROWNSVILLE CIVIC LEAGUE.

Jacob L. Holzmann, Progressive candidate for Congress, will speak under the auspices of the Citizens Civic League of Brownsville, at the auditorium of the Kaplan School, 1731 Pitkin avenue, on Sunday evening, October 6, at 7:30 o'clock. All are welcome.

The Citizens Civic League of Brownsville will conduct a series of interesting lectures throughout the winter season. Speakers and subjects will be announced in this paper from time to time.

The purpose of this organization is set forth in its name and all those who are interested in its work and are desirous of becoming members, should address M. Diamond, chairman of the membership committee, 414 Junius street.

CANAL TO REOPEN OCTOBER 4.

Rochester, N. Y., September 29—Assistant Superintendent of Public Works Charles McDonough, who is in charge of the western division of the Erie Canal, has announced that the work on the break in the canal at Bushnell's Basin, about eight miles east of this city, will be finished this week and that the canal will be reopened for navigation on Friday, October 4.

DR. BAKER RETURNS.

Dr. Jennie V. Baker has just returned to Brooklyn after a summer of active suffrage work in various parts of the country, and she will open up her home at 512 Bedford avenue tomorrow. Dr. Baker spent the early part of the summer in Northfield, Mass., and from there went to Syracuse to attend the Bull Moose Convention. Later she went to Chicago and attended many suffrage meetings in the West.

QUARRELS AMONG WITNESSES.

Lieutenant Becker's Defense May Profit by Rows in Prison.

The defenders of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker were heartened today by the report of quarrels among the four so-called "squealers" confined in the West Side Prison, in Manhattan. The witnesses for the prosecution, who are reported to be at odds, are "Bridgey" Webber, "Jack" Rose, Harry Vallon and Sam Schepps. John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the defense, predicted today that the case against Becker won't even reach the jury.

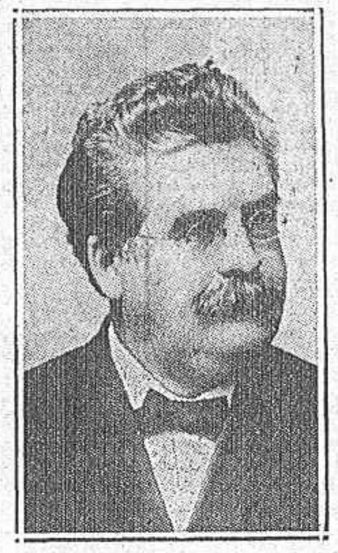

It was also reported today that the testimony of Sam Schepps, the alleged paymaster of the murder gang, will be offset by the contention on the part of the defense that Schepps was a co-conspirator with the other gamblers, that had determined to "do" Rosenthal before he could squeal on them.

The vice question will be taken up by the Aldermanic Investigating Committee next Saturday, and the "John Doe" proceedings before Justice Goff will go on as per schedule in the October term of the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS OLD

Anniversary of the Dedication of "Old First" Reformed Church.

Yesterday's services at the First Reformed Church, corner Seventh avenue and Carroll street, marked the twenty-first anniversary of the dedication of "the Old First Church." The elaborate services of a year ago at which the new decorations were unveiled and the twenty-year history of the life of the church gone over in detail, left little to be said or done beyond appropriate commemoration of the dedicatory event. The fact that yesterday was rally day in the Sunday school added somewhat to the occasion and at that service several special addresses were delivered, the principal one being by the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, minister in charge of the Reformed Church on the Heights.

The Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar.

In the morning, at the 11 o'clock service, the Rev. Dr. James M. Farrar preached on the subject of "The Saints." He took his text, 1 Corinthians 1:2, exemplifying the fact that the word saint should not be restricted to a select few but was a title rightfully belonging to the many "hidden servants" who have labored long and faithfully in the Lord's vineyard, bringing forth the fruits of righteousness. Dr. Farrar spoke also of the great good accomplished through the medium of the Junior Congregation, outlining its origin, splendid development and present wide extension through other churches where its value has been recognized as one of the greatest assets for the temporal and spiritual welfare of the church.

In the evening Dr. Farrar continued his remarks along the same line, making references to the saintly development of those who have for so many years borne the heat and burden of the day in the upbuilding and support of the old First church. At both services the music was particularly appropriate.

SERENO H. STARRETT DEAD

Wealthy Former Brooklynite Succumbs to Wounds Inflicted by Discharged Employe.

Sereno H. Starrett, the wealthy retired manufacturer of New York, formerly a resident of 16 Irving place, Brooklyn, who was shot in the bedroom of his home in New Rochelle, early Saturday morning, died yesterday in the New Rochelle Hospital from his wounds.

Before he died, Mr. Starrett, who was conscious up to the moment of his death, had brought before him his former butler, John McGuire, and identified him as the man who had hidden under the bed and fired point blank as his former employer entered the room to retire for the night. Mrs. Starrett also identified the man.

McGuire was arrested an hour after the shooting, as suspicion pointed to him at once. He had been discharged about a week before the shooting. Coroner Livingston held the man for murder when he was arraigned Saturday.

McGuire had been in the employ of the Starretts for some time and was considered an excellent servant until recently, when he began to act queerly and was discharged. He denies that he did the shooting, but admits he was in the house at the time. He says that he does not remember anything of shooting Mr. Starrett. He seems to mourn the death of his late employer and has offered to give the police any information he has.

At his bedside when the wounded man died were his wife and daughters, who had been in almost constant attendance since he was shot.

Mr. Starrett was 50 years old. For many years he was a clock manufacturer of Manhattan, and when he retired, several years ago, he built a handsome home in New Rochelle and moved there from Brooklyn.

The man who is alleged to have fired the shot that ended his life came from Manhattan with the family to New Rochelle.

New Rochelle, N. Y., September 30—John McGuire, charged with having shot Sereno H. Starrett, was arraigned before Coroner William H. Livingston yesterday, and held without bail, on a charge of homicide, for the action of the Grand Jury. McGuire manifested no emotion when informed of the death of Mr. Starrett. Although only 21 years old, and a large framed man, he is now down to less than 100 pounds as a result of his addiction to drugs.

GRAHAM—MAPES.

Middletown, N. Y., September 28—Bertha Gordon Mapes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Mapes, and Frank Albert Graham were married at the bride's home near Howells on Wednesday by the Rev. H. N. Pfeiffer of Brooklyn. Miss Ethel Horton Glenhaur was bridesmaid and Allen D. King of Roslyn, L. I., was best man. Mrs. Graham is a graduate of Ursuline Academy, this city. Mr. Graham is a son of John Graham of New Vernon.

The Eagle on Saturday published an erroneous dispatch to the effect that the Rev. H. N. Pfeiffer was married, whereas he was the pastor who performed the ceremony at this wedding.

VICTIM OF APHASIA STILL A MYSTERY

"Kitty" Is Identified as Catherine Dowling, But That Is All.

FRIENDS ASK FOR SECRECY.

Mrs. Scanlon, Who Identified Her, Knows Nothing of Mis Dowling's Recent History.

Through an article that appeared in yesterday's issue of The Eagle, "Kitty," the young woman who was picked up early Saturday morning and has since been a patient in the Kings County Hospital suffering from an attack of aphasia, was identified yesterday afternoon by a relative.

The young woman is Catherine Dowling, according to Mrs. M. B. Scanlon of 228 Prospect Park West, but her case is just as much of a mystery as it was before her identity was disclosed.

Mrs. Scanlon, who says she is a cousin of the young woman, stated that she had not seen "Kitty" for more than two years. At that time domestic troubles practically cut off the friendship of the two women and it was only out of curiosity that Mrs. Scanlon went to the Flatbush institution, accompanied by her sister.

The procedure of the two women who appeared at the Kings County Hospital to view the victim of aphasia puzzled the authorities. "Kitty" was up to the time of their arrival in the same condition as when found. But as soon as her eyes met those of her cousin, she immediately changed.

Not a word passed between the three women. The only words spoken were by Mrs. Scanlon who turned to Dr. John Russell, who is connected with the observation ward, and said, "Yes that is Kitty Dowling, my cousin."

"Kitty" stared, with her lips slightly parted and seemed to be deeply in thought. She watched Mrs. Scanlon closely for several minutes and then her gaze was centered upon the other woman. Several questions were put to her by a nurse, but she did not answer. Not once did she even smile. Her mind seemed blank, but for the time the recognition of a face had brought about a slight change.

When Mrs. Scanlon returned to the office she requested that all information regarding her visit be kept secret. Just what reason she had for this she would not say, nor would she disclose the name of her sister.

According to the story told the hospital authorities by Mrs. Scanlon, the Dowling girl had been lost to her for two years. When Miss Dowling was a child of several years, her father, John Dowling, died. His death left Kitty practically alone in the world. She was taken in by Mrs. Scanlon's people and was treated as a sister. Everything went along without a hitch until two years ago. Then some sort of trouble arose and Kitty went out in the world alone.

Nothing was heard of Kitty for more than six months, and then it was said that she was connected with a Manhattan hospital, as a nurse. There was also another rumor that she was a clerk in a Manhattan business house. She did not communicate with those who had befriended her and for eighteen months no one has been able to get any trace of her. During her rambling speech Saturday she mentioned "California" and it is thought that the young woman may have been to the Pacific coast during the period of her disappearance.

Today the girl has improved and has furnished the hospital authorities with a few facts. She stated that all she could remember was walking along Fulton street, in the downtown section, after having done some shopping Friday afternoon. Time and again an effort has been made to learn where she has been living, but each time the question is put to her she simply stares.

The young woman who accompanied Mrs. Scanlon to make the identification, said to be a sister, has left Brooklyn for the Catskill Mountains. Her reason for so doing was to prevent any attempt to interview her.

At the Parkville station, where "Kitty" was first taken early Saturday morning after being discovered at Foster avenue and Ocean Parkway by Policeman O'Shea, it was said today that two women visited the station house yesterday and begged the police not to give out any information they might gather concerning Miss Dowling.

SOCIAL CLUB OUTING.

The Merchants, a social club of Greenpoint, held its annual outing yesterday at Wetzels, College Point. The members of the club met in a body at Bob White's on Greenpoint avenue and marched in a body to the foot of Kent street, where they boarded the ocean going tug F. Martin Burke, and after a delightful sail up the Sound as far as Sea Cliff they returned to College Point, where the members enjoyed themselves in bowling and other events. A feature was the 100-yard dash (special) between John Kelly and Billy Griffin, and won by the former. The prize was a silk umbrella. Griffin, after running 50 yards, fell, and as quick as a flash got up and continued on, but the handicap was too much. Luke Broderick made a speech and presented a gold watch to Bob White. Charles Sauer amused the members by singing his favorite song, "Wacht am Rhine."

Among the entertainers were George Rehlen, Assemblyman James Garvey and Peter Cassidy. The bowling contest was won by Dr. Francis Burke.

MISS OSTERHELD GAINS AGAIN

Youthful Opera Contestant, Third in Race, Polls Over 2,000 Votes.

The sensation of the ever-Sunday voting in The Eagle's Fifth Grand Opera Ticket Contest was the big gain made by Dorothy Osterheld, who is in third place. The little miss has more than once surprised everyone by her advances in the competition, and this time she made one of her most spectacular moves. On this occasion she polled well over 2,000 votes, and though she is still behind the Caledonian Hospital, which is second, the gap has been greatly lessened and the young candidate is almost on the heels of that institution.

None of the other developments of the day approached in interest the move of Dorothy Osterheld. Clarissa Smith, however, went up to thirteenth, and Edna Meinken took twenty-fifth. There was no special activity among the entrants struggling to keep among the "sixty leaders," as they were all saving their votes to make a brave beginning this week.

GERMAN NOTES

At the Labor Lyceum, Willoughby avenue, the singing societies of the different turner associations of the New York District assembled yesterday afternoon to decide on the programme for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the district. A chorus of nearly 100 singers under Charles A. Schulz and Max Muehlert rendered a number of songs, and the following compositions finally were placed on the programme: "Aus der Jugendzeit," by Radecke; "Turner's March," by Abt; "Student's Night Son," by Fischer, and "Unterm Lindenbaum," by Eberle. Several humorous songs, written by John Koch were rendered, and Messrs. Klingenberger, Heitmann and Stamm gave recitations and comic sketches. Solos by the Manhattan Quartet completed the programme.

At Gerken's Ridgewood Grove Park the Weierbarger Vereen had a family entertainment last night. The festivity was arranged by the following committee: Henry Herzog, chairman; George Horn, J. Fiathmann, Herman Holtmann, Henry Detje and President Louis Jentz.

Local German skat players watched with interest the first contest of this season at Abendroths Hall, Bushwick avenue, yesterday afternoon. The results were: First prize, A. Germuthi, 776 points in twenty-three games; second prize, C. Boettcher, 336 points in sixteen games; third price, J. Hildebrandt, 610 points in twelve games; fourth prize, W. Price, 386 points in sixteen games; fifth prize, E. Quadrung, with 120 points in one game; sixth prize, H. Buldermann, 568 points in twelve games; seventh prize, F. Jaeger, 568 points in fourteen games, and eighth prize, G. Wagner, with 533 points in thirteen games. The contest was followed by a general meeting, and the following officers were elected: E. Danne, president; Alfred Winkoppe, first vice president; G. Wagner, second vice president; H. Apel, treasurer, and H. Wunder, secretary. The association has sixty active members.

The association of the veterans of the German army had a meeting at the Saengerbund Hall last night. Plans for the excursion to Germany next year were discussed and twenty-seven applications for tickets were filed.

SAUSAGE MACHINE HITS BACK.

Neglecting to adjust properly the plunger of a compressed air sausage machine, William Dinkolocker, an employe of the Dold Packing Company, of 1205 Metz street, Walabout Market, was struck violently on the head today by the cap which was blown off when the machine was set in motion. He received a deep laceration in the forehead, which was dressed by an ambulance surgeon fro mthe [illegible] Hospital.

TODAY IS LAST TO PAY WATER TAXES

5 Per cent Penalty on Meter Rates and 10 Per Cent on House Rates.

RESULT OF CHANGE IN LAW.

Queens Taxpayers Had to Pay Bills Last Saturday to Avoid Penalty.

Taxpayers who desire to escape paying the penalty placed on all unpaid water meter rates and house rates, covering a period before July 1, 1912, will be obliged to visit the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity today, for tomorrow a penalty of 5 per cent. on meter rates and 10 per cent. on house rates will go into effect.

The penalty against unpaid meter rates is charged for the first time this year and is one of the results of the amendment of the tax laws last spring.

Queens taxpayers who desired to pay their bills had to go to the office of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, in the Municipal Building, Court Square, Long Island City, on or before last Saturday. Those who neglected to do so will be penalized.

"Notice is called to the following changes in the law respecting water charges, as provided by chapter 108, laws of 1912:

"(1) Annual frontage rates—Charges for 1912 will cover the period from May 1 to December 31, 1912, only.

"Beginning with 1913, the water year will run concurrently with the calendar year, that is to say, from January 1 to December 31. Thereafter bills will be rendered accordingly.

The penalties on annual rates will be practically the same as at present, that is, if unpaid three months after entry a 5 per cent. penalty will be imposed, and if unpaid three months thereafter an additional penalty of 10 per cent. will be added, making 15 per cent in all.

"(2) Meter rates—Bills rendered in any quarter if not paid before the close of the last business day of the following quarter shall be subject to a penalty of 5 per cent., and if still unpaid at the close of the last business day of the next succeeding quarter, to a further penalty of 10 per cent., making 15 per cent. in all.

"The year is divided into four quarters.

"1. January, February and March.

"2. April, May and June.

"3. July, August and September.

"4. October, November and December.

"(3) Returns of unpaid items to the tax office—Annual frontage rates and meter rates entered on the records prior to June 30, and unpaid before the close of the last business day of February of the following year will be returned on March 1 to the Receiver of Taxes."

CAMPBELL TOOK A DARE

Former Judge Albert Dulin, now of Colorado, but once of Battle Creek, Mich, a stanch Progressive, had to admit, yesterday, that he was mistaken when, in the course of an address delivered at a mass meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at the Amsterdam Opera House, 340 West Forty-fourth street, he said that Robert M. Campbell, a member of Typographical Union No. 6, who was to have spoken on the Republican side of the political situation, dared not appear. Ex-Judge Dulin had been sounding the praises of Roosevelt and progressiveness, speaking after Congressman Sulzer, who spoke of the conservative policy of the Brotherhood of Engineers. Concluding his remarks Dulin said:

"Some abuses must be remedied or a revolution will sweep over the land, a revolution which makes me shudder to think of. I know why Mr. Sulzer did not discuss the political issues and why Mr. Campbell, though he is at present in the city, did not come here to give the Republican side. They dare not."

Campbell, who is a Brooklyn man, had entered the hall in time to hear the speaker's remarks, and when Dulin had finished jumped to his feet.

"Wait a moment," said Campbell. "You made a mistake in saying I would not be here. And I'm going to give the Republican side, too."

Ex-Judge Dulin continued to edge away, saying he had made a mistake. There was a shout of laughter and he said he was sorry he made a mistake and went out without waiting to hear Campbell's speech.

"The brother who just addressed you," said Campbell, "would have done well to have stayed in Battle Creek. He told us that the Progressive party is the one to save the nation, but he has not told us what the Progressive party is going to do. We are organized workers. What has Theodore Roosevelt done for labor? He told you that the cowboys are the real nobility among the workers and a higher type of men than mechanics. He was seven years in the Presidential chair. How was it that he did not know in all that time that everything was wrong?

"When Mr. Roosevelt came back covered with glory from his trip abroad, he said that Taft was the greatest man in the world, the ideal man in the ideal place. If Mr. Roosevelt is the only man of 100,000,000 to save you, what has become of all the rest? Mr. Sulzer in his speech attacked no party. I have nothing to say against him.

"The previous speaker said that Wilson is impossible. How can he say that if the Bull Moose party is splitting up the Republican party to elect the Democratic party? Roosevelt took every honor he could get from the Republican party and then in a spirit of revenge he turns against the party. He acts the part of a 'scab' against the party. There were only two Democratic Presidents in fifty years. In 1884 there was a long Democratic panic. The only panic in a Republican administration was when Roosevelt was Republican President in 1907. Now he is trying to bring about the destruction of the Republican party."

Magistrate John Hylan of Brooklyn scored the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. He said it had a spy system to keep the men from forming a union; that was an invasion of the liberty of an American citizen, and that the men were subjected to a system of tyranny. He also attacked the Public Service Commission as a useless institution.

CLANS CALLED TOGETHER.

Jacob A. Livingston, chairman of the Republican campaign committee, has called a meeting of the one hundred odd members of that body for Wednesday night. The meeting will be held in the Republican County headquarters, 44 Court street, and plans for the conduct of the campaign will be discussed.

As yet no programme for the Kings County campaign has been laid out. The leaders are anxious that Job E. Hedges, the candidate for Governor, be here at the opening mass meeting, but Hedges' itinerary has not yet been arranged by the State committee and, according to the local Republicans, they cannot make definite plans until State Chairman Barnes has announced what the programme of Hedges, Wadsworth and the other State candidates is to be.

BOY MAY BE FATALLY HURT.

Woodhaven Lad Hit by Auto as He Waved Goodby to Mother.

Nine-year-old Henry Muller, leaving his home at 1082 Jamaica avenue, Woodhaven, for school this morning, turned to wave a goodby to his mother in the window of the house. He failed to notice a big automobile bearing down on him, and as he turned he stepped directly into its path. The boy was thrown against the curb and crushed between it and the side of the machine. He was picked up unconscious. His mother fainted and had to be attended by a physician.

The boy was first taken to his home by George Armstrong, the driver of the car, and later removed to St. Mary's Hospital. Ambulance Surgeon Agan diagnosed his injuries as concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull. He is not expected to recover.

Armstrong, who lives at 276 Ocean avenue, Patchogue, was driving to Brooklyn, and was alone in the car at the time. The machine was owned by Susie B. Mott of Patchogue.

SHELDON TELLS OF 1904 FUND

Former G. O. P. Treasurer Says Standard Oil, Morgan, Frick and Gould Gave $100,000 Each.

Washington, October 2—Senator Joseph H. Dixon, Colonel Roosevelt's political manager, had a stormy sesion today with the Clapp committee investigating campaign expenditures, and testified he had spent $96,000 in the Progressive primary campaign which was not included in the figures presented yesterday by Progressive Treasurer E. H. Hooker.

Senator Dixon renewed his charge that the investigation was being directed at Colonel Roosevelt more than any other candidate and challenged the committee to call Charles P. Taft, Thomas Fortune Ryan and other men whom he named, who, he said, he had been informed had made heavy expenditures for either President Taft, Governor Wilson or Governor Harmon.

Senator Dixon said he had kept no accurate record of his expenditures. He said $25,000 had come rom George W. Perkins, $25,000 from Frank A. Munsey, and $25,000 from Dan R. Hanna, and that "whenever we got desperately hard up I went back to Perkins."

Senator Dixon's charges that the committee was investigating only Colonel Roosevelt's expenses and intended to let those of Taft, Wilson, Harmon, Underwood and Clark go until "after the election," brought out bitter exchanges with members of the committee. Chairman Clapp took the charge as a personal reflection upon himself, "the only member of the committee friendly to Colonel Roosevelt."

Senator Dixon finally demanded that Charles P. Taft be summoned to tell whether he had spent $600,000 to secure President Taft's renomination, and the committee agreed to consider the suggestion.

$25,000 Senator Dix said, was in addition to the $141,000 Mr. Hooker told of yesterday, handled by the Roosevelt headquarters in New York; the $52,000 Hooker had handled for the New York local campaign, and the $102,00 William Flinn said he had given for Pennsylvania. The $25,000 each contributed by Perkins, Munsey and Hanna were also in addition, Mr. Nixon said, to the $25,000 given to the New York headquarters by Hanna, the $19,000 given by Mr. Munsey, and the $22,500 given by Mr. Perkins.

George R. Seldon, former treasurer of the Republican National Committee, testified before the committee that in 1904 the Standard Oil Company contributed $100,000; J. P. Morgan & Co., $100,000; H. C. Frick, $100,000, and George J. Gould, $100,000.

Mr. Sheldon said he had no personal knowledge of these contributions, but that the late Cornelius N. Bliss, then treasurer, had shown him his report.

"When I took charge of the treasurership in 1908 Mr. Bliss handed me a list of large contributors of 1904.

"What percentage was contributed by corporations?"

"To be frank, 73½ per cent."

"Was any contribution made by the Standard Oil Company?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"One hundred thousand dollars."

Mr. Sheldon said the Standard Oil contribution was not on the list as coming from the oil company, but it was charged to John A. Archbold.

"Do you remember any other large contributions?" asked Senator Oliver.

"Yes, J. P. Morgan & Co. gave $100,000; H. C. Frick, $100,000, and George J. Gould, $100,000," answered Mr. Sheldon. "I remember these because of their size. I do not recollect any others."

J. G. Cannon Throws No Light on Archbold Contribution.

When the committee met today to examine Senator Dixon, its members were discussing the Senator's statement in New York last night, in which he announced he would ask the committee to call Chairman Charles D. Hilles of the Republican National Committee and Chairman McCombs of the Democratic National Committee.

The Senators pointed out today that it already had been announced that they would call those two men, as well as the financial managers for Oscar W. Underwood and Champ Clark.

Senator Pomerene vigorously resented the Montana Senator's criticism of the committee, and with Senators Clapp, Paynter and Oliver held a private conference to determine what was to be done about it.

The committee concluded its executive session without announcing any action, and J. G. Cannon took the stand.

Mr. Cannon said that he audited only the accounts of expenditures by the late Mr. Bliss and had no knowledge of the contributions to the fund. Specifically he said he knew nothing of the $100,000 contribution John D. Archbold has said was made by the Standard Oil Company to Colonel Roosevelt's 1904 campaign. He knew nothing of any contributions to any national campaign funds.

Senator Dixon Insists That Investigation Have Full Scope.

Senator Dixon followed Mr. Cannon, and testified that he had collected funds other than those handled by Progressive

FLATBUSH POLICE DIDN'T KEEP VIGIL

Night Tour of Inspector Schmittberger Disclosed Many Men Off Post.

ALSO POLICE DOG, "FUZZY."

Men Found Reading Newspaper in Waiting Rooms of Brighton Beach Line, Report Says.

Following a tour of inspection made two nights ago by Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger, together with Captain Thomas Meyers and Policeman John Creamer, both attached to the Chief Inspector's staff, in the Flatbush and Parkville sections of this borough, announcement was made this morning that charges had been preferred against about sixteen or eighteen policemen and one police sergeant, and that they would be put on trial in a few days before Third Deputy Commissioner John J. Walsh, in Brooklyn.

The tour of inspection by the Chief Inspector and his two aids was made late last Monday night and early Tuesday morning, following many complaints received from residents of the Flatbush and Parkville sections.

As a result, according to the Chief Inspector, he found Policemen Patrick Jones and Daniel J. Reilly, both attached to the Parkville station, in the waiting room of the Brighton Beach Railroad Depot, at Avenue H and East Fifteenth street, with their caps off, reading newspapers.

They had with them Fuzzy, the police dog. Another policeman found with his cap off reading a newspaper, when he should have been on patrol duty, so the report stated, was John Cavanaugh, attached to the same station, who was found in the waiting room of the Brighton Beach Railroad Depot, at Newkirk avenue.

Police Sergeant Pfeiffer of the Parkville station, who was on patrol duty at the time, as the result of the chief inspector's findings, will have to answer to charges of failing to maintain porper patrol duty on his tour of patrol.

The Chief Inspector then, after visiting several points in the Parkville section, made a tour of the Flatbush section, with the result that about ten or twelve policemen, who he says he found off post, and who had remained away from their respective posts for several minutes, will also have to answer to charges which Inspector Schmittberger has preferred against them.

Chief Inspector Schmittberger announced this morning that of late he had been receeving letters from residents of the section to the effect that they were unable to find policemen when they were wanted, and that at times policemen have lingered in waiting rooms, reading newspapers and otherwise neglecting their duty. This, said the Chief Inspector, led him to make the tour and the results that followed.

DOESN'T WANT JUSTICE GOFF.

McIntyre Will Try to Get Becker's Case Before Another Judge.

John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, intends to make a strong fight on Monday morning, when the case of Becker is called, to have his client tried before some other judge than Justice Goff.

The motion for a change of another court will be made to Justice Goff himself. The attorneys for the defense take the ground that Justice Goff, having heard all the testimony in the John Doe proceedings, may have a preconceived notion about Becker's innocene or guilt.

It is not likely that the motion will be entertained by Justice Goff. In that event the fight will probably be carried to a higher tribunal.

District Attorney Whitman, when he heard today about the motion Mr. McIntyre was preparing to make, smiled and said that he guessed the trial would go one before Justice Goff just the same.

It was learned today that Dora Gilbert, the first wife of Herman Rosenthal, the murdered gambler, will be the first witness called by the people. It is believed that the district attorney expects to establish from her testimony the motive for the slaying of Rosenthal.

John W. Hart, former assistant district attorney, and now one of Becker's attorneys, is another who will most likely be called as a witness by Mr. Whitman.

UNION BANK CAN'T PAY MORE THAN HALF TO ITS DEPOSITORS

Outlook Is That Amount May Fall as Low as 10 Cents on the Dollar, Say Liquidators.

SETTLEMENTS MAY COME SOON

But No Definite Time Can Be Fixed. Suits Against Stockholders for a Million Will Help Assets Some.

A recent and thorough inventory of the assets and liabilities of the defunct Union Bank, now in the process of liquidation, led to the announcement today by Deputy Superintendent E. L. Dodge, who is in charge of the liquidation, that the bank will never, under even the most favorable conditions, pay dollar for dollar on the $4,000,000 of deposits it carried when the final crash came.

"Under the most favorable conditions the bank will never be able to pay 100 per cent.," declared Mr. Dodge today. Other bank experts who have recently looked into the liquidation proceedings have asserted that there was no chance of its paying more than 50 cents on a dollar, and that very probably the amount would be substantially less.

However, what little is coming to the depositors may come soon. The only thing that now stands in the way of proceedings to raise money for a dividend is the payment of $240,000 on a $500,000 note, held by the Metrooplitan Trust Company. As security for this the trust company holds mortgages on nearly all the real estate owned by the Union Bank. Part of the security is $191,000 now tied up in bonds and mortgages on the Liberty Avenue Theater in Brownsville. These bonds are not due and for that reason action there cannot be hastened.

The Metropolitan Trust Company has been working hand in hand with Mr. Dodge in clearing up this note, which was originally for $500,000, and has allowed the Union Bank time as occasion warranted. As soon as this note is settled, all that is afterward collected by the bank can be used to pay dividends to depositors.

Superintendent Dodge has also engineered his plans so that he has released the bank from the obligation of paying about $48,000, due on the lease of the former offices of the bank on the first floor of the Temple Bar Building. There were four years yet to run on this lease, but through the renting of the rooms to the Corn Exchange Bank, the Union Bank secured a release.

A further discovery among the assets of the bank was the fact that, once cleared of the $240,000 obligation of the Metropolitan Trust Company, the Union Bank would be the possessor of real estate valued at more than $500,000. It is only a matter of time, say experts, when this can be disposed of and the proceeds paid out in depositors dividends.

Suits Against Stockholders to Collect a Million.

Suits now pending in the courts against the directors and stockholders are expected to add considerably to what the bank will have to pay off depositors. The stockholders will be sued to collect $1,000,000. This, it is asserted by authorities, can never be collected in full because of the fact that the bulk of the alleged stockholders were dummies. It is estimated, however, that the suits will result in the collection of several hundred thousand dollars. The former directors of the bank under David A. Sullivan are also being sued for $150,000, the value of a note signed by Sullivan on July 23, 1907, an dindorsed by the directors. The directors whose names appear on this note, and against whom suit has been instituted, are Henry Albers, E. E. Bogat, W. J. Buttling, James N. Brown, William C. Damron, Joseph Michaels, D. A. Sullivan as executor of the estate of E. B. Tompkins and William Strasser.

From these several sources the men now in charge of the liquidation expect to get enough to pay somewhere between 10 and 50 cents on a dollar to the depositors. When they will be able to do this they cannot tell. The reason why the Union Bank is in a position where it is absolutely certain that dollar for dollar cannot be paid, say the experts in charge of the liquidation, is the fact that deferred payments were made to depositors after the bank reopened and that really at that time the bank was not in a condition to pay any balances.

On the same day that the final deferred payment was declared the bank contracted for a loan of $500,000 and in paying the deferred balances even more than that was paid out.

GIVES SKIN FOR HER BROTHER

Five square inches of skin was grafted from the back of 12-year-old Alice Schulhoff of 1085 Washington avenue, The Bronx, in Bellevue Hospital, today, so that the girl's 4-year-old brother Winfred might recover from serious burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire which he had built in the back yard of his home on August 23 last. At te end of the operation, Dr. Cramp, assistant visiting surgeon, who performed the operation, announced it a success and said that both would be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

BENZINE ODOR AT A FIRE.

Fire which is believed to have been of incendiary origin broke out in the kitchen of the first floor flat at 1851 Sterling place this afternoon. It was soon put out. The flat was occupied by Joseph Knemeck. The battalion chief in charge of the fire fighters reporter to Fire Marshal Brophy that he noticed the fumes of benzine when he entered the lower flat.

ANOTHER WALKE VICTIM.

Death Toll of Destroyer Explosion Now Numbers Four.

Newport, R. I., October 2—E. B. Crawford, gunner's mate of the torpedo boat destroyer Patterson, died today from injuries sustained by the explosion of the steam chest on the destroyer Walke yesterday. Crawford's death was the fourth caused by the accident.

Lieutenant Donald P. Morrison was instantly killed, and of the eight injured J. W. Rumpf and H. L. Wilder died last night. Both were machinists' mates of the first class. Crawford was one of the umpires detailed to watch the speed test of the Walke. He leaves a widow in Philadelphia.

The condition of the others injured was regarded as hopeful.

"PASTOR" RUSSELL TAXED

He Is Assessed for $10,000 Personal for the First Time.

The name of Charles T. Russell, who is best known as "Pastor" Russell, appears for the first time this year in the personal tax books, his personal property being valued for purposes of taxation at $10,000.

"Pastor" Russell's residence property, at 122-124 Columbia Heights, is valued at $100,000, and the Tabernacle, in Hicks street, at $20,000.

The property was exempt last year, but when Pastor Russell erected a new building in the rear of his residence, President Purdy of the Tax Board raised the question whether or not it should be exempt under the ruling which exempts church parsonages and church holdings. The property is in the name of the People's Pulpit Association. The buildings at 122 and 124 Columbia Heights are two four-story brown-stone residences. The new building in their rear, on Furman street, has been described as the Bible and Sermon House, and it is there that much of Pastor Russell's printing work is done.

Pastor Russell has been notified that if he wishes to take an exception to the assessment he may appear before the board, and it will pass on his case.

The following notice was sent out today to all churches, clergymen and church officers in Brooklyn:

"In order to comply with the provisions of the Tax Law, Commissioner Wall asks that all trustees or officers of religious corporations desiring to have the benefit of the $2,000 allowed for parsonages, and $1,500 exemptions for clergy owning property in the Borough of Brooklyn, apply for the above reductions at the office of the Department, Room 16, Municipal Building, Brooklyn, before November 15 next."

W. R. WILCOX IS FOR TAFT

P. S. Commission's Chairman Will Not Follow His Secretary Into Progressive Ranks.

Charles W. Farnham, secretary to Chairman William R. Willcox of the Public Service Commission, resigned today to become one of the out-of-town managers of the campaign of Oscar S. Straus, Progressive candidate for Governor. Mr. Farnham's resignation was announced today.

Soon after it became known newspaper men talked to Chairman Willcox in regard to his political position, it being thought that in view of his secretary resigning to support the Bull Moose party, he might also have leanings that way.

He had this to say of his politics: "I admire Colonel Roosevelt greatly, and have the warmest personal regard for him. As you all know, the then President Roosevelt appointed me postmaster of New York City.

"However, although I am a progressive, I do not feel like following the Colonel out of the Republican party. I am not in sympathy with all of his policies. Particularly I am opposed to his proposition for the recall of judges. I am for Taft and Hedges.

"Without casting any reflections on other members of this Commission, I desire to say that it is my belief that members of this commission should stay out of politics. We are a quasi-judicial body, and for that reason should not enter politics at all.

"Because of this belief I have not been actively supporting President Taft, although I shall vote for him."

GOV. DIX NAMES B. F. YOAKUM

Albany, N. Y., October 2—B. F. Yoakum, the well-known writer on agricultural topics, and railroad man, was today appointed a director of the New York State School of Agriculture, on Long Island, by Governor Dix. Yoakum succeeds James Malcolm, deceased.

Mr. Yoakum is known from coast to coast. Beside being a predominant factor in the railroad world he has devoted much of his time to agriculture and has done much to encourage the present system of irrigation in the West. He is a hardworking, energetic business man, well informed on agricultural matters, and it is anticipated that his appointment will prove very effective in the growth of the new institution.

Mr. Yoakum has done much to encourage the converting into grazing lands of large tracts in Texas and has been largely instrumental in bringing about the present elaborate system of irrigation. He has constructed railroads through uninhabited districts in anticipation of settlers and the growth of the section near the Rio Grande, which is now covered with enormous cattle ranches, is attributed largely to his efforts.

He has one of the most beautiful residences on Long Island, near Farmingdale. His estates include more than seven hundred acres and include vast stretches of woodland and hills. From the latter are visible the villages and hamlets of Pine Lawn, Babylon, Lindenhurst, Amityville and Massapequa.

WESTERN MISSOURI STRONG FOR COLONEL

Progressives Claim Taft Has No Chance to Beat Moose Ticket There.

WILSON DUE TO CARRY STATE.

Colonel William R. Nelson Sizes Up the Situation From a Progressive Standpoint.

(Special Correspondence of The Eagle.)

Kansas City, Mo., September 30—Here on the Western edge of Missouri they scout the idea that Taft has a chance to run ahead of Roosevelt in the state of the houn' dog. They go further than that, and claim that Missouri will go for Roosevelt. "They" means the Progressives. In St. Louis they are somewhat meek and timid. Here they are militant, confident and possessed of an aggressive leadership that is lacking in the eastern part of the state.

The foremost Bull Moose in Missouri is Colonel William R. Nelson, the editor and owner of the Kansas City Star. He is the backbone and field leader of the third party in this state. Colonel Nelson believes that Roosevelt is going to win.

Colonel William R. Nelson Thinks Roosevelt Will Be Elected.

"In my opinion, Colonel Roosevelt will be elected," declared Colonel Nelson with emphasis to The Eagle correspondent. "The harness of the old parties is worn very lightly nowadays by the voters all over the United States. They are in the mood for a complete change. There is a Progressive spirit in this country which I believe will not be denied. Here in Missouri the people are for Roosevelt. We will carry this state for him, in my opinion. Every poll we have taken, every source of information upon which we can draw, indicates this. Mr. Taft is absolutely out of the question here."

It was suggested to Colonel Nelson that over in St. Louis there did not appear to be much confidence in Roosevelt's strength.

"St. Louis never does wake up until the day before election," he answered. "I know that they are not so well organized over there as we are here. They do not appreciate what is going on in this State. But they will learn. And it is going on elsewhere, too. I spent the summer in Massachusetts. Massachusetts will be carried by Roosevelt. Of that fact I am satisfied after a careful observation of the conditions in that state. I was in New York on my way homeward. I have no personal knowledge of the state of affairs in New York, but I did talk with one of the most prominent Democratic leaders in the state, a man actively identified with the organization, and who is well known outside of it. He told me that his party would make a grave mistake if it failed to recognize the great strength of the Progressive movement, and that in his opinion it was nothing to be whistled down the wind.

"The West is very strongly for Roosevelt. The new party is growing. It has a tremendous popular support behind it. I believe it has enough support to make Colonel Roosevelt the next President."

Colonel Nelson is in very close touch with the Progressive movement in this section, naturally. He was the original signer for Missouri, of the call for the convention of August 5, in Chicago. There is no doubt that this is the Bull Moose stronghold of the state; not the city, particularly, but the country that radiates eastward from it. Many business men in Kansas City have interested themselves actively in the new party, which is something that cannot be said of St. Louis. It is claimed here that polls show a majority of laboring men and mechanics for the Colonel, while it is generally admitted that he is going to receive a handsome vote among the farmers of Western Missouri.

Wilson's Lead in the State Is Obvious.

Whether all this will offset the apparent present weakness of the Progressive party in St. Louis and the Eastern part of the State there is no way of judging. Neither does it necessarily affect the very obvious lead which Woodrow Wilson now has in Missouri. His task still remains the comparatively simple one of holding fast what voting strength the Democratic party already possesses. There is nothing on the surface to show that Wilson will fall in this. On the other hand, there is nothing to indicate that he will materially build up the Democratic vote. The signs are that he will be a good normal vote-getter here, unless the Taft Republicans schould get it into their heads that Roosevelt had a chance; in which case there is no doubt that many of them would go straight over to the Democratic ticket.

Yet here, as in other neighboring States, the campaign managers of all those parties privately admit that there is a big vote which cannot be sized up with any great certainty. It is largely due to the fact that the Middle Western vote is far more widely diffused than that of the East. There are fewer votes to the square mile. The distances are greater and the people not so easy to reach. There is a generally conceded feeling of unrest, too. How it will manifest itself on election day remains a puzzle not likely to be solved until the counting of the votes begins.

What is going to happen in Missouri will not be decided by the voters of St. Louis on its Eastern border or of Kansas City on the Western edge, but by the folks who live on the broad stretches between and whose opinion cannot be easily learned. By all the political standards which can be applied, and they are those which arise from past experience, Wilson is due to carry this State. Yet the Progressive movement in Missouri is not so languid, viewed from the West, as it is from the East, while Mr. Taft distinctly suffers from an inspection of his chances in the same quarter.

BRAINERD.

POWERS ASK INDEMNITIES.

Washington, October 2—The six powers which have failed in the proposed international loan to China, have, upon the invitation of Russia, joined a conference to press for the payment of the $50,000,000 Boxer indemnities. The course of the United States has not been indicated.

WED IN LIFE'S AUTUMN.

Mrs. Mary E. Jones, 72 years old, of Hastings, Mich., was married last evening to Mark H. Woodruff, 64 years old, of 53 Harrison avenue. They were sweethearts forty years ago in Michigan, and each has been married and widowed twice since then.

An automobile containing eight persons rolled up to the front of the parsonage of the United Congregational Church, at 177 Penn street, at 7 o'clock last evening, and the party got out, the bride in white, and asked the Rev. Ulysses Grant Warren to marry the couple.

When the ceremony was over they reentered the automobile and saying that the honeymoon would be spent on a trip through the South, sped away. Mr. Woodruff was born in Albion, Mich., and Mrs. Woodruff in Kalamazoo. He is a furniture fitter by trade and is a foot and a half shorter than she is.

ONLY $4,500 RAISED FOR STRACHAN FUND

Testimonial of $100,000 for Woman Teacher Fails to Materialize.

MYSTERIES IN THE REPORT.

Curiosity Aroused Over Items in Treasurer's Account at Teachers Meeting.

EXPENSES OF WOMEN TEACHERS ASSOCIATION.
For "gifts"	$2,000
For "board and lodging"	200
For "transportation"	900
For legal expenses	2,500
For "rent of headquarters"	500
For "newspapers and publicity"	900
For banquet	7,000

It leaked out at a meeting of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, held in Manhattan, last night, that the proposed $100,000 testimonial to Miss Grace Strachan for her work in securing the passage of the equal pay bill, has not materialized. All that has been raised thus far is less than $4,500.

This fact was reported by the treasurer of the association. The submission of the report, by the way, was said to be most unusual, and the first time it had been read at such a meeting for years. Among many items that aroused the curiosity of the teachers was one for a trifle less than $4,500 for the testimonial to Miss Strachan.

According to the general understanding the $100,000 fund was to be made up by an assessment on the teachers. There was talk at the time of the school authorities stopping the movement and Superintendent Maxwell issued an order forbidding the teachers to make the contributions. Instead the vice president of the association, Miss Gano, levied an assessment on the teachers which most teachers understood was for the purpose of showing to Miss Strachan the appreciation of her associates for her work at Albany.

When Miss Strachan was asked today if the item of less than $4,500 represented all that had been raised of the $100,000 she replied that she could not discuss the matter. She said that last night's meeting was supposed to have been executive and that she could not discuss what took place there.

There was an air of mystery about much that was contained in the treasurer's report. Few knew what the items meant. Receipts and expenditures were bulked under general headings and no explanation of when and to whom payments had been made was given.

The teachers were told of gross receipts of $20,500 and of expenditures aggregating $14,900. The latter grouped such amounts as $900 under the heading "Transportation," $200 under an account "Board and Lodging," $2,900 under the heading "Gifts," and $900 for "Newspapers and Publicity." Other items of this kind included $2,500 for legal expenses and $500 for rent of headquarters. It was explained by one of the teachers, however, that the association paid Miss Strachan $500 a year for the use of her home for headquarters.

Neither this teacher nor others who were questioned could explain why the receipts from dues were shown to amount to only a little more than $10,000. Miss Strachan has always asserted that the association numbered more than 14,000 members. The dues are supposed to be $1 a year for each member.

Nor could any one be found at the meeting who could account for the "board and lodging," "transportation," "gifts," or "newspaper and publicity" items. The last named was said to have been a mysterious expenditure that no one really knew anything about.

In the report there was a complete failure to mention for whom the money had been expended for "board and lodging," or for "transportation," or "gifts." No one knew that these items signified as they appeared.

Miss Strachan Has Nothing to Say.

"I don't care to say anything about the items at all," said Miss Strachan this afternoon when asked whether or not she would like to explain some of these expenditures. "I don't see how any of the correct items could be made known, unless Miss Ennis or some of the others who did not get what they wanted at the meeting, should have seen to it that they became public.

"This was supposed to be an executive session, and I personally regard an executive session as meaning an executive session, and nothing else. But I do not feel called upon to explain any of the items. I have no desire to enter into any newspaper discussion and you must excuse me from it. Of course, I suppose those who were defeated in their aims last night will be glad to make any trouble that they can."

TEN CHILDREN BURNED.

Parents Watch Tragedy, but Are Powerless to Help.

St. Bernard, Quebec, October 2—Ten children were burned to death here today. They were the sons and daughters, ranging in age from 18 months to 15 years, of Alexander Gravel.

Gravel and his wife left their home last evening and returning early today found it in flames. They were unable to aid the children, whose deaths they witnessed. It is thought that an overturned lamp started the fire.

SULZER IN LEAD, METZ IS STRONG

Kings County Will Present Name of Former Controller.

NOMINATE TONIGHT.

OSBORNE MAKING TROUBLE.

Plans May Be Upset by Fight He Is Making at Every Turn.

(Special to The Eagle.)

Syracuse, October 2—The Democrats will nominate a candidate for Governor tonight. This is the programme agreed upon by the leaders this afternoon, and will go through, unless it is held up by the fight of Thomas Mott Osborne against the platform, Judge Parker and everything and everybody.

The head of the ticket will be selected before tomorrow morning. Congressman William Sulzer, former State Controller Martin H. Glynn and Herman A. Metz of Brooklyn are the three leading candidates.

Kings County will give Metz 69 votes on the first ballot. He is expected to gain strength on later ballots. McCooey has given up Dix and is advocating the nomination of Metz. A large number of candidates will be presented on the first ballot, and to that extent the convention will be "open." Osborne and his handful of "antis" are being bowled over at every turn.

Osborne held at the final meeting of the resolutions committee long after the time for the convention to assemble.

He was scathingly attacked and denounced by Congressman John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, in the open session of the committee for his "unfair tactics." The Tammany delegates adjourned their conference from 1 o'clock to 7 o'clock tonight.

Senator Harvey D. Ferris of Utica is in the lead for Lieutenant Governor.

Secretary of State Edward Lazansky of Brooklyn, is very angry at the development of the boom for Metz, as this is calculated to defeat him for Lieutenant Governor and may result in keeping him off the ticket entirely.

Among the candidates who are to be placed in nomination tonight are Lieutenant Governor, Thomas F. Conway, Senator Burd of Erie, Francis Burton Harrison of New York, Daniel Lockwood of Buffalo, and Governor John A. Dix, unless his expected withdrawal is received.

Justice Victor J. Dowling of New York is regarded as "out of it" and Justice Gerard is only looking in. Several ballots are expected and if any dark horse come up, the convention will probably last all night.

Sulzer and Metz are considered the most formidable candidates this afternoon. Murphy is expected to switch to whatever man shows the most strength, as he has not declared for any candidate.

Charles F. Murphy, on his return from an automobile ride this afternoon, asked that announcement be made that he favored the selection of a candidate for Governor tonight. He thinks that the people of Syracuse should be given a chance to see a "real live" convention in full blast and that the best time is for that is in the evening. Sulzer is far in the lead. From present indications and if this programme is to be followed he may get the nomination.

The programme today will not go forward without hitches. Alton B. Parker, the choice of organization through the majority of committee on permanent organization for permanent chairman, was expecting a fight when the convention assembled this afternoon. The anti-Murphy crowd led by Thomas Mot Osborne, agreed to place Mayor Sague of Poughkeepsie in nomination for the chairmanship against Parker. Stephen Ryan of Norwich, one of anti-Murphy leaders, said that he did not expect Parker to win, but that the fight would be made nevertheless.

Sulzer Looks Strong in an Open Convention.

So confused was the general situation today that none of the responsible leaders would assume to predict who the candidate would be. Sulzer's boom was the chief subject of discussion, and it was admitted that he had more shouters than anyone else. He has the best organized band of boomers in Syracuse, most of them the workers who have been gathered in the long series of campaigns he has made for the nomination for Governor. Augustus Thomas is to place Sulzer's name before the convention. Thomas is a very able speaker.

Surface indications point to Sulzer's nomination, if the convention is open. Some of the best informed Tammany men say that Murphy will be forced to exercise his power and block Sulzer. But experienced observers, while admitting the strength of the Sulzer sentiment say that they cannot believe that he will be selected. They say he is erratic, and might "queer" the campaign before it got well under way. However, a number of Tammany members of the Legislature who are candidates for re-election, are hoping that Sulzer will be nominated, because of his strength on the East Side.

Martin H. Glynn of Albany is being given serious consideration. He is backed by Patrick E. McCabe of Albany and the fact that he is an up-State man—

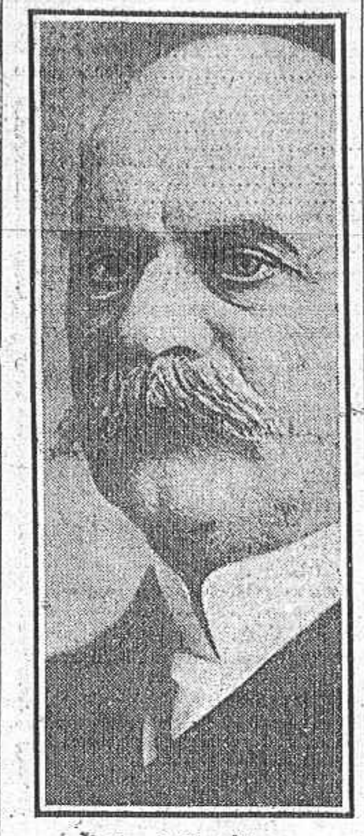

FIVE ARE ORDAINED AT M. P. CONFERENCE

MANY TOPICS DISCUSSED.

Case of the Rev. Emma E. Cairns Brings On a Very Warm and Lengthy Argument.

The teachings of Pastor Russell, Dowie and Mrs. Eddy were roundly scored last evening by the Rev. C. R. Blades, in the ordination sermon preached at the Conference of the M. P. Church, now being held at Grace Church, in Canarsie. "Russell," said Dr. Blades, together with others like him, attempts to get into the kingdom of God without paying the tariff. Christ does not need man's ideal. There are too many trying to smuggle in their ideas instead of accepting His.

Rev. S. F. Ackley,
President of Eastern Conference M. P. Church.

Their ideas are of men, are harmful and, according to the teaching of Scripture, are prompted by the devil."

Dr. Blades' address was delivered just prior to the ordination service which concluded the day's session of the conference. The church was filled with worshippers, and the adjoining chapel was thrown open to accommodate late arrivals. Five candidates for the ministry were ordained. They were the Revs. C. E. Vail, J. C. Bolton and S. S. Fritz of the Eastern Conference, and W. S. Dunn and W. I. Shoemaker from the New Jersey Conference. The service was peculiarly impressive. The candidates from the Eastern Conference were received first, the charge being read by the Rev. Samuel McLain. The Revs. F. W. Varney, Roby Day, T. C. Long, S. F. Ackley, president, and T. W. Smith, secretary of the Eastern Conference uniting in the laying on of hands.

Immediately after the first ordination the candidates from the New Jersey Conference were called forward and received their charge from the Rev. L. D. Stultz, D.D., president of their conference. Those who united in the laying on of hands were the Revs. C. D. Sinkinson, D.D., W. E. Pettitt, W. D. Stultz, A. E. Stouthers, secretary, and H. R. Blackwood.

Dr. Blades Preaches a Strong Sermon on Self-Denial.

The text of the evening was taken from St. Mark viii:34: "Whosoever will come after me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." Dr. Blades' handling of the comprehensive subject dealt entirely with self-denial and self-renunciation. No other teacher, no strange doctrine is necessary for the practice of either, was the purport of the message delivered by the preacher. Self must be lost in the identity of the master; and ministry, in the divine sense, is to be to souls not to self.

"The world today cares little for denominational lines or ecclesiastical association, but the world is waiting and ready to see Jesus' ideals lived in us. The world will make a big place for those who truly live according to the Master's ideals. Such people as Russell, Dowie and Mrs. Eddy are trying to smuggle in their ideals as a substitute, but the Gospel of the Prince of Peace is too glorious. The people will not have inferior food stuffs in a spiritual any more than in a material sense."

The afternoon session was enlivened by the determined stand taken by the supporters of the Rev. Emma E. Cairns to ascertain the exact position she is to hold in the conference in future. Miss Cairns was regularly ordained some years ago in the New Jersey Conference, but has so far not been received as a member of that conference. The discussion yesterday waxed decidedly warm at times and represented a great diversity of opinions. At the close of the afternoon session the conference was no nearer a decision than in the beginning and the matter was continued for settlement until today.

The New Jersey delegation had an especially interesting programme throughout the day. The committee on itinerancy and orders submitted a report that was accepted and the Rev. Herbert Lette was recommended to the president for work. At the meeting of the Preachers Aid Society the present officers were re-elected. Several important addresses were given in the afternoon, notably one by the Rev. T. H. Lewis, D.D., president of Westminster College, Westminster, Md., who expressed himself strongly against the Carnegie system of endowment. The system, he said, left the smaller institutions, that usually were greatly in need of assistance, completely shut out from the funds so generously bestowed upon colleges already largely endowed. He believed that there is a permanent need for religious schools, and that students in all schools and universities demand today fifty times more in an institution than they did fifty years ago. They will be satisfied with nothing but the best.

Great Need of Young Men for the Ministry.

Dr. Brown, secretary and treasurer of the Board of Ministerial Education, spoke of the great need of young men for the ministry and the financial help given by the board to deserving students. There is a great demand, he said, for trained and educated men in the ministry, and he called attention to the fact that less than 7 per cent. of the ministerial students come from State schools and less than 9 per cent. from non-denominational schools, which leaves 85 per cent. to come from denominational Christian institutions. His remarks were largely indorsed by the Rev. H. L. Ellerdice, D.D., of Westminster Theological College, who spoke of it as thoroughly orthodox and the only one in the M. P denomination.

In the Eastern Conference a report of the church extension work was received with favor and various other reports were presented and accepted. The Rev F. C. Klein, D.D., presented good will and fraternal greetings from many other conferences in the United States and in return was instructed to convey to them the greetings from the conference now assembled here. Especially interesting were the personal reminiscences and encouraging address delivered by the venerable Reuel Hanks, D.D.

The services today will conclude with the anniversary service for the Superannuated Preachers Aid Society this evening, and tomorrow much important business will be transacted.

GOING THE WHOLE LENGTH.

[From the Milwaukee Sentinel.]

Since Teddy admits that the people may also be wrong, why not favor a recall of the people? That would be going the whole length to the gates of paradise.

The Net By Rex Beach

BIG, buoyant, bracing, this new story surges along through stormy seas of excitement to its final anchorage in the placid depths of love. Yes, love is here—the strong, passionate love of a man for his heart's desire. Revenge is here—the hot, reeking revenge of the Sicilian Mafia. Corruption is here—political corruption which leads to riot. And through all these scenes of violence and bloodshed there flows a steady stream of the genuine Rex Beach humor—the humor of brilliant phrase and ludicrous situation.

Like his books of the lawless North, this new novel will quicken every heart that pumps red blood, and while in real life one does not care for overmuch slaughter, yet in fiction the guns boom softly, and we remember only the tenderness of the meetings of lovers as we close the book.

BRAND—THOMPSON.

A large number of friends of the bride and bridegroom were present Tuesday night at Nostrand Avenue M. E. Church to attend the wedding of Miss Maud A. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Thompson of 226 Monroe street and Robert P. Brand of 368 Quincy street. The bride, who is a teacher in the Sunday school at the church, wore white charmeuse trimmed with Chantilly lace and also with pearls loaned by an old friend who had worn them on her wedding day seventy-five years ago, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Florence L. Rackett of Greenpoint, who wore pink satin trimmed with lace, and carried a pink bouquet. Dr. Archibald F. Campbell, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, and Mr. Thompson gave his daughter away. Serving as ushers were Dr. H. W. King of Flushing, Wilber H. Thompson, a brother of the bride; Alfred E. Grand, a brother of the bridegroom; Harold L. Payne of Brooklyn, and Elmer H. Williams of Verona, N. J.

IN MEMORIAM.

HEALY—In fond remembrance of my dear sister, JOSEPHINE SPENCE HEALY, who died on October 14, 1905.

Her memory is as dear today
As in the hour she passed away.

PETERMAN—In fond and loving memory of my beloved wife and our dear mother, LOUISE PETERMAN, who died October 14, 1911.

One precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled,
The place made vacant in our home
Can nevermore be filled.
Our Father in His wisdom called,
The boon his love had given,
And though on earth the body lies,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

SCHELAND—In sad but loving memory of my dearly beloved wife, ANNA META SCHELAND, who departed this life October 14, 1911. Gone, but not forgotten.

CHARLES SCHELAND.

MOUNTED OFFICER ROBBERS' NEMESIS

Trails Them as They Take Watch and Purse From Sleeping Trolley Traveler.

RODE FOR BLOCKS BESIDE CAR

Then, With Aid of Brother Officer, He Caught the Holdup Men "With the Goods."

The spectacle of two men robbing an elderly fellow passenger on a Flatbush avenue car at 1:30 o'clock this morning was watched from the outside by Mounted Police Officer Albin Johnson of the Vanderveer Park station, who kept his horse galloping alongside the speeding trolley car, as the thieves drew out first a gold watch and then a pocketbook containing $37.

The victim of the brazen holdup was John McCarthy of 1856 Nostrand avenue, who is about 60 years old. He had fallen asleep on the side seat of the trolley car, and in that way had been carried past his getting-off place.

The only other passengers on the car were two young men. The conductor was checking up his books and counting his transfers on the rear platform, preparatory to leaving his car at the barn at Avenue N, near Flatbush avenue. The motorman knew nothing of what was going on inside the car.

Mounted Officer Johnson, who was on post, noticed, he says, that the two young men acted in a suspicious manner; that they were sitting a little too close to the older man, although there was nobody else in the car. He decided that it would be interesting to follow along, and, spurring his horse, he traveled with the car for several blocks, keeping in the shadow, but yet commanding a full view of the proceedings inside the car.

In the Flatbush avenue court today the officer was the complainant against the two men, who said they were Adolph Bieman and Ernest Brandeur, each 19 years old. Brandeur said he lived at 291 Bridge street, but his companion refused to give his address. Bieman waived examination and was held for the Grand Jury, while his companion was sent back to jail in default of $5,000 bail to await a further hearing before Magistrate Harris.

In court today the circumstances of the actual arrest were given by Johnson, as follows: When the car approached Avenue J, where the three Queen Anne cottages that are used as a temporary police station are located, Officer Johnson saw Lieutenant McCauley come out of the station house, having been relieved from duty.

Waving his arms, the mounted man signaled to his superior that he needed help, and that he wanted the trolley car stopped. Lieutenant McCauley then ran out to Flatbush avenue, stopped the car, and in a few seconds it was entered simultaneously by two officers with drawn revolvers. McCauley came in from the front and Officer Johnson from the rear.

McCarthy was stil slumbering peacefully, and his two fellow passengers had not noticed that they had been watched until they saw the guns of the two policemen staring them in the face.

"We had them dead to rights," chuckled Johnson today. "There was the sleeping victim, and there were the two prisoners with his property in their pockets."

Johnson said today he first observed one of the men pull out the sleeping man's gold watch, which was valued at $125, and after passing it to his confederate he took his knife and cut the aged man's pocket, and pulled out the pocketbook containing the $37.

McCarthy identified the gold watch on the spot, and the charge of highway robbery was made against the two young men.

MARBLE BUST FOR SCHOOL.

Holy Name Society Honors Memory of the Rev. Father Bettinger.

The members of the Holy Name Society of the Church of the Holy Family, Thirteenth street and Fourth avenue, yesterday afternoon gave to the church, through the Rev. F. X. Debold, the present rector, a beautiful marble bust of the late Father Bettinger, who, up to the time of his death, about a year ago, was pastor of Holy Family Church. The bust, which has been placed in the main corridor of the parochial school, was unveiled and presented by John J. Gallagher, president of the Holy Name Society, before the church full of men, all members of the society. James L. Lynam made the presentation address. At the conclusion of Father Debold's address of thanks, solemn benediction was given.

The Holy Name men then listened to an excellent talk by John J. Foote, past grand knight of Columbus Council, Knights of Columbus, in which he gave a detailed review of the Rev. Dr. Ryan's work "The Living Wage."

Mr. Foote said that there was a growing need for a lay apostalate and he felt that the Holy Name Society was the most fitted body to fill that vacancy.

Father Debold, in his address of acceptance, said that it was most gratifying to know that the men of the Holy Name Society had gone to such ends to perpetuate the name of their late rector. By placing the bust in the school it would remind the young children of their deceased pastor and in that way they would pray for him.

In connection with the unveiling services, the regular monthly meeting of the Holy Name Society was held. John J. Gallagher presided and Fred Rueckel recorded.

The Holy Name Society, it was resolved, will unite with the other church organizations for the annual parish euchre, which is to be held November 11, at Prospect Hall.

FAIR ENDS SUCCESSFULLY.

Receipts of Fete for Norwegian Orphanage Approximately $4,000.

Receipts amounting approximately to $4,000 was the encouraging statement given out at the close of the Norwegian fair, last evening, at the Imperial. Every night for the last week the attendance has been larger, if anything, than in previous years. Contributions have been added to the attractive booths daily and those working in the interest of the orphanage to be built as a result of their strenuous labors have felt incited to redoubled effort by the manifest general interest in the great undertaking.

Yesterday afternoon and evening the crowds were almost too great for comfort.

An artistic musical programme was furnished by Mme. Steen, soprano, accompanied at the piano by Professor Grays; Henry Mathisen, bass, and Arthur Werenskjould, violin, accompained at the piano by Miss Alice Christensen. Each of the soloists gave several numbers and a new Norsk composition was sung by Miss Steen with splendid effect.

By 11 o'clock every booth was practically dismantled, the drawing of the prizes was almost over, and those who have worked for the success of the fair already had visions of the beautiful home for Norwegian orphans for which ground will now without fail be broken in the spring.

NEW LEAGUE TO BOOM METZ.

Meyer Association Will Make a House-to-House Canvass.

Fifty members of the Henry F. Meyer Association met at their clubhouse, 59 Utica avenue, last night, and organized the Herman A. Metz League, to work in particular for the success of the former City Controller in his campaign to be Representative from the Tenth Congressional District, and to support the Democratic ticket generally. Plans have been made for a house-to-house canvass of the district and for a mass meeting to be held at the Meyer Association headquarters on Tuesday evening, October 22.

At the meeting of the organization last night, the following officers were elected: Joseph I. Gootlieb, president; Henry F. Meyers, vice president; Charles Schwartung, recording secretary; George Gottlieb, corresponding secretary; and Joseph Rapp, treasurer. The committee named to canvass the district are: John Gregory, William E. Williams, Irving Gottlieb, James E. Fletcher, D. Mathias, Fred Teegan, George Busch, Charles Albrecht, Peter Moses, Christopher Metzger, James H. Walsh, H. Manken, William Wynn, Otto Lilllenwall and J. McGee.

STRUGGLE FOR SECOND PLACE

Miss Osterheld Determined to Oust Caledonian Hospital in Opera Seat Contest.

There was considerable interest shown in the over-Sunday voting in The Eagle's Fifth Grand Opera Ticket Contest, but the position of the foremost candidates remained unchanged. The Caledonian Hospital now leads Dorothy Osterheld for second place by almost nine hundred votes, but the supporters of the little miss are determined to cut down the institution's advantage this week. Morjorie Lucas, in the struggle for fourth place, has a good lead over her rivals, the Rollhaus Twins and Martha Leiter, thanks to her huge vote of last Saturday.

But there were a number of changes made in the ranking of the contestants. The most notable of these were the advances of William Hinck to twenty-first and of the Holy Family Church to forty-fourth. The former succeeded in getting ahead of Marion Leopold and of Mrs. H. C. Doremus. And Margaret Beeching went up to thirty-eighth.

BEGINS THE SEVENTH YEAR.

Ethical Culture Society Again Opens Meetings in Academy of Music.

The Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture began its seventh year of meetings yesterday morning in its new quarters in the Academy of Music. The joy of the occasion was tempered by a profound regret at a recent loss. It was the first Sunday morning at which General Robert Avery, a trustee of the society, was not present, and the absence of the beloved and venerable soldier was felt keenly.

Dr. Henry Neumann, the leader, chose as his subject, "The World in Search of a Religion." As delegate to the Second International Moral Education Congress, held this summer at The Hague, he had come into touch with various phases of the world's present religious unrest. The congress, he declared, was a significant sign of the times. Fifty years ago it would have been scorned as an idle dream to suggest that Catholics, Calvinists, Free Thinkers, Ethical Culturists, Mohammedans, Hindus, Japanese, would have come together as they did here to pool their common experiences and to draw mutual help in their efforts for the moral nurture of the young.

Dr. Neumann said, among other things: "One of the most obvious tendencies today is the conviction, both within the church and outside of it, that organized religion has failed to live up to its responsibilities and its claims. What a standing challenge the hideous growth of prostitution presents! Or look at the constant menace of the war-cloud. It is no wonder that churchgoers in Germany are uneasy when they reflect that the military party finds an ally in the party of the church.

"Is America satisfied? What does it mean that while the old temples are losing their worshippers, new ones like the Salvation Army and Christian Socialism are building? These are attempts to bring religion into a daily service which its followers could not first find in the old forms. The Men and Religion Forward Movement was another expression of moral discontent. Its main emphasis was on social ethics. It enlisted the aid of persons like Miss Jane Addams, who are not members of any church, to stir the public conscience not to return to the old altars, but to clean streets, to improve tenements, to reform industrial conditions, to purify politics. The appeal was ethical and not theologic or religious in the old sense.

"The world's greatest religion has not yet been born. In every new discovery by an unchained intelligence, in every stroke to right a wrong, in every stretching of a hand to help the weaker, in every humble mite that our daily lives contribute to the treasury of human good, we can see a golden promise. To convert that promise into a conscious purpose is the aim which makes our fellowship a holy cause."

AUTOISTS SAVE GIRL FROM 5 ABDUCTORS

Glen Cove Party Witness Struggle of Italian Girl to Free Herself.

THREE MEN ESCAPE IN WOODS.

Other Two Captured by Dr. Ayer and Lieutenant Patton—Girl Escapes in the Excitement.

(Special to The Eagle.)

Mineola, L. I., October 14—A pretty Italian girl, about 16 years of age, was rescued from the hands of five men of her own race on the road leading from Roslyn to Mineola today, by the timely arrival of a party of automobilists, who witnessed her struggles to free herself and went to her aid. The girl was bruised and bleeding from a score of cuts and scratches when rescued and her clothing had been torn almost to shreds by the violence of the resistance she had made to her captors. Three of the latter escaped by darting into the thick foliage of woods that skirts the roadway at that point and the remaining two, caught after a chase, were turned over to the Mineola police.

During the excitement the girl herself escaped and the police are looking for her, as well as for the three men who got away in the woods.

The scene of the abduction was near that portion of the Italian settlement in South Roslyn known as Bull Head—a section made up principally of tumbledown shacks and leanto shanties. The surrounding country is wild and lonesome, overrun with woods and undergrowth.

Dr. J. C. Ayer of Glen Cove, with his brother-in-law, Lieutenant George S. Patton of Fort Meyer, Va.; Mrs. Ayer and Mrs. Patton, and the Misses Katherine Ayer and Ann Ruggles, were going today to see the naval review on the Hudson. The two men were leading in one automobile, while the four women occupied another car in the rear.

Party Sees Girl Struggling With Italians in a Wagon.

The party reached the lonesome stretch of road near Bull Head shortly before 9 a.m. and were proceeding without incident until a woman's terrified cries for help and the sound of a scuffle suddenly broke out ahead of them on the road. As the doctor's car rounded a turn he saw a wagon containing five Italians and the young girl, who was struggling with them. As the automobilists looked they saw her cast herself from the rapidly moving wagon, fall prostrate on the road and stagger to her feet again. She started to run, but one of the Italians with an oath sprang after her and seized her by the neck. Two of the others came to his assistance and after beating the girl with their fists they dragged her back to the wagon and lifted her in.

All the time they were ignorant, apparently, that the automobiles were near them, but when they got the girl back in the wagon again they discovered the machines and the horses were whipped to tehir top speed. Dr. Ayer put on additional power to overtake the wagon and was rapidly doing so when three of the men seeing the futility of their attempt to get away jumped out and made for the woods.

Two Who Remained Were Captured.

The two who were left continued to whip up the horses. Dr. Ayer shot the auto past them at a fash clip and turned it across the road ahead so that they could not get by. Then he and Lieutenant Patton jumped out and captured the two men as they came up. They questioned them sharply, but their prisoners remained stolidy defiant and refused to give them any information. The little girl was little better, for all she would say was that the men had tritd to take her away and had been trying to do so for some time. Dr. Ayer and Lieutenant Patton took the two Italians to their automobile and bade the girl follow them. When they reached their car and looked around for her she was gone.

In Mineola, where the Italians were given over to the police, they described themselves as Joseph Greia, 20, and Dan Rotta, 18, both of Bull Head. They said they were not trying to abduct the girl and were merely driving along about their business. They gave no satisfactory explanation of the girl's struggles, however. In the wagon they were driving were found a loaded shot-gun and a revolver. They were held in $1,000 bail each for an examination Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Charles R. Weeks.

Police were sent out to search the Italian quarters for the other three Italians and the girl.

ANOTHER WITBECK SETBACK.

Second Action in Reno to Secure Divorce Decree Held Up.

(Special to The Eagle.)

Reno, Nev., October 14—The attempts of Harold Y. Witbeck, a former Brooklyn soda water manufacturer, whose home is now in Millerton, N. Y., to secure a divorce from his wife, who was Florence Grogan of Halsey street, Brooklyn, have met another setback, because Justice Moran here wishes to learn the facts of a separation between the two before granting the decree. Witbeck has brought two actions in his endeavor to be freed, and his cases have been pending since early last June.

The complaint made by Witbeck charges that his wife deserted him on March 13, 1911. They were married in February, 1909. He asserted he had given his wife half of all the money he possessed at the time she left him. He stated that it was a large amount, but failed to say just what it was.

The cause for the holding up of Witbeck's divorce decree is that he professes ignorance of an action for separation alleged to have been begun by his wife in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., following her leaving him in 1911. The basis she gave for the action charged extreme cruelty. Witbeck said he did not know whether or not this suit was still pending. He asserted that he had tried repeatedly to get his wife to return to him.

REDFIELD IN WASHINGTON.

Eagle Bureau,
609 Fourteenth street.

Washington, October 14—Representative William C. Redfield of Brooklyn, is in Washington today. Mr. Redfield stopped off on his way from Pittsburg where he has been making campaign speeches in behalf of Woodrow Wilson. He was present at the hearing before the Senate Committee investigating campaign expenditures this afternoon. Mr. Redfield expects to leave Washington on Thursday for Wilmington, Del., where he will make a political speech.

ARCHBOLD MUST ANSWER.

John D. Archibold, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was served with an order today to show cause to the Supreme Court in Manhattan, on October 17, why he should not obey a subpoena recently served on him demanding his presence at the hearings in the Standard Oil-Waters-Pierce litigation. Mr. Archbold was subpoened the day he returned from Europe but did not put in an appearance at the hearing.

FLEET MAY DELAY FERRY.

Dock Commissioner Calvin Tomkins, called attention today to the fact that there may be an interruption in the ferry service between St. George and Manhattan during the passing out of the fleet to sea tomorrow afternoon.

"PASTOR" RUSSELL'S TOUR EXPOSED

JUST "SIGHTSEEING" JOURNEY.

Got Admissions From "Pastor" Himself, He Met but One Missionary on Entire Jaunt.

An expose of the "investigation" of foreign missions by "Pastor" Russell during his record-breaking trip "around the world" in 107 days, is contained in this week's Continent, the official organ of the Presbyterian Church. The article, which is by William T. Ellis, declares that the "investigation" was no investigation at all and that Russell merely "made a short, quick sight-seeing journey around the world."

To back up this assertion the Continent says that the "Pastor" stopped off only a few hours in the countries he was supposed to be "investigating" and that he travelled by the same ship "clear from San Francisco to Hongkong." Before writing his expose Ellis called on Russell and quizzed him about the trip. Speaking of this Ellis writes:

"Russell met no missionaries—so he admitted to me—except Dr. Spencer of the Methodist mission, Tokyo, with whom he held no discussion concerning missions, and Secretary George Lerrigo of the Y. M. C. A., Canton. Russell did not visit mission compounds (except the Methodist compound in Tokyo) and he did not seek the views of representative men on the ground, native and foreign, concerning missions.

"Russell's knowledge of missions is still, as it always has been, a negligible quantity.

"Moreover, his journey was so hurried that he did not even remember the names of the principal cities on the route of "the grand tour" which he took. I had to supply him with the names of the points at which he touched in the East—which was easy, since in all Asia, except for his little detour to Southwest India, he visited only the cities through which any tourist agent would route a conventional traveler. When on shore, Russell was primarily engaged in delivering speeches for which his advance agent had arranged."

"Pastor" Admitted He Was in Japan Only When Ship Touched Ports.

After telling of a talk with the "Pastor" at the Bethel, in Brooklyn, Ellis continues:

"When we got down to the alleged tour of investigation of missions, and I had set Russell to rummaging in his notebooks for facts (apparently he kept a diary chiefly of his own speaking engagements), he informed me that the expedition left San Francisco on the Shinyo Maru on December 3, stopping a few hours in Honolulu en route to Yokohama, and Japan was not reached until December 31. There was considerable sparring before I got my host, who began the interview with such apparent candor, to admit that he was in Japan only so long as his ship touched the ports. He had told me that he had "spent about a week in Japan," and he said he took ship for China at "Nippon." "Nippon" means "Japan," and there is no such city; when I suggested that he probably meant Nagasaki he assented. Starting in at Tokyo, I asked for the names of missionaries whom he had met. Only Dr. Spencer, and he was not sponsor for any opinions expressed. Relentlessly I pursued him through the cities of Japan that tourists always traverse when going overland to connect with their ship at Kobe or Nagasaki. He explained that it really was not missionaries that he wanted to see and investigate, but missions.

"Very well, had he seen—— And I enumerated the principal missions (he apparently had never even heard of Doshisha, in Kyoto, much less of the Meiji Gakuin in Tokyo) in the cities he had visited. He had not seen one of them. Driven into a corner, he protested that I misunderstood him, for it was not exactly missionaries or missions that he was investigating, but the attitude of the native peoples toward these!

"Investigation" Could Be Riddled by Any Schoolboy.

"Blandly, I began to name representative Japanese. Of course he had called in Count Okuma, and Mayor Ozaki, and the Imperial University professors, and the newspaper editors? He had not. At least he had seen the American ambassador, or some of the American consuls? Not one of them. After I had pursued the 'pastor' through all the ports of Japan, China and India that he had touched—he had met Lerrigo of the Young Men's Christian Association at Canton (I knew George Lerrigo, and what his views of Russell's theology would be, and I await his opinion of the 'investigation') and the American consul at Madras—it was apparent that the 'investigation' could be riddled by any schoolboy who had studied world geography.

"Russell seemed eager to show that in Shanghai his feet were on solid ground (all of China that he saw was during one day spent in Shanghai, and one in Canton!), for there he was in the hands of 'the niece of the American minister, Mr. Barchett.' As delicately as possible in the circumstances I informed him that the American minister lives in Peking. Told that there is a consul general at Shanghai, he jumped at the suggestion. Mr. Barchett was perhaps consul general, and not minister.

"Was he sure of the name Barchett? Yes—after consulting the notebook—that was the name. But our consul general is Dr. Amos P. Wilder, a former newspaper man, and an intelligent advocate of foreign missions, who had he been given a chance at the Russell party, could have put more facts into their 'report' than they seem to have gathered in a tour round the world. Nor was his predecessor Dr. Barchett, nor any of his predecessors. Dr. Stephen P. Barchet, for many years a Baptist medical missionary in China, near the close of his long life served as interpreter in the American consulates at Hankow and Shanghai, and for a time was vice consul at Shanghai. He died in 1905."

HITS RUSSELL DOCTRINE.

Rev. Wallace Radcliffe Attacks "Pastor" for Refusing Divinity to Christ.

Eagle Bureau,
608 Fourteenth Street.

Washington, October 14—A sermon preached at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, here, yesterday, by its pastor, the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, contained a severe arraignment of "Pastor Russell," who, according to Dr. Radcliffe, "dishonors Christ, refusing Him divinity."

Dr. Radcliffe formerly resided in Pittsburg and is familiar with the career of Pastor Russell in that city. The subject of the sermon was "Recent Mistakes About Hell."

"It is a mistake," said Dr. Radcliffe, "to exchange the orthodox definitions for the assertions of cheap scholarship or vaporings of weak sentimentality. The church is confronted today with a revamping of worn out theories in the persistent preaching of 'millenial dawn,' also known as 'Brooklyn Tabernacle' and 'International Bible Students Association,' whose leader calls himself 'Pastor Russell.'

"It's teacher was a haberdasher in Pittsburg. The court adjudged to his wife a separation, with alimony, for causes which caused the ungodly to laugh—a rather singular training for a Christian apostle. His success is a triumph of printer's ink. He claims to have found a long lost key to Scripture. He pushes aside all past scholarship. The divine command, 'Search the Scriptures,' means only 'Listen to Russell.'"

WATRISS IS COUNTY ATTORNEY

North Hempstead Man Named by Nassau Supervisors for $3,000 Job.

Mineola, L. I., October 14—The Board of Supervisors at the meeting here today appointed Frederick N. Watriss county attorney of Nassau County, at a salary of $3,000 per year. He succeeds Henry P. Keith, Democratic county leader, who resigned several months ago.

Mr. Watriss is widely known and is a resident of North Hempstead. He is a member of the Meadowbrook Club and was defeated several years ago when a Democratic candidate for the Assembly.

WORKED TWO NAMES ON CITY

Benedetto Left Police, Under Charges, Got in Fire Department.

The discovery was made today that Rocco Benedetto, one of the forty-five whom Police Commissioner Cropsey refused to appoint as a policeman, and whom Commissioner Waldo did appoint, and who afterward resigned from the department under charges, was appointed as a probationary fireman in the Fire Department ten weeks ago under the name of Michael J. Benedetto.

Benedetto succeeded in getting on two lists of the Civil Service at about the same time, under different names. It was brought out at the last hearing before the Curran committee that Benedetto got out of the Police Department after charges had been preferred against him for clubbing a man who had complained to him that he had been robbed in a Thompson street dive. Another charge against Benedetto was made by his captain, Dominick Henry, for being off post at a time when a robbery was committed in a laundry at 16 University place.

When Fire Commissioner Johnson heard that Rocco Benedetto and Michael J. Benedetto were one and the same he sent for Captain Henry, who identified Michael J. as Rocco, the ex-policeman.

Commissioner Johnson took the matter up with the Corporation Counsel, who advised him that inasmuch as Benedetto had violated no rule of the Fire Department his status as a fireman could not be disturbed, but he will be dropped from the Fire Department as soon as his probationary period is up, which will be in two weeks.

AFRO-AMERICAN NOTES.

The Rev. George Frazier Miller, D.D., rector of St. Augustine's P. E. Church, spoke to the women of this borough at the vesper services of the Young Women's Christian Association, 112 Lexington avenue, yesterday, at 4 o'clock. The meeting was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

The Rev. Dr. W. A. Alexander of the Siloam Presbyterian Church talked to a large gathering of men at the Carlton Branch Young Men's Christian Association at 4:30 o'clock, yesterday.

The children's entertainment for the rally of the church will be given at Bridge Street Church tomorrow evening.

The Rev. W. H. Mixon, D.D., a presiding elder of the African M. E. Church of Selma, Ala., one of the leading A. M. E. preachers in the South, and who made the opening prayer at the Progressive convention in Chicago, is now in this city, filling engagements for the Progressive party. He spoke to large audiences in Manhattan on Friday night and in Jersey City on Saturday night, preaching in Bridge Street Church last evening. This week he will fill engagements in Connecticut and Boston, and will probably go to Pennsylvania and Maryland next week.

Dr. Mixon urges members of his race and the people throughout New York to work, support and vote for Oscar S. Straus, whom he describes as a Hebrew—a friend to all mankind.

Dr. Mixon preached to a large audience last evening in Bridge Street Church on "Inter-Dependence," from Ecclesiastes iv:10, and if possible he is to preach on Sunday afternoon at the $2,000 rally.

O'KEEFFE SUBMITS BRIDGE PLAZA PLAN

Outlines Broad Scheme for Improving Approach to Williamsburg Bridge.

COST WOULD BE SLIGHT.

Part of Big General Plan for Beautifying Approaches to All the East River Bridges.

Bridge Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keeffe today made public his scheme of treatment for the Brooklyn plaza of the Williamsburg Bridge, the last of the series of plans prepared by him for the approaches of the four great East River bridges.

The Williamsburg Bridge, Brooklyn approach, he points out, could be developed as planned, for less than any of the other bridge approaches. Its cost would be but a fraction of the sums to be spent on either end of the Brooklyn and Manhattan Bridge approaches. Not one foot of land would have to be acquired, he pointed out, and the change in the railroad tracks proposed would all have to be carried out by the railroads themselves.

A request for an appropriation for this work will be embodied in Mr. O'Keeffe's corporate stock budget demand for the coming year.

Commissioner O'Keeffe's plans as outlined by himself to the members of the City Planning Committee at the Brooklyn Club last night occasioned the greatest enthusiasm and he received general congratulations on what he has already accomplished and proposes to accomplish in developing the great bridges under his charge.

Work on Manhattan Bridge Approaches to Be Started in Two Weeks.

Work on the Manhattan approach of the Manhattan Bridge will be started with the letting of contracts for the building of retaining walls in about two weeks. This improvement will be a striking one and will cost $800,000. A considerable portion of the money for the improvement at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge has already been granted and the remainder will be voted soon, it is expected.

The next thing then in order, Commissioner O'Keeffe indicated today, would be the Brooklyn approach to the Brooklyn Bridge. He has already taken definite steps toward this improvement by causing the removal of the Bridge Department supply and repair shops from under the Brooklyn Bridge to the river front.

Commissioner O'Keeffe's statement on the proposed improvement of the Williamsburg Bridge approach and description of the plan is as follows:

Description of the Proposed Plans for Williamsburg Bridge Approach.

"The accompanying plan for the reconstruction of the Brooklyn terminal of the Williamsburg Bridge has been prepared under the direction of Arthur J. O'Keeffe, Commissioner of Bridges, and will, if carried out, certainly change the barren waste of cobblestones and trolley tracks now occupying that plaza into a delightful park and convenient trolley stations for the cars operating over the bridge.

"The southerly half of the Plaza, through which the present overhead connection between the bridge and the elevated tracks at Havemeyer street passes, has, in the plan, been devoted to street car operations and ample station facilities. Looking toward the bridge, the trolley cars of the Brooklyn companies operating on the streets of Brooklyn turn off from the bridge approach just east of New street at the entrance to the bridge and join the tracks of the respective companies under the elevated tracks on Broadway, from which tracks they are switched off on to their various routes through Brooklyn. Cars from the Brooklyn surface lines enter the Plaza in the vicinity of Roebling street and run parallel with and just south of the elevated tracks across the Plaza. In addition to this there is a connection, not shown in the picture, from the junction of Havemeyer street and Broadway which runs under the elevated tracks across the Plaza, joining the tracks across the bridge at New street.

"In other words, cars of the Brooklyn lines are at once taken off of the plaza and operated on the street. The cars in the bridge loop service turn back on the plaza at the station shown in the upper part of the plaza, just south of the elevated tracks. This station has ample facilities for loading or unloading four cars at a time. It has a sheltered platform, a small waiting room, where tickets are purchased, and is designed to be constructed as a low attractive station. The station shown at the junction between the elevated roads will be operated by the Third avenue line, and has ample facilities for loading or unloading five cars at a time. This will also be constructed from a low design, and can be made attractive from the viewpoint of the passenger, and is easy of access. It will be fenced in so that passengers pass through the station and on to a covered platform, where they can take the cars. In the immediate foreground and just north of the elevated tracks is shown the station for the Metropolitan cars. This consists of a long shed where seven cars can load or upload. The unloading facilities are very good, as passengers getting off of these cars can pass out through gates and into the park, or by an underpass be delivered directly at the corner of Havemeyer street and Broadway. Passengers for these trolley cars will pass through a ticket house and small waiting room shown in the foreground, under the trolley tracks, and on a covered platform, where they will take the cars. In general the trolley arrangement is inclosed with a neat fence which will tend to make the operation of cars safe for pedestrians. In addition to this, there is a subway provided for pedestrians in the line of Roebling street, which will be of sufficient width for all future traffic passing across the plaza, and it has entrances covered with awnings. The remaining half (or a little more than half) of the plaza on the northerly side, has been turned into a park, with paths so arranged that they lead to the subway under the tracks on Roebling street, and a direct walk across the park. An attempt has been made by the Bridge Department in the plan to make this park an attractive feature, and if carried out will greatly add to the character of the locality and make a breathing spot in this congested district that should be appreciated by everybody who has occasion to pass through it.

"This study completes the development of the various plazas of the large East River bridges which has been undertaken by the Department of Bridges, and if they could be carried out would certainly put these bridges in a class with the treatment that is accorded to like spaces in European countries, where the artistic features are so much thought of, and also in accord with the present-day movement in the city to combine beauty and utility in making public improvements."

BE SURE TO GET FRIDAY'S EAGLE.

AN entire page will be devoted to a remarkable series of photographs of the Poly Prep and Adelphi Academy football players who will meet on the gridiron at Washington Park in their big invitation game. The pictures are unique and show the best players of the two elevens in action.

NEW WILLIAMSBURG BRIDGE PLAZA, AS PROPOSED BY COMMISSIONER O'KEEFFE

COLLECTOR TRIES SUICIDE

Because, after nine years' faithful service as collector for the Charles J. Dunne wholesale butcher shop, 802 Flatbush avenue, he was accused by the manager, Emil Van Rhee, of the larceny of $371, William Pipper, 34 years old, of 426 Seventeenth street, South Brooklyn, walked into Prospect Park this morning, and when he got to the boat house, at the edge of the lake, drank a large quantity of muriatic acid.

Pipper is now a prisoner in the Kings County Hospital, where, it is said, he will probably die. The man selected as the time for the attempt on his life within a few minutes of the hour that he had been given to make good the amount he was accused of taking.

Van Rhee told Pipper yesterday morning that he would give him until 10 o'clock today to raise the money, but if he failed to do so he would be turned over to the police.

It was a few minutes after 10 this morning when Patrolman Mitchell, standing at the Willink entrance to the park, saw a man stagger toward him, making motions that he had taken poison and had thrown the bottle in the lake. As he approached the officer the man fell unconscious. Mitchell sent for an ambulance from the Kings County Hospital and Dr. Mann responded. Then it was learned who the man was.

At the hospital Pipper was revived long enough to give the reason for his act. He then lapsed into a coma again, and his recovery is doubtful.

When Van Rhee heard of his employe's act he at once went to the Flatbush Court and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Pipper on a charge of grand larceny, and if the man recovers he will have to answer this charge as well as one of attempted suicide.

Van Rhee is the manager of the butcher store for the estate of the late Charles J. Dunne, and in all the years that Pipper had acted as collector, collecting large sums of money each day, he had never been suspected as being dishonest until recently.

DOESN'T HATE OYSTERS NOW

If you had never eateen an oyster in your life, and at last, being tempted, tasted one, and found in it a large, fine, brilliant pearl, what would be your future attitude toward the succulent bivalves?

If you can think this out you can communicate with Dr. D. M. McCarthy of 350 Rugby road, one of the prominent physicians of Flatbush. Dr. McCarthy, after a lifetime advising patients against eating oysters, ate his first one last night.

As he tasted it, his tooth hit something hard and round, and a moment later he held up to the view of the diners at the fair of the Roman Catholic Church of the Holy Innocents, the shining pearl.

The jewel is to be mounted and will be raffled off later at the fair. Dr. McCarthy was dining with Father Costello of the church, when the pearl was discovered.

The fair is to continue in the church at the corner of Beverley road and East Eighteenth street until the 20th of the month.

It is only fair to say that after the finding of the pearl the attitude of the professional man toward the maligned oyster underwent a great change. Toward the end of the evening he had almost become a convert to the eating of oysters. But here professional duty and pride clash with curiosity, and no one can tell what the result will be.

It is also to be presumed that the chef at the fair will have his hands full filling orders for "oysters in every style."

JOHN C. COLLIER DEAD.

Was a Brother of the Late Peter F. Collier.

John C. Collier, brother of the late Peter F. Collier, the publisher, was found dead last night in a furnished room he had occupied for the past five months, at 113 West 117th street, Manhattan. He was last seen alive about 11 o'clock Tuesday night.

As Mrs. Rosalie Bennington, the landlord of the house, heard or saw nothing of him all day yesterday, she became alarmed, and sent a servant to call him. Getting no response, the door was forced open. Mr. Collier was found lying dead on the floor, partly dressed. His death was the result of internal hemorrhage.

Mr. Collier was about 55 years of age, and was a widower, leaving a son. It was understood he had but little income besides $15 weekly given him under the will of his brother, Peter F. Collier.

PASTOR AULD CALLED TO PHILADELPHIA

Assistant to Dr. Cadman Asked to Accept Pastorate of Calvary Presbyterian Church There.

HE IS EXPECTED TO ACCEPT.

At a meeting of the congregation of Calvary Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, last evening, the Rev. William Muir Auld, of this borough, assistant to the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, was unanimously called to the pastorate. He received telephonic notification last night and the formal call will follow.

Calvary Church is situated in one of the most beautiful locations in Philadelphia, at Locust street and Rittenhouse Square. It has a property valued at $250,000 and the edifice is most attractive. It is understood that the salary to be paid to the pastor will be $6,000 a year, with the use of a parsonage.

Mr. Auld said today that he had not reached any decision, and would not do so until he had consulted with the officers of Central Church, to whom, he said, the call to him was undoubtedly due, and wit Dr. Cadman, to whom he owed more than he could ever explain. It is safe to say, however, that Mr. Auld will accept. He has preached twice in the church, and the elders were unanimous in recommending him as pastor.

A provisional arrangement has been made for a farewell service to Mr. Auld, which will be held on Sunday, December 8. The arrangements for Mr. Auld to preach for Dr. Cadman on the Sunday named were made before there was any idea of a call to Philadelphia, as Dr. Cadman will be at Amherst College on that day. But it will be turned into a farewell service if Mr. Auld decides to accept, and he will then preach his farewell sermon.

The pulpit of Calvary Church in Philadelphia has been vacant for two years, since the death of the Rev. Dr. Sparhawk Jones, who was one of the noted preachers in the Presbyterian denomination, and the church is in the front rank in the State of Pennsylvania. The committee has been at work ever since Dr. Jones' death in looking about for a pastor. Many names have been considered, and it is very flattering to Mr. Auld that the choice has fallen upon him. He has been at Central Church almost two years to the day, has taken a deep hold upon the affections of the people and a high place in the ministerial force of Brooklyn. His wife came here from Scotland nearly two years ago, and she and Mr. Auld were married by Dr. Cadman.

Dr. Cadman said, with reference to Mr. Auld's call, that of course Central Church would be extremely reluctant to lose his services should he decide to go. Dr. Cadman also said that it was a very unusual honor for a man who was not yet 29 years old to be called to this important pulpit in which one of the greatest preachers in America had for a long time been a distinguished figure.

"But," said Dr. Cadman, "whatever Mr. Auld's decision may be, I am perfectly sure that he will be fully equal to the duties of any such pastorate, whenever he chooses to assume them. I do not care to be free in prediction, for the pulpit contains many unfulfilled prophecies, but I am convinced that Mr. Auld's ministry will in time become a national asset, and Central Church is very proud of having introduced so able and accomplished a scholar and preacher to the ranks of the American ministry."

AN ANNIVERSARY DINNER.

The Church of the Nativity, Ocean avenue and Avenue F, will give an eleventh anniversary dinner tonight. The eleventh anniversary will be observed appropriately at the Sunday services, the choir presenting special music. The new pipe organ is not expected to be ready for the opening recital before Thanksgiving.

"There are now over 14,000 sick and wounded soldiers here. Cholera seems to be increasing fast. Much sickness and destitution among the many thousand refugees."

TREASURER OF U. S. RESIGNS HIS OFFICE

Act Will Create Remarkable Situation Through Counting of Government's Money.

WILL TAKE THREE MONTHS.

When McClung's Successor Retires March 4 New Count Must Be Made of Nation's Wealth.

Washington, November 14—Announcement of the resignation of Lee McClung as treasurer of the United States was made by President Taft today. Mr. McClung tendered his resignation to the President at a conference at the executive mansion this morning, and its acceptance was later announced by the President from the executive offices, with the explanation that Mr. McClung resigned voluntarily. It is believed that Carmi Thompson, now private secretary to the President, will succeed him.

Mr. McClung's resignation becomes effective as soon as his successor is appointed. The treasurer declined to discuss his retirement in any way today, but it was rumored that his resignation came as the result of continued friction with Secretary MacVeagh.

Mr. McClung was one of the treasury officials named by Assistant Secretary A. Piatt Andrew, as having been in continued controversy with the Secretary of the Treasury, when Mr. Andrew, in a letter accompanying his resignation, declared that the secretary and his associates were not in harmony.

Mr. McClung held a two-hour conference with Secretary MacVeagh, at the latter's home, yesterday, and it is understood the result of that conference was the offer of his resignation to President Taft today.

He was appointed Treasurer of the United States November 1, 1909. Before that Mr. McClung, who was a noted Yale football star, had been identified with the Southern Railway, and from 1904 to 1909 had been treasurer of Yale University.

The appointment of Carmi Thompson to succeed him would be followed, it is believed, by the immediate return of Charles D. Hilles to the White House as secretary to the President. It has been understood in Washington, since Mr. Hilles became chairman of the Republican National Committee, that the President hoped to reinstate him at the White House after election.

The resignation of Mr. McClung means that the money and securities for which the tressury is responsible must be actually counted and receipted for. This will be the greatest single financial transaction in the history of the world. When Mr. McClung assumed the duties of treasurer he gave a receipt to his predecessor for $1,260,134,946.88 2-3.

This was the largest single transaction from man to man on record. While the exact amount of the treasurer's fund is not known, it is expected that it will exceed those figures by many millions. The two-thirds of a cent included in Mr. McClung's receipt to his predecessor was due to a fraction in one of the Tennessee State bonds for which the treasurer is trustee.

It will require probably three months to count the money and securities. This creates a remarkable situation because, presuming that Mr. McClung's successor will retire on the 4th of March with their incoming of Woodrow Wilson, the count must be made all over again for the new treasurer.

While responsible for over a billion dollars, the treasurer of the United States receives a salary of $8,000 and is bonded for only $150,000.

HYLAN HEARS FROM 'RAFFLES'

"He" Is a Woman, and a Joker Judge Thinks.

When Magistrate John F. Hylan reached the Coney Island Court this morning and started to open his mail he came across a special delivery letter. Upon opening it, he found a four page epistle signed "Raffles." The writing was a woman's, and the note set forth that when William Farren of Cropsey avenue and Bay Twenty-fourth street was held yesterday without bail for the Grand Jury charged with having held up five persons, two of them young girls, the magistrate held the wrong man.

Several features of the letter made the magistrate smile. One was: "As the song goes, 'I'm the guy' who is to blame for the holdups;" another, "I am ashamed of myself for robbing the two girls, and enclose 11 cents, which I hope you will return to them. If you are still in doubt of the innocence of Farren, I am going on another rampage tonight, and then you can find that I am the one who did the other holdups. Of course, some of the people identified Farren as the guilty man." Then, speaking of one of the witnesses in particular, the letter goes on: "His nose is so long that it impedes his eyesight. The other witnesses were just excited."

The magistrate took the letter as a huge joke, and turned the 11 cents over to Mrs. Hughes, the probation officer, with instructions to see that the two girls who lost that amount, Elizabeth McCormack of 1575 Eighty-second street and Alice Lafern of 1851 Seventy-second street, get the money.

"PASTOR" RUSSELL FOLLOWER IN TOILS

Adelbert S. Hart Was "Immersed" in Bethel but Got Drunk Just the Same.

MADE ATTACK ON FATHER.

Mother Saves Hart From Jail, but He Is Placed on Year's Probation.

Adelbert S. Hart, a follower of "Pastor" Russell, was today charged with intoxication in the Gates avenue court and placed on probation by Magistrate Geismar for one year. Hart, is 43 years old, married, a member of a well-to-do and respectable family living at 323 Putnam avenue. His father, Adelbert L. Hart, it was said, favored having him sent to jail, but Mrs. Hart, the mother, saved him.

Hart was arrested a few nights ago near his home, where it was said today that he had made an attack upon his father, who was saved by a man who threw the son to the ground and held him by the throat until police aid could be summoned. When Hart was arraigned in court the next day L. Victor Fleckles, probation officers, was asked to make an investigation. Officer Fleckles submitted his report today and Magistrate Geismar was so impressed that he read aloud a part of it and questioned Hart about his past life.

"Some time ago he became a convert to the teachings of 'Pastor' Russell," said Magistrate Geismar, reading from the report, "was immersed in that church and got very drunk two weeks afterwards."

"So you were converted in 'Pastor' Russell's church?" asked the court.

"Not converted, your honor," answered Hart.

"Were you not converted in the Bethel?" interjected Officer Fleckles, addressing Hart.

"No, sir, I was not converted," replied Hart.

"But you told me you were immersed," contradicted Fleckles.

"Yes, I was immersed. But there is a difference between being immersed and being converted," said Hart.

"Well, I find you guilty of being intoxicated, at any rate," said the Court, "and I will place you on probation for one year."

"In addition to getting drunk, he is arrogant, ill-natured, and when under the influence of liquor very abusive," continued the Court, reading from the report, "and has threatened to shoot his father on several occasions. He is egotistical, and thinks he is very learned because he has delved into philosophy. His parents are estimable people, but they do not feel that they can longer have him at their home. He contended that they owe him a living."

"Hart, I fear you have gone so far with the use of liquor that you have no reasoning power, are not able to think logically, and are semi-insane," said Magistrate Geismar, laying aside the report and addressing Hart directly. "I advise you to follow the rules laid down by Mr. Fleckles very closely. We want to help you, but much depends upon yourself."

Hart has a wife living in New Haven. He is well educated, and was at one time instructor in the Peekskill Military Academy. He resigned that position to go to the Spanish-American War. He won a lieutenancy, and after the war in Cuba ended became a member of a regiment stationed in the West. He is said to have acquired a thirst for drink when in Cuba.

BROOKLYN STUDENT QUITS.

Resigns as Editor When College Paper Suspends Temporarily.

Boston, November 14—Various reports are current among the students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology regarding the cause of the temporary suspension of the publication of the daily paper, the Tech, which was accompanied by the resignations of the managing editor and Ernest W. Mann of Brooklyn, the athletic editor.

Those who are all informed as to the conditions assert that the paper is not in straightened financial circumstances and that the whole trouble arises from a lack of undergraduate support. The business manager of the paper says that publication will soon be resumed. The institute committee is to hold a special executive meeting to consider the situation.

MISSION WORKERS CONCLUDE SESSIONS

FINANCES ARE DISCUSSED.

Members of the general committee of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions who attended the supper given in honor of the Finance Commission last evening at the Aldine Club, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, Manhattan, pronounced the occasion a veritable love feast. Unquestionably it was most inspiring and satisfying spiritually as well as in a material sense. The most powerful addresses that have been delivered throughout the week were made there by Bishop Earl Cranston of Washington, D. C.; S. Earl Taylor, corresponding secretary; Dr. Thomas Nicholson, secretary of the Board of Education; Dr. Ward Olatt, secretary of the Board of Home Missions, and Bishop Luther B. Wilson. Bishop Joseph F. Berry, according to his own definition, was an ideal chairman because he did not make a speech himself.

Fully 400 guests were present. The supper was given under the joint auspices of the committee of arrangements for the general committee, the general committee of home missions and church extension, and a Manhattan co-operating committee. The object was to place before bishops, editors, secretaries, committee members, leading pastors and laymen the new work involved in the appointment of the Commission on Finance by the last General Conference.

"The Development and Outlook for the Commission on Finance" was discussed by Bishop Cranston.

"The commission," he said, "understands that it has authority in the matter of appropriations and is to make them only after assembling all the facts pertaining thereto. We feel that we have some interest in the plans if we are to co-operate. The object of the commission is not to multiply the various boards in the church if it can be avoided. The budget plan has been communicated to local churches. For years the matter of a publication has been considered which should take the place of the many which now seem so much like rivalry and nothing has elicited more general satisfaction. This commission should become," said the bishop, in conclusion, "a mount of vision from which some one will catch a redeemed vision for our methods. It is an opportunity for the Spirit of God to move once more upon the waste of potential energies which repose in Methodism."

S. Earl Taylor's outline of the "Definite Plans Projected by the Commission" was most comprehensive and convincing. He explained the four distinct lines upon which the appropriations would be based—that of property values, ministerial support, membership and benevolence. Back of it, he stated, was a sound business principle. "The Commission of Finance," said Mr. Taylor, "will conduct a campaign of Christian stewardship the like of which our church has not seen in years. For years there has been no constitutional teaching of stewardship. Now pastors must preach sermons on the subject of stewardship and the methods of it if they want to be orthodox. The time has come to stop duplicating expenses. We have had an example of it when money was spent on two publications that did not do the business. It matters not whether it is advocate, leaflet or magazine, but one thing it must be which will set before the world not a portion but all of our work. The Commission on Finance will have a programme to offer local churches which will help if not entirely do away with friction. The apportionment as planned will make a 2½ cent offering a week from each church member be sufficient for the whole five boards. The rule of prayer, consecration, preparation and investigation will be followed carefully. The commission will know what is happening in each parish. How many are giving and how many are not. It will have a constructive plan. The secretaries of the Board of Home Missions have been with the secretaries of this board this week and the foreign missionary secretaries will go to Newark, N. J., to the meeting of the home missions board in order to come into better touch with one another and members of all boards will meet at Madison, N. J., for further consultation, and prayers for help in this great, united work."

"How the commission will affect the boards" was explained by Dr. Nicholson. "It might be injurious," said he, "if it were wrongly interpreted as a whale swallowing all the little fish, or as a new organization, with new officers and new expenses. If that were true, then better had it never been heard of. But if it shall be made a cause of increased efficiency, and creates no offices and no expenses unless it can do so with a large saving elsewhere, it will affect every board beneficially."

Dr. Platt told how the local church would be affected by the Commission. "We will have," said he, "no longer the danger of extortion on the part of the local board, but a composite picture—a well-balanced benevolent budget that each church member may place over against his own liabilities and obligations, his probable year's income and how much is due the budget."

The closing address, by Bishop Wilson, president of the Board of Foreign Missions, was most powerful. He said:

"It is a matter of the profoundest significance that this Commission on Finance has been established. We do not need to be reminded that wealth in this day has its redemptive value. There is no previous age in which money has played so great a part in the real uplift of humanity. The United Methodism now before us offers real leadership. Methodism may for once present itself to the world a blessed picture of unity in response to that leadership. A safe leadership in securing wealth for the kingdom of God. We are all ready to approve anything that appeals to reason, and no one will oppose anything that might affect the strength and success of those plans. In the midst of a dying world here is our opportunity to make more effective than ever before our plans for the extension of the kingdom of God."

All formal business of the Sessions was concluded at Simpson Church by 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the meeting permanently adjourned. Two important addresses were made. Bishop McDowell and Bishop Wilson spoke upon the need of the African mission.

The committee on courtesies, represented by R. J. Cooke, extended a resolution of thanks to all who had contributed to the entertainment of the general committee and had in any way assisted to make its meeting a success. A memoir to Bishop Henry White Warren, late Bishop of Denver, Col., was read by Dr. M. V. Kelley, the presiding officer at the session, being the successor of the late Bishop Warren, Bishop F. J. McConnell.

An appeal was extended to all Methodist people in behalf of Bulgaria. It said in part: "The General Committee on Foreign Missions, moved by the urgent appeal that comes from Bulgaria through Bishop Nuelsen, calls upon the whole church to aid immediately in mitigating the sufferings of a brave and oppressed people. To Bulgaria, where our missionaries have labored for more than fifty years, to our people there, as well as to others, we should send speedy and abundant supplies. We cannot be deaf to the cry of humanity. Let us give of our abundance and demonstrate our love and gratitude to God, the source of all blessings, by our love and practical sympathy for suffering humanity."

As a result of the appeals made at the morning session the balance of the money unappropriated, amounting to $5,680, was appropriated to the African missions. Appropriations were also made as follows: To China, $163,819; to Japan, $65,061; to Korea, $39,922; to India, $191,286; to Malaysia, $49,528;; to Europe, $169,839; to South America, $100,860; to Mexico, $60,496; to Africa, $47,269.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary report, submitted by Mrs. C. W. Barnes, secretary, showed a total raised of $778,492.

NEWS OF THE ATHLETES.

Columbia, Fordham and the New York University are the principal contenders in the one-mile intercollegiate relay race at the games of the Brooklyn postoffice clerks and Forty-seventh Regiment A. A., in the latter's armory on Saturday evening, November 23. Columbia, with two wins to her credit has the handsome Wanamaker trophy within her grasp. Bernie Weefers says that the Blue and White will put the final touches to the race on that night, and win the trophy.

The Xavier Club of Manhattan will hold its twenty-fourth annual entertainment and reception on Monday night. The affair will take place at Terrace Garden, Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue, Manhattan.

The charges of professionalism made against Howard P. Drew, the wonderful little colored sprinter from the Springfield High School, who will run at the games of the Twenty-third Regiment next Saturday night, have fallen flat. W. J. Kane of Springfield, Mass., whose name was signed to the letter addressed to the Amateur Athletic Union, accusing Drew of asking for money in return for his services, has declared that the letter was written by an imposter, and that he has the highest personal regard for Drew's standing as an amateur.

TRAGEDY IN CHICAGO HOTEL.

Woman Found With Head Crushed by Hammer—Companion Missing.

Chicago, November 15—A woman about 40 years old, well dressed and of refined appearance, was found with her head crushed by a hammer in a room in a downtown hotel by police here last night. She is expected to die. She came to the hotel in the afternoon with a man who registered as "George Remee and wife, Detroit, Mich."

The man left the hotel without being seen by employes.

The police today had been unable to find any trace of "Remee." From the size of the clothing found in his suitcase in the room he is believed to be a big man. Shirt collars of 17½ size were found and the underwear was for a man of large stature.

PRACTICAL TALKS ON CHRISTIAN WORK

RAPS "PASTOR" RUSSELL.

Dr. Edward Lincoln Smith Says the Recall Is a Public Nuisance.

The fall meeting of the New York City Association of Congregational Churches, which was held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Park Slope Congregational Church, Eighth avenue and Second street, was marked by two practical addresses by Christian workers, the Rev. Dr. Edward Lincoln Smith, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and the Rev. Dr. Ira J. Lansing, who was one of the leading spirits in the recent Men and Religion Forward Movement.

In the absence of the president, Professor John B. Clark, who was ill, the Rev. William Dana Sweet of Westchester, vice president, presided. The devotional service which preceded the business session was led by the Rev. James A. McCague of Bethany Church, Manhattan, after which the Rev. Dr. Robert W. McLaughlin, pastor of the Park Slope Congregational Church, welcomed the delegates.

The business meeting included reports from the treasurer and executive committees. In the latter report two churches, the First Congregational Church of Chappaqua, N. Y., and the Finnish Congregational Church of Brooklyn, made application for membership in the association and were accepted. A nominating committee was also appointed to prepare a list of delegates to the National Council at Kansas City, Mo. For the systematic benevolence committee, the Rev. Lewis T. Reed spoke of the work this committee had done in connection with this system and the consequent gain it had brought about in the benevolences throughout the State. Thirty of the sixty churches, he said, had adopted the principle and he hoped that many of the others would do so this year because of the increased benefits to be derived from its use. A. Gardiner Cooper, of the board of trustees of the New York Congregational Home for the Aged, also told the delegates about the work of this institution and what is planned for it in the future in the way of a new building.

Dr. Smith gave an interesting account of his experiences in the State of Washington as home missionary, and incidentally corrected some of the false impressions people in the East seem to have regarding Washington and the Far West in General.

Dr. Smith also took occasion to speak about the recall which has been in force in Seattle for several years. "The recall," he said, "is a public nuisance. It is not an instrument for good government, and it is impossible to get good, strong men in office so long as they have to spend all of their time and salary trying to defend themselves in office. We shall have baser men rather than better men in office wherever the recall is in force."

Dr. Lansing followed Dr. Smith with an address on "The Spirituality of Social Service." Spirituality, he said, is not what "Pastor" Russell does, putting his trash in print and presenting all sorts of nonsense in an attractive way; nor is it segregation, as monasticism, nor quiescence, nor incessant and unintelligible babbling; but spirituality, he said, consists in love of God and of one's neighbor, to be of great social service and to have a great unselfish love.

People do not know waat love is, he said, for a great passion sweeps them into matrimony and 40,000 divorces tell how little they know about it. To be Christian, Dr. Lansing said, it would be better by far to fight the milk trust and obtain pure milk for dying and sick babies instead of sympathizing after they are dead and gone and sending flowers, or to go to Albany and fight the unjust factory and tenement laws to save mothers and girls who are forced to work in them and to die before their time. Active social service, he said, consists in active love, not in something passive.

Following the devotional service in the evening, conducted by the Rev. William Muir Auld of the Central Congregational Church, there was a brief discussion on the report of the committee on polity by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson and Elijah R. Kennedy. This was followed by a general discussion and adjournment. Between the sessions supper was served to the delegates by the women of Park Church.

SUSPICIOUS FIRES.

Marshal Brophy Investigating Two Occurring in the Eastern District.

Fire Marshal Brophy is making an investigation into the cause of three suspicious fires which kept the firemen of the Eastern District busy at an early hour this morning. At 2 o'clock Policeman Young of the Bedford avenue station discovered a fire in a four story brick double tenement at 94 North First street, and an hour later another blaze was discovered at 108 Berry street, in a building of the same description as the first. In both cases the firemen extinguished the blaze with little damage.

At 5 o'clock the firemen were again summoned to attend a blaze at 80 Sanford street. In this case more apparent evidence of incendiarism was discovered. The hall and stairs were saturated with kerosene. Policeman Mineman reported the suspicious circumstances and an investigation is now being made.

DEAN RICHARDSON WINS.

Woman's Suit Against Brooklyn Law School Head Dismissed.

Supreme Court Justice Scudder today dismissed the complaint on the pleadings in the action brought by Jennie May Derick against Dean Richardson of the Brooklyn Law School, to recover $5,024, which, according to the plaintiff, she had intrusted to Richardson for investment.

PLEASANTS—BAKER.

Sag Harbor, L. I., November 15—The marriage of Lawrence P. Pleasants and Miss Ruth Baker announced yesterday, comes as a surprise to the many friends of the young couple. Miss Baker is one of the belles of Amagansett. She had been visiting in Geneva, N. Y., and was joined in Manhattan early in the week by Mr. Pleasants, who made the trip into the city by automobile.

Mr. Pleasants is paymaster of the gun barge E. W. Bliss, and his family occupies a cottage in the fashionable summer colony section of North Haven, across the bridge from Sag Harbor.

J. W. MASTERS WINS VERDICT.

A jury before Justice Scudder today awarded a verdict of $7,700 in favor of Joseph W. Masters, a Customs House broker and commodore of the Belle Harbor Yacht Club, against the estate of the late Jacob Fromme, brother of ex-Register Isaac Fromme of New York County. Fromme died in July, 1910. At one time the plaintiff and Fromme were in partnership as revenue attorneys in Manhattan. The suit was over a stock transaction. Lawyer Franklin Taylor represented Masters.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Charles Moran, 25 years old, who gives his address as 528 Court street, was arraigned in the Butler street court this morning on a charge of felonious assault. The police say he has served five years in the penitentiary on charges of assault and robbery, and larceny, and also eighteen months in Elmira for burglary.

The complainant against Moran is Philip O'Dell, of 195 Bush street. He claims in his affidavit that Moran and two other men, who are at present unknown to the police, attacked him as he was going into his stable, at 213 Bush street, on November 12. He received several blows on the head, and claims that the men used the butts of revolvers, and also a lead pipe, wound about with a piece of wire.

O'Dell's principal witness is Thomas Charlie, a young West Indian boy, who is employed by O'Dell, and who sleeps in the stable. Hearing the cries, as the fight outside continued, Charlie rushed out and he claims identified Moran as one he has seen hanging about the premises for some time. Moran struck him in the face, he says, and knocked him down, and after that the three assailants ran away. On the ground the police found a revolver which they believe belonged to one of the other men and may be the means of tracing him. O'Dell had $38 in bills in his pocket, but it was not taken from him. Moran was held without bail.

BLAME FOR RAILROAD WRECK.

Bridgeport, Conn., November 15—Coroner John J. Phelan, in his finding on the wreck of the Springfield express on the New Haven Railroad in Westport on October 3, made public today, in which seven persons were killed, finds the dead engineer, George Clark, criminally responsible for the death of Jessie Hamilton Ransom, one of the passengers killed, and finds concurring responsibility on the part of the New Haven Railroad for allowing an unsafe crossover at that point.

Austria and Servia lies in the presentation by the Servian minister of an official complaint alleging that the Austrian consul at Prisrend fired from the top of his house at the Servian troops when they captured the town.

The Austrian Foreign Office has promised to investigate the case, but at the same time called attention to the protests of foreign consuls at Uskup against the action of the Servian military authorities in hindering them in the exercise of their official duties.

It is believed in Vienna that the Austrian consul at Prisrend was defending some Albanians, numbers of whom are alleged to have been shot by the Servians for concealing arms and abusing Servian soldiers.

There is reason to believe, according to dispatches from Belgrade, that Servia while not positively rejecting the Austrian representations on the subject of seaports will not submit a satisfactory reply. The situation in this respect is regarded by some diplomats as very serious.

A dispatch to the Times from Antivari, Montenegro, dated Friday, says that the villages of Demoratch, Kutchi, Drgotchi, and the Tabaki quarter of Scutari, near the citadel, have been burned.

The correspondent adds that General Vukotitch's division is expected to come through the Mirdite country tomorrow evening to join the force of Crown Prince Danilo and General Lazovich before Scutari.

The Matin's Adrianople correspondent got out a message from the beleagured city which is printed this morning. The message, which is without date, says General Chukri Pasha is determined to resist to the last man. The General's attitude during the fight of November 8, the correspondent describes as most heroic.

"He remained standing motionless, field glass to his eyes, midst a storm of shot and shell, encouraging his men forward," says the correspondent. 'Don't be afraid of the smoke and dust,' the general said.

"The correspondent of the same paper before Adrianople says the observations taken by the aviators during trips across the city show that the military and civil authorities and the inhabitants are completely demoralized. Food is rare and the Turks are beginning to kill treat the Christians, whom they reproach as being useless mouths to feed. Several thousand non-combatants were ordered to leave the city, but the Bulgarian outpost refused to let them pass and sent them back."

RELIGION BARS ADOPTION

County Judge Fawcett denied this morning the application of Herman A. Korte of 18 McKinley avenue to adopt two children whom he has been keeping for eight years. The application was due to the objections of the New York Foundling Hospital, which maintained that the children would not receive proper religious instruction.

Mr. and Mrs. Korte, having no children, went to the orphan asylum in 1904 and took Alexander Pell, then a small baby. The next year they went again, and took Mary E. Corvoran to raise. Both children came to believe that the Kortes were their natural parents.

In 1911 the wife, Mary E. Korte, died. About the same time Korte applied to the orphanage to obtain permission to legally adopt the children. They refused the permission, on the ground, they said, that they were not being brought up in the Catholic faith, as Korte had agreed to do in case he should want to adopt them.

Korte applied to the County Court. In his application he admitted that he was not a member of any church, and although he believed in the teachings of the Bible, he was a free thinker. In their affidavit opposing him the asylum authorities said they had investigated the home of the Kortes, and that the children were becoming atheists. In deciding in favor of the asylum, Judge Fawcett said:

"The court is of the opinion that under the circumstances of this case the hospital stands in loco parentis. Its surrender of the child in each case was conditioned upon its being brought up in the Roman Catholic faith, and not an absolute surrender as would deprive it of that relationship. I am constrained to hold, therefore, that the consent of the hospital is necessary in this case.

"I would suggest that both parties to this controversy attempt further conferences. Let the petitioner set aside for the time being his own religious convictions or the lack of them, and place the children under Catholic teaching and religious training for a period of six months as a trial, and perhaps at the end of that time the respondent will find it possible to consent to the proposed adoption and the application may then be renewed."

HART AGAIN ESCAPES JAIL

"Pastor" Russell Follower This Time Wrote Insulting Letter.

"Pastor" Russell's unconverted follower, Adelbert S. Hart, who was placed on probation for one year by Magistrate Geismar, in the Gates avenue police court, on Thursday, when he was arraigned for intoxication, was up again today and narrowly escaped going to jail.

Robert S. Hart of 167 Nichols avenue, an uncle of "Pastor" Russell's unconverted, aided in securing his arrest the other day. Hart was considerably peeved at this and even though he was paroled the following morning, after being warned by Magistrate Geismar to be good, he couldn't refrain from trying to get back at the uncle.

So immediately after he was paroled in the custody of Probation Officer L. Victor Fleckles, he laid in wait in front of his uncle's house. But he didn't encounter his relative, and yesterday he sent him a letter, saying uncomplimentary things about him and referring to him as "a valet to a dog." The magistrate was about to impose a jail sentence when Fleckles informed the court that the stigma of having her son sent to jail would hurt Hart's mother more than it would the prodigal. Thereupon Magistrate Geismar relented and allowed Hart to go on parole.

CAPT. EVERDELL DIES IN HIS 78TH YEAR

DEMISE DUE TO HEART DISEASE

Was for Half a Century a Member and Officer of the Seventh Regiment.

Captain Henry Everdell, who was for fifty years a member of the Fourth Company of the Seventh Regiment, and who represented the second generation of the family in continuous service in the same company since, 1823, died yesterday at his home, 13 Alice Court, of heart failure. He survived his brother, Colonel William Everdell, who was one of the founders of the Twenty-third Regiment, only ten days, and his death is thought to have been hastened by the shock of Colonel Everdell's death.

Although he retired from business six years ago and was in his seventy-eighth year, Captain Everdell was seemingly in the best of health up to the moment of his death. He came downstairs to breakfast at his home yesterday and passed away while reading the morning paper. His son, Franklin E. Everdell, had greeted his father a moment before, and noticed nothing wrong. When he glanced at him again, his father had fallen asleep in his chair.

The story of Captain Everdell's life is almost the history of the Seventh Regiment. His father, William Everdell, joined the Fourth Company of the regiment in 1823, seventeen years after the organization came into existence. There were ten children in the senior Everdell's family and all the sons joined the State militia organizations. Four of them joined their father in the same company in the Seventh Regiment during the fifties, and Henry, who was the youngest son, became a member of the company on March 3, 1856.

Two of his brothers later left the original company to found Company Six, when the Seventh, then a battalion, was formed into a regiment; but the youngest son stayed on with the old Fourth Company, which is designated now as Company D. He went to the war with the company in '61, '62 and '63. The regiment was ordered out of service in 1863 and came back to New York in time to aid in quelling the draft riots.

Served With Distinction in the Civil War.

The youngest Everdell went to the war as a lieutenant and came back a captain. He found a curious situation awaiting him on his return to New York. Although he was at the time serving his country, he had been drafted nevertheless. After three years of service, he was unable to go away again, as his family had increased and he found it necessary to get to work for them. Because of the mistake that had been made in drafting him while he was at the seat of war he had to secure a substitute and paid $300 to get released.

On account of this Captain Everdell was out of the Seventh for two years and when he returned to it again he went in as a private. He later became quartermaster of his old company, the Fourth, and continued in the post for more than twenty years until his retirement. He received his honorable discharge in June, 1906. The regiment presented him with a silver officer's sword in token of its appreciation of his long service. He was also the possessor of the diamond service medal for twenty-five years of duty.

When Captain Everdell retired it was with the brevet rank of lieutenant. The second of his two sons had joined him in 1901, in the old company in which an Everdell had been represented in direct descent since 1823 and he was given the post with which his father had been identified for so long. The son, Franklin E., is still the quartermaster of the Fourth Company.

Born on January 26, 1835.

Captain Everdell was born on January 26, 1835. The family lived in William street, Manhattan, which was then in the fashionable residence section of New York. He was married on November 30, 1857, to Mary Harrison Ewbank, who survives him. Their children were Alfred E., Franklin E. and Catherine E., all of whom are living. They lived in Manhattan until eleven years ago, when they made their home in the Alice Court house.

The first business of Captain Everdell was with his father in the firm of William Everdell & Sons, engravers and printers, at 101 Fulton street, Manhattan. From there he founded the Everdell Press, with his oldest son, at 83 Malden lane. He continued in this business until 1906, when the firm was dissolved.

Captain Everdell was a member of Lafayette Post No. 140, G. A. R.; of the New England Society and of the Veteran Association of the Seventh Regiment.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence, 13 Olive court, at 2 o'clock tomorrow evening. The Rev. Frank M. Townley of St. Bartholomew's Church will officiate. Interment will be in the family plot in Greenwood Cemetery on Monday morning.

ANOTHER DEMOCRATIC SENATOR

Boise, Idaho, November 16—Governor Hawley's decision to accept appointment as United States Senator at the hands of Lieutenant Governor Sweetser came only after he was assured by prominent Republican and Democratic leaders that it was their desire that he take the office. Among those who formally asked him to accept the office was Republican State Chairman Day. Hawley is a Democrat and Sweetser a Republican.

TESTIMONY ALL IN AT GUNMEN'S TRIAL

Summing Up by the Lawyers Will Begin Next Monday Morning.

GOFF'S JURY CHARGE TUESDAY

Rather unexpectedly former Magistrate Wahle, counsel for the four gunmen on trial before Justice Goff in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court in Manhattan, rested the defense this afternoon. Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss rested for the State at 1:20 o'clock and immediately Mr. Wahle, to the surprise of all, announced that he was prepared to sum up.

Justice Goff then adjourned court until 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, when Mr. Wahle will begin his three-hour address to the jury. He will be followed by Mr. Moss, for the prosecution, and with Justice Goff delivering his charge the following morning, the jury will be deliberating on its verdict by Tuesday afternoon.

The last sordid recitals of the underworld in which the gunmen accused of the murder of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, lived and moved, were presented in the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court, in Manhattan, before Justice Goff, today.

The skilled defence put in by "Dago Frank," "Lefty" Louie, "Gyp the Blood" and "Whitey" Lewis had made it necessary for the State to call many witnesses in rebuttal.

Sam Schepps, "Bridgey" Weber, who is known as "the richest gambler in New York" and Harry Vallon, were called to that stand to refute the testimony of the gangsters that Weber and Vallon were the actual slayers of Rosenthal, and that the shooting was "framed up" on the four gunmen.

Mr. Moss called as his first witness Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, who testified to conversations with "Dago Frank" at Police Headquarters on July 26 and August 2, in which "Dago Frank's" statements did not agree in some details with his own story on the witness stand.

Mr. Dougherty also testified that Mrs. Kydd had told him she did not see the shooting of Rosenthal. Mrs. Kydd's own testimony, as given yesterday afternoon, was that she did see the shooting.

"Bridgey" Webber was the next witness. It was his first appearance. He testified that he was a gambler, with a poker room at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue.

Testifying about the night of the shooting, he was asked:

"Did you shoot Herman Rosenthal?"

"No," replied Webber, in a low voice.

"Did you see the shooting?"

"I did not."

The dapper, slight Webbber testified that the gangsters were in his gambling resort on the night of the murder, but he denied absolutely that there had been any conversation in the resort about "framing up" Jack Zelig, as the defendants swore there had been.

Webber testified that before the four defendants left the place he himself told them that Rosenthal was at the Metropole, and that the four gangsters then left.

Webber's voice was so low that it was barely above a whisper. He told about having gone with the gangsters on one occasion to the Lafayette Baths to hunt for "Jack" Rose, and of having seen several of them on another occasion at the Cafe Beaux Arts.

Webber Contradicts the Testimony of Mrs. Kydd.

Webber testified that on November 11 Mrs. Kydd, the defence's witness, visited the West Side Prison, where Webber and Vallon were confined, that he talked with her, and that she said she had come there for the purpose of identifying Webber and Vallon. This contradicted the testimony of Mrs. Kydd.

On cross-examination, Webber said that he had in the past conducted an opium joint.

Webber denied that he had ever heard any conversation between the gangsters and "Jack" Rose about the killing of Rosenthal.

Webber told of hearing a conversation at the Metropole with Rosenthal on the night of the shooting. He said he left his own place about ten minutes after the gangsters did. He admitted to Mr. Wasle that when he told Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, at police headquarters, that he knew nothing about the killing of Rosenthal, he had made a false statement.

Harry Vallon was next called to testify. Mr. Moss brought the man who, the gangsters swore, took part in the killing of Rosenthal with Webber, right down to the night of the shooting and went over in orderly sequence the train of events from the time of the arrival of the gangsters at Webber's to the moment of the shooting.

Like Webber, Vallon denied without qualification that Rose had said anything about bringing of the four defendants downtown for the purpose of praying to them that he had taken no hand in "framing up" Jack Zelig.

"Now, I ask you," said Mr. Moss, walking closer and speaking very slowly, "did you shoot Herman Rosenthal?"

"No, sir," was the firm and direct reply.

"Did you see anyone shoot Rosenthal?"

"I did not."

In cross-examination Mr. Wahle asked: "You were on West Forty-third street on the morning of July 16?"

"I was in front of the Elks Club when I heard the shots."

"Was that the first time you were on West Forty-third street that morning?"

MEYER HELD IN $1,000 BAIL.

Leonard Meyer, who drove the big automobile which killed four-year-old Robert Kropp at noon time yesterday at the corner of Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street, was held this morning in $1,000 bail for a further hearing by Magistrate McGuire in the Fifth avenue court.

Meyer, who lives at 132 East Fiftieth street, is a salesman for Henry Trechard of 252 Ocean Parkway, who owns the automobile which killed the boy.

FREIGHT HITS DERAILED CARS.

Milford, Conn., November 16—The Portland Express was derailed, probably by a spreading switch, here this morning.

After the passengers had alighted an extra freight running west on the next inward track ripped out the sides of four derailed coaches. No passenger was hurt so far as known save possibly from a shaking up.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles F. Bingham.

Mrs. Charls F. Bingham of Buffalo, well known in Palm Beach, where she and her husband have for several winters occupied one of the cottages on the sea front, died Thursday night at her home there, and the remains will be taken to Buffalo, N. Y., her city home. The state of Mrs Bingham's health made it necessary for her to pass the whole winter in a warm climate, and the Binghams resided at Palm Beach from November to May each year. Mrs. Bingham was prominent in society in Buffalo and was well known to many in Brooklyn.

Kate M. Spencer.

Kate M. Spencer, wife of Sylvester A. Spencer of 36 Brooklyn avenue, died there Thursday. Mrs. Spencer was born in Massachusetts and had been a resident of the Bedford District for over forty-five years. She had been in poor health for two years. She is survived by a son, Charles J., of Rockville Centre, L. I., and three daughters, Mrs. Ernest L. Spencer of Elmira, N. Y.; Mrs. William Cotter, and Miss Laura I. of Brooklyn, and a brother, John Long, of Lafayette, Col., and a sister, Mrs. Nellie Wilson of Rochester, N. Y. A requiem mass will be said at the Church of Our Lady of Victory at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Interment in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Richard O. Cheney.

Richard Otis Cheney, silk manufacturer and railroad executive, died Thursday at his home, Oak Hill, South Manchester, Conn. He was seventy-one years old and was a member of the firm of Cheney Brothers, silk manufacturers, of Manhattan. He was president and general manager of the South Manchester Railroad and a member of the Fisher's Island Game Club, the Hartford Club and the Republican and Transportation clubs of New York. Mr. Cheney is survived by his widow and four children.

Dr. David H. Carroll.

Dr. David H. Carroll, a leading financier of Baltimore, died there yesterday from Bright's disease. He was born in Baltimore seventy-two years ago and for several years was a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Dickinson College, his alma mater. Impaired health compelled him to give up active work in the ministry in 1872. Ten years later he engaged in business, and at the time of his death was President of the National City Bank and of the Consolidated Cotton Duck Company. He also was president of the Trustees of the American University at Washington, D. C., and a trustee of Dickinson College.

Matilda Weston Fielding.

Matilda Weston, widow of George Fielding, died Thursday in her 94th year, at her residence, 141 Third street. Until a short while before her death she went to church occasionally, possessed perfect sight and had never used eyeglasses. She was a warm admirer of Colonel Roosevelt. She was long a member of the Sixth Avenue M. E. Church and its Ladies Aid Society. Her husband, who died thirty years ago, was a member of the firm of Fielding Bros., manufacturers of circus chariots and show vehicles, with a factory in New York City. She was the aunt of Robert W. Fielding, at one time Republican leader of the Eighth Ward. She was born in Essex, England, and came to New York City in infancy. She leaves three grandchildren, ten great grandchildren and three great great grandchildren. She also leaves five nieces, one of whom, Phoebe Cousins, was the first woman to practice at the Missouri bar, and United States marshal under President Cleveland, and two daughters-in-law, Mrs. James E. Fielding, with whom she lived, and Mrs. George Fielding.

Thomas Doyle, Sr.

Thomas Doyle, Sr., died at his residence, 58 Clinton avenue, Friday. He was born in County Longford, Ireland, seventy-five years ago, and came to America when a youth. He had been a resident of Brooklyn and a member of the Church of the Sacred Heart for sixty years. Mr. Doyle, who retired from business life a few years ago, was a boss stone cutter. He assisted at the laying of the cornerstone of St. Patrick's Cathedral in Manhattan. He is survived by three daughters, Miss Margaret Doyle, Mrs. Mary Flood, Mrs. Ann Beverly; four sons, Thomas A., jr., James J., Edwin A., William F., and a sister, Mrs. Mary Reardon; fourteen grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren. His wife, Ann, died sometime ago. A requiem mass will be said at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Monday morning, at 9:30 o'clock. Interment in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Richard Philip Weld.

Richard Philip Weld, a newspaper writer, died on Thursday at a sanitarium in Greenwich, Conn., of nervous trouble. He was born at Northport, L. I., thirty-one years ago, and when twenty-one years old became a reporter on the New York World. Later he became an editorial writer on the Atlanta Constitution, and afterward the city editor of a Memphis paper. He suffered from a nervous breakdown and went to Brentwood, L. I., about five years ago, where he remained until his removal to Greenwich. The funeral service will take place tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of his sister, Mrs. John V. Doniphan, jr., 12 Virginia place. He leaves six sisters, Mrs. John V. Doniphan, jr., Mrs. Grant Richie, Mrs. Walter T. Post, Mrs. Harry B. Twyford, of New Haven, Conn., and Mrs. William L. Cooper, of London, England.

DALZELL WANTS BIG DOCKS.

Among those returning from Europe on the White Star liner Baltic today was Commodore Fred B. Dalzell of Brooklyn, president of the Maritime Exchange. He has been in England and Scotland contracting for towing in the harbor of New York. Mr. Dalzell said that he had made sixty or more contracts for towing, amounting to more than a million tons yearly. He spoke of the fine docking facilities on the other side and said that the facilities here for docking big vessels should be improved as quickly as

WALDO'S VISIT WAS FRIGHTFUL SHOCK

FOUND MEN PLAYING CARDS.

Commissioner Was Horrified and Suspended Lieutenant Dooley and Sergeant McNamara on the Spot.

Lower Fulton street was dead, dead as Ramesis III, at 10:10 o'clock last night, when a big green touring car stopped at the York street corner and the chauffeur, in police uniform, put an end to the whirring of the engine. There was not a soul around because it was too early for the "shock" houses to turn their derelicts into the street to make their tipsy way home to the cheap lodging places in the neighborhood. A man on post nearby saw the machine and its occupants, but he did not have time to run around to the nearby police station to give any warning.

Police Commissioner Waldo and a stout man, whose identity was not established up to a late hour this afternoon, although the precinct folk were mightily anxious to find out, left the auto and walked rapidly to the police station. The lights inside were burning brightly and the outward indications were that everything was strictly according to regulations. But when Waldo got into the house he discovered that only a doorman, Reid, was on guard. The doorman was in front of the desk.

"Where is the man behind the desk?" asked the Commissioner, vaguely, for there was no man behind the desk.

"Just gone upstairs," said the doorman. "He'll be down directly. I'll go and get him for you."

Reid did not know that the visitor was the Commissioner, but he had his suspicions, for he had seen his picture in the papers and the authoritative manner was unmistakably that of somebody of importance.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," said the Commissioner, "I'll go and get him myself."

The commissioner stalked upstairs to one of the dingy dormitories and surprised the desk lieutenant, a sergeant and three patrolmen sitting at a table. There were cards in front of them and it seemed that the lieutenant had some in his hand. Playing cards are interdicted in police stations. It is an old rule on the police books that cards shall not be played in police stations. The men may have dominoes, or chess, but playing cards have been tabooed in the regulations of the police force from time immemorial. The oldest policeman now on the force does not remember when the rule was made.

Waldo was wrathful. He ordered the players down to the section room and then he promptly suspended the lieutenant and the sergeant. The former was William Dooley, brother of Inspector Robert Dooley, and one of the most experienced of the lieutenants on the force. The sergeant proved to be Joseph McNamara, another of the old-time policemen, and the patrolmen were Johnson, Flanagan and Garner. The patrolmen were not suspended on the spot.

TAFT AT THE CITY COLLEGE

President Taft and Ambassador Jusserand were at the College of the City of New York in Manhattan, today, to take part in a reception to Dr. Alexis Carrel, the surgeon of the Rockefeller Institute, whose work in science has gained for him the Nobel Peace Prize for this year.

The bestowal of the peace prize has not yet been recognized officially and so today, in the great hall of the college, fitting tribute was paid to the great surgeon.

Theodore F. Hiller, chairman of the board of trustees of the City College, presided at the meeting. The faculty and student body were also present. A better place could not have been chosen for a ceremony of such dignity as the national recognition of the Nobel prize merits than the great hall of the college, through the stained glass windows of which the sun shone upon an audience of 5,000 persons.

President Taft will spend three days in this vicinity, visiting several institutions and attending meetings. Tonight he will be the guest at a dinner of the Lotos Club, in Manhattan, and Monday he will go to New Haven to attend the meeting of the Yale Corporation. He will return to Washington Monday night.

The President, after breakfast, went uptown to attend the reception at the College of the City of New York. From that point, he planned to motor to Dobbs Ferry to visit the Children's Village of the New York Juvenile Orphan Asylum. He expected to take luncheon at Ardsley, with Adolph Lewisohn. This afternoon he will continue his motor trip to Pleasantville to visit the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Orphan Asylum. He will spend Sunday quietly in Manhattan.

WILSON SORRY TO MISS TAFT

Governor Woodrow Wilson tried to see President William H. Taft today, missed him by a few minutes, and composed a limerick on the spot. When asked if he intended to see the President later in the day at the reception of the College of the City of New York, the President-elect replied:

"I am not like the man so benighted,
Who didn't know when he was slighted,
But went to the party
And ate just as hearty

The Governor rose late this morning. At breakfast he asked Walter Meaday, his secretary, to ascertain where the President was staying and how long he would be there. Soon afterward Mr. Meaday came back and reported that the President had just left his hotel for the College of the City of New York.

"I am very sorry to have missed seeing the President," Governor Wilson said.

Two calls were made by the Governor today, prior to his boarding the steamer Bermudian for Bermuda, where he will spend his vacation. He will be away till December 16.

The steamship company officials have guarded well against possible accident while the President-elect is en route to Bermuda. Ten big lifeboats, each holding fifty-five persons, are aboard, although the passengers and crew number only a little over 400.

Mrs. Wilson and her daughters, who will accompany the President-elect, spent the forenoon shopping.

NOTABLE SURGERY AT CLINICS HERE

SESSIONS CONCLUDED TODAY.

The work of the Third Annual Session of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons this week, in this city, is being concluded today. Remarkable operations have been performed daily at hospitals, in Brooklyn and Manhattan, evening discussions have been held, and the general result has been to put all the visiting surgeons, numbering 3,000, as well as those of this city, in possession of the facts and most improved methods of dealing with surgical diseases.

Brooklyn hospitals and surgeons have figured largely in the success of this year's congress, all having given clinics largely attended by visitors from other cities. Among the notable clinics were two held at the Kings County Hospital by Dr. A. T. Bristow and his staff, and by Dr. J. Bion Bogart and Dr. Arthur H. Bogart and their staff. More than 150 surgeons were at these clinics and pronounced them equal to the best in Manhattan.

Some of the most interesting and remarkable operations were performed at the Jewish Hospital of Brooklyn, under the eyes of the visiting surgeons from all over the world.

Dr. William Linder, attending surgeon of the hospital, issued a programme so interesting to the visiting surgeons that the operating room was filled to overflowing and scores of celebrated doctors crowded a gallery and actually used opera glasses to watch the work.

A rare operation was performed by Dr. Linder in a fracture of a thigh, known as "Lane Plating" from the discoverer. Where a fractured bone cannot be brought together by ordinary methods the two parts are fastened by steel plates screwed to the bones. Following this remarkable demonstration of the surgeon's skill were operations known as carcinum of the breast, radical operation; exophthalmic and cystic goiter under local anesthesia; tubercular glands of the neck; incision; cystic goiter under local anesthesia and ventral hernia, herniotomy.

Dr. Humpstone Performs Caesarian Operation.

Dr. O. Paul Humpstone performed the Caesarian operation, and perhaps the most remarkable feature of this part of the programme was that two other children have been taken from the same woman in the same way in the past two years, and are living and healthy. He was assisted by Drs. R. M. Beach and S. Levy, and in a vaginal Caesarian operation his assistants were Dr. A. Bonner and Dr. J. Friedman.

Operations by Dr. John Osborn Polak, assisted by Drs. H. Shahn and J. Friedman were bilateral salpingectomy, appendectomy, enterorrhaphy, the Wertheim operation, perineoploty and others of similar interest, concluding, in the general comment of the visitors one of the most extraordinary sessions of the convention.

A demonstration that attracted attention was what is technically called the Meltzer intratracheal insufflation anesthesia which brought down to the language of laymen means the carrying of air into the lungs of the patient by means of a catheter, which is first introduced by means of a specially devised instrument only recently brought into use and the safest known method of relieving the patient of any effort in breathing. This demonstration was performed by Dr. I. D. Kruskal, with absorbed attention on the part of the visitors.

Enthusiastic comment was also made by the distinguished guests of the institution upon the new children's ward, divided into six divisions by plate glass, so that infectious cases may be closed off from other parts of the ward and yet be within vision of nurses.

Most of the out of town surgeons started for their respective homes today. The congress was voted the most successful from every standpoint ever held in any city of the world. The number of surgeons present exceeded by far the attendance at any other surgical congress; there were more clinics and operations during the week than were ever held before in the same period of time, and the rarity and importance of the operations performed have no equal.

Dr. George D. Stewart, a prominent Manhattan specialist, said today that the Congress was the greatest ever held, and easily puts New York far in the lead of any other city as a surgical center. It has been the greatest week in advanced, modern surgery, he added, with a greater variety of operations ever performed. It has done wonders in giving surgeons an insight into all the modern ideas, he said.

Before their departure today a number of the visiting surgeons visited Fordham Hospital, and there saw Dr. Alexander Nicoll demonstrate on fractured knee joints. He employed two methods, one by which he joined the factured parts together by driving ten penny nails, and the other by lacing the bones with silver wire.

The next session of the congress will be held in Chicago, in November, 1913. The first one was held in Chicago two years ago, and there were 1,000 surgeons from outside cities in attendance. Last year's session was at Philadelphia, and 2,000 were present. The 3,000 visitors in New York this year broke all records.

One of the highly important features of this year's session was the adoption of the resolution at Thursday night's meeting at the Academy of Music, to appoint a publicity committee on the cancer question, and take the public into the confidence of the medical and surgical profession in reference to the curability of cancer.

NELLIE WALDRON IS DEAD

Nellie Waldron, the 23-year-old woman who was released from the Bedford Reformatory on Saturday, October 19, on Governor Dix's pardon, died today of tuberculosis in Bellevue Hospital, Manhattan. Teh report that sch could not live was the reason for the Governor's clemency, and the young woman went from the reformatory directly to the hospital.

Nellie Waldron was sentenced for shooting and killing her former sweetheart, G. F. McDonald, on Greenpoint avenue, between Franklin and West streets, Brooklyn. At the time, the girl's defense was that McDonald had promised to marry her and then refused to do so after he misused her confidence in him.

It was said that during her illness at the hospital Miss Waldron kept Governor Dix's pardon always under her pillow and read it frequently. It seemed to be the only thing that could make her happy.

Miss Waldron was sentenced to the Bedford Reformatory for three years by Supreme Court Justice Aspinall, and she was believed to have contracted tuberculosis while confined in the Raymond street jail awaiting her trial.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NO CABARET

But it is a pleasure to go to Silsbe's and meet refined people and listen to good music and singing of quality, not quantity. We are now serving a shore dinner between 6 and 9 p.m. that is far ahead of everything in Greater New York. We also make a specialty of serving small banquets of parties up to sixty people, and we guarantee satisfaction.

HYLAN COMES BACK AT COM'R WILLIAMS

Writes Him a Long Letter on the E. D. Subway Situation.

HAS NO PERSONAL QUARREL.

But Insist That the Eastern District Is Not Getting the Consideration Due It.

Reiterating that the people of the Eastern District have just cause to complain because that locality is not receiving proper consideration at the hands of the Public Service Commission in regard to a subway, Magistrate John F. Hylan, on behalf of himself and the members of the Broadway Association, today hurled another broadside at Commissioner George V. S. Williams, who yesterday took a whack at Magistrate Hylan.

In a very pointed letter Magistrate Hylan informed Commissioner Williams that the Eastern District is receiving scant consideration as compared with other sections of the borough, and warned him that the Broadway Association and the various organizations having the interests of the locality at heart, intend to keep up the fight until proper recognition is given.

Magistrate Hylan's letter is as follows:

"Hon. George V. S. Williams:

"Dear sir—I see in tonight's Brooklyn Eagle, if you are quoted correctly, you say, every word I utter shows how little I know of the transit situation.

"I do not expect you to give me any credit for knowing anything about the transit situation, because I have objected to the treatment accorded to the whole Eastern District by the Public Service Commission, which includes the section where you live also.

"However, some information which you have given and which is very interesting, I have not said anything about. I do not wish to make our fight for a subway a personal one with you, as I have known you for some time and have always held you in high respect, but feel that we have a right to complain about the treatment accorded to the Eastern District, and should not be told each time we do complain that we in the Eastern District are finding fault because we cannot have a subway at our very door, and that you are going to give Brooklyn the best transit system it ever received and even I will not be able to prevent it.

"Now, Commissioner, you know that I have at no time tried to prevent Brooklyn from getting proper consideration, and you should not try to lead people to believe that I am. We are finding fault in the Eastern District, which means not alone the great section east and north of Broadway, but the Bedford and Greenpoint sections, for not receiving proper consideration in regard to a subway. Over a million of people reside in this locality, which is two-thirds of the whole of the borough, but still little consideration is granted, comparing this great section with other sections of the borough.

"The people in the Ridgewood section objected to the elevated on Wyckoff avenue. We organized the Wyckoff Avenue Property Owners Association, and the property owners on Wyckoff avenue would not consent to the construction of an elevated road. It is now said that the Long Island right of way will be taken over. We are glad that the Public Service Commission, to some extent at least, is giving heed to the demands of the people in the Ridgewood section, and have practically abandoned the idea of an elevated road on Wyckoff avenue.

"Why is it that the transit lines in the Bronx running for miles and miles through wood and farm land, to Pelham Bay Park, to Becker avenue and Woodlawn road, are being provided for in the great comprehensive dual scheme, so called, and the millions of the city's money to be used to construct such lines when there is so much need for additional transit lines in the thickly congested Eastern District, where thousands and thousands of people reside who are crying out for immediate transit facilities, while in the Bronx, where these lines are laid out, there will be no use for them for many years to come.

"What we want in the Eastern District is the same treatment that is granted to every other section of the city. We intend to speak plainly and to continue to fight until proper recognition is given. The Greenpoint Bedford Avenue Crosstown Line will pay as soon as constructed. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit is willing to put in money for an elevated structure over this route. Why not eliminate some of these lines running through farms and woodland in the Bronx at this time, and save a few millions thereby, and put it with the sum that the B. R. T. is willing to spend, to build a Crosstown subway for the Eastern District.

CALL SISTER "DEAD" AFTER SHE ELOPED

SHE IS NOW MARRIED.

But They Did Not Approve of Her Attachment to Anthony D. Stephane.

"There is no use for you to send for your things, for we will never give them to you. We consider you dead, and therefore we will keep them in remembrance of you. Do not ever write or try to see us, for you do not belong to us any longer. Goodby forever. Your family once, SEIDL."

The foregoing letter was received yesterday by pretty Zara Seidl, 19 years old, an orphan. It was written by her brothers and sister, who live at 1521 Forty-eighth street, Borough Park, who refuse to recognize her because she eloped and married the man of her choice. The young woman is one of ten children.

Zara is now Mrs. Stephane, the wife of Anthony D. Stephane, 21 years old, of 976 Fiftieth street, a mandolinist and entertainer, who appears nightly in a Brooklyn restaurant as a cabaret performer. It was at the restaurant that the young woman first met Stephane and she at once fell in love with him. After a courtship of two days the couple were married.

Young Stephane is well known throughout this borough as an entertainer. He was recently engaged to perform in a restaurant in the Bedford section, and it was there that he first saw Zara about the middle of September. He played in the orchestra and the young woman sang. Two days later the girl left the place, accepting a position in a Manhattan establishment.

Two weeks ago she returned to the Bedford section. She became better acquainted with the mandolinist and he escorted her to her home. Cupid started working and in forty-eight hours fired the necessary arrow. The next day the couple took out a marriage license.

Miss Seidl broke the news to her brothers and sisters, and they protested. Seeing that the girl would not listen to the advice of her people, her older brother, a wealthy manufacturer of Manhattan, had her guarded under lock and refused to allow her to leave her home.

But love found a way, and on Sunday, October 21, the fair "prisoner" managed to get away and went to the home of Staphane's sister, at 390 Myrtle avenue. She was located by other members of her family and under the pretense of going for a walk with Zara, they managed to take her back to Borough Park.

A few days later while at a reception with her brother, and during a dance, Miss Seidl managed to get hold of her hat and coat and again made her way to her future sister-in-law's home. The telephone was then used and Anthony was summoned. The couple went to St. Michael's Church and were married.

The two returned to the restaurant and rejoined the cabaret performers. Thursday night the young bride was confronted by several members of her family, who made an effort to drag her from her husband's side, and their actions caused considerable excitement among the patrons of the place. Tables were knocked over and glasses and dishes were broken. But the timely arrival of a couple of policemen put an end to the disturbance, and the trouble makers were ejected. The couple are at present staying with the bridegroom's sister.

As Zara displayed the letter from her people her eyes became moistened and she said: "I am sorry that they cannot see as I can. I have done nothing that I am ashamed of, and will not attempt to get my personal property. In time they will see the mistake they have made. I love Anthony, and we are happy, so why should I bother myself about what other people think."

400-MILE SUFFRAGETTE MARCH

London, November 16—The suffrage army which started from Edinburgh on October 12 completed its four hundred-mile tramp to London this afternoon, having taken exactly five weeks to do the journey. Under the leadership of Mrs. De Fonblanque, who traveled on horseback, they proceeded immediately to the Prime Minister's residence in Downing street and presented their petition demanding the suffrage for women.

Premier Asquith, profiting from his experience of previous meetings with the vote-seeking women, had retired to the country for the week-end. His secretary, however, accepted the document and there was no untoward incident.

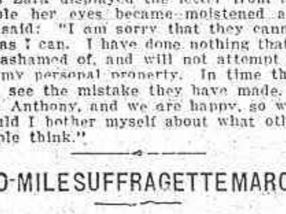

The little band of women made a triumphal progress during the last mile or two of their long march. A band headed the procession through the London streets, playing "See, the Conquering Hero Comes," while thousands of suffragettes and male sympathizers lined up behind them.

NEW CLEWS IN POND MYSTERY

Georgetown, Conn., November 16—The fragments of the trunk which had been used to transport the body of Carmellna Goracci from New York to a mill pond here before it was thrown into the water, were found in a patch of woods late yesterday.

Lester Olmstead of Ridgefield, while hunting through the woodland west of here, found the remains of a camp fire. As he began to scrape over the ashes he saw iron bands which had been used on a box. Then he picked out some hinges. He went to Ridgefield and the officers came back to the place and sifted out the steels of a corset safety pin, a charred heel of a woman's shoe, metal buttons of a cloak and fragments of clothing.

The disappearance of the trunk which was known to have been used added a mysterious phase to the case.

RUSSELL CRUSADE THREATS.

Richmond, Va., November 16—Although he has received a number of threatening anonymous communications recently on account of his preaching against the doctrines of "Pastor" Russell of Brooklyn, the Rev. B. Larry Hoge, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, this city, announced today that he will continue his fight undaunted.

To-morrow night he will preach on "Will We Know Each Other After Death." The letters intimate that something direful may befall him at any time, and that he had better take warning in advance. The minister says he is being flooded with letters from Richmond and other parts of the State commending him for his course.

It is announced that F. F. Cook of Brooklyn will speak at the Lubin Theater tomorrow afternoon and evening in reply to criticisms of "Pastor" Russell's religious theories.

JEWISH FEDERATION BANQUET

The biggest dinner ever given in Brooklyn was the first banquet of the Jewish Federation of Charities, but the one this year promises to eclipse that. The Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities combines all the great philanthropic movements hereabouts, such as the Jewish Hospital, the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, the Hebrew Educational Society and kindred charities, and its purpose is to do away with all annoying methods of obtaining funds, in fact all forms of solicitation, such as ticket-selling, programme advertising, giving of bazars, fairs, etc., confining all charities to individual subscription.

It is also intended to discourage starting new institutions without due investigation of their need and possibility of support, thus establishing philanthropic work on a thoroughly business like and most effective basis. The result has been a wonderful work for the poor of the borough.

The banquet will be held on December 15, and over 500 tickets have been subscribed and paid for at this time, something decidedly unusual in dinner affairs. It will be the leading Jewish society event of the year. The music will be furnished by the celebrated boys band of the Orphan Asylum.

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch,

The chief orator will be Dr. Emil G. Hirsch of Chicago, one of the leading rabbis of the country, and who is described as a very forceful, inspiring talker. Jacob Schiff will also speak on local philanthropies. A number of notable men have been invited as guests. The dinner will be held at Kismet Temple. The office of the committee in charge of arrangements is at the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities, 732 Flushing avenue.

FIGHT OVER MILLIONS.

Surrogate Fowler will hear argument tomorrow on the objection to certain portions of the accounting of the estate of the late Consuelo, Dowager Duchess of Manchester, by the American executors of her more than two million dollar estate. Harry B. Hollins, John L. Cadwalader, and Frederick O. Beach, the latter of Aikin, N. C., notoriety of less than a year ago, executors of the estate, have filed their accounting prior to their discharge as executors under the terms of the will of the late Dowager Duchess. Countess Zichy is the chief contestant of the account. She was formerly Miss Mabel Wright of New York, the celebrated beauty, who divorced the late Fernando A. Yznaga, at one time a business partner of W. K. Vanderbilt, to marry Count Zichy, an Austrian nobleman, and a legatee under the Duchess' will.

GRAHAM LECTURE TODAY.

The Graham Foundation lectures of the Brooklyn Institute begin this afternoon. They are to consist of six addresses on "Emerson and Carlyle," delivered by Professor Bliss Perry, L. H. D., LL.D., of Harvard University, in the music hall, Academy of Music, at 4 o'clock. This afternoon Professor Perry will have "The Making of Carlyle" for topic. In presenting to the Institute its first endowment fund, Augustus Graham stipulated that the income of a portion of it be used in providing courses of Sunday lectures on "The Power, Wisdom and Goodness of God as Manifested in His Works."

HICKEY IS INDICTED FOR MURDER OF BOY

New Jersey Prisoner Accused of Strangling Seven-Year-Old Child at Lackawanna.

WILL NOT FIGHT EXTRADITION.

Buffalo, November 20—The Erie County Grand Jury today returned an indictment against J. Frank Hickey, now under arrest at Toms River, N. J., charging him with murder in the first degree in having caused the death of Joseph Joseph at Lackawanna, October 12, 1911.

The indictment was made in a special report to Justice Charles B. Wheeler in Criminal Term of Supreme Court, and contains two counts. The first accuses Hickey "of wilfully and deliberately effecting the death of the Joseph boy by strangling and choking him."

The second count includes the degree of "malice aforethought" necessary to the return of an indictment charging murder in the first degree.

Detectives are investigating the local record of Hickey. The time-keeper's book at the steel plant in Lackawanna, where Hickey was employed a year ago, show that he did not work October 12, 1911, the day the Joseph boy disappeared; that he reported the following day as being too ill to work and that after working intermittently for a few days he left Lackawanna October 25.

Toms River, N. J., November 20—District Attorney Dudley and Chief of Police Gilson of Lackawanna, N. Y., arrived here today and went at once to the county jail, where J. Frank Hickey is confined.

Another officer from Lackawanna is expected here today with extradition papers from Governor Dix asking acting Governor Prince of New Jersey to turn Hickey over to the New York authorities for trial. H. Howard Jeffery, counsel for Hickey, said today that his client would not oppose extradition.

Hickey is confined in a cell removed from other prisoners. He is not permitted to see visitors, and his attorney has advised him not to discuss the case.

Albany, November 20—The executive chamber was notified today that the requisition papers for the extradition of J. Frank Hickey, now under arrest at Toms River, N. J., would arrive here tonight. Arrangements were made to send the papers to Governor Dix in New York.

KILLED IN AQUEDUCT SHAFT.

John J. Gesmek Broke a Man's Arm as He Fell to Death.

John J. Gesmek, 22 years old, of 86 Greenwich street, a machinist, employed in connection with the sinking of the new aqueduct shaft at Delancey and Eldridge streets, Manhattan, fell from a point about midway to the bottom of the shaft today and was instantly killed.

The accident came near to costing the life of a second man, Stefan Faluski, 23 years old of 128 Essex street, for the body of Gesmek fell in a direct line with the shaft bucket, in which the men are raised and lowered, and Faluski was in the bucket at the time, about 30 feet from the bottom. Faulski saw the body falling and raised his right arm as a shield. Gesmek struck the arm, which was badly fractured. The body of the falling man was deflected from the bucket and fell to the bottom. An ambulance was immediately summoned from Gouverneur Hospital, and Dr. Booth responded. He said that Gesek had been instantly killed nd that nearly every bone in his body was broken. The surgeon treated Faluski and removed him to the hospital.

MUSTN'T GO HOME IN 6 MONTHS

Temporary Banishment for an Abusive Husband Court's Order'

Jeremiah Dougherty, 52 years old, of 338 Twenty-first street, was summoned to the Fifth avenue court by his wife Julia, who claimed that he used vile language to her. Dougherty failed to obey the summons, and Detective Hylan was sent out with a warrant for the man. The detective found Dougherty digging a grave in Greenwood Cemetery.

When arrested Doughtery admitted using bad language to his wife, but said that it was a slip of the tongue. Magistrate Maguire put Dougherty on probation for six months and told the man not to go home in that time. Dougherty has three children, John 20, Catherine 21, and Mary 22.

NEXT M. E. CONFERENCE.

New Haven Selected for Session Beginning March 26.

New Haven, Conn., has just been announced by the district superintendents, the Rev. Drs. Layton, Upham, Bowdish and Goodenough, as the place for holding the next session of the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which embraces the ministers of the denomination in Brooklyn, all of Long Island, and part of Manhattan and Connecticut. It is many years since the conference met in the college town.

The sessions will open in Trinity M. E. Church on Wednesday, March 26. Bishop Luther B. Wilson will preside.

WOMAN GAVE SHORT WEIGHT.

Margaret Stoddart, 40 years old, of 489 Third avenue, was in the Fifth avenue court this morning, charged by Inspector Padguy with selling a pound of nails, weighed on her own scales, which was seven ounces short of the required weight. She was held in $200 bail for Special Sessions.

BREAKWATER REPORT IN ROESSLER'S HANDS

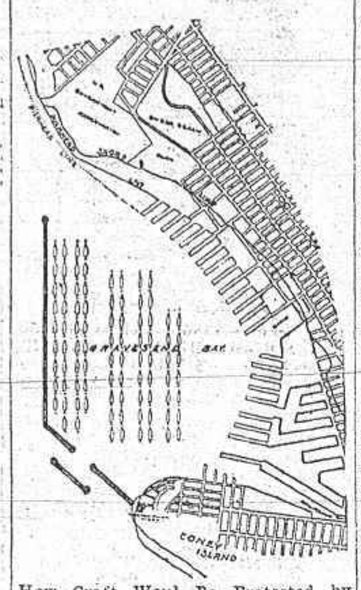

Report on Gravesend Bay Improvement Expected From War Department Engineer Soon.

DATA IS VERY COMPLETE.

Need for Protection to Shipping in the Bay and Effect on Hinterland Set Forth.

The Executive Committee, representing Gravesend Bay property owners and civic organizations, who have for several years urged that there be constructed a breakwater in Gravesend Bay, has submitted its report on the project to Col. S. W. Roessler, division engineer in charge of the Port of New York.

No action has been taken on the findings of the committee by Colonel Roessler, thus far, but during the next week he will carefully go over the data furnished him and should he and his corps of engineers agree with the report, recommendation for the construction of the breakwater will be forwarded to Washington. He is expected to make his answer in a week or ten days.

The report of the committee is very thorough and is accompanied by many pictures and maps, illustrating the necessity of a breakwater. It is drawn up in pamphlet form and covers forty pages. It was compiled by William G. Ford, consulting engineer of Manhattan, chairman; William G. Morrisey, president of the Gravesend Bay Breakwater Association, vice chairman, and Herbert Reeves, president of the South Side Board of Trade, secretary.

Among the maps is one of the proposed breakwater. It shows the entrance to New York Harbor and the position of Gravesend Bay, which is just outside the harbor. If constructed the breakwater would leave a general width at the middle between it and the present shore, of about a mile and a quarter. The length of the bay exceeds two miles and would provide over 1,000 acres of harbor outside the pier lines. It would give protection to a commerce already existing of over 300,000 tons annually and would bringhere commerce that is now ready and anxious to come, but is deterred through lack of proper protection for vessels.

The realization of the breakwater would add a link to the improvements which are now under way in Jamaica Bay and would, in connection with the Gravesend Ship Canal, the survey for which has already been made, make it possible for barges from the great lakes to go as far as Peconic and Gardiner's Bays by an inside route.

Not alone would the construction of a breakwater in Gravesend Bay make that part of the harbor the greatest shipping center in the world, but it would also result in building up a section which is at present only half built, thereby bringing to Bath Beach, Fort Hamilton and Gravesend numerous manufacturing concerns now in search of choice localities. At present, in the incomplete condition that it is, the property adjoining Gravesend Bay is assesed at $70,000,000.

There is no breakwater along the entire Atlantic Coast that protects an immediately adjacent hinterland, so valuable as the one that would be served by the proposed Gravesend Bay Breakwater. It is a question if all the Atlantic breakwaters combined protect so great a valuation.

The breakwater project has been indorsed by nearly every citizen of Fort Hamilton, Gravesend, Bath Beach and Coney Island and is favored by civic organizations and particularly urged by manufacturing concerns already established in Gravesend Bay and also by hundreds of yacht clubs.

Burton E. Leavitt.

Putnam, Conn., November 20—Burton E. Leavitt, known throughout the New England States as a musical composer, is dead at the home of his father, here, at the age of 41 years. Death followed a year's illness resulting from tumors.

John Slattery.

John Slattery, a contractor, whose address for the last ten years has been the National Democratic Club, died yesterday at the Roosevelt Hospital, at the age of 79 years. He came to this city from Ireland seventy-two years ago and succeeded his brother, James, in the contracting business established in 1847. Mr. Slattery graded and shaped the work about the Grant Tomb and that of Mulberry Bend Park. He was an active and lifelong member of Tammany Hall and served for five years as treasurer of the Twenty-seventh District. He was a member of many influential social and political organizations. He was a member of the Catholic Club, the Democratic Club and the Veteran and Exempt Firemen's Associations. He was unmarried. A nephew, John R. Slattery, survives him.

Annie Walters Healy.

Annie Walters, wife of Jeremiah Healy, and daughter of George and the late Mary Walters, died yesterday after two and a half year's illness, from tuberculosis, at her home, 1549 Forty-fifth street. She was a member of the Church of St. Catherine of Alexandria, where a requiem mass will be said Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. She was born in Brooklyn twenty-six years ago, and leaves her husband, her mother and three children, Mary F., Michael and Jeremiah.

James J. McCauley.

James J. McCauley, for sixteen years a member of the New York Fire Department, and for eight years telegraph operator at Jamaica, Queens Borough, and connected with Engine No. 137, died yesterday at his home, 1404 Putnam avenue. He was a member of the Church of St. Martin of Tours, where a requiem mass will be said on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, with the Rev. James Lynch as celebrant. Mr. McCauley was born in the Fourteenth Ward and was in his 39th year. His father, James, well known in the Fourteenth Ward, died two years ago, and his mother, Annie, died a year ago. He leaves his widow, Helen; two children, John and Helen; an aunt, Annie McCauley, and a brother-in-law, John Schlitz.

Edward Jones.

Edward Jones, a builder of Brooklyn for forty-five years, retiring ten years ago, died on Monday at his home, 5 Hart street, aged 73 years. Funeral services will take place there tonight at 8 o'clock, the Rev. Don Clyde Kite, assistant pastor of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, officiating, assisted by the Rev. T. J. Whitaker, pastor of the Bushwick Avenue Baptist Church. Mr. Jones had been a member of the Sixth Street (Manhattan) Baptist Church, the Bedford Avenue Baptist Church, and latterly of the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, of which he was a deacon at the time of his death. For fifty years he had been a teacher or superintendent in the various Sunday schools with which he had been connected. Mr. Jones leaves his widow, Julia; five sons, Abner, Edward, jr., Lincoln and Sumner; three daughters, Mrs. Charles LeFurge, Mrs. Alfred Daybill and the wife of Dr. Charles A. Hargitt, and seven grandchildren.

"PASTOR" RUSSELL SWEARS OFF TAXES

Files Affidavit That He Has No Personal Property.

HAS ASSIGNED IT ALL.

Watch Tower Bible and Tract Soicety Gives Him Support and Nothing More.

"Pastor" Russell will not have to pay taxes on $10,000 worth of personal property for which he was assessed. He appeared in person before Lawson Purdy, president of the Tax Commission, and swore that he was worth nothing in his own right, and that ten years ago he had assigned all his property to a corporation, from the funds of which he was entitled to support and nothing else.

Although affidavits made in connection with personal taxation are treated as confidential by the Tax Department and only the action of the department, based upon these affidavits, is made public, the affidavit of "Pastor" Russell was given out by Tax Commissioner Purdy today with the consent of deponent himself.

No answers at all appear to the questions regarding his liabilities, but underneath is the following explanatory statement which was sworn to by "Pastor" Russell in the presence of Mr. Purdy:

"Over ten years ago I assigned such property as I then had to the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society. Since then I have acquired nothing. From the funds of the society I am entitled to support and nothing more.

"My condition is as above stated."

"CHAS. T. RUSSELL."

Commissioner Purdy made the following statement regarding the affidavit of "Pastor" Russell:

"Pastor Russell appeared before me and made affidavit that more than ten years ago he had assigned all his property to a corporation formed for religious teaching under the laws of Pennsylvania.

"He further made affidavit that since then he had acquired no property, but that the corporation to which he had assigned his property is under obligation to provide for his necessities."

This sworn statement relieves "Pastor" Russell from paying any personal property tax and probably eliminates the chance of collection of tax on the personal property of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, under Section 4, Subdivision 7, of teh tax law, which reads:

"The real property of a corporation or association organized exclusively for the moral or mental improvement of men or women, or for religious, Bible, tract, charitable, benevolent, missionary, hospital, infirmary, educational, scientific, literary, library, patriotic, historic or cemetery purposes, or for the enforcement of law relating to children or animals, or for two or more such purposes, and used exclusively for carrying out thereupon one or more such purposes, and the personal property of any such corporation shall be exempt from taxation."

The affidavit was approved by the Tax Board.

SUBWAY TRAINS SKIP BOROUGH HALL STOP

Angry Brooklynites Carried to Bowling Green, Because of Trivial Accident.

NOT NOTIFIED BY GUARDS.

Station Platforms Jammed as Line Is Tied Up for Half an Hour.

Thousands of Brooklynites, with places of business in the vicinity of Borough Hall, were as mad as hornets this morning, when the subway trains in which they were traveling carried them to Manhattan, making no stop after leaving the Hoyt street station until Bowling Green was reached. The approximate number of those who were whizzed past the Borough Hall station, where they wanted to get off, is a matter of conjecture, but at any rate the Bowling Green platform was choked with disgruntled and wrathy Brooklynites from a little after 8:30 o'clock until long after 9:30. There they had to struggle, in a seething mass, to board returning trains, all the while venting their indignation at the intolerable conditions which have persisted right along whenever there is the slightest mishap on the line.

As a result of a slight accident at the Atlantic avenue terminal, about 8 o'clock this morning, when a train was held up by a hot contact shoe beam, traffic was tied up for a half hour, not a wheel revolving on either track until the train was shunted off on to a siding. Consequently, by the time traffic was resumed in a snail-like manner, the platform at the Atlantic avenue terminus and the Nevins, Hoyt and Borough Hall stations were so choked that it was absolutely impossible to squeeze into the kiosks.

There was such a jam at the three stations that the people who had fought their way to the platforms and had paid their fare had no way of getting out upon discovering that there was a block. They were wedged in so tightly, many in imminent peril of being forced over the edge on to the "third rail," that it would have taken the combined efforts of half a dozen football backfields to clear an opening.

After the long delay, which taxed the patience and temper of the waiting throngs, the trains started from the Atlantic avenue terminal but traveled only on one track. Stops were made at Nevins and Hoyt streets, and as many as could squeezed aboard, until every train was packed as full as a sheep car. As the trains neared Borough Hall, those who wanted to get off at that station began to wriggle and squirm toward the exits, but to their chagrin and disappointment the trains kept right on, proceeding slowly past the station, down the incline and under the river bed, where there were invariably more delays.

Wrathy passengers, who were carried past their station, in voicing their protests to The Eagle today, were unanimous in declaring that the guards failed to announce that no stop would be made at Borough Hall. Perhaps the guards didn't know themselves that Borough Hall was to be skipped, and the motormen, who undoubtedly had their orders, didn't see fit to consider the convenience of their charges. So train after train, from the time traffic was resumed, started up from the Nevins street station and made no stop, except when delayed under the river, until reaching Bowling Green.

Guards Claimed They Did Not Know Borough Hall Was to Be Skipped.

The disgruntled thousands, angered at the long delay, the congestion on platforms and trains and the tie-ups under the river, had no redress, but not a few expressed themselves to the guards, who pleaded ignorance of knowing that the Borough Hall station was to be skipped. The complaint that the guards did not apprise the passengers of the fact that the station was to be skipped will be laid before the Public Service Commission, as well as a general protest against the conditions on the Interborough road following every trivial accident.

It was explained at the offices of the Interborough that the reason no stop was made by any of the trains at the Borough Hall station was for the purpose of keeping up the schedule following the resumption of traffic. Harry Waugh, in charge of the publicity department of the road, said it was necessary to relieve the congestion occasioned by the tie-up, and while he couldn't say for a certainty that the guards had announced to the passengers that no stop would be made at Borough Hall, they should have done so.

LEAVES BROOKLYN CHURCH.

SAYS "RUSSELLISM" BROKE UP FAMILY

Merchant Declares Wife and Daughter Were Lured Away by "Pastor's" Teachings.

LAWYER'S ADVICE SOUGHT.

After Two Months on the Road Selling Russell Books, Women Return, Asking to Be Forgiven.

The Eagle has been requested by a well-to-do New York merchant to make known his experiences with Pastor Russell and his teachings, which for a while, he says, broke up his home and caused him and members of his family great misery.

The man's wife and an 18-year-old daughter had become so attracted by the doctrines of Pastor Russell that they left their home in a New Jersey seaside town and went out on the streets selling books for the Brooklyn preacher. They stayed away about two months, and it was only when the husband and father informed them that he had consulted his attorney about instituting a legal action to get possession of his daughter that they returned home and asked to be forgiven.

When they left home last September they took only summer clothing with them, and as the New York business man refused to send them their winter wraps, the cold weather may also have helped induce them to return. They were received back on condition that the girl should be sent to a boarding school for two or three years, and that the wife should give up all relations with the followers of Pastor Russell.

In a letter to the husband and father Pastor Russell invited him to come to Brooklyn and turn over his "all to the Lord." Should the husband and father refuse to do this he was warned that it might "blight your life and embitter it—and cost you the future life," which being interpreted in the light of the pastor's teaching would mean that he would suffer the "second death" and have no further chance for enjoyment of the coming millenium, which is a cardinal feature of "Russellism."

Wife Comes Home and Asks Husband to Forgive Her.

No attention was paid to the letter, and instead the father consulted his lawyer. It was last Monday that the wife, who demanded to be supported by her husband, though living away from home, was informed of this move. She then went away to consult the leaders of the sect, and presumably by advice of their lawyer she came back home next day and asked to be forgiven.

The daughter came first in the company of a "sister" from the Russell camp, but her father told her he would have nothing to say to her unless she came alone, whereupon the "sister" was dismissed and a reconciliation followed. The girl is now in an out-of-town school, where her father expects to keep her for a few years.

"My daughter is as innocent as a child," said her father today. "She does not know much about other religions, and in some way, through her mother's indulgence, she became fascinated by this 'self-consecration' and 'millennium' idea, until she was unable to do anything but carry out the orders of the leader of the sect and his aides."

"My wife has always been of a religious turn of mind," continued the husband. "She was brought up in a small town, where she did not get in touch with any broad currents of life, and though her father was one of the finest men I ever knew, he did not take much interest in religion. Consequently, the novelty of extreme religious ideas had a certain attraction for her.

"She belonged to the Church of the Disciples of Christ for many years, and was a diligent worker for them. I never hindered her in her church work as long as it seemed to me normal and wholesome. Then she became infatuated with Dowie and Zionism for a few years, but that, happily, did not take any extreme turn.

"It was about three years ago that she began to be interested in "Pastor" Russell and his doctrines. I had no idea of the character of the teachings of that cult, and being an open-minded man I even went so far as to accompany my wife to several of their services in Brooklyn, and also donated a little money to them. And what is more, I read faithfully the six books that "Pastor" Russell sells, called "Studies in the Scriptures."

"Things went along peaceably as far as I could make out, until last summer, when the "season" opened at the sea side place where we have our house. The Russellites began to invade our home and hold evening "study meetings." That upset my rest and brought a lot of people into the house that I did not want to entertain, so I said the meetings would have to stop.

Says Wife and Daughter Were Given Great Quantities of Books to Sell.

"The next step came when I found about ten thousand copies of "Pastor" Russell's pamphlets in my house, and a lot of books, which my wife and daughter were sent out to distribute and sell. Instead of keeping house, and taking care of the two younger children, they spent all day tramping from house to house among our neighbors, distributing leaflets and selling books.

"It was my daughter who made most of the sales, I learned, because she is a bright girl, though unsophisticated, while my wife is not adapted to commercial affairs. She never could sell anything.

"This kind of life told on my girl's health, and furthermore, I did not want her to be exposed to the dangers of going in and out of strange houses, so I finally put my foot down, and said this peddling must stop.

"Thereupon, as I found out later, my daughter sent a telegram to Brooklyn, asking what to do. She was told she should leave her home at once. To my wife this was equivalent to a command she did not think of disobeying, but when I was told about it, I said that I would never let my daughter go away unless her mother went with her, to look out for her.

"They both left. That was about two months ago, and a few days later I got a letter from 'Pastor' Russell, in which he invited me to come and join his flock, and practically turn over my business to him. He used a lot of Biblical phrases, and asked me to come and spend Sunday at his house, on Columbia Heights, in Brooklyn. He even went so far as to offer me the use of his own room, as he was going away to Maine over Sunday.

"I paid no attention to the letter, which proposed that should I not consent to sell my home and join him, my wife would be sent back to me, but my young eighteen-year-old daughter would be kept. I supposed her ability to sell books was the only reason he wanted her to stay.

"I informed my wife that I would not take her back unless my daughter came back, and that it would be her plain duty to stay and look after the welfare of our child. My younger daughter and son stayed with me, and we kept the house going, but naturally it was not a happy home. I became more and more worried, and at last decided to go to court to get back my oldest child. I intended to ask the court to make me her guardian, so that I could do with her what I pleased.

Lack of Winter Clothes Helps to Bring Woman and Her Daughter Home.

"In the meantime the two women had been sent out to work for the 'pastor.' I heard one of them in Bloomfield, N. J., where they were going from house to house, selling the Russell books, which sell for $2 per set.

"When they went away they packed up only their summer clothes, as their winter wraps were then in a storage place. When the cold weather came, they sent for their heavy clothes, but I refused to give them up. I'm afraid they had a hard time to get along with the 'pastor,' and now they are back. One of the stipulations of the reconciliation was that my wife would have no further intercourse with the sect, and that my younger children should be spared instruction in the Russell doctrine.

"I have hopes that my daughter will grow out of her delusions, and that she will be spared to me. She had already gone so far as to believe that she had become 'consecrated' and that her whole life was to be given up to work for the 'pastor.' While I cannot control my wife's mind, I also expect that she will be glad to remain in her home, where she has every comfort. In fact, she seems very glad to be back.

"It has been a terrible experience for me, and I hope other men may take warning."

"PASTOR" GETS A CALL.

Washington, November 25—The Temple Congregational Church of this city yesterday extended a call to the Rev. Charles T. Russell of Brooklyn to become its pastor.

SUNDAY NOT 'DRY' IN BROOKLYN

The police of Brooklyn apparently took no more special steps to enforce the excise law yesterday than on previous Sundays, although in every precinct the men were sent out with special instructions to see that the windows of the places where liquor is sold should be kept clear of obstructions and that the bars should be visible from the street. The experience of Captain O'Connor of the Adams street precinct, who has been on trial for failing to have the law enforced in this respect, has been a warning of much moment to the other precinct commanders. Captains cannot, of course, see every saloon window in their precincts, but they must hold their patrolmen responsible for failure to observe the law in this respect. Chief Inspector Schmittberger's men, and the officers of the special squads at headquarters in Manhattan, were out yesterday, too, it is said, watching for violations.

As a rule the saloons kept their bars exposed, but there was no let up in the regular traffic. The policy of Mayor Gaynor that patrolmen must not enter saloons to discover violations seems to be still observed. If the men on post had been very anxious to investigate yesterday they would have found many places throughout the city where drink was being freely sold. The tip that Deputy Commissioner Walsh had been speaking to his men about the excise enforcement on Sunday had the effect of making many of the saloonkeepers more careful yesterday, and some of them would only allow regular patrons to enter by the side and back doors.

The Third Deputy Commissioner had no comment to make today about the enforcement, or lack of enforcement, of the laws yesterday. Nor would he admit that he had given special instructions to the inspectors on Friday afternoon, as stated in the newspapers.

SCHRANCK IN INSANE ASYLUM.

Roosevelt's Assailant May Pass Rest of Life There.

Milwaukee, Wis., November 25—John Schrank, who shot Colonel Roosevelt, was taken to the Northern Hospital for the Insane, near Oshkosh, today. Judge Backus having committed him to that institution on Friday after a commission of alienists adjudged him insane.

Schrank has not changed in demeanor since sentence was pronounced. His disease, pronounced chronic paranoia and probably incurable, may result in his spending the rest of his life in the asylum. However, should he ever be pronounced cured, he will be returned to Milwaukee and tried for the attempt on Mr. Roosevelt's life.

CHURCH TEN YEARS OLD.

Special Services Held by Grace Lutheran Congregation.

Grace English Lutheran Church, Bushwick avenue and Weirfield street, celebrated its tenth anniversary yesterday. At the service in the morning the preacher was the Rev. Henry E. Jacobs, dean of the Theological Seminary in Philadelphia.

Following Dr. Jacobs' sermon the pastor of the church, the Rev. C. F. Intemann gave a short historical sketch of the church. He founded the church and conducted the first service ten years ago in a store on the corner of Evergreen avenue and Schaeffer street. During the ten years over 600 members have been received into the congregation, 234 children have been baptized by the pastor, 160 couples made happy in marriage and 185 funeral addresses delivered.

At the service last evening the preachers were the Rev. S. C. Weiskotten, president of the Brooklyn English Lutheran Missionary Society and pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, and the Rev. Charles Smith, president of the Eastern Conference of the Synod of New York and New England and pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Manhattan. Both extended their hearty congratulations and wishes for God's richest benedictions on pastor and people in the coming years.

FOR BRONX DEVELOPMENT.

President Miller Urges Industrial Railway and Big Market.

Great plans for extensive waterfront development of the Bronx have been prepared by Borough President Cyrus C. Miller of that borough. The principal feature of the plan is an industrial railway for freight around the south and east shores of the Bronx, so as to connect all the railroads coming into the borough with the dock system which is planned by Dock Commissioner Tomkins. The area to be developed contains about one-third of the area of the Bronx or about fourteen square miles, and has a waterfront seventeen miles long.

Borough President Miller also advocates a big wholesale terminal market on the line of this industrial railway, to decrease the cost of living. In connection with the New York Connecting Railroad now under construction, Mr. Miller points out that this system and the proposed market would be able to work together to bring all sorts of produce almost to the doors of the residents of the Bronx. The plan also embraces industrial development in the Bronx.

TO LECTURE ON PANAMA.

Congressman William M. Calder is to lecture tomorrow evening, at the Parish Hall of St. Matthew's P. E. Church, Tompkins avenue and McDonough street, on the Panama Canal. The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides showing the progress of the work.

ALLEGED "FLIM FLAM" MEN TRAILED MILES

IDENTIFIED BY VICTIMS.

Clever detective work by John F. Dengel, a baker of 59 Rockaway avenue, resulted in the arrest today of two men whom the police believe are responsible for a flim-flam game that has been worked successfully in the Bushwick section for the past two weeks and by which more than twenty merchants have been victims.

The prisoners are David Steinberg, 22 years old, who gives his address as 210 Dearborn street, Philadelphia, and his occupation that of a waiter, and Theodore Engelhart, 31 years old, a salesman, living at 312 East Twelfth street, Manhattan.

When the men are brought to the Gates avenue court late to day for examination, the police of the Ralph avenue station will have present a dozen or more people who have been victims of the flim-flam game, and who, according to the description of the two arrested this morning, believe that Steinberg and Engelhart are the ones who fooled them.

The game worked by the two is the same old short-change swindle. Their attempt to add Mr. Dengel to their list was not successful, and the baker's curiosity was what led to their arrest.

The couple entered Dengel's shop at 10 o'clock, and tendering a $10 bill, asked for 10 cents' worth of buns. Their actions were suspicious and the baker suspecting something, did not accommodate them with a purchase, but stated that he could not change the bill.

When the two left the place, Dengel put on his hat and coat and followed. He trailed them for more than an hour, during which time about three miles were covered. Finally Steinberg and Engelhardt entered a saloon at Howard avenue and Macon street, and while they were imbibing and talking in an undertone Dengel summoned Policeman Walter Stanwise and Sergeant John Law of the Ralph avenue station.

He told the policemen of his suspicion and they approached the two suspects. Law then searched Engelhardt and two skeleton keys are alleged to have been found on his person. When both he and his partner could not explain for what the keys were used they were arrested.

At the station house they answered the description of two men for whom the police have been looking. A few minutes lated Kate Kaplan of 10 Lewis avenue, who is employed in the shop of H. J. Palmeri of 1377 Broadway, and who was beaten out of $15 on October 12, by the short change game, was at the police station. She positively identified the prisoners as the ones who had worked the game on her.

One who will be present in court to identify the men is 13-year-old Minnie Steiler, whose father is a baker at Eldert street and Evergreen avenue. Saturday the cash register in Steiler's shop was robbed of $60. While Minnie had charge of the store, two men entered and, after asking for a coffee ring, requested that the girl get them each a glass of water.

Minnie consented, and as she was drawing the water in a room behind the store she heard the cash register bell ring. She ran to the front and saw the two men run down Evergreen avenue and disappear. An investigation was made of the cash register and it was found that the money was gone.

A newsboy who sells papers at Howard avenue and Broadway will also be ready to identify the prisoners, for an attempt was made to swindle a grocer in the neighborhood by using him as a third party, Saturday night. The lad was given a ten-dollar bill and told to purchase some goods amounting to 25 cents, but he, too, became suspicious, and after entering the store told the grocer of his errand. The grocer walked to the street to view the men and they ran, leaving the money in the possession of the newsboy.

At noon, Steinberg and Engelhart were taken to policeheadquarters, after they had been locked up on a charge of flim-flamming, which is equivalent to petit larceny. They will be photographed and have their finger prints taken. The latter will be compared with several sets which were gathered from show cases of the shops of the Bushwick section victims.

WANTED A "RESERVED" TABLE.

There was a row at Raub's restaurant yesterday afternoon, when a party of young men insisted on being permitted to sit at a table which the waiter told them had been reserved for another party. The young men, who were all well dressed and apparently respectable, "talked loud," the manager says, and so frightened some of the other guests that there was a hurried exodus of the nervous ones. The waiters gathered around the young disturbers and forced them out and in the scrimmage a waiter struck John Dalton, aged 23 years, a silk salesman of 794 President street, on the head with a bottle, inflicting an ugly wound.

Then the injured man was arrested by an officer of the Adams street station on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was attended, at the lockup by an ambulance surgeon, who put four stitches in the cut. He was taken back to the restaurant to pick out the waiter who had assaulted him, but the culprit had disappeared. This morning the manager for Raub made a complaint of disorderly conduct against the prisoner, Dalton, and Magistrate Dodd gave the young man a lecture and put him on probation, with Officer Higgins for a month.

"If you can find the waiter who struck you with the bottle," said the magistrate to him, "I will give you a warrant for his arrest."

TO SELL RED CROSS SEALS.

Over nine hundred Red Cross Seal agents in New York State will, immediately after Thanksgiving, begin to dispose of the 10,000,000 seals now in their hands, according to a statement issued by Sales Manager Dixon Van Blarcom, at the State Charities Association's Seal headquarters in this city.

It was further announced that by November 30, 50,000 men, women and children will be selling seals to help in the fight against tuberculosis. This army of workers will include local agents and their assistants, merchants who sell seals over the counter, postmasters, school children, organizations and others actively engaged in the sale.

The seals will not take the place of regular postage stamps, but must be placed on the backs of letters and packages. This point is important and should receive the careful attention of every user of Red Cross Seals in order to avoid conflict with the United States postal authorities.

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

To the People of the United States:

MONTICELLO was the home of Thomas Jefferson.

Monticello is today his tomb.

But it is private property, and suffers the desecration of sometimes being lived in.

It is subject to the uncertainties and transfers of individual fortune and the various casualties attendant upon all private property.

The venerated remains there are subject to the uncertainties of private fortune.

The dwelling there is exposed to the dangers and risks incident to private occupation.

Reverence and veneration lead all citizens passing within its reach to visit the grave and dwelling of Thomas Jefferson, but, it being in the hands of a private proprietor, public curiosity and interest are, of necessity, very imperfectly gratified.

Even access to Jefferson's grave is subject to the fancy of private individuals, who thus control the right of American pilgrimage to a shrine which should be as SACRED as it should be FREE.

Monticello should be preserved in the same way as Washington's Mount Vernon, as Jackson's Hermitage, as Lee's Arlington, as Grant's Tomb, as Lincoln's humble Kentucky cabin.

It should be honored and set up on high in the midst of the affections of the people.

More than half a century has elapsed since Jefferson's death—half a century of neglect and ingratitude to his memory.

The remains of the Author of our Independence have lain unhonored, and, by the irony of fate, left to private property and accessible to the processions of thousands of people, who visit there yearly, only through the forbearance of its owner.

Now the day has come when the people of the United States wish to have forever and at all times, for themselves and their children, a LEGAL and INDISPUTABLE RIGHT to visit the grounds, home and grave of Thomas Jefferson.

The day has come when there is a National purpose of causing Monticello to become the property of the Nation in perpetuity, of making it a spot consecrated to patriotism, of establishing it as an enduring remembrance of Thomas Jefferson, and of suitably developing it, that those who go on pilgrimages there may no longer be shocked by the ghastly traces of a Nation's neglect for its glorious dead.

The United States Senate, a Republican body, has passed unanimously a resolution favoring an inquiry into the purchase of Monticello.

The same resolution is ordered, by vote of the Rules Committee, to come up in the House of Representatives the first week of December, 1912.

We believe it is more desirable to acquire Monticello by VOLUNTARY GRANT than by CONDEMNATION.

And we feel with the fullest confidence that the present proprietor of Monticello COULD NOT or WOULD NOT resist the overtures of the people to make Monticello a shrine any more than John Augustine Washington could resist the overtures of the people to make Mount Vernon a shrine.

Surely, we believe there is no man who would deprive Jefferson of the distinction that rightfully belongs to him of having his tomb occupy the position of honor in the Nation due it—alongside Washington's, Jackson's, Lincoln's, and Lee's.

Surely, we believe that the present proprietor of Monticello will not fail to recognize the Propriety of public ownership of such a sacred spot—where more than fifty thousand people go every year to pay homage to Thomas Jefferson.

We believe he will not be hostile to the Nation's effort to preserve and suitably honor Jefferson's home and grave, but will listen to the call of the people to honor this Jeffersonian shrine.

We believe that the present proprietor of Monticello will patriotically accede to the wishes of the people to sacredly hold Monticello as the common property of the whole Nation through all time to come, if SUFFICIENT OVERTURES are made to him by the people.

Therefore, believing and hoping this, we call urgently upon the country to do quickly what it has decided must be done, that it may in future have no occasion to mourn over fatal delay or hear the reproach of posterity for want of zeal in transmitting to them, well preserved, so precious a patrimony.

Let there be a call of patriotism throughout the whole land!

Let us redeem the home and grave of Jefferson, and surround it with a preservative guard and maintain it with sacred care!

Let all who enjoy the efforts wrought by Jefferson unite to restore Jefferson to the people, where he belongs, and to place under the guardianship of the whole Nation his unpretentious resting place!

Let the voice of the people speak—and may it not fall upon deaf ears! A word would set all right—but that word has not yet been spoken.

However, we would not be discouraged nor baffled in our work of preserving for all future generations the home and grave of Jefferson, but would triumph!

If the plea of patriotism, made for patriotism, to a man whose position should make him a patriot, remains unanswered; if the wish of the whole country to honor a man who honored the whole country is denied by a man who can honor the whole country; if personal pride in proprietorship and individual love of the ownership of that which can NEVER BE INDIVIDUAL will defeat the purpose and disappoint the hope of the whole Nation, even then do not be discouraged! For in the bosom of this Nation there is a sovereignty—as old as the Nation itself, vindicated by its highest courts, sustained by its ablest jurists, and known of all its public men—which will enable us to turn our wishes into demands, our pleas into legal appeals, and, in the name and for the good of the spirit of patriotism, we shall take, by right of eminent domain, for the use of the Nation today, tomorrow, and forever, this place which holds the name of the Nation's Builder and marks the scene of the work that he did in its building.

I do not propose that the Nation take the home of the proprietor of Monticello. His home is in New York, where he was born, where he was educated, where he lives, where he votes, and from where he is elected to Congress.

But I propose that, if necessary, the Nation take the HOME of THOMAS JEFFERSON—the home which he built, which he inhabited, and which he surrounded with history and tradition; a home which speaks of him only, and which was open to the people of this country day and night as long as he lived; a home in which no other man can have identity; a home which is NOW NO HOME. Its doors are shut, its windows are dark, and there is no life in the place.

Thousands of pilgrims who go there from all over the world must turn away without crossing its threshold or seeing the rooms in which Jefferson lived and died. It is a home of no use to any one. It was the home of Jefferson in life, and it is now his home in death. It must never be put to the ignominious service of giving distinction and satisfaction to any one who simply happens to hold title to it, but it must be used for the beautiful purpose of inspiring us to serve our country as Jefferson did.

Therefore, the taking of it would be the mere taking of the TITLE of Mr. Levy—but the HOME of Thomas Jefferson.

Let us all work together to honor the memory of Thomas Jefferson.

Mrs. MARTIN W. LITTLETON.
Managing Director of The Jefferson Monticello Memorial Association of America.

BISHOP BURGESS GETS WATCH

Communion Service and Presentation Commemorate His Consecration.

With the vested clergy numbering, almost 160 men in attendance, a special communion service was held this morning at the Church of the Holy Trinity to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the consecration of the Right Rev. Frederick Burgess as Bishop of the Diocese of Long Island. At the conclusion of the service the Bishop, at the request of the clergy, made an address to them. This was followed by the presentation to the Bishop of a gold watch by the Rev. U. T. Tracy, senior priest of the diocese, on behalf of the clergy. The watch was inscribed on the inside as follows: "To the Right Rev. Frederick Burgess, D.D., Bishop of the Diocese of Long Island, a token of effection and esteem from his clergy, 1902-1912." On the back is engraved the coat of arms of the diocese.

The Bishop was the celebrant this morning. Assisting him were the Rev. H. C. Swentzel of St. Luke's, and president of the standing committee of the diocese, who acted as gospeller; the Rev. Dr. Robert Rogers, secretary of the diocese, who was epistoler; the Rev. Canon Duffield of the Cathedral at Garden City, who was server. What the Bishop had to say to the clergy at the conclusion of the service was private. The clergy sat in the body of the church as they did years ago when the Rev. Dr. Burgess was consecrated.

The celebration of the Bishop's consecration will be further continued this evening at St. Peter's Parish Hall, when a dinner will be given to him by the Church Club of the Diocese of Long Island, assisted by the Central Committee of the Men's Parish Clubs. Over five hundred covers will be laid at this affair, which is an annual one, but which will be of special note this evening.

WOMAN WALKS OUT OF WINDOW

Dreaming, as she afterward said, that there was a fire in the Hotel Orleans, at Columbus avenue and Eightieth street, Manhattan, Mrs. Ida Radi, 50 years old, jumped from her bed early this morning and ran to a window over an air and light shaft, which she opened and stepped out. She fell to the roof of a skylight on the second floor. She was conscious when carried back into the hotel and to her room. Her condition is critical.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS TO BIDDERS.

The person or persons making a bid or estimate for any services, work, materials or supplies for The City of New York, or for any of its departments, bureaus or offices shall furnish the same in a sealed envelope, indorsed with the title of the supplies, materials, work or services for which the bid or estimate is made, with his or their name or names and the date of the presentation to the president, or board, or to the head of the department at his or its office, on or before the date and hour named in the advertisement for the same, at which time and place the estimates received will be publicly opened by the president or board or head of said department and read, and the award of the contract made according to law as soon thereafter as practicable.

Each bid or estimate shall contain the name and place of residence of the person making the same, and names of all persons interested with him therein, and if no other person be so interested, it shall distinctly state that fact; also that it is made without any connection with any other person making an estimate for the same purpose, and is in all respects fair and without collusion or fraud, and that no member of the Board of Aldermen, head of a department, chief of a bureau, deputy thereof or clerk therein, or other officer of The City of New York is, shall be or become interested, directly or indirectly, as contracting party, partner, stockholder, surety or otherwise, in or in the performance of the contract, or in the supplies, work or business to which it relates, or in any portion of the profits thereof. The bid or estimate must be verified by the oath, in writing, of the party or parties making the estimate that the several matters stated therein are in all respects true.

Each bid or estimate shall be accompanied by the consent, in writing, of two householders or freeholders in The City of New York, or of a guaranty or surety company duly authorized by law to act as surety, and shall contain the matters set forth in the blank forms mentioned below.

No bid or estimate will be considered unless, as a condition precedent

Dr. Hillis in Plymouth--Feeding the Hungry Sheep

The Old Year and the New;

The Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis.

YESTERDAY morning, as his last sermon for the old year, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth Church, had for his subject "The Old Year and the New." The text was from Philippians iii and xiii: "Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth to those things which are before." Dr. Hillis said:

Paul is in the Mammartime Prison, and at the very end of his dramatic career. With instant resolution he calls in all his reserve for one more splendid deed. He determines to write one more letter, to light one more torch to be handed forward by the leaders of a column marching through life's night. Paul looks joyfully forward because he can look peacefully back. His happy anticipations are based upon glorious recollections. Having lived well yesterday, he is willing that tomorrow should do its worst. Yesterday held fortitude and faith; yesterday held innumerable struggles and anguish unto death. The past that was a weight to other men was a wing for Paul. Life had been a fierce fight against sin on a far off frontier, and now Paul had won his victory and was going home to his triumphal procession. Life had been a race, with many obstacles to be overcome, but now he had reached the goal and won his prize. Life was a school, with teachers of suffering and joy, of defeat and victory; and now he had come through all the storm and tumult, and had received his diploma from God. The season was winter; he was a prisoner in a damp cell; the cold was slowly chilling him to death; tomorrow held the executioner's ax, and yet his spirit rose triumphant into the realm of joy and victory. For his many and rich yesterdays made him certain of a glorious tomorrow.

Paul Forgets Yesterday's Sin.

Paul begins by forgetting that which is behind. His yesterday held one chapter that he wishes to forget. Its memory lay upon his heart like a black mark across the page of an open book. The later chapters in his autobiography were bright with golden deeds of courage and self-sacrifice, but this one chapter was stained with cowardice and cruelty. The murder of Stephen grew out of Paul's excessive ambition for place and honor. In our republic, membership in the Cabinet confers a high form of honor and influence. In England, the Cabinet member ranks higher than with us, because he has a position on the legislative floor, and can suggest and carry through new laws. But membership in the Jewish Sandrehim carried with it judicial function as well as legislative. For this reason old men and mature alone were eligible. Having determined to break into this body, Paul found it necessary to buy his position through cruelty and crime. So he launched himself like a redhot thunderbolt against the little Christian Church. The chains rattled, the swords slashed, the scourge hissed, the faggots burned and the new faith was tried in a fiery furnace. When the smith's hammer falls the sparks fly in every direction; thus, under the stroke of persecution, the disciples fled into every corner of the line. In his hatred and cruelty Saul breathed forth slaughter against the young disciples, and when at last the most gifted rabbi of his time went over to the new faith Paul wakened to discover that his garments were red with the life blood of a fellow creature. But a crime is like a millstone about a swimmer's neck. An evil deed is like a ball and chain tied to an athlete's leg. It is given to one black sin to ruin an entire career. Many a youth has made shipwreck of his life by one sin that society would not forgive and that the man himself can never forget. If memory blesses a good man it curses an evil one. Browning made the miser drown the young woman, but later memory sent the youth back to draw the body from the water by the long braids of hair. But to the end of his life Malvio could not drown the memory that cursed him. An evil deed in youth remembered in age is like a skeleton hidden in a closet, when any chance event may release the spring that opens the door to reveal the hidden deed. There must have been a thousand hours when Paul would have given his right arm to shut out the sight of that mob that stoned Stephen to death. For a bad man the past is a sepulcher filled with dead men's bones; the past is a dungeon in which the transgressor is imprisoned; the past is a trap that holds a soul vainly struggling for release. With such a black page in his autobiography a weaker man would have given up feeling that it was hopeless to retrieve his mistake. But Paul was a giant. He determined that not even murder should ruin his life. He made confession, he pledged restitution and determined to take Stephen's place and quadruple Stephen's work. What God had forgiven Paul determined to forget. He resolved not to be hindered or poisoned by the recollection of his ignoble deed. God forgives and casts man's sins into the depths of the sea. Being forgiven, Paul resolved to forget and to drown his yesterdays in the abyss of oblivion.

Having forgotten the black chapter in his life, Paul also resolves to forget the good he has achieved. History is full of the story of heroism, but history holds no chapter of bravery so bright as Paul's. Scholars often call the eleventh chapter of Hebrews the rollcall of heroes. One glorious name and deed after another is struck off as the harper strikes his notes. The heroes subdued kingdoms, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. They had trial of mockings and scourgings—yea, of bonds and imprisonments. But these brave deeds were distributed among a multitude of brave men. There were many mountain-peaked souls. A thousand years of time rolled between this first glorious deed and the last hero. And yet Paul was so unique that in himself is gathered up all the achievements distributed among other heroes, so that you could substitute Paul's for all the other great names. Paul was stoned, Paul wandered about in sheepskins and goatskins; Paul was destitute, afflicted, tormented; Paul wandered in deserts and in mountains, in dens and in caves of the earth; Paul was tried by the saw and the sword and the scourge—of whom the world was not worthy. But he is going to forget that his scars were his medals. It is not easy for a soldier of Waterloo to forget his Victoria cross. It is not easy for a man who has saved another's life to forget his medal of heroism. Yet Paul determines to minimize his brilliant achievements. Unlike the miser, he will not count his store of gold. He determines to make little of his brilliant deeds, and to eclipse them with heroism more glorious still. Doubtless Paul was a moral genius. Some are born with genius toward color, form or music. Plato was a genius toward philosophy, Newton toward astronomy, Edison toward invention. Only once in ten thousand years is there born a man with moral genius like Paul. He had the spiritual imagination that perceives things invisible, unseen by other eyes, and never heard by other ears. Paul had the genius of seeing God and of being able to realize the Invisible One to others, so that God seemed near and dear to men. But having called the roll of his sufferings and martyrdoms, Paul determines to count them as nothing. Like Miltiades, he hurls his helmet into the thick of the enemy and fights his way forward to recover it again. Yonder rose the steep hills of difficulty, and on the heights stood Him whose name is above every name, the great Martyr and Saviour, and counting all his other brave deeds as nothing, Paul started anew up the Mount, while he exclaimed: "I count not myself to have achieved, but I press forward toward the mark of the high calling in Christ Jesus."

The Great Life Rooted in the Past.

Standing on the tableland midway between the old year and the new, consider that every strong, rich, influential character is rooted in the past. Every day is only a point where a multitude of noble yesterdays have poured out all their treasure. The power of the Mississippi is in the number of streams and rivulets, the number of summer's rains and winter's snows, that lie behind the river's current and crowd it forward. The measure of that historic vine in Santa Barbara is in the number of rich summers and winters that slowly builded the boughs and trunk. The culture of Sir William Jones means seventy years in the library, with the accumulation of ten languages and thirty dialects. The bid of some Rothschild or Morgan startles the street because it has back of it a billion dollars to lend momentum and weight. Civilization itself is a granary in which ten thousand yesterdays have stored its tools, its arts, its knowledge, its laws, its literature. The people that has no history remains in perpetual childhood. The man that has not knowledge of history remains a child forever. Wealth means the accumulation of property, culture means the accumulation of knowledge, civilization means an accumulation of institutions, with great events and great men. A successful old age means that childhood, youth and maturity have come like harvesters to empty all their golden sheaves down at the feet of the husbandman. Yesterdays, many and good, are pledges of tomorrows peaceful and happy. Contrariwise, bad yesterdays bring ill tidings for the morrow. There may be some juice of the poppy that stills the headache, but there is no river of Lethe to drown evil recollections. An evil deed can be repented of, but its history is written in indelible ink and cannot be erased. The foolish man trifles with today and writes a bad record and blinds his eyes to the consequences; the wise man tries to store up many useful yesterdays, knowing that with this treasure of influence behind him he has nothing to fear from tomorrow. Life, therefore, should march a solid column of days. Thoughts should be organized into regiments. Happy the youth who turns with hope toward the future because he remembers with gratitude his past.

The Great Life Manifest in the Present.

II. But if the soul's hidings of power are in its yesterdays, the point where life realizes itself is in a today manifest in deeds. What memory does for the past, what hope does for the future, reason and will do for the present. But nothing is harder than to convince men that now is the accepted time, and that today is the day of culture, success and salvation. Our world is filled with noble men and splendid women who will die unfulfilled prophecies. Each morning they delude themselves with the thought that when a few more days have passed and the future has come, that they are going to do some splendid deed for their fellow men. Tomorrow they will endow a school or hospital, tomorrow they will enrich a library or church, tomorrow they will search out some boy or girl to educate—that the youth may sing for you, or plead for you, may carve for you, or paint for you. Last Friday night you heard Mrs. Alice Stebbins Wells, who is the first woman policeman in the world, plead for the women and children in great cities. How clear she made it that four-fifths of society are women and children. What poverty, what trouble, what untoward conditions in tenement and garret! What wrongs women and children suffer. Strange that she is the first woman policeman, but more strange if she is not followed by thousands who understand the woman's needs before the law! It seems but yesterday that Alice Stebbins joined Plymouth Church and that I urged her to go to Harvard Theological Seminary and to prepare herself for work among women in great churches. One morning, after one such plea, my old friend, John Arbuckle waited and gave me a check of $400 to assist in educating a young woman along these lines, and I could not but think last Friday night, when I listened to one of the world's most useful women, and the leader of a great reform, that my old friend's investment in youth had been returned to him a thousandfold. For unto him who gives shall be given, good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over shall God give into the man's hands.

The Great Life Is in the Future.

III. But men are not saved alone by memory of the past nor safeguarded by intellect and work in the present; man's real life is in the future. Too much living in the past paralyzes the nerve of activity; too much living in the present brings the horizon too close and narrows the outlook; man's real life is in the future, where lie the moist furrows waiting for the seed. Yonder behind the horizon lies your true life. There are no failures that are irretrievable. Under God all mistakes can be corrected. When Seneca said that sins could be repented of but not blotted out, the Roman teacher erred in his judgment. Today there is a new chemistry in the world. Science adds a drop to the liquor, and lo, black becomes white, carbon becomes diamond, red clay becomes ruby, and stenchful odors take on the sweetest perfume. Surgeons have discovered antiseptics. The physician handles the disease with impunity, because he can thrust his hand into a bath of listerine that slays every germ. Shakspeare thought that the multitudinous seas could not wash clean Lady Macbeth's little red hand, but despite that word, there is a divine alchemy. What man cannot do, God achieves. He blots out all man's sins. Therefore, no youth has any right to allow former words to embarrass and destroy him. How many men exclaim: "I might have been a scholar, but I played the truant, and refused to go to college; now that it is too late, I have wakened up to realize that I threw away a great career." How many men, as merchants, bemoan yesterday's blunders, saying that if they had not made this sale, or gone into this business, or taken on that partner, they would have been able to ride out the financial panic and have secured a great fortune. But these "ifs" and regrets are useless. The overruling providence of God takes account of man's ignorance, of man's errors, and overrules them with reference to higher ends. Every man should feel that yesterday's mistakes are like the bow bent to hurl the arrow the farthest forward. No man has ever done enough for society. No matter how hard you may have worked, or what position you may have achieved, or what manifold influences you may have wrought, it still remains that your true life is in the future. Tomorrow holds the valeys and the hillsides, to be turned into pastures and meadows. Tomorrow holds the conflict and battle to be turned into victory. Tomorrow holds the desert that you can transform into a garden. Tomorrow will bring you little children whom you can educate and feed and clothe and transform into brave men and beautiful women. Let it be your ideal, therefore, to die in the harness. Last November a gardener found his peach trees had bloomed anew, and in the garden he picked ripe strawberries. That plant and tree were toiling up to the very edge of winter. Oh, beautiful illustration of the brave men that work right up to the moment when the signal of release comes. There is only one place for a man to die, and that is in the thick of the fight. There is only one way for a man to be carried home, and that is upon his shield. If the sword is too short, young man, add a step to its length. Be not like these rivers that die out in the sand and disappear in aridness when the course is half run. Take rather as your models these mountain streams that run full-breasted to the sea, and turn mill wheels at the last moment before they leap into the ocean.

The Renewal of Youth and New Year's.

The New Year's time also brings to every old man the realization that the secret of eternal youth is in being reborn every New Year's Day. Some men talk about having done enough for their generation and plan for a quiet evening hour before the sunset gun doth boom. They argue that a man needs the tranquil mood at the close of life's day to prepare for the realm immortal. But heaven is too busy helping the poor and weak to be interested in the homecoming of men who have forgotten their fellows in their thought of themselves. The true man is the man who never drops his sword; never withdraws from the battle and who falls in the thick of the fight. No man can earn retirement that he may rest and enjoy himself—time for that beyond. No man ever achieved culture enough. Therefore this year open new books, search out new fields of study. No merchant has ever achieved wealth enough. If you have abundance for your family and yourself, begin to invest and to save for the poor and lay up treasures in heaven. Money is kept bright by using and so are men's faculties. At the very end when his hand could scarcely hold a pen Tennyson attempted new poems. When Gladstone was no longer equal to the nervous strength of creating new essays and arguments, the old man took Butler's Analogy and wrote a commentary thereupon. Every hour of the new year must be filled, every three months must hold some new achievement, every day some new furrow must be opened and seed sown for the happiness and good fortune of others. This year, therefore, broaden your horizon. Sweep away all barriers, Repair your old friendships and make new ones. If you are young search out mature men, and through conversation harvest their wisdom. If you are old, find out some ambitious youth, and put your stamp upon him, and make yourself unconsciously immortal by handing forward your ideals through him. So when life is over shall you have a great multitude come out to meet and greet you, and give you an abundant entrance, bringing you home with trumpets and banners.

"Charles' Achievements."

For some of us last week held one event—the death of Charles, our colored janitor. When I think of Charles' handicaps and the friendships he conquered, and of our gifts and opportunities through ancestry and early education, I am ashamed for myself and in part for you. Back of us stand a long line of ancestors, teachers, friends with the angels of culture and fortune. Charles' father is a white man, still to be found in his old age in the hotels of New York. About 1870 he took his string of horses to Southern cities, just as in the summer he made the round of the races in Northern towns. In Charleston, this gambler met the young quadroon and lived with her during the winter for ten years. When Charles was 9 years old the man wrote advising the young woman to find some colored man and marry, and with the letter sent a sum of money. This man had often spoken of having been for a time in Harvard College, and so Charles' mother took the money and started for Boston. How pathetic the scene—of her arrival at the wharf, only to be told that Harvard was not in Boston. Holding the little girl by the left hand and Charles by the right, this colored woman walked to Cambridge. At last she stood in front of Harvard College, but her statement that she wanted Charles to enter that university brought a pitying smile to the lips of some and tears to the eyes of one, whom the little boy could never forget. This man explained to the colored woman that Harvard College was founded for young men, and told her that her boy must first learn to read and write, that there were free public schools, and in that mood of sympathy he found a room and gave the colored woman a chance to wash and cook, soon the boy and girl started to the public school; but in that damp, cutting climate the east wind soon chilled the little girl to death. Then, when two or three winters had passed, Charles mother was ill, and one night she wakened up the boy to make him kneel down and say his prayers, after which he slept to waken and find a cold, silent form beside him. Charles fled into the night in peril. There was one man who ran a bootblacking stand. He was generally drunk, so Charles shined the boots, while the man stood above and cursed him. The boy had a hungry mind, and was so faithful to his work that constantly he was climbing. One day a man stopped him and spoke in admiration of his health and beauty. The next day he came to Charles saying he had net a hundred dollars that Charles could knock out the favorite boxer down at Nantasket Beach. Charles did not want to box nor fight, and knew nothing about the science, but the man insisted that he had risked $100, and Charles had such a sense of loyalty to the new friend and—that he stood up and did his best. He knocked out the champion in five minutes and incidentally broke his arm; not because he was a fighter, but because he was loyal.

His Death.

Then a man impressed with this loyalty offered Charles a chance in his machine shop, and this colored boy was so accurate, thorough and faithful that the company began to send him to different cities. He set up each great machine and saw that it worked properly, and so for years he traveled up and down this land. One day I asked Charles to come to Plymouth and be our janitor. He said that he had often as a child heard his mother speak of Plymouth Church and Mr. Beecher. So for seven years he served Plymouth, as Jacob served for Rachel, and the seven years seemed but seven days for the love he had for you men and women. Last winter, during zero weather, Charles was here until 2 o'clock in the morning tending the furnaces of this church. How thorough his work—he could not abide a speck of dust on the pews! How faithful to the societies! How loyal to the trustees! How kind and gentle to our little children! Everybody knew Charles. Never was man so proud of his work. Plymouth was to him as beautiful as a king's palace, and Charles wore his position as a king wears his crown. His name should have been Loyalty. On his tomb I shall inscribe these words: "He was faithful unto death." He would have died for me and I loved him. Scores and scores of times I have come in from Paterson and Plainfield, the Oranges, from Stamford and Greenwich, and the cities of the Hudson River Valley; towns where I lectured at night and reached the ferry or depot at 12 o'clock, but always Charles was waiting in the depot. At last I forbade him sitting up so late, and would not tell him on what train I would return, but he would question my secretary or some member of the family and find out. One night at 12:20 or 1 I found Charles waiting for my train, and said: "Charles, it is enough that this public life should kill one man, and I cannot have you slain. This must not happen again." And he made answer: "Dr. I went to bed at 9 o'clock, but I could not sleep. It is no use, I cannot sleep until I see you safe home and lock the door behind you and see you go upstairs." Deserted by his father, orphaned by his mother's death, buffeted about by fate and circumstances, a newsboy and bootblack and milk boy, porter in hotels, lured into the sparring ring, thronged by gamblers, drunkards, evil men and women, all trying to destroy him, this colored man rose superior to all temptation, and was fidelity itself. You and I have known other faithful men and women, but have you ever known a man that made as much out of his one talent as Charles? Sitting beside him as he was dying last Christmas night, Charles suddenly said: "Dr, if you build the church house next to Plymouth Church, I hope there will be two or three rooms for me, and then on rainy Sundays and rainy Friday nights, for the people that come many miles, I can prepare a cup of coffee." And then wistfully the dying boy said: "You see, I want to die in Plymouth Church." Perhaps you and I will never see Charles again, he will be so near God's throne that there will be no teiescope with which you and I can see him, so far will he be removed. Yet he groaned inly, while he taught us peace, and with his broken heart, died while we were smiling.

The Short Time.

O! all ye young hearts! The New Year and the coming era offers an arena to you, more beautiful and rich than was ever spread out before this colored man. Act now with instant resolution! Make faithfulness to be the motto with your coming career. If the torch has fallen from your hand, leap forward and relight it from the altars of God. Act with instant and decisive energy. Gather up all the evil of your life—all envy and hatred, all selfishness and greed, all appetite and passion, and as the husbandman burns the thistles and the weeds, destroy the evil from your life. Let nothing wicked in thought or purpose escape the destroying hand. Look upon your soul as a mansion, and if there are dark rooms in the cellar light a torch, and search out every corner, and drag from its biding place the evil that crawls like vermin through the secret places of the soul. If dust has accumulated over the windows of faith, cleanse away the spider's web, that once more the faces of angels and seraphs may shine forth. Dig up each evil thing, as the gardener digs up poison ivy; care for the flowers of faith and love, as the gardener cares for the lilies and the roses. Turn to those who are nearest to you in friendship or business, and give vows to them and to God. Remember that whatever concerns your fellows, vitally concerns you. Give yourself like a prince, break the alabaster box of Love upon the head of those that are dear to you. Next year give no blows, but heal the wounds that others have made! Be over against your fellows that are poor and weak, like a sword and a shield, lifted above the bleeding soldier! At best, the New Year will be short, all too short for your occupation, your friendship, your art, your industry, your service. Guard each hour, therefore, like a ruby drop, and make the most of it. When the New Year's night comes, do not greet it with revelry, gluttony and drunkenness, but alone, and upon your knees in the dark, with your God, open your heart to receive the New Year, and surrender yourself unto Christ, as you whisper: "Forgetting the things that are behind, with all forgiven sins, and yesterday's virtues, I reach forward unto the things that are before, to the things of truth and beauty, of justice and purity and loyalty, for man's sake, and for God's sake."

Items of Religious Interest

Los Angeles will soon be known as the city of conventions. The distance does not seem to deter those who live farthest East from congregating in that city. The International Christian Endeavor Convention will be held there from July 9 to 14, 1913. An important and comprehensive programme is now being prepared and the city is getting ready to receive the delegates. The International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association will also be held in that city, May 8 to 12.

An important movement has been set on foot by the Rev. Dr. William B. Wallace, pastor of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn. He has divided his congregation into hundreds, and each hundred is in charge of a centurion, with subdivisions of ten, each ten in charge of a captain. When members are absent they will be looked up and their needs will be attended to. The membership roll will thus be kept constantly revised. Many of the members live long distances from the Temple.

The tenth council of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches Throughout the World Holding the Presbyterian System will meet in Aberdeen, Scotland, June 17 to 27, 1913. The opening address will be made by the Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, Manhattan, president of the Alliance. The Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts, stated clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, is the American secretary of the Alliance.

An interesting statistical table is presented by the Living Church showing the progress in the Episcopal Church during the year 1912. The number of the clergy is 5,678, an increase of 72 for the year; candidates for holy orders, 441; decrease, 4; postulants, 379; decrease, 48; lay readers, 379; decrease, 42; parishes and missions, 8,164; increase, 99; there was a decrease in infant baptisms of 164; a decrease in the total number of all baptisms of 147; increase in numbers confirmed, 1,023; communicants, 986,021; increase, 22,924; there was an increase in Sunday school teachers of 682, and of pupils, 4,557; contributions, $18,802,183.57; increase, $109,972.43; the total amount of the missionary apportionment was $1,314,555; 5,742 parishes contributed $934,645.71 to the apportionment; 2,406 parishes and 12 dioceses completed their apportionment, as did 15 domestic missionary districts and 5 foreign missionary districts.

The Little Shepherd;

The Rev. Joseph H. Smith.

IN THE Church of St. Ignatius, Carroll street and Nostrand avenue, yesterday morning, the Rev. Joseph H. Smith was the preacher. The subject of his sermon was "The Little Shepherd." His text was John x:14: "I am the good shepherd and know my sheep and am known of mine." He said:

It is out of the eternal word that these words are spoken. They tell us, not of the life of the word from eternity in the bosom of the Father, but of the life which He led in the infirmity of the flesh when He became man. They tell us of the humiliation of the Son of God when He that is eternal deigned to be born of the Virgin Mary; when He that is the master became as a servant; when He that is everlasting became an infant of the day; when He that is omnipotent put on the helplessness of a child; when He whose immensity the heavens cannot contain and whose power embraced the world, was born in a manger. They speak to us of the love of Him whose going forth is from the end of heaven and His service to the end thereof. They tell us of the life which was begun in the obscurity of Bethlehem, but was consummated on the hilltop of Calvary. "He came unto his own and his own received him not." For four thousand years the whole world had moved out of the primeval course and man had dug cisterns that could hold no water instead of drinking and quenching his thirst at the fountain of eternal life. And now, at last, when man finds that he can no longer slake his thirst he cries out in his affliction and distress that the Lord God Almighty will relieve him from that affliction and distress, and the whole world is filled with lamentation and the cry for a Redeemer to come. And so, at last, God hears the words and the cries of His people, and He sends His only begotten Son that the world may be saved by Him. Surely the world will hasten with every demonstration of joy and affection to meet the Saviour. But no, "He came unto his own and his own received him not." And He is not only their Saviour, but He is their Creator, and He comes to make a gift to them—the riches of heaven. He comes to [illegible] the home of the heaven[illegible] they refuse Him comfort in this world, and He has to seek the shelter of a rude stable. He comes to feed them with the bread of angels and to give them to drink of the fountain of everlasting life, and they give Him for His bread and drink tears. He came to make them worthy to share the companionship of angels and they compel Him to seek His companionship among the brutes. Behold the reception that is given to Christ and see Him in the manger in this Christmas time! My friends, behold how He feels the ingratitude of mankind! Behold the tears that course down His cheeks! See the sorrow upon His face for this ingratitude.

Oh, truly, this Christ-child is only a child. "A son is born to us, and a child is given to us." But remember, this Child holds within His hand the weight of the Universe. He is the counselor, the God of Peace, our Emanuel. Remember, as you have before your minds the thought of the Christ-child in the manger, that that child has within Him all the tender characteristics and all the sweet traits and the attractive disposition of and is the same Christ who later on, on the hillsides of Judea and on the bosom of the lake, will proclaim Himself to be the Good Shepherd. He is, even in the manger, the Good Shepherd, and out through His tender, loving eyes, the heart of the Good Shepherd goes forth to win His lost, or His unlost, sheep. It goes out to His sheep in the fold and to those who have wandered forth out of it. He follows them over the earth with the love of that tender heart.

In the beautiful gospel we read that He is the Good Shepherd, and we are told of all the beautiful traits of the Good Shepherd, and how He is come to save that which was lost. Ah, He is the Good Shepherd that knows His sheep; each one, individually by name. He laid down His very life for His sheep; who leads them into the fertile meadows and pastures where they may feed upon the food of everlasting life. He is the Good Shepherd. It is true that He has so taught His own that they know His voice and they hear His voice and they follow Him.

And so we love to think of this Little Shepherd. He is the Good Shepherd for us. Ah, for how many of us He has proved to be so true to His entrancing title of the "Good Shepherd." He knows His sheep by name. He knows all the traits and dispositions of His sheep, its tendency to wander, its waywardness, perhaps, or its goodness of character which entitles it to wear the bell, to be the leader. He knows all His sheep. The sheep that stay in the fold and He does not love them any the less because He spends so much time going forth, leaving the ninety-nine and going after the sheep that has strayed and bringing it back to His bosom and folding it there in love. This is the Good Shepherd, my friends, who loses no opportunity to impress upon us the particularity and partiality of love for each individual soul of the whole flock.

And so we are taught that that Christ the Good Shepherd does not love all men as a people, collectively, in the bulk, though He loves them in every way. His love is a particular and special love for each soul whom He has created. The love of Christ is a special love for each soul, just as the sun would shine no less brightly on this world if it were to shine for me alone; just as the sky, which God has placed above, would be no less fair, and the air no less refreshing, and the joy no less ennobling if I were the sole beneficiary of the bounty of God. Because there are others whom I love the love of Christ for me is none the less, for He loves me and everything that is dear to me. He loves me with all my afflictions. And, my brethren, He manifests His love to us so that we may learn to have confidence in Him, and in the whole economy of His church. We are not baptized in bulk. We do not receive the Blessed Sacrament in a multitude as we receive the benediction, but each individual soul must have absolution pronounced over it as if there were no other souls in the world to be the concern of God's priests who have administered the sacrament. And into each individual soul Christ comes in Holy Communion and in that soul finds a resting place and a shelter from the cold, ungrateful world.

This is the love of the Good Shepherd. We love to think of Jesus as the good shepherd and to be minded of those traits of His character when we kneel before Him at the manger in Bethlehem. We love to think as we look back over our lives of the toil and the quest which the Good Shepherd has made for each individual soul. Each one can remember how the Good Shepherd sought him out and followed him, tenderly, lovingly, watchfully, to bring him back to the fold.

This is the mystery to us: How Christ could love each one of us when we know we are so unworthy of His love and that we have been so wicked. But the Good Shepherd sees whatever is good in us. He knows that His father has created that soul and that He is going to shed His most precious blood to redeem it. He knows that in the most forlorn and forsaken soul there is something good. There is something attractive; that soul has been redeemed by grace; that soul has done something for Christ. It may have been a long time ago, we may have forgotten, but God always remembers; and it is such good that God bears in mind when He goes forth in so many ways in quest, remembering that the soul has been dyed a royal purple, remembering that though the gold is tarnished it is still gold, and He can wipe away the stain and remove the tarnish. That is the Good Shepherd. And oh, the comfort that comes to His heart, my friends, when in that search among the briars and the brambles, it may be in hunger and in thirst, He at last comes to some sign of His lost sheep, and He knows His little lamb is near and He will soon find it. Let us look into our hearts; we are all the lambs of Christ. Some have never wandered forth and some have. Christ has transferred the love in His heart down to His priests to use for the flock, and no priest is worthy who has it not in his heart to be kind-hearted and generous and forgiving and consoling, like the Good Shepherd.

Feeding Hungry Sheep;

The Rev. Josiah Sibley.

(Special to The Eagle.)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., December 30—The Rev. Josiah Sibley, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, preached a sermon which attracted more than usual attention for the strong way in which it treated of everyday conditions. The subject was "Feeding the Hungry Sheep." The text was from John xxi:18: "And he said unto him the third time, 'Simon, son of John, lovest thou me—feed my sheep." Mr. Sibley said:

William Lyon Phelps is one of the most inspiring as well as most popular members of the faculty at Yale. He is a scholar, an apt judge of human nature, a rich personality. As I look back through ten years among the most valuable of all the courses that came to me at college and university, was the year I spent with him in the study of Tennyson and Browning. Yet he is nothing of a pedant, so genial is he that he is known among the boys as Billy Phelps. Professor Phelps is high-idealed; he is a moral tonic, a spiritual incentive to the army of young men who come in such close and vital touch with him.

Under the winning title of the "Hungry Sheep," Professor Phelps, in the November Century, makes a new diagnosis of the church's much discussed malady of male paralysis. One sometimes wonders which is more chronic, the disease or the varied prescriptions for its treatment. In Dr. Phelps' diagnosis he states that the fact that the church pews contain more women than men should occasion no alarm. "Women have always taken more interest in religious organizations than men, both because they have more leisure for contemplation, and because public worship appeals more to a woman's nature than to a man's. If the mere fact that a minister sees in front of him more brilliant hats than bald heads be a sign that the church does not appeal to the solid intelligence of humanity, then the symphony concert and the art museum fail even more signally. It is rather interesting to observe that at almost any public spectacle the number of men is in inverse ratio to the intellectual value of the performance. At vaudeville the men vastly outnumber the women, and amid the enormous throng at a prize fight there are hardly any women at all."

"Still," continues Dr. Phelps, "it is unfortunate that more men do not attend church, and it is more unfortunate for the man than it is for the church. The real difficulty is not a fundamental one. It does not lie in the nature of religion or in the nature of man. Next to questions of sex and the means of subsistence the average man is more interested in religion than in any other one thing. The ordinary man is a natural theologian. He takes keen interest in constructing his God, his scheme of the universe, and the problem of life after death has always had and probably always will have an irresistible fascination."

This statement of the general craving of the masculine nature after religion is undoubtedly true, but it is at some variance with Dr. Phelps' preliminary contention that "woman have always taken more interest in religious organizations than have men." Christianity has been a man's religion, and has been forwarded by men from its very inception. Very true, Christianity has glorified womanhood, and its precious secret has been most tenderly cherished in woman's heart, but it is none the less true that strong masculine hearts have been fired by the power of its heroic gospel. The old Hebrew temple allowed no place for women at worship except that they might climb up a balcony stair and look at the worshipping men. Christ the Founder was a man of strength and virility, though, like all truly strong men, He was also gentle. The women like Mary loved to sit at His feet and hear the sweet gospels fall from His lips. But He chose as His intimate companions, as the ones who were to bear the brunt of the hardship in the establishment of His church, men of a strong and hardy mold and build. He was able to appeal to such men and to transform them. They were fishermen of brawny arm and bronzed cheek. Today the ministry has been least invaded by women of any of the callings or professions. Dr. Phelps is right in maintaining that men are naturally deeply interested in religion.

Dr. Phelps concludes that the main trouble with the Church today is not in the pews, but in the pulpit. "There is more Christian faith in the average congregation than in the average preacher." "A vital Christian faith," says Dr. Phelps, "is the prime essential for a man who wishes to succeed in the ministry. It is worth more to him than all the learning in the world. All of which is eternally true. Yet it does not answer the question as to why more men do not attend church? In the first place, multitudes of men do attend church. In the second place, while it is doubtless true that many ministers have allowed themselves to preach theories and essays rather than sermons and the Gospel, nevertheless, American ministers of all denominations taken as a whole are men of faith in the unseen God and of consecrated devotion to his cause.

It is worth our while to ponder this feeding of the hungry sheep. We must remember that there are many kinds of sheep and that all of them are not hungry. Multitudes of the sheep have so long subsisted on the sunny golf green that they have not much appetite for the more secluded pastures of the churchyard; they do not know the rich grasses that grow there nor the quiet waters which give wondrous rest. Many of the sheep seek satisfaction in some little secluded cove, ignorant of how barren is the vegetation there in comparison with what they might have; others in their grazing have eaten the poisonous plant of materialism, this has given them a craving only for that weed of bittersweet; some have lost their way amid a misty wilderness of new thought and the coming of a new day which has not yet fully dawned, they cannot hear the shepherd's voice, he speaks in an unknown tongue; some are black sheep that have wandered far from the fold, they can only be fed with infinite care and tenderness.

All these sheep the Good Shepherd says must be fed. No more touching, nor impressive picture of command was ever given than that which He gave by the early morning breakfast scene when He made the threefold test of love to Him to consist in nothing else than in being true to the command, "Feed My lambs," "Feed my sheep." It was what we might have expected of that Great Heart, who when He saw the multitudes as sheep without a shepherd, was filled with compassion.

If all the sheep are not hungry, and some of them are poisoned and some of them have lost their way, the problem of feeding them is a varied and delicate one.

The sheep shall be fed by the presentation of a religion that is real and tangible. Ours is a practical age, we are workers. We are founders of cities and builders of industries. Beside the glowing forge we sing the song of Tubal Cain. To be reached the man of today must be appealed to in the concrete, he must be spoken to in the language of today. Our generation craves an understanding of religion, which seeks to make this present world a more wholesome and brotherly place in which to live, a religion which proclaims in trumpet tones the golden age, foretold in the pattern prayer, when God's kingdom shall come because His will is done on earth as it is in heaven.

You see the hungering after a religion that is real and tangible in the young people of our day. Our young people may not have much hunger after dogmatic creeds and stereotyped experiences of emotional religion, but they have hearts that are eager and active to serve in the cause of humanity and of God.

Multitudes of the sheep are starving to death today because they have no right understanding of religion. They think it something unreal, something that is good for women and children and to have at a funeral, but something very foreign to the daily life of a strong man. If only these could be brought to know that religion is nothing if not intimately connected with life, that religion is love, that religion is light, that religion is joy, that religion is heroic service, that the personality of Jesus Christ overflowing with love, radiant with light, transfused with the fierce joy of heroic service stands triumphant over His cross as the glowing embodiment of religion that is real and dynamic—the sheep would rejoice to be fed.

The cry of the hungry sheep for religion that is real and tangible calls not for new theological creeds, but for creeds of social service. This cry is being significantly answered today in the city of Chicago, where the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is met in quadrennial session and where these representatives of thirty-two denominations representing 17,000,000 church membership, have presented the following new creed of social service. And may it some day be as significant in Church history as were those old councils of orthodoxy who sat at Chalcedon and Nicea. Hear this creed of social service. It speaks a new practical and spiritual basis for the reunion of Christendom far more effective than any mere organic federation could guarantee. This is the day for which the Master prayed when he said, "Holy Father, keep them in thy name, that they may be one even as we are."

According to the proposed creed the Church must staid:

"For the protection of the family by the single standard of purity, regulation of marriage and proper housing.

"For fullest development of the child by education and recreation.

"For the abatement and prevention of poverty.

"For the conservation of health.

"For safeguarding the right of all men to an opportunity for self-maintenance and for protection of workers from the hardsnip of enforced unemployment."

The sheep must be fed today by a religion that is positive and logical. The sheep grow thin through sparseness of grass. Definiteness of thought is flagrantly absent in our religious life. Since the rule of theological bondage has been so largely renounced, there has been no strong and benevolent influence guiding men's religious thinking helpfully. The result threatens a kind of theological anarchy, or bedlam or chaos. We suffer from eclecticism in religion today. "You pays your money and you takes your choice."

There are just as many quacks with their nostrums in the religious world as in the medical world, beating their tomtoms and calling, "This is the truth." And it is passing strange what crowds of well-meaning people are deluded thereby. One sees this religious variety show ad infinitum in California. On account of the climate they flourish there. The Spiritists and the Theosphists and the Christian Scientists, and the Holy Rollers, and the followers of Mother Tingley, the Purple Mother down at San Diego, and the fashionable society ladies who follow the fad of hanging on the word of Baba Bahrata, and other teachers of Hindu cults abound on every side. Poor things, half the time they haven't enough training or depth of mind to know what is truth, nor when they are being duped. When pictures of a benevolent old man, called "Pastor" Russell, are spread broadcast through the town, and through periodicals, and the story is recited that "Pastor" Russell is head of Talmage's old church, the Brooklyn Tabernacle, the devout man says, "I must go to hear him speak." He organizes his followers into Bible study classes, "The International Bible Study Union," which sounds good enough. But you have to study the Bible only according to "Pastor" Russell's method, and he seeks to prey upon the sheep who are already in some other fold, he does not waste time on the outcast. The ministers of Brooklyn, The Brooklyn Eagle and Mr. W. T. Ellis of the Continent have laid bare the theological and moral deficiencies of Pastor Russell, showing that he is but a Dowie in embryo, that he teaches that Christ returned to death in 1874, that he, Russell, is the divinely appointed representative of God on earth at the present time, and that the end of the present age with the ushering of the millennium when the Russellites shall reign with the Lord, will take place in 1914.

The hungry sheep must be given positive and definite religious instruction from the pulpit. Not dried tongue, not vague conceptions, but thought that goes to the core of Christian truth, that seeks to make Christians acquainted with glorious annals and achievements of the Christian church. Ours is no barren heritage. No institution ever had so splendid a history as ours, nor was inwrought with truth so universal and so precious to the human soul.

The sheep must be fed with religion that is intelligible to the world thought of today. The Zeitgeist, the spirit of the age cannot but put its stamp upon the sensitive plate of religious consciousness. If the sheep are starved through eclecticism, no less are they cramped through ecclesiasticism, ecclesiastical language, ecclesiastical tyranny of thought.

The hungry sheep must be fed with
